MINES SINK SMALL BOATS

Captain and Mate of Trawler Are Missing

CREW OF THREE LOST

Whale Killed by Mine is Cast up on the Shore

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Oct. 30. — The trawler Rosella of Grimsby struck a mine on the east coast, Thursday afternoon and sank. The captain and mate are missing.

The fishing boat "Our Tom" of Ramsgate, struck a mine Wednesday and sank immediately with a crew of three.

A whale killed by a mine, drifted ashoe at Margate today.

The Daily News' correspondent at Flushing says, examination of a chart of the North Sea with the mine areas marked, makes one wonder how any ship captain dare put to sea.

COURT MARTIAL HELD IN LONDON

Prisoner Appears on Charge of Espionage

POSED AS TOURIST

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Oct. 30.—The first court-martial convened in England for many generations met today at Middlesex Guild Hall for the trial of Carl Hans Lody, alias Charles A. English, on a charge of espionage. Officers of the court, except the attorneys, were in uniform.

Prosecutor Bodkin, in opening the case declared the defendant was an alien enemy—a German subject — although he spoke English fluently. During the course of his tours, the accused posed as an American tourist and visited Edinburgh, London, Liverpool and Dublin. On August 4 he received a passport from the U.S. embassy in Berlin under the false name of Charles A. English. Late in August, he arrived in this country, going to Edinburgh, France and other places.

The prosecutor expressed the belief that accused had sent valuable reports to Berlin.

Consuls Ordered To Leave Turkey

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Oct. 30. — The Russian ambassador has been withdrawn from Constantinople and the Russian consuls have been ordered to leave Turkey.

ALLIES QUITE READY FOR TURKEY; GREECE IS ALSO PREPARED

Present Mighty Struggle Will Mean Not Only End of Prussian Militarism But Also the End of Turks in Europe

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Oct. 30.—The Times commenting on the Turkish bombardment of peaceful sea coast towns says: "The situation in the near East has developed logically as for some weeks past influences controlling the Ottoman government, have been working to provoke the allies into declaring war on Turkey. These efforts have been in vain as the allied powers were determined not to be the aggressors.

"The Allies are quite ready for Turkey. All preparations have been made by England in Egypt along the banks of the Suez Canal and the Peninsula of Sinai. Greece too is ready as Turkey will soon discover. By her foolish yielding to the instignations of Germans, Turkey has pronounced her own doom. The Ottoman empire in Europe will soon be merely a memory. Since Turks are resolved on self destruction, we do not regret her appearance in the ranks of the combatants.

"The present mighty struggle will mean for Europe not only the end of Prussian militarism but also the end of the Turks in Europe. These have been the chief menaces to the peace of the old world for moe than 50 years. Syria, Arabia and Mesopotamie will also be freed from the blighting influence of the Turk who will be relegated to the obscure valleys of Asia Minor."

RUSSIANS RE-OCCUPY CAPITAL OF BUKOWINA

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BUCHAREST, Oct. 30. — The Russians, after defeating Austrians at Bojana, have re-occupied Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina.

INVASION OF CAPE PROVINCE BROKEN.

LONDON, Oct. 30. — A Reuter despatch from Cape Town says Colonel Britz reports the invasion of the Cape Province has been finally broken.

UNDER ARREST IN HAMILTON

Two Deaconesses Were Here Canvassing for Subscriptions

Acting Crown Attorney Wearing informed The Review today that two women who it is alleged were in this city about a month ago, have been arrested in Hamilton on the charge of being connected with the German Government. While in the city they remained at the Y.W.C.A. and registered under the names of Mrs. Adam George and Miss Kittie Irby. They were here for a week and told the officials of the "Y." that they were canvassing for subscriptions to the "Burning Bush," a paper published in Waukesha, Wis. The officials of the "Y." stated today that they were very suspicious of these people while they were in the city.

Mr. Wearing stated that the local police had them under surveillance thinking them to be interested in the white slave traffic.

Killed Lawyer Gets Two Years

Haileybury, Oct. 30.—Joseph Lebrie, who killed James Knowles, a lawyer, in South Porcupine, last June, was given two years in Kingston Penitentiary, after the jury had returned a verdict of manslaughter.

Henry Price, colored, pleaded guilty to a serious charge, and after a scathing address, Chancellor Boyd sentenced him to twenty years

900 LIGHT USERS SIGN

The Number of Agreements Should Reach About Two Thousand

Manager Howse of the Utilities Commission informed the Review today that as yet only 900 contracts have been signed by light customers while the total will be somewhere in the neighborhood of 2000. Some of the meters recently purchased from Walkerville have arrived and are being installed, hence the necessity of citizens signing the contracts immediately.

It is the intention to use any of the meters formerly used by the Peterboro Light and Power Co. which are in a satisfactory condition.

Formal Opening Brownton Mission

At the Brownton Church of England Mission at 108 Western Avenue last evening, a Harvest Thanksgiving Service was held, the preacher being Rev. Canon Davidson. The first part of the service was read by Rev. James Price and the latter part by Mr. C. Spence. The attendance was very large considering the inclement weather and if any one had any doubts as to the need of this mission in the district the assemblage of last evening would dispel them. Canon Davidson also officially declared the mission opened in a short and inspiring speech.

The Sunday School now embraces 38 children and in the future it will be under the supervision of Mr. C. Spence.

Next Sunday afternoon the Bishop of Toronto will visit the new mission and give an address.

POWER COMPANY WILL CONSIDER SALE OF LINES

Outside City Limits, to Public Utilities Commission

At the meeting of the Utilities Commission last evening a petition was presented by the superintendent of the waterworks department, in which the residents of Lansdowne and Maud streets asked for water service. Messrs. Henthorne, Lancaster, Callender and Hall were present as a deputation representing the residents of these streets, and strongly urged that their request be granted. The superintendent reported that the cost would be $713.20 and the revenue $54.02.

It was decided that the secretary should inquire from the solicitor as to whether there can be more than $10,000 issued in any one year for extensions, etc., for the waterworks, and whether, if this work can be done under the provisions of the Municipal Act, all such work in one year can be grouped to show that the additions will bring in sufficient revenue to comply with the act.

Feeder Lines.

Mayor Buller, City Engineer Parsons, and Ald. Duncan, the chairman of the board of works, were present, and asked the commission to consider the placing of feeder lines for the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. on the commission's poles. The matter was referred to Manager Howse for a report.

Mayor Buller also brought up the recommendation of the board of works that the commission lay mains for water on Maud street, Rubidge street south of Murray, and on Gilchrist street between Murray street and the creek. Ald. Duncan also argued that the residents of Princess street be given electric light service.

Willing to Sell.

A letter was read from the Electric Power Co. saying they were willing to sell that part of the Peterboro Light and Power Co.'s distributing system outside the city limits and also suggested that the price for it be settled by arbitration.

Another communication was received from Bruce Johnston, clerk of North Monaghan, which stated at a recent meeting of the council of that municipality a resolution was passed giving the Peterboro Utilities Commission power to erect poles and carry on an electric light and power business in the township. All poles are to be erected in accordance with the directions of the council.

GERMANS AT YSER RIVER COMPELLED TO WITHDRAW ALLIES PUSH FORWARD

Ground Which Was Lost to Superior Numbers Has Been Re-gained --- Severe Losses Inflicted on the Foe

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, Oct. 30.—The afternoon official announcement says: German forces which had passed the River Yser, have been compelled to withdraw owing to inundations of the low country, accomplished by the Belgian army. In retreating, the enemy suffered severely from artillery fire.

Violent attacks by the Germans yesterday, on the French and British army corps advancing east and north-east of Ypres were repulsed and the advance continues. The British near Labassee resumed the offensive and regained the ground which they had lost to superior numbers and at several other points the British repulsed the attacks of the Germans, inflicting severe losses.

Elsewhere the engagements have been unimportant. The allies have almost everywhere made progress.

HUNTING PARTIES OFF TO THE WILDS

Veteran Sam Ray Makes Another Trip With the Shawanigan Club

The hunters are starting now for the tall pines and are getting away from civilization. These are the mornings when violent attacks of "buck fever" are very prevalent. It is a great life, to go away with one of these hunting parties for a couple of weeks, and to be placed out on a runway to watch for those fleet-footed animals called deer. When the dogs hit the trail, the barking of the hounds, to the ear of the hunter, is the sweetest music that was ever heard.

The Eagle Lake Hunt Club left this morning for hunting grounds around Little Gold Lake. The party was composed of Messrs. C. Gunsolus, captain; Gus Sawers, Jack Gibbs, W. White, Charlie Westlake and H. Routley.

The Shawanigan Hunt Club party, consisting of Messrs. C. Gladman, S. Ray, Chas. Curtis, A. Laing, M. McFadden, H. Evans, L. Steele, W. Evans, A. Curtis, Brooks, Lillie, Nelson, and Carpenter, left this morning. This party hunts in Parry Sound district.

The Jopling party, of Bridgenorth, left this morning for their favorite hunting grounds in Apsley.

COUNTY COUNCIL

The County Council will meet on Tuesday next at two o'clock. This body usually meets a month later, but are assembling earlier this year so as to consider doing something for the Patriotic Fund.

HOSPITAL SHIP IN DISTRESS

Sea Prevents Launching of Life Boats

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Oct. 30.—Signals of distress have been sent up since last night off Whitby on the Yorkshire coast from a steamship believed to be the Ropilla, a British vessel of seven thousand tons, being used as a hospital ship.

A gale is blowing, however, and the launching of lifeboats has been impossible.

SUNK RUSSIAN GUNBOAT AND DAMAGED LINER

Turkish Torpedo Boat Destroyers Enter Port of Odessa

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Bordeaux, Oct. 30.—It is announced officially today that two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers entered the port of Odessa yesterday and sank a Russian gunboat. They also inflicted damage on the French liner Portugal.

Major Gen Von Voigts Rhetz

Maj.-General Von Voightsrhets, who it is reported, has succeeded General Von Moltke as Chief of Staff of the German Army. It is stated that Emperor William retired the latter because of the German reverses in France.

BARON FISHER TO SUCCEED BATTENBERG

Prince Louis Decided to Get Outside Range of Criticism

FIRST SEA LORD

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Oct. 30. — The appointment of Baron Fisher to succeed Prince Louis of Battenberg as first sea Lord of the Admiralty was announced officially by the press bureau today.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—It is officially announced that Prince Louis of Battenburg has resigned as First Sea Lord of the Admiralty.

Prince Louis Alexander of Battenburg, personal aide-de-camp to King George, as well as First Lord of the British Admiralty, of late has been the object of undeserved, but severe criticism from certain British sources —not on account of any fault of omission, or commission, but because of his German nativity. While not a breath about anything he has done or said that can reflect on his loyalty to the British cause has been uttered, there are, nevertheless, certain British "jingoes" who think it is detrimental to the cause to have him continue as First Sea Lord, now that there is war with Germany. It is because of this attitude of a minority that the prince evidently has decided to stop the shafts of criticism by getting out of range.

Prince Louis of Battenberg is a vice-admiral and personal aide de camp to the King. He was born at Gratz, Austria, in 1854, the eldest son of Prince Alexander of Hesse. He married his cousin, Princess Victoria, daughter of Louis IV., grand duke of Hesse and of Princess Alice, Queen Victoria's daughter. He was naturalized a British subject and entered the royal navy in 1868.

Prince Louis of Battenberg served in the Egyptian war, was director of naval intelligence, second in command of the Mediterranean fleet, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, commander of the third and fourth divisions of the home fleet, and Second Sea Lord. He was appointed First Sea Lord in 1912.

In 1905 he was the guest of the Canadian National Exhibition Association in Toronto.

Baron Fisher To Succeed Him?

LONDON, Oct. 30. — The Times says it understands that Baron Fisher, admiral of the fleet, will succeed Prince Louis of Battenberg as first Sea Lord of the Admiralty.

Adam had his faults, but he was never sued for breach of promise.

A man is seldom worth as much or as little as people think he is.

THE GOD FROM THE MACHINE.

IN A LONG ARTICLE, the editor of the Montreal Mail clouted a Baptist minister of the big city for saying that the Kaiser was not to blame for the war and for militarism as it exists in Germany today. The Montreal Mail did not agree with this view, and proceeded to make out a clear and logical indictment of the German Emperor. Without knowing what the Baptist preacher said, but taking up the question of causes, it is our opinion that the Montreal paper is only half right, or that it has stated only one side of the case.

The more one studies the white paper of each of the great powers involved, together with their history, economics and politics, the more we are convinced that all those causes given latterly to the world in official documents are but the ostensible causes of the great conflict. The real forces driving Europe into a tremendous struggle were greater than the Kaiser and were concealed far beneath those difficulties which diplomacy has made known as the immediate incitement to the war.

In brief, the recent facts are these: The assassination of the Crown Prince of Austria and his wife brought on a crisis between that country and Servia. Austria, backed by Germany, made certain demands on Servia as a consequence, and one of these involved the independence or nationality of the Servian kingdom. Servia, no doubt advised by Russia, submitted to all the severe requirements save one. This involved Russia and Germany, while France and Britain were also drawn in.

One may ask: Why should there be animosity between Austria and Servia? That is a question centuries old concerning merely those two nations. The ambition of the former, the weakness of the latter, has been on more than one occasion cause for trouble, but such a cause could not force Germany into war. The main point is that Germany stood behind Austria in just such a cause, not for sentimental reasons, such as common racial relationship as existed between Russia and Servia, nor for any just cause such as protecting a weak people from oppression, but simply and solely for her own selfish interests. Manifestly, the question to be answered is, Why was it in Germany's interests to go to war in Austria's support, to hazard so much upon one single cast?

The answer to his question is found in the attitude of Germany to other nations, in the observed and acknowledged policies, domestic and foreign, of her government, and in the philosophy of her authors. Bismarck began the Blood and Iron policy, and the great Von Moltke co-operated in the establishment of the German military system. Treaties were made, not to be kept so much as to serve German national purposes. For the same reason war was ruthlessly waged against Austria, Denmark and France. While Bismarck always maintained friendship with Britain, and refrained from naval ambitions, yet the consequence of his policy could hardly have been otherwise than the present storm of war. In time, the military system in Germany would reach, as it has actually done, a top-notch of efficiency, and it, with expanding German interests, necessitated a fleet. Hence arose the European rivalry and jealousies that, in recent years, caused such great expenditures for armaments.

What was at first vaguely felt was soon definitely expressed by Germany's literary men, notably Nietzsche and General Von Bernhardi. Nietzsche glorified force as the guiding principle in the world, and gave that principle vitality in what he called the Superman. Bernhardi, while writing of war, expressed the reasons which impelled Germany to proceed, as she has done, to a great war as the inevitable introduction to a new mastery of world politics. Bernhardi looked on war as a biological necessity. He regarded German culture as the greatest in the world, and said that on all sides Germany found the expansion of her interests and the spread of her culture barred by hostile powers. These powers had to be swept aside. The peace of Europe was of secondary importance. The world was divided among the nations, and there was no way by which Germany could secure lands for colonial expansion save by war. The population of Germany, increasing at the rate of one million a year on a territory about equal to that of France, could not continue in the same economic condition indefinitely, and, either profound change must take place within, or else room for expansion without must be obtained. Germany's population of 65,000,000 occupied about the same space as that of France, numbering 40,000,000. Whether Germany obtained French or British colonial lands did not matter, so long as she obtained them. This was the kind of philosophy preached to the German people for the last quarter of a century. It crystallized their whole national life into the purpose of its reasoning. Unified in the first instance by war, they have as a nation looked forward to war in spite of the growing counter force of German socialism and international arbitration. This teaching has been drilled into all classes, and the Kaiser, as head of the great political system that has consciously taken on this policy through men like Bismarck and Moltke, is merely the big wheel in a complex and marvellous machine.

The Kaiser could hardly have prevented this war even if he wished. Had he supported a peace policy, he would have been contradicting the established policy of the German Government to occupy a place in the sun. The Kaiser wanted war because he has been taught to look to this war as one of deliverance for Germany in the sense that Bernhardi meant. He has been taught, and honestly believes, that British civilization is decadent, that France is decadent, that German culture is the touch stone by which progress can proceed. He would be a kind of demiurgos for a future society that should eclipse all others. The Kaiser and Germany are labouring under the great tragic delusion of militarism. By this system they believe they have a world mission that justly ignores the rights of other tions. They believe, as the German nation believes because of its false prophets, that there is an irreconcilable conflict of interests, political, economic, and social, between Germany and the rest of Europe. The Servian affair looked like "The Day" when opportunity would give a military system of government the domination that a false perspective required. That is why Germany went to war for Austria, and why the Kaiser did not want peace. That is why the German Emperor and the German people were driven by forces beyond their control into world war at the first favourable opportunity. The deliverance, however, we expect to be different from that anticipated by the supermen who compose the deus ex machina—the god from the machine.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WHILE it is only right that the people of this city should do what they can for the Patriotic Fund, the distress in Belgium is so great that Canadians ought to do something to relieve it. Canadians have not experienced the ravages of war for a hundred years, and even then they were nothing to the distress and suffering which the Belgians have endured. To assist in the collection of a fund for the relief of Belgium, one of the local merchants, Mr. Elliot, has given his store into the charge of a number of local ladies, members of the Daughters of the Empire, for one of his busiest days, this coming Saturday. The profits, over and above the expenses, will be devoted to the Belgian Relief Fund. Mr. Elliot has set a good example and every effort should be made by the people to assist in this patriotic undertaking to relieve a small country fighting for its life in a righteous cause.

Chant of Hate for England.

(Ernst Lissauer, in Jugend, rendered into English by Barbara Henderson.)

(New York Times.)

French and Russian, they matter not,
A blow for a blow, and a shot for a shot;
We love them not, we hate them not,
We hold the Welchsel and Vosgesgate.
We have but one and only hate;
We love as one, we hate as one;
We have one foe, and one alone.

He is known to you all, he is known to you all,
He crouches behind the dark gray flood,
Full of envy, of rage, of craft, of gall,
Cut off by waves that are thicker than blood.
Come, let us stand at the Judgment place,
An oath to swear to, face to face—
An oath of bronze no wind can shake,
An oath for our sons and their sons to take.
Come, hear the word, repeat the word,
Throughout the fatherland make it heard.
We will never forego our hate.
We love as one, we hate as one;
We have one foe, and one alone—
ENGLAND!

In the captain's mess, in the banquet hall,
Sat feasting the officers one and all;
Like a sabre blow, like the swing of a sail,
One seized his glass, held high to hail;
Sharp-snapped like the stroke of a rudder's play,
Spoke three words only: "To the Day!"

Whose glass this fate?
They had all but a single hate.
Who was thus known?
They had one foe, and one alone—
ENGLAND!

Take you the folk of the earth in pay,
With bars of gold your ramparts lay,
Bedeck the ocean with bow on bow,
Ye reckon well, but not well enough now.
French and Russian, they mattered not;
A blow for a blow, a shot for a shot.
We fight the battle with bronze and steel,
And the time that is coming Peace will seal.
You will we hate with a lasting hate,
We will never forego our hate—
Hate by water and hate by land,
Hate of the head and hate of the hand.
Hate of the hammer and hate of the crown,
Hate of seventy millions, choking down!
We love as one, we hate as one;
We have one foe, and one alone—
ENGLAND!

All the success — ephemeral though it may be — that has attended the German armies may be traced directly to the fact that alone among the peoples of Europe they were ready for war.

GOVERNMENT TO INQUIRE.

Report of Concrete Beds on Isle of Orleans Not Taken Seriously.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30. — The alleged presence of concrete platforms deeply embedded in the ground at a point on the Isle of Orleans, dominating the citadel of Quebec and the entrance to the St. Lawrence, has been brought to the attention of the Militia Department. It is stated that a German company has been manufacturing concrete blocks at St. Jean, on the island, and the report is to the effect that gun platforms have been constructed for howitzer siege batteries. It is further stated that the same company has a concrete plant at the head of the lakes at Port Arthur, in the vicinity of the grain elevators.

The Department is not inclined to treat the matter very seriously, though it will be investigated. It is pointed out that in order to get guns on the island, the Germans would have to silence first the Levis forts, in which case Quebec would be at their mercy without the necessity of siege. It is not contemplated that such an event will occur.

ONTARIO IS GROWING.

Vital Statistics Show a Steady Increase From Year to Year.

The growth of Ontario's population from year to year may be seen reflected in the 44th annual report of the vital statistics issued by the registrar-general recently. A marked increase in births, marriages and deaths, is entered for the year ending December 31, 1913, 125,831 registrations being made, an increase of 5,966 over the preceding year. The province proper leads the cities and towns in births and deaths, but falls behind in cases of marriage. The ratio of births per 1,000 of population is 1.5 above that of 1912. The cities and towns however are credited with contributing the majority of illegitimate births, although the report makes the point that this is largely because they are the centres of transient population.

The revision of the marriage act has caused a falling off in the number of unions, but it is stated that a beneficial effect has been produced. In spite of every effort being taken to keep the issuance of marriage licenses above reproach, mention is made of "the cupidity of certain issuers," and the warning is given that further violations will mean their dismissal.

The result of the amendment has been to cut down the percentage in Niagara Falls from 86.7 per 1,000 to 40.9, and in Windsor from 176.2 per 1,000 of population to 65.3. In cases where Ontario residents find it difficult to conform to the regulation by livi in the proposed place of marriage for 15 days, the license is usually issued. Denominationally, the Presbyterian Church leads, with the Methodist a close second and the Anglican third. The popular age of brides and grooms was between 20 and 24 years.

There were 34,307 deaths during the year, an increase of 2,167 over 1912. Organic heart disease carried off the greatest number, with tuberculosis, pneumonia, infantile diarrhoea, and cancer following in order of mortality. Typhoid fever and diphtheria are decreasing annually, whereas bronchopneumonia, Bright's disease and cancer show an increase.

An encouraging decrease is shown in tuberculosis mortality. The number of deaths was 2,294 with a decreased ratio of 5 per 100,000. The cities claim 26 per cent. of the deaths and the towns 7 per cent.

In connection with the increase of infant mortality, warning is given that much of this is due to carelessness. Diarrhoea is mentioned as chiefly caused by careless feeding, dirty milk and faulty maternal training. The Board of Health is trying to educate along these lines, but hopes for a more encouraging response than they have yet received.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 29.—Wheat prices opened 1-2c lower to 1-2c higher. Oats were unchanged to 1-8c higher, and flax 1-4c to 5-8c higher, following the opening there was a sharp break to the extent of 5-8c on No. 4, and 1 3-8c on other months, caused by heavy selling in Chicago and Minneapolis, and heavy primary movement.

Local receipts, while not heavy, are improving; 775 cars inspected yesterday as against 1300 cars last year, and in sight were 360 cars. The decline at noon was 1-2c to 1 3-8c from opening points. Later it was claimed considerable export sales had been worked on the break, one firm doing around 150,000 bushels, and other houses a similar quantity. Flax options made a gain of two cents to 7 1-8c, which is a feature, prices in this commodity having been on the down trend for some weeks.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—The demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat continues poor, and cables were weaker again today at a decline of 1½d per quarter, but as prices in the Winnipeg market were also lower sales of a few loads were made for November shipment. The trade in grain on spot was quiet, but the tone of the market is firm, as there is no pressure on the part of holders to force sales at present.

Flour continues quiet both for local and export account, and the demand for millfeed is limited.

In baled hay the feeling is strong and higher prices are looked for in the near future.

Butter is steady with a fair local trade passing, but the cheese market is quiet. Eggs are active and strong.

CHEESE MARKETS.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 29.—On the cheese board today the offerings were 1050 boxes white and 25 colored, and the sales were 469 at 14⅝c and 280 at 14⅝c.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 29.—At today's cheese board the offerings were 1280 boxes colored and 830 of white. The sales were 305 colored and 280 white at 14⅝c.

VANKLEEK HILL, Ont., Oct. 29.—There were 526 boxes of white and 125 boxes of colored cheese boarded and sold on the Vankleek Hill cheese board today. The price offered was 14⅝c.

MADE CHANGE IN NAME OF CORPS

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—It was announced officially yesterday that the three battalions being raised in Montreal for the second contingent, and which have heretofore been designated as "French-Canadians," "Gunn's," and "Fisher's" battalions, will in future be known as the Twenty-Second, Twenty-Third and Twenty-Fourth battalions.

The French-Canadian battalion under Lieut.-Col. Gaudet will be the 22nd Battalion Royal Canadians, Lieut.-Col. F. W. Fisher's command will be the 23rd battalion and Lieut.-Col. Gunn's will be the 24th battalion.

Allies Occupy Edoa.

PARIS, Oct. 30. — A despatch to the Havas Agency from Bordeaux says:

"A report received from Gen. Dobell, commanding the French forces operating against the German Kamerun, equatorial West Africa, says that two Franco-British columns occupied Edoa Oct. 26, after serious fighting, in which the allied troops showed great bravery.

"Edoa is an important railroad station on the Sanaga, 90 miles from the coast."

WOULD BAR CHIROPRACTORS.

Ontario Physicians and Surgeons Demand Restraining Legislation.

TORONTO, Oct. 30. — Physicians and surgeons of the province, with their legal counsel, went before Hon. W. J. Hanna yesterday to urge that the chiropractors now operating in Ontario be restrained from erecting a college and establishing their practice by the training of students. Arguments were put forth to show that the whole medical profession was opposed to any such move. On the other hand, the chiropractors urged upon the Minister the increase in numbers of their doctors and the demand for a training school. The arguments on either side were not new to the Provincial Secretary, the case having almost become a hardy annual, and again his decision was deferred. It will be remembered that Sir James Whitney at one time spoke of establishing a medical commission, which would deal with this matter among others.

GERMANS PREPARE FOR NEW EFFORT

LOOKING TO BOULOGNE

LONDON, Oct. 30. — The German attempt to cut through the allied line between Nieuport and Dixmude frustrated, the invaders are making preparations to attempt a movement against Boulogne rather than Dunkirk and Calais. This is evidenced by the massing of troops believed to number 350,000 men in the region between the River Yser and the Ypres-Hazebrouck-St. Omar road. The Duke of Wurtemburg is in supreme command, and the new assault may begin at any moment.

Whatever the next effort of the Kaisers' leaders, it is manifest that the coast campaign, which started with the capture of Ostend, has come to a poor end. The Yser was an impassable barrier, with British and French warships spreading destruction in the ranks of the foe whenever they came within range. Wednesday a big British battleship arrived off the Flanders coast, and by means of its 12-inch guns was able to rout the Germans further inland than was possible with the guns of the lighter vessel.

It is owing largely to the fire of the fleet that the next German assault will be made well beyond the farthest range of even the heaviest guns.

However, the German concentration on the new line of operations is not being made without resistance. Reports from Ypres say that the French won decisive engagements yesterday north and east of that town. In the same zone the Germans lost ground both Wednesday and Thursday. Heavy rains have rendered the discomfort of troops on both sides almost unbearable. Canals and rivers in all of northwestern France and western Flanders are overflowing their banks, and it is practically impossible to move heavy artillery for the present. For this reason the German efforts to fortify the coast line southward from Ostend has not made much progress. It is true that big guns are now planted at Zeebruge and further east, but as yet they have in no wise troubled the allied fleet. There is a persistent rumor of Zeppelin sheds being built at Ostend.

At every point the situation favors the allies, in spite of grave losses, and all the stress of the three months' campaign. South of Arras, French columns yesterday dislodged the Germans from favorable positions, which they took a couple of weeks ago as the initial success in their move toward the coast. This victory is regarded as important.

There are many reports of German reinforcements numbering 200,000 men to be brought from the Russian front for the effort directed at Boulogne. But whatever the extent of German reinforcements, it is declared that the allies are prepared to meet them man for man. French mobilization is now complete, and Gen. Joffre is showing the capacity to produce fresh troops whenever needed.

In the vicinity of Apremont fresh gains are reported to have been made by the French. Pressure on the lines of the German Crown Prince in that region continues to bend back his front. The complete isolation of St. Mihiel is almost effected, and the French hold strong positions in the Argonne forest. On the Aisne there was bloody fighting yesterday, and a number of trenches held by the foe were taken in a series of bayonet charges.

In a despatch from Flushing, the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. says: "There has been a slight advance by the allies toward Ostend. The British are occupying two villages which they carried by bayonet charges. A Bavarian battalion refused to fight and surrendered."

Telegraphing from northeastern France, a correspondent of The Central News says: "The situation around La Bassee is being carefully watched. The Germans have adopted the tactics which proved so successful at Antwerp. They are apparently endeavoring to drive a wedge into the allies by sheer weight of gunfire.

"North of Lille all continues well, though the Germans have brought up powerful reserves.

"The Belgians once more are in the thick of the fray."

German Submarines at Sosbrugge.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 30—(Via London.)—A despatch from Sluis, Holland, to The Handelsblad asserts that parts of several submarines have been sent from Germany by railway to Sosbrugge, on the Belgian coast, where they will be put together and the boats then sent against the British fleet off Ostend. Strict secrecy, according to the Sluis correspondent, surrounds the German movements in Belgium.

Britain Offered Aid.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 30—(Via London.)—The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Couranet says it learns upon good authority that the British Government offered Holland pecuniary assistance for the relief of Belgian refugees in the Netherlands. Holland declined, saying she would bear the burden herself of a duty spontaneously undertaken.

"War or Jail" Policy.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 30. — Police Magistrate J. C. Judd is adopting a "war or jail" policy in a number of drunkenness and vagrancy cases. A local man arraigned for inebriety yesterday morning was given the ultimatum and promptly enlisted for active service.

EAST INDIANS FIRED THE BUSH

Daring Orientals Brought Disaster to German Artillery

LONDON, Oct. 30. — One of the most stirring incidents of the recent fighting concerns the British East Indian troops, all of whom would seem to be on the front. A wounded English officer who reached London yesterday says a few Indians a couple of nights ago slipped forward through the grass to a German detachment protecting a supply train and several batteries. With the stealth of jungle creatures they came upon the sentries of the foe and strangled one after another of the outposts. Then they set fire to the thicket in which the artillery and supplies were concealed. A fierce attack immediately followed, preventing any effort to extinguish the blaze. When it was burning fiercely the Indians suddenly fell back, and almost immediately there was a series of terrible detonations as the ammunition wagons blew up, scattering death in every direction. The Germans in the vicinity of the spot were almost totally destroyed. This officer says that the British commanding the Indians have great trouble in restraining their men when once their blood is up and the excitement of the chase gets hold of their fierce natures. They are for rushing the Germans in and out of season, going forward with wild shrieks, which strike consternation into the opposing ranks. Their audacity is said to have amazed even the British and French regulars, who for three months have battled night and day.

Transferred Through Threats.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—Owing to the numerous threats against his life, Malcolm Reid, immigration agent at Vancouver, who deported the Hindus on the Komagata Maru, has been transferred to Ottawa. His assistant, Hopkinson, and two others have been assassinated since the deportation.

CONDITIONS DESPERATE

Belgian Authorities Fear Violence by Starving Countrymen

LONDON, Oct. 30.—"It is feared that in their desperation the hungry people will attack the authorities. This would cause serious loss of life." So stated Captain T. F. Lucey, representative of the American commissions for relief in Belgium, in a telegram sent to Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the commission, from Rotterdam yesterday. Captain Lucey added that he had been told by representatives of the National Relief Committee that in Brussels, Charleroi, Liege, Namur, Mons and Dinant, 3,000,000 persons were being fed by charity and that only four days' supply of flour was on hand. In the vicinity of Liege, conditions were more desperate than elsewhere, if possible. There the necessaries of life were urgently needed.

The message concluded:

"You may be convinced that any statement you have received or heard has underestimated conditions in Belgium. Great danger is threatened. To avoid it you must get flour to the people and get it at once."

She Wants Marriage Annulled.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Harriet C. Jackson, 70 years old, testified yesterday in a suit to annul her marriage to Frank D. Wright, of Toronto, Ont., aged 45, that Wright hypnotized her and obtained $15,000 from her soon after their marriage.

She said Wright told her he was "one of the immortals" and that she would be destroyed if she did not marry him. She averred that Wright married her under the name of Jackson.

Battleship Sunk?

PARIS, Oct. 30. — It is reported here this morning that a first-class British battleship has been sunk by a mine.

The name of the battleship is not reported. The news is unconfirmed.

Crown Prince Wounded?

ROME, Oct. 30.—(Via London.)—It is reported here that the German Crown Prince has been wounded while leading an attack on Verdun.

German Report Denied.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Official denial was given in London yesterday to the report sent out from Berlin, Oct. 27, saying there had been sanguinary encounters between the British garrison and Indian troops at Alexandria, Egypt, and that a court-martial held in Alexandria had sentenced 30 men to death.

This German report was from official sources. It was declared yesterday to be an entire fabrication, the best proof of which was found in the fact that no Indian troops are stationed at Alexandria.

Bomb Kills Women.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—German aeroplanes yesterday sailed over Dunkirk, dropping two bombs. A woman and child were killed.

Two bombs were also dropped at Bethune, west of La Bassee. The first failed to explode, but the second fell in a group of women in the market place, killing nineteen and wounding forty others.

Eighty-Six Sank With Russian Ship.

TOKIO, Oct. 30.—The officers and 84 seamen on board the Russian cruiser Jemtchug were killed when the German cruiser Emden torpedoed and sank her in Penang harbor.

One of the Slow Ones.

Patience—Awfully slow, isn't he?

Patrice—Dreadfully so. You know, he was once asked if he was going to marry a certain widow.

"Oh, indeed! And what did he say?"

"He said he'd think it over, and while he was thinking it over she married him."—Yonkers Statesman.

Why Mosquitoes Bite.

"Why do you persist in biting us men so?" asked the human being of the mosquito.

"Because," answered the mosquito, "the world owes me a living, and, naturally, I send in my bill."

DAY WON BY THE BIG GUNS

Admiralty Reports on Result of Work by Monitors

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The Secretary of the Admiralty makes the following announcement:—

"The British naval flotilla continues to support the allies' left, and since the morning of Oct. 27 the fire of 12-inch guns has been brought to bear upon the German positions and batteries.

"Reports received from shore testify to the effect and accuracy of the fire and its galling character.

"Wednesday and the day before the enemy brought up heavy guns and replied vigorously to the fire of Admiral Hood's ships. The vessels received only trifling structural damage. Yesterday the opposition from the shore has practically ceased, and the preponderance of the naval gunners seems to be established.

"The casualties have been very slight, but one shell, exploding on the destroyer Falcon, killed one officer and fifteen men. One killed and several wounded are also reported from the light cruiser Brilliant, and eight were wounded on the Rinaldo.

"The enemy's submarine have also been reported seeking an opportunity to attack the bombarding ships, which are covered by British destroyers."

A special to The Globe says: Monitors and the torpedo craft have frequently, by proceeding up the rivers and canals, got at such close range that the crews used rifles at the Germans. Recently the Germans had some heavier guns in action, but the speed of the warships resulted in their sustaining practically no damage, the naval guns being fired whilst the ships were proceeding at high speed, which makes the results achieved all the more notable.

BIG BATTLE IS DECIDED

Russians Take Second Great Step in Eastern Campaign

PETROGRAD, Oct. 30.—The Russians have won another great victory which marks in all probability the penultimate stage of the struggle between the Slav and Teuton. The German-Austrian armies operating from their northernmost position in about the same latitude as Warsaw down to well south of the River Elzhanka have been broken in two. The northern part, which was defeated a week or more ago in an attempt to march into Warsaw, is still fighting desperately north of the River Pilitza. South of the river Grand Duke Nicholas has inflicted a heavy defeat on the enemy, who is in full retreat, leaving a gap between the two main groups of armies equal to one day's march.

This victory portends the defeat of the group of armies north of the Pilitsa, since these two will now have the Russians on their right flank. Indeed, Russian cavalry and horse and gunners are probably already in the rear of the northern forces.

The victory has been won by four days of the severest fighting on a front extending from Bialobrzeegi, on the River Pilitza, twelve miles west of the Vistula, southeastwards through Glovachev and Politchna to Ianovatz, on the left bank of the Vistula, opposite the village of Kazimerieff. The length of this front is 42 miles.

The two theatres of the main struggle are divided by the River Pilitsa, which flows into the Vistula from the west, twenty-eight miles south of Warsaw.

North of the Pilitza the Germans were by Sunday driven from fifty to seventy miles back from the line of the Vistula. The greater part of this area is covered with thick forests, traversed in all directions by tracks, which at this time of year are clay sloughs.

A New Epoch in the Phonograph World

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE J. M. GREENE CO. are pleased to anounce that after several years' experience handling the different makes of talking machines and watching the evolution that took place in the production and perfection of these marvellous musical instruments, we have arrived at the conclusion that the New Edison Diamond Disc is by far the greatest triumph yet produced in a sound reproducing instrument, and have decided to handle the Edison goods exclusively convinced that our patrons will receive more real satisfaction and pleasure from the use of the Edison Diamond Disc or Cylinder Machines than from anything else we could sell them. We thoroughly believe this move is the best not only for our own interests but for those of our patrons. We must believe in the goods we sell before we recommend them to our customers, and to the Edison Diamond Disc Cabinet Machines and Amberolas, we can give our unqualified endorsement in every case. Sound reproduction by the Diamond Disc Machine is undoubtedly far superior to all previous achievements of Mr. Edison. No more needle changing. The reproduction point is a genuine diamond that never wears out, and requires no changing. The Edison Diamond Disc Machines are bound to be the choice of discriminating music lovers in the end, thus we are following our principle—to offer the best only.

PUT WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL.

WITH the advent of our adoption of the Edison goods exclusively, we want to give every home in Peterboro and District a special opportunity to install one of these magnificent instruments, whether they already have an Edison instrument or older style, or a talking machine of any other make already in the home or not. In case you have an instrument, which no doubt you have enjoyed in the past because it was good at the time you bought it, we will gladly take it as part payment on a New Edison Diamond Disc Amberola or Cabinet Machine, and make a liberal allowance for it. The balance we will arrange on the easiest possible terms of payment. Where there is no instrument of the kind in the home at present we will be pleased to place the instrument you may select from our splendid stock, in your home for a two or three days' demonstration, and in case of purchase can make the terms of payment most favorable and easy for anyone to handle. This Free Demonstration will put you under no obligation to buy whatever but is following out of the wish of Mr. Edison, the great inventor, to see "an Edison in every home in Canada."

FREE DEMONSTRATION IN OUR TALKING MACHINE PARLOURS AT ANY TIME. LET US SHOW YOU.

had a fool for a mother." The saddest individual in the world, is the individual whose memory of the home life is uncomplimentary to the home. Thomas Payne said, "The first five years of my life made me an infidel," and Robert G. Ingersoll was brought up in a home which blighted his faith in fundamental principles of Christianity. The home is really a divine institution.

Second: The future of the city lies in the power of the pulpit. Mary Queen of Scots used to say, that she feared the prayers of John Knox, more than an army of ten thousand men. Excepting the home, there is no power comparable to the power of the pulpit. The age calls for a courageous preacher. The women who do not care what women say, the preacher who does not care what preachers say.

Third: The future of the city lies in the vitality of the churches. The average Christian who is rich, thinks more of his automobile than he does of his church, and the average Christian who is poor is better posted on the number of cards in the euchre deck, than the number of books in the Bible. A true citizen is a true friend of the church.

Fourth: The future of the city lies in the character of its public men. John Morley made this remark in his life of Cromwell, concerning John Pyn, the great parliamentary leader, "I think it part of a man's religion to see that this country is well governed." You cannot vote a straight ticket unless you vote for a straight man. God grant that our principal men be men of principle.

Fifth: The future of the city lies in the character of her merchant princes. It was said concerning J. Pierpont Morgan, "that he thought in millions, and that he thought in continents," but his thought was mostly and mainly for money. He believed in the doctrine of the atonement, but he left his millions to his family and made small provision for the proclammation of his religious belief. He was a fair representative of the modern Christian of the wealthy type.

Sixth: The future of the city lies in the purity of her young men. Gladstone's indignation was magnificent when somebody told him an indecent incident with reference to a neighboring politician and statesman. The grand old man exclaimed, "You call that witty, I call it devilish."

Seventh: The future of the city lies in the moral character of her young women. A Toronto girl came into my manse once upon a time, and told me how she had broken her engagement with a young man, because of his weakness for strong drink. That young man did not have the courage to turn the wine glass down, and this particular young woman turned him forever out of her life and affection. I call that a splendid form of character, and our future home life must be built upon granite as stern as that.

Eighth: The future of the city lies in the honesty and purity of those who administer the law. The most ungodly thing in the realm of jurisprudence, is an unjust judge.

The future of the city lies in the spirit of her school teachers. Garfield said of Mark Hopkins, "He taught me how to think." Professor Agassiz was asked, "What is the best thing you have ever done?" His answer was "I have taught four or five young men to observe and how to think." A school teacher no matter what his department may be, day school, normal or collegiate, has no right to impose his own particular religious views upon the minds of the young people who are under his influence, and it is exceedingly important, that those who occupy the high positions in the school realm of education, shall be all that can be desired, in the matter of personal conduct, character and morals. There is no calling more sacred, not even that of the priest or preacher, than the calling of those who have been appointed to instruct the childhood and young of the community, in the matters which pertain to truth, righteousness and knowledge.

Tenth: The future of the city lies in the welfare of the children. A young woman chilled me somewhat by a remark, "I despise children. I have no love for children." A love for childhood is a sign of grace in the heart.

Dr. Gordon closed his address with an appeal to the citizens of Peterborough to exercise their gifts and talents, and work for the future welfare of the city, linking city with Dominion and the Dominion with the Empire, and closed with the lines:

"Strike till the last armed fold expires,
"Strike for your altas and your fires,
"Strike for the green graves of your sires,
"God and your native land."

Dr. Gordon will answer the following questions this evening:

1. Will a heathen to whom the gospel has not been preached be saved?
2. Why does God permit people to die and bad people to live?
3. Why are so many church members so luke warm in the support of the temperance cause?
4. Should a sensible person be guided by dreams and visions?
5. Should a converted man have any fear of death?
6. What do you think of Pastor Russell's teachings?
7. Is it right to call a man or a woman "a fool" in a public address.
8. Is it a sin to tell a lie in jest, when you know it will not cause harm?
9. Should professed Christians play golf on the Sabbath Day?
10. If God is good, why are circumstances so unkind?
11. What do you think of the women who is so busy attending women's council, ladies' aid, etc., that she has no time for the proper supervision of her home?
12. What is your opinion of higher criticism?
13. What do you think of the Christian who takes a very active part in church work, and does not speak to her neighbor?

WHY CANADIANS PROVE UNFIT

Captain Oliver Hezzelwood, lately returned from England, spoke on the serious consequences of the war in Toronto. It was the survival of the fittest, he said, and he urged the young men to start immediately to develop those survival qualities by joining some training corps. It had been said that only 22 per cent. of Canadians were included in the first Canadian force. While the British-born, he said, had been accepted in preference to Canadians on account of their previous military training, yet he had it on good authority that a great many more Canadians would have gone had they been physically fit. This physical unfitness, he had been given to understand, was due to the habit of cigarette smoking.

PUT AN END TO THE ODOR AT INCINERATOR

Property Committee Ask the Chairman to Make Report

In all probability the offensive odor from the incinerator will be eliminated. At last night's meeting of the Property Committee the question of garbage collection and the incinerator were discussed at length and it was decided to have the chairman report on what percentage of night soil being burned at the incinerator and also the possibility of securing a dumping ground.

Ald. Duncan claimed that it was not right to burn night soil in the incinerator and since such a practice has been started there have been numerous complaints. This odor was a detriment to the property lying adjacent to the building and it appeared to him as though the only proper way to overcome the difficulty was to get a dumping ground and place the night soil there. Ald. Stratton asked if the incinerator was not recommended as being capable of burning all such material and the chairman of the Board of Works let out the information that there was not sufficient garbage being collected to keep it burning.

"What if we should have the whole city taken into the area in which the garbage is collected?" asked the Centre Ward representative

"Then everything would be alright," was the answer.

Ald. Langford, chairman of the committee, asked if it were possible to dump this night soil in a manhole and let it be taken care of by the sewer. The City Solicitor, however, was of the opinion that the Provincial Board of Health would not permit such a procedure while the Mayor claimed it would block up the sewer main. The Mayor further stated that something must be done to get rid of the "dirty rotten smell."

Receptacles on the Lawns.

With the question of whether it was advisable to call for tenders or not, the idea of doing away with the garbage cans placed on the front lawns was thoroughly discussed. Mayor Buller thought it was a disgrace to the city and strongly urged that, even though it cost a little more, it would be better to have the collectors go to the back yards for the receptacles.

It was decided to call for tenders and that the men go to the back yards for the garbage. Any step the city is liable to take in regard to having the garbage collected under the direction of the works department will be decided upon when the applications are received.

"This is the Life."

While on the question of garbage Ald. McIntyre was asked if East City was ready to come in to the area. The Brooklyn representative, however, stated that East City was alright as it is. "They love the cows and chickens," murmured Ald. Stratton.

HARRY WATERS RETAINS JOB

Chef at Hillside Villa Out Again, in Again

Harry Waters, the chef at Castle Nesbitt, asked for his usual months this morning in the police court. He was accommodated.

John O'Brien, a vagrant who is somewhat of a wanderlust, got thirty days on the hill.

George Street, who preferred jail to the House of Refuge, and who was a victim of some of the farmers in this district, as far as being paid for his services was concerned, was told to get out of the city.

Fred Piper was remanded a week on a serious charge.

SURPRISE FOR REV. F.A. CONNERS

Friends Called With Gifts and Birthday Greetings

No definite action has been taken by the Park Street Baptist Church, in regard to the resignation of the pastor, Rev. F. A. Conners. A number of the officials and members of the congregation as well as others not identified with the church have asked Mr. Conners to reconsider the matter, and it is understood that he would do so, under certain conditions.

Expressions of good will toward Mr. Conners were very much in evidence last evening, when officials and members of his church stole a march and surprised him when he returned to his home after attending the meeting at George Street Church.

It was Mr. Conners' birthday and the gathering took the opportunity to extend best wishes and present several gifts to Mr. Conners and his wife.

Shortens Mail Route, To North Pacific Coast By More Than Two Days

Residents in the busy little city of Prince Rupert, British Columbia, are enjoying this week for the first time, the benefits of a direct mail service with the East. Postal service over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Prince Rupert has just been inaugurated and a great saving of time is being effected. Hitherto the mails have been taken from Prince Rupert and other coast points to Vancouver by steamship, and then sent east by rail. Under the new arrangement of direct service over the G.T.P. there will be a clear saving of two, and possibly three days time. A letter posted in Montreal or New York should be in Prince Rupert within five days. Via Vancouver it would have taken at the very least seven days.

Prince Rupert is destined to be an important stopping place on the shortest route around the world, for any scheme that has for its ultimate object the swift circling of the globe, must reckon the city on its right of way. The distance from Liverpool to Yokohoma by this route is 10685 miles as against 10858 via New York and San Francisco. Moreover, ships sailing from Prince Rupert, pass, with a few strokes from the land locked harbor to the high seas, and begin their journey across the Pacific 500 miles nearer the East than a ship would by sailing at the same time from any other Pacific port.

NO EXEMPTION FOR CHURCH

From Taxes for Garbage System

D. O'Connell had a communication before the legal committee, which met last night, asking why the city did not take steps to benefit by the recent act of parliament re the appointment of fence-viewers, whose duty it would be to settle arbitrary matters between citizens when the erection of a fence is contemplated.

The meeting decided to recommend to the Council that a bylaw for the appointing of fence-viewers be passed, and suggested that the fence-viewers be City Engineer Parsons, Joseph Metheral and ex-Ald. Brown. When the duties of these viewers are necessitated a fee will be paid them.

No Action Taken.

Dumble and Johnston had a letter before the meeting asking that the George Street Methodist Church be exempt from garbage collection taxes. As the bylaw only permits the exemption of government buildings, no action was taken.

Wants $40 Damages.

Dr. Cameron requested that the committee pay him $40 as damages to his auto which were caused by striking an open manhole. The matter was referred to the City Solicitor for further investigation.

To Be Dealt With Later.

The old question of selling a section of the old government reservation on the road to the Green Estate, to enable the executors of that estate to wind up its business, was again brought up. As the Peterborough Cereal Company and the Otonabee Light and Power Company have raised an objection to doing this, it was decided to leave the matter to be considered at a later meeting, when all parties concerned will be represented.

TURKS ENTER CONFLICT

Cruiser Bombards the Port of Theodosia in the Crimea---Another Cruiser Arrives at Novorossysk on the Black Sea and Threatens Bombardment, But Finally Withdraws---Greeks Invade Albania and Now Control the Corfu Channel.

LONDON, Oct. 30. — A despatch from Theodosia, Crimea, via Petrograd, says:

From 9.30 o'clock to 10.30 yesterday morning a Turkish cruiser with three funnels bombarded the station and city, damaging the cathedral, the Greek Church, a pier and some sheds. One soldier was wounded. A branch of the Russian Bank of Foreign Commerce caught fire. At the conclusion of the bombardment the cruiser left in a southwesterly direction.

Another despatch from Novorossyck, Caucasia, says:

The Turkish cruiser Hamidieh, which arrived here yesterday, demanded the surrender of the city and the Government properties, threatening in case of refusal to bombard the town. The Turkish consul and officials were arrested. The cruiser withdrew.

Theodosia (formerly Kaffa) is a Russian seaport on the southeast coast of Crimea, about a hundred miles northeast of Sebastopol, by which it is connected by rail.

Novorossysk is on the northeast coast of the Black Sea and is the capital of territory of the Black Sea. It is almost directly opposite Theodosia, at a distance of about 120 miles.

The despatches would indicate that the cruiser that attacked Theodosia is the Breslau, one of the two German cruisers recently interned in the Dardanelles and later purchased by Turkey. The Hamidiel is said to be the Turkish name given to the other cruiser, formerly the Goeben.

With Turkey in the war zone it is likely that other nations will now cease to remain neutral. Greece, Roumania and Italy may join in the fray and add to the fighting strength of both sides. Turkey, since the Balkan war, has allowed German officers to reorganize and train her army, while a British flag officer and six junior naval officers reorganized the navy. In addition to the two German cruisers interned, and since manned and sent to sea, Turkey in 1910 had three battleships, two protected cruisers, three gunboats and fourteen torpedo boats. A 23,000-ton battleship building in England has been taken over by the British Admiralty.

Her army is a more efficient machine. In peace time it has a first line of 180,000 men, and second line and reserves number 140,000. The Turkish troops are good fighters. Roumania has an army of about 300,000, while Greece can put a quarter of a million men into the field. Italy, in addition to her fleet, has an army of about a million men.

Italy, Roumania and Greece will fight on the side of the allies if they decide to go to war. Bulgaria has been weakened by the Balkan campaigns, and shows no disposition to withdraw from her present attitude of neutrality. Her army numbers about 400,000 men.

Greeks Control Corfu Channel.

ROME, Oct. 30.—The report that Greece has landed 12,000 soldiers at Santi Quaranta, thus taking possession of the southern part of Albania, which gives them entire control of the Corful Channel, is causing a profound impression in Rome. As this step on the part of Greece was strongly opposed by the London conference, it is generally believed in Italian political circles that Greece will not be supported by Great Britain and France.

"He got scared," said Betty. "This cow is his mother-in-law."—Stray Stories.

Culinary Notes

When Preserving Fruit.

The secret of preserving fruit is simply the killing of ferment germs and bacteria by intense heat and the exclusion of air.

Fill jars brimful—this excludes air—then see that the lids are screwed down just as tight as possible. After screwing the lids on tight place the jars upside down until cool. Any leak caused by cracked cup or faulty sealing rings will be instantly discernible.

Be sure your jars are well sterilized—that is, heated through and through by placing in hot water and let come to a boil. This sterilises and also toughens the jars, so they are not so apt to break when filling with hot fruit.

Don't take any chance of losing your fruit by using sealing rings from the previous year. Rubber is very susceptible to climatic conditions and rots very easily. Provide yourself with new rings each year.

If jelly does not "set" well a few days in the rays of the hot sun will improve it.

To seal jellies pour melted paraffin over the jelly in each glass. Fruit jars may be sealed in practically the same way. After filling jars with fruit screw lid on as tight as possible, turn upside down till cool, then dip tops in melted paraffin, using care that the caps and rubber sealing rings are completely covered.

Fruit may be kept several years in this way.

Dried Fruit.

Unquestionably sun dried fruits and vegetables are better than most preserved foods. Yet the many difficulties in drying them out of doors in this climate prevent most people from considering it. But nothing is easier if you own a hotbed, such as where you start vegetables or flowers. Lay a floor on top of the earth; spread a clean cloth over the boards and put the fruit or corn, peas or beans on this. After placing the articles to be dried in the frame put the covering sash back on it, taking care to raise both ends about two inches to give free circulation of air over the fruit, for the air carries off the moisture and prevents the fruit burning. Insects cannot stand the heat in this frame, and rain cannot reach the fruit, although it is advisable to put the sash tight on the frame in case of storm.

HOW TO EAT PEACHES.

Always Discard Skins, as Physicians Pronounce Them Unwholesome.

The aristocrat of fruits, tracing its lineage far back to China and Persia, the peach, is now with us and at its very best. While a ripe, fresh peach peeled and eaten out of hand can scarcely be improvd upon, desserts, salads and other dishes run a close second. The skin never should be eaten under any circumstances, but the flesh of a ripe peach is permitted by up to date physicians as entirely wholesome—so much so that very young children and even typhoid patients are allowed its use. One well known physician goes so far as to declare that in dysentery troubles the peculiar acids of the peach, when ripe and sound, was better than any medicine that could be suggested. It would, however, be on the side of safety to consult one's local doctor before administering peaches ad lib. to any patient.

THE USE OF BARBED WIRE IN WAR

(George Kennan in the Outlook.)

A New York journal of recent date says that the Russian military authorities are trying to place in the United States an order for 5,000 tons of barbed wire.

They have every reason to be satisfied with the use made of this material at Port Arthur. Their entanglements there were of the most formidable character, and consisted, as a rule, of four parallel lines of three-strand fence, 10 feet apart, with three more strands running back and forth in zigzags from line to line. Between these barriers quantities of wire had been thrown loose on the ground in big snarls to entangle the feet and legs.

Getting through over these obstacles, under heavy fire and shrapnel fire, proved to be almost impossible. The Japanese first tried our method in Cuba, by equipping their storming parties with wire-cutting nippers. This scheme failed. The men were all killed or disabled before they got half way through. Then they organized volunteer "sure death parties," and sent them one after another, to clear the way before the assault began.

This proved to be too costly in life. Next they tried equipping the storming pary with mattresses, which, when thrown over the barriers, enabled the troops to scramble over without getting caugnt in the barbs. This also was unsatisfactory, because the men got hopelessly tangled up in the loose snarls between the lines.

Finally, when the slopes in front of the forts were covered with the bodies of their dead, they began sending up at night long lines of men with trailing ropes tied around their waists. When a Russian searchlight was turned on that part of the field the crawling men lay still, and could not be distinguished from the hundreds of other bodies that were still forever. When the beam moved on they crawled a few yards upward. Moving in the intervals of darkness they finally reached the fences, made the ropes fast to the posts, and wriggled back to shelter. A hundred men or more then hauled on the ropes and pulled a whole section of the barrier down into the front parrel.

Thus an end was put at last to the terror of the barbed-wire entanglement.

COMPARISON IN NAVAL LOSSES

The Naval and Military Record of October 14, containing a short review of the naval achievements of the two sides in the great struggle. The war had entered its eleventh week, and, taking into consideration only events which had been officially announced, and only ships which appear in navy lists in peace time, the comparison of losses was as follows:

LOSSES OF THE ALLIES.

Cruisers.	Tons.
Aboukir (22.9.14)	12,000
Cressy (22.9.14)	12,000
Hogue (22.9.14)	12,000
Light Cruisers.
Amphion (6.8.14)	3,440
Pathfinder (5.9.14)	2,940
Pegasus (20.9.14)	2,135
Gunboats.
Speedy (3.9.14)	810
Zelee (22.9.14)	680
Destroyer.
Shirataye (4.9.14)	380
Submarine)
A E1 (14.9.14)	725
Total	47,110
Balance of tonnage in favor of the Allies	3,340

LOSSES OF GERMANY AND AUSTRIA.

Battle Cruiser.	Tons.
Goeben (8.14)	23,000
Light Cruisers.
Breslau (8.14)	4,550
Madgeburg (27.8.14)	4,550
Koln (28.8.14)	4,250
Mainz (28.8.14)	4,350
Ariadne (28.8.14)	2,660
Zenta (16.8.14)	2,300
Hela (13.9.14)	2,040
Gunboats.
Mowe (9.8.14)	650
Hedwig von Wissman	199
Tsingtau (17.8.14)	168
Vaterland (8.14)	168
Destroyers.
V. 187 (28.8.14)	650
S. 126 (6.10.14)	487
Torpedo Boat.
No. 19 (17.8.14)	78
Submarine.
U. 15 (9.8.14)	250
Total	50,450

It will thus be seen that, in spite of the several blows dealt by Germany when she sank three cruisers on September 22nd, the balance is still against her; and if we take into account armed merchant vessels lost, it is still so, as will be seen by the following comparison.

ARMED MERCHANTMEN LOST.

By Allies.

Oceanic (8.9.14).

By Germany.

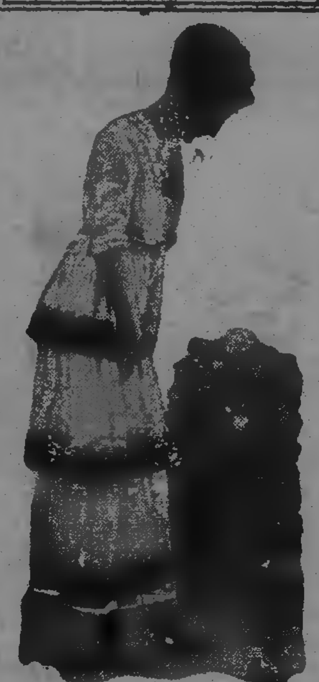
Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse (27.8.14) (27.8.14).
Cap Trafalgar (14.9.14).
Bethania (9.14).
Spreewald (12.9.14).
Soden (9.14).
Itolo (9.14).
Rheim (9.14).
Konigin Luise (5.8.14).

Whilst three of the vessels lost by the Allies (the Japanese destroyer Shirataye, submarine A E1, and the Oceanic) have been lost through ordinary risks of navigation, every one of the German-Austrian casualties has been the result of their enemies' efforts—unless we except the Austrian torpedo-boat No. 19, which struck one of her own mines.

For the information of readers who may not have come across references to all the small craft mentioned in the list of German losses, it should be mentioned that the Mowe was sunk by the Pegasus and the Astraea in the harbor of Dares-Salem, German East Africa; the Hedwig von Wissmann (a lake gunboat) was captured on Lake Nyasa by a British vessel of similar type; and the Tsingtau and Vaterland were disarmed and interned at the Chinese ports of Canton and Shanghai respectively. The Soden, Itolo, and Rheim were small vessels which were converted into gunboats for the defence of the Cameroon colony, now in the hands of the Allies. The Soden was captured by the British, and the other two were destroyed by the French gunboat Surprise.

FLOUNCES FOR FALL.

Fashion Now Favors Them For Semidress Costumes.



PRETTY AFTERNOON GOWN.

The vogue of flounces is prettily illustrated in the gown pictured here which is a charming creation of voile with the skirt covered by three deep flounces, rose embroidered and bordered by bands of black velvet. It is a suitable gown for mademoiselle and may be duplicated in any one of a half dozen materials.

THE POPULAR GIRL.

The popular girl is not aggressive and does not wish to contradict and argue. She does not cause pain by a foolish or unguarded use of her tongue.

If you invite her anywhere she always pays you the compliment of looking her best and being at her best.

She makes the world a pleasant place for other people to dwell in by being pleasant herself.

She does not want to take the front of the stage. Though if she has to do so she manages to take it prettily and without giving offense.

She has equally nice manners for all and a touch of deference for age and experience.

She is never bored; not because she does not meet with gray days, but because she has sunshine in her heart.

THE BURDEN BEARERS.

In France It Is Up to the Women, Says a Correspondent.

"The women of France who paid the 5,000,000,000 francs of indemnity to Germany with their economies have announced their intention to harvest the fields and care for the country's herds and flocks while their husbands, sons and brothers fight the battles of the republic on Alsatian and Belgian battlegrounds," says Joseph Chamberlain in the New York Mail.

"There is no picture of human or public devotion in all history which surpasses in pathos and beauty the record of the women of France. It is they who have chiefly suffered by the wars of conquest or defense that their kings, emperors and presidents have waged, and it is always by their industry, their thrift, their quiet wisdom, that the ravages of war are repaired.

"For the French wife is the 'business man' of the household. It is generally she who carries on the little shop which keeps the family alive or makes it prosperous. It is she who makes the family's plans and advances its fortunes. Her economies make it possible for the French people to pay the heaviest taxes in Europe and to pay them without a murmur.

"And it is she who will stand in the gap and save the home industries and the production of France in the present crisis."

Some two months ago the French suffragists held their parade in Paris. No police protection was given them, but the usually excitable Paris crowd watched in silence and respect. No police were needed.

BILL DONOVAN CAN HAVE HIS JOB AGAIN

Old Tiger Pitcher Had a Successful Season With Providence

Providence, Oct. 29. — Manager Wild Bill Donovan, whose brilliant leadership the past season resulted in placing Providence at the apex of International League baseball, has not yet signed a contract to manage the Grays again next season, but unless he gets a berth with a big league club in the same capacity the chances are very bright for his taking up the reins.

During the world's series games in Boston Manager Donovan conferred with President Lannin, of the Red Sox, the owner of the Providence club, and the post for 1915 was offered to him with the provision 'that the tentative agreement would not hold in the event that the Grays' chief was tendered a position by a major league club and could better himself financially. Donovan's name has been mentioned in connection with the New York Americans, but he is only one of many who are being gossipped about in connection with the post.

These who are familiar with Donovan's policies in leading clubs have not the slightest doubt about his ability to handle successfully the New York. Tigers, Cubs, or any other team in big rings. There is nothing in the game of baseball that he is unfamiliar with, and in addition he is a natural born leader.

If fortune breaks for the big chief and he severs his connection with the Grays, President Lannin will make no hasty selection of a successor, as the job is one which cannot be filled satisfactorily on a minute's notice. Among the veterans who have been mentioned as possible choices for the berth are Heinie Wagner, former world's champion shortstop with the Red Sox; Jack Dunn, present manager of the Baltimore Internationals, and Matty McIntyre, of the Grays, who received his unconditional release at the close of the season.

HAMILTON WILL HAVE ICE WITHIN ONE WEEK

First City in Canada to Enjoy Skating —Hockey Trouble Settled

Hamilton, Oct. 30.—The factional disputes between the Hamilton Hockey Club and the Centennials, which disrupted the game in this city last winter, will not be evident during the coming season. The clubs have joined hands and Hamilton expects to have the best year in its hockey history.

The Hamilton Hockey Club is a dead issue and the Centennials have thrown in their lot with the Hamilton Rowing Club. The latter is a decidedly energetic organization and will have control of the game in this city. All of last season's players, with the exception of Code, who is abroad with the first Canadian overseas contingent, are available. It is probable that intermediate and junior teams will be entered in the O.H.A. There will be no senior team until the accommodation for spectators at the Arena is improved. The management of the latter is preparing to furnish ice within a week or ten days, and Hamilton will be, as last season, the first city in Canada to enjoy hockey and skating.

ST. MICHAEL'S TO BE ON THE ICE

Blue and Black Jerseys Will be in Senior Campaign

Toronto, Oct. 30.—Since "the frost is on the pumpkin" again the St. Michael's hockey club has reconsidered its intention not to put a senior team in the O.H.A. this season. The Blue and Black jerseys will again be prominent in the senior campaign.

Of the old guard there will be available Richardson, Murphy, McCamus, Dissette, Laflamme and Addison. There will be numerous other candidates for positions.

Players who professionalize themselves will be forced to accept the promised salary reductions or remain idle this winter. There will be no place to jump, the N. H. A. and Pacific Coast League having renewed their territorial and salary agreement. These two organizations now represent all the professional hockey in the Dominion.

PULLED FOR THE BRAVES

Washington Leader Did Everything in His Power to Beat Athletics

"It is not improbable that at the next meeting of the American League, Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington team, will have to do some explaining," says Jimmy Isaminger in the North American.

"The open way in which Griffith gloated over each defeat of the Athletics was the scandal of the series. Not only that, but Griffith and several Washington players told Stallings everything they knew about the batting styles of Athletic players. He conspired in every manner possible to bring about the defeat of the Mackmen, and it is probable that the advice he showered on Stallings was partly responsible for the licking the Athletics received.

"It happens that Griffith is a stockholder as well as manager, and his treachery can scarcely be overlooked by other stockholders of the junior league. In the official program at Fenway Park there was a picture of Griffith and Jim Gaffney taken together. Underneath the caption read: 'Clark Griffith, the man who induced James Gaffney to enter baseball.' A well known Boston sport writer said in the press box that the caption should be changed to read: 'Clark Griffith, who helped James Gaffney win the world's championship.'"

FAMOUS HOCKEY STAR HAS VOLUNTEERED

Ottawa, Oct. 29. — Frank McGee, one of the greatest hockeyists who ever handled a stick, has enlisted with the second Canadian contingent and will go to the front as a member of the 43rd Regiment. He is gazetted as a lieutenant. McGee comes of the famous family of D'Arcy, Dick, Jim and Jack, all of whom were prominent in sport a few years ago. Jim captained the old Rough Rider football team and died in 1902 of injuries received by falling from a horse.

When Ottawa won the Stanley Cup in 1902 and held it for four years against all comers McGee was their mainstay. He won all kinds of goal-scoring records, the Ottawa line of Smith, Westwick, McGee and Gilmour then being invincible. Frank was also a member of the Rough Rider football team, a brilliant running half. He competed last summer in the Royal Canadian golf championship as a member of the Ottawa club.

COMMENT

As You Like it

With hockey players, rugby artists and boxers going to war, many have recalled the story told by Tom Sharkey:

"One day, while cruising in the South Seas," said Tom to the bunch in training quarters, "the captain called me and said, 'Able Seaman Sharkey, take nine men and the long boat, and go ashore.'

"We went ashore, exploring, and deep in the jungle we came across a tribe of man-eating monkeys. They were nearly six feet high and each one carried a big warclub.

"The leader was a giant monkey. He looked like Peter Maher. We were getting ready to fire on them when the leader put down his club, put up his hands, and seemed to be daring me to fight him. I said: 'Men, stand back.' They formed a ring, and we went into it. After four terrific rounds I feinted out, swung me good right, and he went down for the count."

It is understood that the Brantford club will withdraw from the Canadian League next season. President Nelson states that he is tired of sinking money and is prepared to throw up the sponge. This is the reason he did not reserve his players with the National Association. Other Brantford people may take over the franchise and operate it next year, but Mr. Nelson is positively through. Brantford has been a tailender since 1912, in which they were well up in the race. A winning team was always well patronized at the Telephone City.

Captain Charles E. Brickley of the Harvard football team, was discharged last Monday evening from the infirmary, where he was operated on recently for appendicitis. It is expected that Brickley will be on the lines within a week coaching his team, but it is hardly probable that he will play this season.

Willie Ritchie made his first appearance, since he lost the belt, the other night in 'Frisco, and Johnny Dundee fought him to a four-round draw. Although Ritchie outweighed Dundee at least ten pounds, the latter's dazzling speed bewildered him in almost every round. Critics say that Ritchie's ring career is about over.

The Northern League, which extended the sphere of its usefulness last season, anticipates further expansion this season. Possibly three additional groups will be included in the Northern this year. Secretary Burt is compiling a year book similar to that published by the O. H. A.

The dope says "Doc" Reisling has made application for the job of pilot of the Hamilton Canadian League team. Incidentally, the husky dentist might land the job.

St. Pat's and T. R. & A. A. have been unable to make arrangements for the transferring of their game on Saturday from Toronto to Ottawa. The Queen City will therefore have two rugby attractions, as Argos will entertain Ottawa.

Frank McCarthy, the Calgary puck chaser, who cut things loose in the Western League last season, has signed a contract to play with the Wanderers in the N. H. A.

It's about time some one started talking Mercantile or City Hockey Leagues.

GETTING IN HOT WATER.

It's a Very Easy Matter, as One Impulsive Young Wife Discovered.

AN impulsive young married woman came downtown the other afternoon, and while walking along Euclid avenue she saw her husband duck into a cafe. She wanted to speak to him and on the impulse of the moment hailed a passerby with a familiar face.

"You are the prescription clerk in the drug store where I trade," she said. "Please do something for me. My husband is in that cafe. Will you please go in and tell him his wife wants to speak to him?"

"I recognize you, Mrs. Blank," stammered the drug clerk, "but I don't think I ever met your husband. What does he look like?"

"He wears a straw hat and a gray suit. You'll be sure to know him."

The pharmacist stepped inside, while the lady watched the door. Presently a worried looking young man stepped out, looked up and down the street and went back in. After an interval another young man stepped out and went through the same performance. Both wore straw hats and gray suits. When the third man, with a hunted look, stuck his head out the door the young woman was almost in hysterics. And she was still that way when the drug clerk reappeared.

"I think I got him, ma'am," he said. "The third man I talked to turned pale and rushed out the back door. It's him, all right!"

Just then the lady's husband appeared from an adjoining cigar store and politely asked his wife for an introduction to her obviously intimate friend.

WILL DISTRIBUTE COPIES OF DR. GORDON'S ADDRESS

At Tonight's Meeting in the George Street Church — List of Questions to be Answered

"The Prodigal Daughter, or "The Curse of a Double Standard," will be Dr. Gordon's special address in the George Street Methodist Church this evening, and two thousand copies of his address entitled "The Crystal Christ" will be distributed at the close of the service.

Many requests are coming in for Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw to repeat certain of the songs which he has sung from night to night. This evening by special request, he will sing "The Recessional," by Kipling, "Will There be any Stars in my Crown," and "Would You Believe."

Dr. Gordon's address last evening was on "the Private Life of our Public Men," and had special reference to the future welfare of the City of Peterborough, concerning which Dr. Gordon affirmed that nature had done so much, geographically for the city in which we live, that with the growing prosperity of the country and the steady increase in population, Peterborough would gradually take its place amongst the more prosperous communities of Canada.

He recited many incidents of the life of great men for their native cities. Savona Rola's love for Florence. Stirpers' love for London, Chalmer's love for Glascow, Beecher's love for Brooklyn and the love of Phillips Brooks for Boston.

No man is saved until the city is saved. There is no soul salvation short of social salvation. Stephen Phillips once said "I would build a city with room in the streets for the soul." That would indeed be a great city.

City Depends on Men.

The city depends on the men of the city. Walt. Whitman once wrote "Produce great men and the rest will follow," and Thomas Carlisle made a remark which was almost an equivalent, "Find your men and all the rest will follow." A man must be measured by his thought. The difference between a politician and a statesman is this. One thinks for the days, the other thinks for decades. Byron wrote for his age. Milton wrote for the ages. It was said of David Bennett Hill who died several years ago, that he had the brains of a statesman and the heart of a ward politician. He knew so much. He did so little. Every true man will serve his city in spite of criticism and contempt. No public man can hope to serve his city and to escape criticism. Lord Randolph Churchill, writing to his wife in 1891 says, "I am through with political life. There has been no consideration, no indulgence, no kind memory, no gratitude, nothing but spite, malice and abuse. I I am sick and tired of it all." This is the experience of most public men, but the public man who is heroic persists in spite of all such criticism.

Ten Points.

Dr. Gordon's address followed the line of ten points, delivered in a brief, pungent and pertinent fashion.

First: The future of the city lies in the quality of the home life. Thos. Carlisle said, "No great man ever

HOW TO KNIT MEN'S SOCKS

Cast on 30 stitches each on 2 needles, and 31 stitches on a third needle, making 91 stitches in all, the 91st stitchis always purled and makes the seam stitch. Knit first round plain, second round knit 2 plain, 2 purl, continue until a depth of 3½ inches is knitted. Now knit round plain (except the seam stitch) for 3 inches, then decrease one stitch each side of seam stitch, knit 6 rounds plain, and decrease one stitch each side of seam stitch again, 6 more rounds plain, so on until 4 decreasings have been made. Then knit round and round until a depth of 7½ inches from the rib is attained. Divide stitches for heel, placing 41 stitches on one needle, the odd one to be the seam stitch in the centre, and 20 on each of the 2 needles to come either side of the one with the 41 stitches. Knit the 41 backwards and forwards, purl on the wrong side, and plain on the right, (leaving the 2 side needles alone) until a depth of 2¼ inches, finishing at end of plain needle. Now purl back to one past seam stitch. Take 2 together knit 1, turn and slip the last knitted, knit to one past the seam stitch (which is now discontinued), repeat, turn, and knit to the gap formed by the turning, taking one each side of it together, knitting one and turning again, until the last 2 either end of the row are taken together, finishing end of plain row. With the same needle the stitches are on knit up the loops down the side, also 2 off the first needle with the 20 stitches on then take the spare needle and knit the remainder of the 20 with the 18 of the other 20. Knit the remaining 2 on another needle, and with it knit up the loops on the other side of the heel stitches. Now knit 1 round plain, next round derease 1 stitch end of needle towards front, which is the one with 36 stitches on. Knit the latter plain and decrease one stitch beginning of next needle, repeat these 2 rounds until there are 18 stitches on each side needle, making 72 all round. Take stitches off equally both sides of front needle, so there will be 24 on each needle, and knit round plain until a depth of 7½ inches from the picking up of the heel. Now decrease 1 stitch each end of needle, one round, then knit 3 rounds, plain, decrease again, knit 2 rounds plain, repeat, and after the second 2 rounds plain, decrease one round and knit one round plain until there are 10 stitches on each needle. Then decrease each round until there are 2 stitches on each needle. Take the first 2 together, be careful not to drop the one stitch on the right hand needle, put down the 1 needle, put the 2 remaining needles side by side, and with the needle holding one stitch take one from each of the 2 needles together and draw the odd one over, repeat with remaining 3 and pull the wool through, breaking it off, and darn down end.

SPIES IN CANADA

In view of reported cases of German espionage in Canada, and of the excitement produced in various centres throughout the Dominion by the movements of supposed spies, it is interesting to know something of the scale upon which the German system of espionage is known to be organized in the theatre of war of Europe, which is of course the very heart centre of the system.

At the start it is well to recall the fact that the excellence of the German intelligence system, which contributed so powerfully towards the German success in the Franco-German war of 1870, was the result of an elaborate spy system, carefully organized within the borders of France during peace times.

After the conclusion of the 1866 campaign against Austria, Stieber, Minister of Police in Prussia, who was to Bismarck and Von Moltke, what Fouche was to Napoleon, was sent on a secret mission to France. His aim and object was the organization within the boundaries of France, of a spy system preparatory to the pending war. Stieber, in all, between 1866 and 1869, made four journeys through the length and breadth of France, by the end of which time, aided by very able assistants, he accomplished far-reaching results.

A peculiar feature of the system instituted by Stieber at that time, and still maintained, were the "fixed posts." The ordinary idea of a spy is one who is sent to travel in a foreign country in some disguise, and who returns to his own country with information thus acquired. But this traveling spy suffers very great disadvantages. Like every traveler in a foreign country, without any reason for being there, he is the object of suspicion. He has no time to get thoroughly into touch with useful channels of information.

The spy on the "fixed post" is on an entirely different footing. He attracts no attention, since he lives as an inhabitant of the place he is in, and, moreover, plies some trade, which gives him a very good reason for being there.

In 1890 Stieber, still at that date Minister of Police in Germany, was sent through France and subsequently established a branch of the German Secret Police to deal with "political actions." This term, it was explained, included the destruction of the strategetical railways in France on the outbreak of war, so that the French mobilization might be retarded. But this part of the scheme miscarried, thanks to the vigilance of the French intelligence agents.

How perfect a spy system has been introduced by the Germans into Canada is not stated, but it is known that there have been German spies in Canada within the past five years, and that some of them have been identified and tracked by the military and police authorities.

Owing to the military censorship imposed upon the cable and wireless telegraph services, it is difficult for the German agents in Canada to get their reports across the Atlantic Ocean promptly; but in the absence of a censorship over the land wires and mails, communication of a sort is open through to neutral countries.

German Goods Denied Entry.

Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, has obtained one of the many circulars with which Canadian merchants are being deluged these days from agents of German and Austrian firms in the United States. The circular is as follows:

"After having been cut off from our connection abroad since Aug. 3, we are glad to advise that we have re-established cable communication with our friends.

"We are glad to inform you that our Hamburg factories are in operation and goods are being made up. Arrangements are now being made to ship these goods via neutral ports, and we believe that the new routing will be in good working order very shortly. We may of course be inconvenienced by some delays, but this will be only for a short time we hope.

"We shall keep you further posted on developments in the meantime. We beg you not to be alarmed as to possibility of not being able to secure the goods for which you may have placed orders with us.

"In the meantime we shall continue to fill orders from our stock, which we hold at the disposal of our customers without advance as long as it lasts."

The Customs Department, since the issuing of the imperial proclamation prohibiting trading with the enemy, has taken drastic steps to prevent any of the goods crossing the border, and so far there has been a complete cessation of trading with the enemy. The same vigilance will be maintained during the war.

Evening Strolls Risky.

Two young men of the Cuthbert party from Canada disobeyed the Paris order a few weeks ago that all citizens should be indoors at nine o'clock in the evening, and went for a stroll. Coming home, they were stopped by a soldier and questioned. In his flurried attempt to remember French and his hotel, one of them said he was staying at the Hotel de Ville (City Hall), then, when the soldier gasped, he said the Hotel de Europe (in Switzerland), and by the time he remembered the Hotel de Louvre, at which the party were stopping, a big crowd had gathered. From these a man stepped forward who spoke English, and the two were able to escape, but took no more evening strolls.

FOOD FOR OLD LONDON; COULD EASILY BE STARVED

If Supplies From Abroad Were Cut Off For a Few Weeks Death Would Ravage the Great and Wealthy Metropolis—Sources of its Provisions.

London is a city and a county, but it is so immense and so diverse that it might almost be said to be a country. One of the most striking things about London is its utter inability to feed itself. In the matter of food its very immensity is the cause of its utter dependence. If supplies were cut off from without it would starve to death in a few weeks.

It is the richest city in the world. It has palatial shops, thousands of stores and countless warehouses, but it produces practically nothing in the shape of foodstuff. It is like a great baby that has to be fed by its mother, the world, and the produce of the world fills the mouths of its 7,500,000 inhabitants.

By the rail, the river and the road all that Londoners eat and drink is brought to them, and three-quarters of it all is conveyed in ships from abroad.

Until the beginning of the nineteenth century London had no docks. Today they cover an area of twenty-two miles, and wheat from the United States, Russia, Canada and the Argentine is disgorged into their granaries from the holds of ships like so much sand. Many Londoners have never seen the docks, but two loaves out of every three that they eat are made from the grain that comes to them through those docks.

Most of the grain ships berth in the Victoria docks, but since they are so necessary to the city's welfare they have the right to moor at any quay in the port of London, a privilege no other vessels possess.

The London butchers never cease to sound the praise of English beef and mutton, but they sell little that is really English. All the cattle that are shipped to London alive pass ashore at Deptford into the market which stands on the site of the dockyard where Peter the Great learned shipbuilding. Every animal is inspected by a government official, and those that are in any way diseased are killed and cremated straightway.

Cattle come by train from all parts of the kingdom to the Metropolitan cattle market at Islington, traveling through the night, and on Mondays and Thursdays the market opens at dawn and continues till 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The cattle that are sold are driven to the slaughter houses and killed, and the meat is on sale at Smithfield early next morning.

At 2 o'clock in the morning this market is ablaze with light, and the streets in the vicinity are blocked with railway vans. At 4 o'clock the salesmen are in their places, and soon afterward the buyers from the big shops arrive, and the sawdust strewn avenues of red and yellow carcasses are thronged.

Smithfield's daily supply of beef and mutton is about 1,600 tons, but only a fifth of this meat is British, and much of the mutton comes from New Zealand via the Victoria docks.

The county of Kent is noted for its fruits and vegetables, but London would be unable to satisfy its craving for green stuff without the aid of other countries. The miscellaneous vegetables annually brought into England from abroad are worth close to $5,000,000.

There are several markets in the metropolis for such wares—Spitalfields, the Great Northern potato market and the Farringdon fruit and vegetable market—but the bulk of the apples, oranges, lemons, onions, potatoes and other roots that are brought from France, Italy, Spain and Algiers find their way from the docks of Covent Garden in common with the home grown fruit and vegetables which reach London from all points of the compass in boxes and baskets piled high on lumbering vans.

Most of the market gardeners sell their own wares at "the Garden," while the foreign stuff is sold at auction. For 300 years this place has been the premier market of London for vegetables, fruits and flowers, and there are firms who have traded beneath its glass roof for generations.

Some of the fish that feeds London is landed on a floating pontoon at the river front of Billingsgate market, and at a very early hour in the morning one may, if he chooses, gaze upon fishing smacks from the North sea, little open barges loaded with fish that have been lightered from larger vessels in the docks and clumsy looking Dutch galiots loaded with eels which are entitled under a charter granted by Queen Elizabeth to sail up the Thames and moor below London bridge.

The railway companies convey 79,000 tons of fish from different parts of the coast in the course of a year, while the boats convey 57,000 tons. The tolling of a big bell announces the opening of the market at 5 o'clock, and thereafter the fishmongers are busy buying, and the fish porters in their long smocks and flat topped hats scurry from the stalls to the carts bearing fish boxes on their heads.

The provision business is a network of commerce in itself, but there is a big daily distribution throughout London, because without it London would have to live on dry bread, meat and vegetables.—New York Press.

THRILLING STORIES OF THE SURVIVORS OF THE KARLUK

W. L. McKinley and J. R. Hadley, two of the survivors of the wrecked steamer Karluk of the Stefansson expedition, have told of their experiences while the Karluk was hard and fast in the grip of the polar ice pack from early last October up to January 10, when the ship was crushed and sank. The story is sent from Nome, Alaska, by Lieut. Ralph Dempwolf.

Up to the time of the sudden disaster all those on board were well and in good condition. During the drift to the north and northwest the scientists aboard looked forward to a drift across the pole.

One peculiar discovery was made when the ship drifted across the locality supposed to be Keenan Land, found on the polar charts north of Point Barrow. Apparently this land does not exist.

On Christmas day, 1913, all hands got out on the ice pack around the ship and played football and other sports for prizes given by Captain Bartlett. The games were followed by a Christmas dinner.

McKinley took daily meteorological data and is the only scientist to survive who has been able to keep his notes. James Murray, the naturalist of the expedition, who is missing, also took many meteorological observations. His data and notes are lost.

During the drift Captain Bartlett, no doubt thinking of possible disaster, had skin clothing made for all the ship's company by Kalillak and wife, Eskimos from Point Barrow. He also had the sledges and gear put in order, and as a daily routine the ship's crew chopped the ice around the Karluk into small pieces to make a cushion against the pressure of the ice pack.

On Jan. 10 the Karluk was crushed by the ice along the water line. All on board at once set to work getting supplies and stores off the ship, and a temporary camp was established on the ice near Wrangel Island.

Captain Bartlett was the last to leave the ship, and as she took her final plunge the phonograph in the galley, which he had set going, could be heard playing a stirring march.

Dr. Mackay, Murray, Henri Beauchet and the seaman Morris, were the first to leave the temporary camp. They insisted that an attempt to reach land should be made at once. Dr. Mackay, who was in charge of this party, insisted on pulling the sledges by hand, making the mistake of trying to use Antarctic methods in the Arctic.

In the Antarctic, after passing the barrier, one is on a firm foundation, but in the Arctic the entire ice pack is continually moving and is affected by the winds and currents, necessitating a greater amount of traveling. Using dogs to haul the sledges saves the strength of the men for marching.

The Mackay party had not been gone many days when they lost half their provisions. Beauchet had both of his hands frozen. When they were last seen they were making slow progress toward Wrangel Island.

The other missing party, which was in charge of First Mate Anderson, was the second to leave shipwreck camp.

The gale made the enormous pressure ridge on the north side of Wrangel Island, which was afterward conquered despite almost overwhelming difficulties by Bartlett's party, the last to leave camp. Although the gale had died down when they reached the ridge, the great mass of ice, fifty feet high and three miles wide, was still grinding together under the momentum the ice had gathered in the gale, and they had to wait two days before attempting the passage.

After Bartlett left to attempt the crossing of Bering Strait to get help McKinley, Hadley, Bredin and Kurilluk, the Eskimo, with his wife and two children, established a camp near Waring point, on the east coast of Wrangel Island. They named the bay near by McKinley bay.

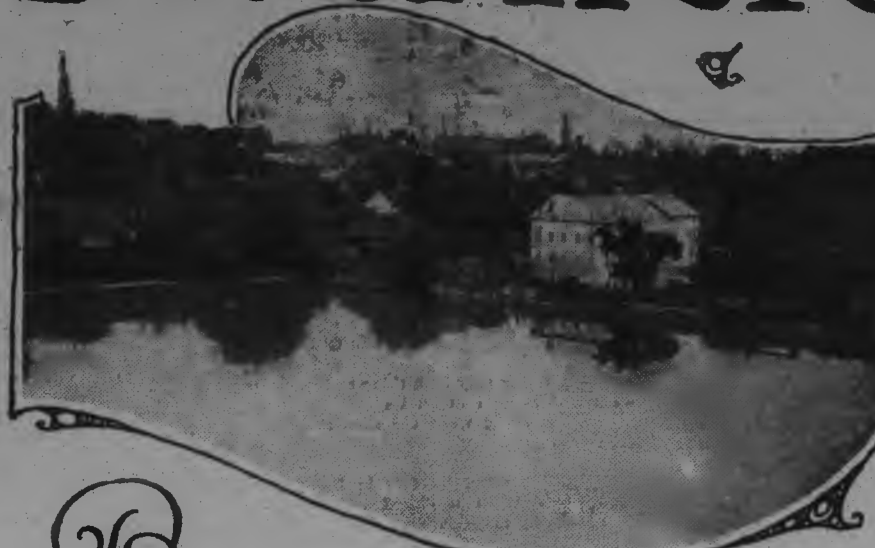
Monro, Malloch, Mamen, Williamson, Chafe, Templemen, Williams and Mauer camped at Rodgers Harbor, on the south coast of the island. They lived in dugouts under the snow until May and then moved into the tents.

On Wrangel Island, near the tent of the living, Bjarn Mamen, assistant to the geologist, and George S. Malloch, geologist and topographer, were buried. It is not known just what they died of, but it was not scurvy.

The provisions gave out the first week in June. From then on three polar bears, several young white foxes, seagulls, walrus, seals and ducks without salt were their fare.

For three months and some days not even meat was to be had. On these days breakfast consisted of hot water and dinner of soup made of hot water and cracked ducks' bones, which Kurilluk's wife had the foresight to save from the last meal.

BEAUTIES OF ONTARIO



Bowmanville

Bowmanville—who that knows Canadian history does not thrill when he reads the origin of the name. Prior to the Papineau-Mackenzie Rebellion in 1837, Bowmanville was known as Darlington Mills, the site on which this pretty and progressive town now stands being owned by an Irishman, John Burke. It was he that gave the first impetus to the laying of the foundations which have made Bowmanville one of the chief minor centers of industry and trade amongst the Lake Ontario towns on the route of the Canadian Pacific. He built saw mills and grist mills and established the first "general store" in Ontario, in 1820, from which has evolved the idea of the modern "department" store.

During the Papineau-Mackenzie Rebellion the prosperous village of Darlington Mills was not only to have its name changed but also to have a place in Canadian history as the first town that stood sturdily for the union of the Canadas. The change of name and the political significence of the town were brought about by a Scot named John Simpson, akin to the famous Sir George Simpson, of the Hudson Bay Company.

It seems, from the records, that John Simpson lived in Darlington Mills (later to be named through him Bowmanville) fifty-two years ago. When during a bitterly contested election at Newtonville, stones flew freely and one man was killed. Simpson who was against the Papineau-Mackenzie faction, put himself at the head of "forty good men and true" and took the lead on the side of established government, and prevented the opposing faction from demolishing the polling booths. For that exploit, as if emulating the archers of olden days, sturdy and true, Darlington Mills was re-christened with the name it is now known—Bowmanville. In recognition of this yeoman service for the preservation of the union of Canadas, John Simpson was made a Senator at the forming of the Confederacy in 1867.

An incident worth recording which gives a distinction to the town of Bowmanville, is the fact that while bearing its pioneer name, there was ground at the mills two barrels of flour, which were sent to the great London Exhibition in Crystal Park, London, in 1851, and which received a prize.

Like all Ontario towns, Bowmanville is exceedingly picturesque—the streets are well shaded, the residences are distinguished by their surrounding beautiful lawns and gardens. But from the point of view of modern town-making Bowmanville, though possessing a population of only four thousand, is so progressive as to have 17 miles of granolithic pavement, a distinction which no other town of even greater size can boast of. Beauty lingers around the town in a score of different ways, in shade, in hill, in dell, and in placid lake and stream. Industries too flourish in Bowmanville. In this respect it is one of the most thriving towns in Ontario, or, for that matter, in Canada. But above all else, Bowmanville is a "beauty spot," made memorable by historic association.

RIGHT AND WRONG WAYS OF MARKETING EGGS

An extremely interesting and attractive feature of the Demonstration Car, containing the Egg and Wool Exhibits of the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, which was on exhibition at Peterborough recently was the educational display illustrating the right and wrong methods of marketing eggs.

This display formed the larger part of the Egg Exhibit and was an object lesson that will not soon be forgotten by those who visited the car. It was arranged in two large, electrically lighted show cases. Each case contained a series of models together with appropriate backgrounds and descriptions illustrating in one instance the careless methods too frequently followed in the handling of eggs on many Canadian farms, and in the other the results that may be obtained through the adoption of improved methods on the farm, in the country store, and in fact by all those engaged in the egg trade.

In each instance the course followed by the egg from the time it was laid until it reached the customer, was mapped out. The cause of the many bad and stale eggs was evident when one noted the unsatisfactory conditions that prevailed on many farms, and in many country stores. It was pointed out that even the mongrel, non-descript poultry found on many farms, refused to use for the greater part of the year, the dirty, undesirable poultry houses provided for them. The eggs were gathered infrequently and from questionable places. They were held until it was convenient to carry them to market, and were usually traded on a flat-rate basis, for merchandise, at the country store where little or no attention was paid to quality. Here they were frequently held indefinitely, in anticipation of a rising market and often were shipped in damp and musty cases to the wholesale dealer, who candled and graded them. The result of the candling was indicated and it was evident that but a relatively small proportion of the eggs graded "select." The manner in which the retail grocer permitted eggs to deteriorate was also pointed out, and if by chance, a portion of the uncandled eggs went direct to the consumer the result was very evident.

The second series showed a flock of pure bred poultry kept in a clean, well ventilated poultry house, provided with clean, dry nests from which the eggs were gathered frequently and regularly. The eggs were kept covered in a clean utensil in the coolest, driest place in the farm house and marketed at least once, better twice a week. In the country store they were bought on the basis of quality and packed in clean, dry cases and forwarded with the minimum of delay. The result of this careful management was apparent in the candling room of the wholesale warehouse where a decidedly large proportion of the eggs graded "select" and if by chance a portion of these eggs went direct to the consumer, the result was in marked contrast to that apparent in the previous instance.

Another important feature of the exhibit was the candling demonstration given in a large booth erected in the end of the car. This phase of work was of particular interest to consumers, for the reason that but few persons appreciate the fact that the quality of an egg can be accurately determined without breaking the shell.

The candling of eggs is not a difficult process and the small amount of labor entailed in candling presents no valid reason why the consuming public should not candle their own eggs more frequently than they do, and thus safeguard themselves from many unpleasant occurrences at the breakfast table.

A Question and the Answer.

THE QUESTION.

Do you ever recall the place of your birth,
Where they kept you as still as a mouse,
The old apple tree, the pies made of earth
And the creek in the front of the house?

THE ANSWER.

The home of my youth to my mind is a lure
In springtime or summer or fall.
Of the creek in the front I am not quite sure,
But the crick in my back I recall.

Accidental Discovery.

The immense production at Niagara Falls of carbide of calcium, the curious artificial stone which, when bathed in water, gives off acetylene gas, recalls that this substance was first manufactured in America by accident, through the metallurgical operations of T. L. Wilson, who now lives in Ottawa. While using limestone and salt in smelting near a small stream, he noticed among the melted slag which day by day ran nearer to the brink of the little stream, a greyish-white substance new in his experience, but thought little of it until one day the molten slag overhung the water and began to flow into it. Then suddenly a bright, white flame burst out of the molten mass and enveloped it for some time. He drew from the dry slag some of the strange material and touched a match to it, but without result. Then he poured some water upon it, and at the next trial the liberated acetylene gas broke into flame. Thus in 1892 accident discovered a practicable way of producing that acetylene gas, first discovered in England in 1836 by Edmund Day while experimenting with potassium tartrate and charcoal. It remained, however, for the intense heat of the hydro-electric furnaces of Niagara to turn out this wonderful stone in almost perfect purity and immense quantities.

REPARTEE AT THE CARD TABLE

An Amateur Bridge Player "Comes Back" at a Typical Auction Tyrant.

JONES didn't want to play cards, never had wanted to play cards in his life, and said so, but to no purpose. His objections, conscientious and otherwise, were waved to one side by the red faced person who was looking for a partner.

Jones took his seat at the card table. Before they had been playing fifteen seconds Jones and the red faced person took a forty horsepower dislike for each other. Then the wretched Jones made his first serious mistake. He of the ruddy complexion banged the table.

"Why on earth didn't you follow my lead?" he shouted.

"If there is one man in this world today whose odious example I would not follow in any circumstances you are the man!" retorted Jones, with dignity.

After that the jolly pastime proceeded. Then Jones put his foot in it again, and again the rubicund one banged the table.

"Couldn't you see me calling for a spade or a club?" he boomed. "Haven't you got a black suit, man?"

"Yes, I have," said Jones, rising from the table, "and I'm jolly well hanging on to it for your funeral."—Baltimore American.

Gooseberries as a Tonic.

A supposed authority strongly recommends gooseberries, cooked, of course, as a tonic better than the finer berries generally in the market. The gooseberry has an acid not to be found in other small berries, or perhaps it is a salt. Anyhow, they are good and health giving. There we go following a custom of England, where the gooseberry has been the main feature of tarts, famed in song and story.—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

Eels as Food.

The eel's food value is great and in some countries it is staple. The English consume millions, but the Scotch would quite as soon eat snakes. So in the ancient times, while the Romans consumed large quantities, the Egyptians would not touch them. A great many of our people have this same aversion to the eel, though a great many others are fond of it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

One Way.

"Mr. Interlocutor, can you tell me how one may make ice water without ice?"

"No, Mr. Bones, I cannot. Will you tell us how?"

"Peel an onion, and that will make your eyes water."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MAJOR CROFOOT.

The Grand Promoter Asks the Landlady For Her Bill.

SHE BRINGS IT WITH ALACRITY

Which Is to Be Expected, as It Has Run Ten Weeks—But Does the Major Come Across With the Coin?—Well, Not So You Could Notice It.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

THE grand promoter expected it. For the past week he had observed many signs that his landlady had lost confidence in him and was working up her nerve to present him a bill. His cheerfulness at the dinner table almost bordered on hilarity, and as he left the table he executed a flank movement by saying:

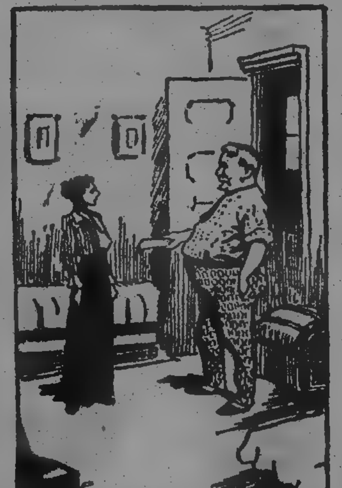
"My dear woman, if it is not asking too much, I wish you would hand me my account this evening."

He hadn't been in his room two minutes when the landlady followed.

"Ah!" said the major. "Nothing like promptness in business affairs. Let me see. Exactly ten weeks and $70."

"Yes, sir, $70," replied the landlady.

"While it is only a trifle," continued the major, "it should be paid and the books balanced—that is, if there is anything coming to you it should be paid at once."



"YOU OWE ME $930."

"But how can there be anything coming to you?" protested the landlady.

"We can't tell until we have figured. When I organized the Universal Hand Organ trust I let you in for $50,000 worth of stock."

"But the whole thing busted up."

"Ah, I remember. It was not a bust up, but the organ trust was consolidated with the Great American Anti-blizzard syndicate. I haven't the books here, but if my memory serves me right I presented you with $100,000 worth of stock. If your annual income from that stock has reached the sum of $10,000"—

"But I never saw any stock," protested the landlady. "You said something about it one day, but a week later you claimed that you had dropped the scheme for a better thing."

"Let me see," mused the major—"let me see. Did I drop the Hand Organ and Anti-blizzard trust for a surer thing? Ah, it comes back to me! Yes, we let go of it to take up the International Nursing Bottle monopoly. If your dividends on that stock"—

"But I haven't had any! That was another of your schemes that busted!"

"My dear woman, what a business head you have. It is no wonder that your landlord never had to come twice for his rent."

"But you must pay. I can't run my house unless my boarders pay!"

"While perfectly assured that the International Nursing Bottle monopoly would pay 20 per cent dividends," said the major, "we decided to drop it for a better thing. You must know the difference between 20 and 40 per cent."

"Of course I do."

"Then you will see at once why we went into the Physical Pick and Ax Handle syndicate. It was the difference between 20 and 40 per cent. That organization was perfected three days ago, and you are to come in on the ground floor. You showed your confidence in my integrity by allowing my indebtedness to accumulate until it has finally reached $70. Had I not sought this interview you would have let the bill run on for weeks."

"No, I wouldn't! I've been trying to catch you for two weeks."

"But I sought the interview," continued the promoter. "I brought about this meeting in order that we might balance the books. My dear woman, you are a stockholder in the Physical Pick and Ax Handle trust. I have set aside for you $10,000 worth of stock at 10 per cent of its face value. That's $1,000."

"But this ten weeks' bill?"

"Yes; we now come to the bill. Your ground floor stock comes to $1,000. Take $70 from that and we have $930 left. In other words, you owe me $930. Look over the figures for yourself. But you needn't worry about it. Our first call on the stockholders is only 3 per cent, and if you haven't the money I'll lend it to you."

"But I—I don't understand!"

"But you will after thinking it over. Don't worry—don't worry, and good night to you!"

Feather Industry Booms.

The removal of the competition of cheap German artificial flowers and feathers, as a result of the war, is stimulating activity in the artificial flower and feather factories of Canada. The imports of artificial flowers and feathers from Germany to Canada during the last fiscal year amounted to $177,171. The Canadian artificial flower and feather industry will have to make up much of the deficiency caused by the withdrawal of these imports.

Two Toronto factories have experienced greatly increased activity since the war began. Under normal conditions these two factories have about 200 employes. Since the breaking out of hostilities the number of employes has been increased to 240, and it has been necessary to have many of the employes work overtime several nights a week, in order to cope with the increased business that is being offered.

Prairie Farmers Respond

Word has been received at Ottawa that the western farmers are acting upon the advice recently given them by the Minister of Agriculture and are taking pains to prepare as much land as possible for crop next spring and do the work well.

Officials say that this should materially increase the yield next year, and not only help to maintain the food supply of the old country but also benefit the farmers and support the general prosperity of this country.

Raspberries!

A number of guests at the home of Mr. W. A. Kidd, Otonabee, Ont., were pleasantly surprised on Friday, Sept. 26, upon being served with fresh raspberries. The fruit was of excellent type. Besides the ripe fruit there were blossoms upon the bushes.

In the Spring.

The apple blossoms in the lane
Coquette with bumblebees,
And robin redbreast's glad refrain
Re-echoes from the trees.

The signs of spring are in the air,
And nature bids rejoice
And sing the season rich and rare
With tuneful, gladsome voice.

But I'm not singing worth a cent.
I have rheumatic knees—
A flock of hens on mischief bent
Are scratching up my peas!

Incidental.

"Jones takes in all of the ball games, prizefights, bowling matches and, in fact, everything in the sporting line."

"Isn't the old reprobate married?"

"Yes, he is, but he doesn't let it interfere with his pleasure. It is just a side line."

Light Employment.

"I understand you are going to marry the banker's daughter."

"She has given her consent."

"Will you work in the bank after you are married?"

"Work in the bank?"

"What do you expect to do for a living?"

"Travel for my health."

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

THE man who loses his head generally finds himself in a crowd that is quite willing to use it as a football.

He is generally a good marksman who is continually throwing bouquets at himself.

Being able to take a hint should be supplemented by the ability to drop it.

A diplomat is one who can make the petitioner for a favor think he is doing the asker a favor by turning him down.

Joy riding may be a thing of beauty, but it is seen in all its ugliness the next morning when the fines are imposed.

Trouble generally flies in forty directions when a closed incident is opened by mistake.

It is a very simple matter to turn the head of a crank when the right woman comes along.

The Affable Stranger.

He blew into the city
With nothing on his mind,
But with some togs the like of which
You very seldom find.
He seemed to come from nowhere,
But straightway settled down
And started in to show them
The way to run a town.

He cut a swath tremendous,
Was first in everything.
The natives backed up slowly
And let him have full swing.
Before they got their bearings
To analyze his case
He was the self appointed
Grand mogul of the place.

You know how such things happen.
Some people have a way
Of being head mechanic
In less than half a day,
Of coming to a city
And reaching for the best
Before they learn the language
And know which way is west.

This fellow that I speak of,
He lasted half a year
Before they took his measure
And sent him to the rear.
That didn't jar his whiskers
Or make him sad and blue.
He packed his bag and baggage
And ducked for pastures new.

He Wanted to Know.

"I'd like to have yer tell me one thing, Bill."

"W'at is it, Mike?"

"What's this here thing what they calls temperament?"

"Temperament?"

"That's it—temperament."

"Temperament is w'at you has wit' you to trot out and display w'en youse in a big grouch and wants to make the udder fellow comeover."

Just Working Her.

"I wouldn't have that saphead for a son-in-law."

"Neither would I."

"But he is keeping company with our daughter."

"Yes, and I am encouraging it."

"But what can you expect of such a course?"

"Just what is happening. The girl has no use for the man her parents pick out for her."

Patriotism.

Some people love their native land,
You know that this is so,
For when they leave it back they send
Each year to get the dough.

Power of Habit.

"I noticed Miss Jones knocked instead of ringing the doorbell."

"Too bad such a pretty girl should be such a knocker."

Still Suspicious.

"What is that you are smoking?"

"A good ten cent cigar."

"Hum! What did it cost you?"

THE WISER CHOICE.

[A weekly paper says letters of proposal should be timed to arrive in the evening, that being the sentimental time when acceptance is most likely.]

GOOD sir, your directions are all very fine,
But when I propose by the pen trick
I shall look for a temper to tolerate mine,
And mine is distinctly eccentric.
If she in the morning is likely to grouse,
If her breakfast demeanor is surly,
There would not be room for us both in the house.
I'm peevish myself when it's early.

So rather I'd have her most critical mood
Prevail at the time of my wooing.
I'd like to be sure that the girl understood
Exactly the thing she was doing.
I feel in my heart it were better for me
To double the risk of rejection
In order (if haply accepted) to be
A calm and cold blooded selection.

Let my letter arrive when the day at its start
Provokes a malevolent feeling.
Her answer may puncture a hole in my heart,
But time is an expert at healing.
And that will be better than learning too late,
At the end of the honeymoon season,
That the lady had only consented to mate
In an hour that was bad for her reason.

Achievement.

Professor Plummer's life began
With every promise of success.
He was a diligent young man—
People admired him more or less.

From idle sentiment exempt,
He could observe with clearer eyes
And look with laudable contempt
At everything which was not wise.

He saw that friendships came and went.
"We meet," he said, "shake hands and scatter."
He saw that time was better spent
Upon some more important matter.

He reasoned in his lucid way
That love was quite unnecessary.
"When one was busy," he would say,
"A wife would be distracting, very."

Strange, after years in studying
Important matters occupied,
One wholly unimportant thing
Professor Plummer did—he died.

Trelawney's Sacrifice

In Which It is Shown That There is No Friendship Like That Which Costs Another's Honor

By CHARLES EDWARD RICH

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

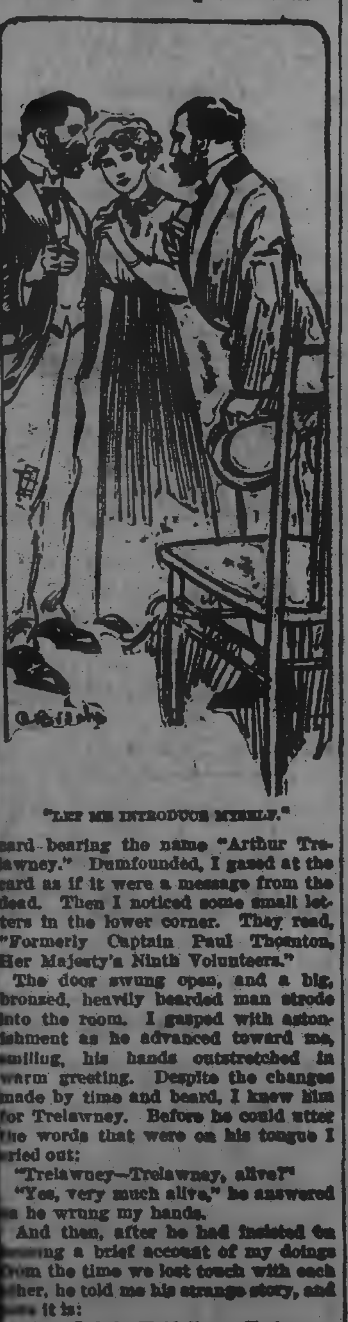
One night more than a year ago I was called at a late hour by the surgeon to set down in legal form the last words and wishes of a dying man.

I immediately responded to the call and was met at the door by a beautiful woman. Weeping bitterly, she told me that I was too late; that my services could not avail, as her husband was dead. Of course there was nothing to do but go away. I thought no more of the case until, two days afterward, I learned that the dead man was Arthur Trelawney, and that he had shot himself.

Arthur Trelawney had been a dear friend of mine. We were students together at Heidelberg.

I at once hastened to the house to tender my services to his stricken widow. Again I was too late. The body had been removed to an undertaker's, and the woman had gone without leaving any address.

You can now understand my amazement when about a month ago my office boy one morning handed me a card bearing the name "Arthur Trelawney." Dumfounded, I gazed at the card as if it were a message from the dead. Then I noticed some small letters in the lower corner. They read, "Formerly Captain Paul Thornton, Her Majesty's Ninth Volunteers."



"LET ME INTRODUCE MYSELF."

The door swung open, and a big, bronzed, heavily bearded man strode into the room. I gasped with astonishment as he advanced toward me, smiling, his hands outstretched in warm greeting. Despite the changes made by time and beard, I knew him for Trelawney. Before he could utter the words that were on his tongue I ried out:

"Trelawney—Trelawney, alive?"

"Yes, very much alive," he answered a he wrung my hands.

And then, after he had insisted on ing a brief account of my doings rom the time we lost touch with each her, he told me his strange story, and it is:

After I left Heidelberg Trelawney me much attached to a fellow stunt, also an Englishman, named Paul hornton.

Thornton was poor and boarded with fessor Max Braun, who had a ughter, Gretchen. Her father exact a promise from her that she would t marry while he lived. She remain heart free till she met Paul Thornn; then it was a case of love at sight ith both. They became engaged, but ept the engagement secret.

Trelawney, who was wealthy, in or to be near his friend went to board Professor Braun. He, too, fell love with Gretchen and proposed to er. For a time she concealed the vowal, then told Paul. Paul, pained d shocked, kept the matter to him till Trelawney told him of his e for Gretchen, then announced to friend that he was engaged him to Gretchen and that she had told Trelawney had proposed to her

"It would have been far better, Paul, if you had told me before," said Trelawney.

Thornton silently acquiesced, and Trelawney knocked the ashes out of his pipe, rose to his feet and held out his hand to Thornton.

"Paul," he said, "let this make no difference in our friendship, but I must go away. I can get over it better alone."

The next day Trelawney left Heidelberg and the young couple announced their engagement to the professor. He, to their surprise, consented to a speedy marriage, and all lived happily together till the professor's death some years later.

This break in their quiet life aroused a spark of slumbering ambition in Thornton, and as soon as practicable he took his wife to London.

From the start ill fortune attended him. He was unable to find employment for which he was fitted, and his small income went only a short way in London. Matters grew worse and worse until they were compelled to take one room in a cheap lodging house.

One night Thornton went home staggering under a blow harder than any he had been called upon to bear. The little clerkship that they had depended on, even for their meager living, was to be taken from him in a month because of a reduction in the office force, and simultaneously he had been called upon to bear arms in South Africa.

His face was pale and haggard as he entered the little room, which was almost in darkness. As he hesitated on the threshold a hearty voice from the gloom cut him to the heart.

"Hello, Paul, old man! I've tracked you at last. Thought you could shake me, didn't you?"

It was Trelawney, and before Thornton realised it he was sobbing like a child on his friend's shoulder.

"Arthur, God bless you! I hoped you would never know how far down hill I have been sliding."

"That fool pride of yours, I know. Well, I meant to find you, and I have. Now, the only thing for a man to do who is sliding down hill is to dig his toes in deep and begin to climb back again."

"But I slipped pretty close to the bottom—today," replied Thornton, and then he told Trelawney and his wife of the untoward events of the day. Gretchen gave a sharp cry and buried her face in her hands. Trelawney turned to her quickly, his lips setting into a hard line. He sat silent while the woman wept softly, and then, shaking himself as if aroused from a dream, he said:

"Come, I see a way clearly out of this. We will lay it all over until tomorrow."

The next night Trelawney was in high spirits when he entered Thornton's room.

"Congratulate me, Paul and Gretchen!" he cried. "I am going to South Africa."

Husband and wife stared at Trelawney in amazement, and finally Paul said:

"Going to South Africa! Why, you said nothing about this last night. You surely had no such intention yesterday. What is the meaning of this sudden impulse, for such it seems to be?"

"Well, yes, it is a sudden impulse, and as to its meaning you will learn that later on."

"No. Be frank, Trelawney; tell me its meaning now."

"Well, Paul, it simply means that you can remain with your wife."

"Trelawney, do you mean that you have enlisted as my substitute and without my consent?" said Paul.

"Substitute? No, Paul, it will never be said that Paul Thornton sent another to the front for him, for I know you would not have it so."

"What is this enigma?" asked Paul.

"Let me introduce myself—Paul Thornton of Her Majesty's Ninth volunteers. Now, listen to me, Paul. I am making no sacrifice. It all fits in perfectly with my plans for the future."

"But I shall stop you. I shall go to the war office and"—

"That will be useless. The war office will not be open until tomorrow, and by midnight I shall be out of London. Paul, nothing can be more to my liking. Pray do not try to block a plan which will give me more pleasure than perhaps I shall ever enjoy again in my life. I have no ties, no responsibilities.

"Take now your own case: What would Gretchen do in a strange country without friends or means of support while you were away? Instead of that, it pleases me—and you must not try to rob me of this gratification—that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Trelawney sail within the week for America—in fact, their passage is already booked on the Lucania. The agent sent them the tickets by me."

Trelawney took an envelope from his pocket and placed it on the table, continuing before Thornton could interrupt him:

"And Trelawney's solicitor has been instructed to send to him in America only a portion of his income, and he has obtained a letter of credit and the necessary credentials."

Trelawney placed another envelope on the table.

"Arthur, I say you shall not do this!" broke out Thornton.

"Paul," he said slowly, "surely you will not deny me the great happiness I shall take in doing this thing for—for Gretchen?"

They both looked into his eyes and saw the pleading, and they both knew that it was for the woman he loved that he wished to make the sacrifice.

They came to America, where the new Trelawney sank under the influence of drink and morphine.

Gretchen watched the change in him with fear. At first her influence held him somewhat in check, but at last even his love for her was deadened by his excesses. He constantly feared exposure, as if he were guilty of some great crime.

After the close of the war Trelawney remained in South Africa and only recently returned to London, where he startled his solicitor as much as he startled me. It was only then that he learned of Thornton's death under his name. He started at once for America.

His first purpose was to find the widow. In time he discovered that she was working as a saleswoman in a dry goods store and had managed to support herself comfortably. As may be expected, Trelawney married her.

Similarity.

"But don't judge a man by appearance," said Mayor G. S. Marshall at a banquet in Columbus.

"Jackson Wentworth after an absence of thirty years returned to the home of his youth. Jackson had a slight affection of the skin which made his nose very red; hence when he called at the parsonage the old minister remarked:

"'Jackson, Jackson, my man, I'm afraid you've become a hard drinker.'

"'Don't judge by appearances, Dr. Steenthly,' said Jackson Wentworth. 'I hardly average two glasses of beer a week.'

"'Well, then,' said the minister in a soothing voice, 'I guess your face, Jackson, is like my gas meter—it registers more than it consumes.'"—Atlanta Constitution.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Burning Feet.

Burning in the soles of the feet is a very unpleasant sensation, often very painful, sometimes real agony. To allay the sensation bathe the feet (soak them) in cold water for a few minutes several times a day, wipe dry and bathe with a mixture of alcohol and spirits of camphor (equal portions of each). Wear white cotton stockings, fresh ones every day. The round thread in lisle stockings frets the skin and keeps the feet heated and uncomfortable. Silk hose will keep the feet overheated almost as much as lisle does.

Like "Les Miserables."

An ambitious young man called upon a publisher and stated that he had decided to write a book.

"May I venture to inquire as to the nature of the book you propose to write?" asked the publisher, very politely.

"Oh," came in an offhand way from the aspirant to literary fame, "I think of doing something on the line of 'Les Miserables,' only livelier, you know."—Kansas City Star.

Biffstick—Why does a chicken cross the road?

Ravenyelp—My grandfather taught me that one when I was an infant.

"But this is a different answer."

"Well, I'll be the goat. Why?"

"Because she is wearing her silhouette dress and wants to get on the sunny side of the street."—Youngstown Telegram.

Jill—Great!

"Do much of it?"

"Did I? Say, I never put so many worms out of business in my whole life!"—Yonkers Statesman.

In Deep Water.

"I suppose you're waiting for your ship to come in?"

"No, I've given up hopes."

"What's the idea?"

"I understand my wife's relatives have mined the harbor."—Detroit News.

Strategy.

"Well, dearest, I'll speak to your father tomorrow. You might put him in a good temper for me."

"Yes, I'll be so beastly obstinate he'll be positively grateful to you for taking me off his hands."—London Opinion.

For the Children

Prince of Piedmont, Heir to Italian Throne.

Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne, better known by his official title as Prince of Piedmont, was born ten years ago. In the early summer he embarked on the man-of-war Puglia with a naval tutor for a cruise in the Mediterranean. Heretofore the young prince has spent his summers with his mother and three sisters, but he wants to be a sailor and therefore went to sea. Doubtless his sail was of short duration, as conditions in the Mediterranean are anything but peaceful. The naval training of the Italian crown prince is a departure from established custom of the house of Savoy, for since the time of its founder, Umbertus I. in 1032, all heirs of the house have been brought up as soldiers.

Word Guessing.

"Haven't you something new for us, Aunt Ruth?" asked Bertha.

"I'm afraid I am thought out," Aunt Ruth said, laughing. "Though I believe something did pop into my head the other night.

"It isn't much of a game," she said presently, "but it may help out some of these rainy hours."

The four drew their chairs nearer, alert to hear what Aunt Ruth had to tell.

"We will begin with the first five letters of the alphabet. Alice, Bertha and Carl may as well use their initials, and Norton and I will take D and E. Alice, you may give us the definition of a word whose first or last letter is A. Then we will try to guess it."

"Well," said Alice, "my letter ends something I like in puddings and cakes."

"Sugar!" shouted Norton, and then joined in the laugh at his blunder.

"Vanilla," guessed Carl, which was right.

"Mine begins something we cannot live without," said Bertha.

"Bread?" ventured Alice.

"No. Besides, we can live without that."

"Breakfast?" asked Norton.

"No, indeed. Plenty of people don't eat breakfast."

"Breath," guessed Aunt Ruth, and then it was her turn.

"It ends a precious stone," said Aunt Ruth.

"Sapphire!" cried Norton.

"Right. Now give us a D word."

"Something I like to eat," said Norton.

"Dates," guessed Carl.

"Dumplings?" asked Aunt Ruth.

"No," laughed Norton.

"What can it be?" wondered Alice.

The tinkle of a bell in the hallway told them it was dinner time.

"Let's go out and get it!" shouted Norton.

"Oh, dinner!" they cried. "Why didn't we think of that before?"—Youth's Companion.

Legend of the Phoenix.

The phoenix of legendary lore was a delightfully interesting bird not only because of its beauty, having a purple body and a gold collar with a glorious tail of blue and pink feathers and a splendid crest, but because it had to die every 500 years by being burned to ashes. A small worm would be found in these ashes, which became a bird on the second day and a phoenix on the third, warranted to last 500 years. And because of this pretty legend the phoenix rising from its ashes is sometimes represented in churches as an emblem of immortality.

Providing For Old Horses.

A certain Herr Franz Bizony, who died not long ago, was a great lover of animals. He dwelt at Miskolcz, Hungary, and in his will bequeathed $64,000 to the city for the founding of a home for old horses.

More than a hundred horses, donkeys, cats, dogs and birds had their homes in outhorses and stables on his property during his lifetime. With the exception of his manservant, it is said that Herr Bizony had not seen another human being for twelve years before his death.

Rimed Enigma.

Once in ages long ago
I was part of wrong and woe,
Was a burden hard to bear
And a sign of shame to wear.
Now I stand for glory, fame,
Before me burns the sacred flame.
Dying men may bless my sign
And for me their all resign.

Humor and Philosophy

CALLING A HALT.

Oh, you stupid legislature!
Do you think the lovely "crature"
Will be told her head adornment
Must not run to this or that?
Will the heady, haughty beauty
Own it's in your line of duty
To make rules and regulations
Touching on my lady's hat?

Mighty questions you may grapple
As a boy toys with an apple
That concern financial matters
Or the way to run the cars,
But to dip in light and airy
Where an angel might be scary
Only gets you in a tangle,
Only carries to you jars.

If it looks to you so simple
That the creature with the dimple
Should be broken of the habit
While the thing is yet in style,
Could be made to trim her bonnet
With less fruit and feathers on it
And would cut it one inch smaller,
You would make the wise ones smile.

She will wear it as she pleases.
You may bottle up your breezes
Or direct them in a channel
Where results at times accrue.
If you monkey with the feather
Or the way she puts together
Hat and bonnet, she may saunter
With a hatpin after you.

One Success.

"I think I would make a great explorer," said the family man as a smile of self satisfaction spread over his face."

"What is your special qualification?"

"I found the pocket in my wife's dress this morning."

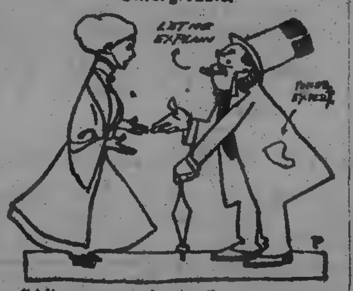
Make Didn't Count.

"We are going to have a new automobile," said the enthusiastic little woman. "Won't it be lovely?"

"What kind of a car are you going to get?"

"We haven't decided whether it will be red or white."

Unforgivable.



"All men are sinners."

"That isn't the worst of it."

"Why?"

"In addition some of them are losers too."

Not So Progressive.

"Fly with me, darling!"

"Not much!"

"Don't you love me?"

"Sure thing!"

"Then why hesitate?"

"An auto is good enough for me."

Opportune Moment.

"I am going on the stage at last."

"You have been studying for it a long time."

"Quite awhile."

"Why didn't you try it sooner?"

"Well, you see, vegetables never were so high."

But She Was All Right.

"Have you a good cook?"

"Yes."

"Fortunate."

"Not a bit of it."

"Why?"

"Her cooking isn't."

What He Saved.

"Uncle, did you ever stroll down Broadway?"

"Never."

"You have missed half of your life."

"Well, I didn't miss my pocketbook."

Deliberate Eater.

"What are his office hours?"

"From 8 in the morning till 5 at night," replied the accommodating assistant.

"Every day?"

"Sure."

"But I can never catch him in."

"Well, he usually takes about seven hours a day for lunch."

At Last.

"Yes; flying machines will be great for printers."

"Why printers? They are a staid and sober race of men, never indulging in anything save flights of fancy."

"But what a fine thing it will be when they have to follow copy out of the window."

Must Be.

"Yes; he is a bright fellow."

"Where is the evidence?"

"His wife believes everything he says."

THE SUCCESSFUL BIDDER

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

The Earl of Attesborough, a Scotch peer of the British realm, then about fifty years of age, had three sons, all fine, manly fellows, and he did not worry about having a direct successor to the title. The youngest of these boys, Alan Redwood, was desperately in love with Lady Gladys Fellowes, second daughter of the Duke of Arranton. The estates were contiguous, and the young persons of the two families were thrown a great deal together. The love affair between Alan and Gladys, aged respectively twenty and seventeen, was as natural as the mating of a pair of birds.

Unfortunately both the earl's and the duke's estates were in a bad financial condition. The former wished his eldest son and the latter wished his daughters to marry wealth. As for the younger sons, they were supposed to shift for themselves. The duke absolutely forbade any union between Gladys and Alan, and, indeed, such a marriage was next to impossible, for there was no income on either side.

Alan concluded to go to America, and his father gave him enough money to get there and have left a few hundred pounds to keep him till he could begin to earn a living. It was a sad parting between him and Gladys, both being sensible that they must drift apart. Alan took passage on a sail ship and after a month on the ocean reached America. He never wrote a line to any one after his arrival, and in due time he seemed lost to his family and former associates.

Five years after he left England the Crimean war came on, and his next older brother, who was an officer in the British army, went there with his regiment and died of disease in the trenches before Sebastopol. During the war the eldest brother broke his neck in a fall from his horse while fox hunting. This left Alan heir to the title. Inquiries were made in America for him, but nothing could be learned from him. But a record was found of the death of an Alan or Allen Redwood in New York who had come from somewhere else and lived alone, and papers were accepted to show that the direct heir to the title of Earl of Attesborough was dead. A cousin who was next of kin took possession of the title and estates, but found the finances in such poor condition that he inherited an empty honor.

The Crimean war took a great many ablebodied men from the British isles, a number of whom left families behind them. In the country in which the Attesboroughs and Arrantons lived were so many destitute families from this and other causes that in order to relieve them a fair to end with a masked ball was held on the duke's estate under his patronage. Everything was done to get money, including the offering of the partnership for the first dance of five prominent unmarried ladies, one of whom was Gladys, the duke's second daughter. An auction was to be held before the ball for this privilege, the money accruing to go into the general fund of the fair.

On the day of the fair the duke's house and grounds were opened to all. The affair was a sort of fete champetre during the day, and at evening guests came in masks and fancy costumes for the ball. When all was ready for the auction the lady of highest rank with whom the privilege to dance first was to be auctioned stood on a dais and the bidding began. A goodly sum was realized, and the others took their turns. Lastly Lady Gladys stood up before the assembly.

A rich cotton spinner who had learned of the duke's necessities and had loaned him money started the bidding with £100. This man, MacCormack, was trying to put the duke under such obligations that he would consent to give him Lady Gladys in marriage. A man in the garb of an American miner—woolen shirt, sombrero and boots to his knees—raised the cotton spinner's bid £100. The cotton spinner went up a hundred more, and it was not long before these two were climbing over each other a hundred pounds at a time till the miner raised the other £1,000. At the price it would cost £5,000, or $25,000, to dance the first dance with the lady. Since the cotton spinner had not much hope of getting her in marriage he retired from the contest, and the privilege was knocked down to the miner.

Cries were now heard, "Unmask!" and the successful bidder advanced to the front of the dais and removed his face covering. Lady Gladys started.

"A stranger!"

"Who is he?"

"Give your name!"

These were some of the cries that came from all parts of the room. The stranger, turning, faced the crowd and said:

"I am Alan Redwood, earl of Attesborough."

Old friends gathered round the newcomer to hear his story. He had reached America shortly before gold was discovered in California and had made the journey there across the great American desert and the Rocky mountains. He had taken some goods with him and sold them at a great profit. The proceeds he had invested in mining property and had become very rich.

The duke was now glad enough to give his daughter to her former suitor, who cleared his estate of its indebtedness and had plenty over.

Between Friends.

"He loves me!" said the sweet young thing.

"How do you know?" asked the merely pretty one.

"From his lovely letters."

"You poor girl—can't you tell love from literature?"

That was the first climax. The second came a little later, when one was explaining to the other how she knew all these things.

"For instance," she said, "a foolish boy proposed to me only last night. I had given him no encouragement—he might have known I'd refuse him."

"Maybe he did know you would," breathed the younger one.

GREEN SILK GOWN.

For the fair maid of the debutante set an afternoon frock like the one pictured here is exceedingly dainty. In most cases it will be found becoming. The dress is of green pussy willow taffeta mottled with white. Style features of the gown are the kimono sleeves and the surplice front showing a vest of cream colored shadow lace. The sash of black satin tied in the front is fastened by a jet ornament. Plaited frills of the material adorn the lower part of the skirt.

WILLOW PATTERN PLATES.

Old Blue and White Design Popular For Decorative Purposes.

The old blue and white china that was so familiar to our grannies is high in favor nowadays, but as a treasured curiosity. Its soft deep blues or grays tone well with oak and add a delightful note of color to a girl's den. In modern reproductions it is far from being expensive.

The old fashioned china has a rime attached to it which runs thus:

Two little birds flying high,
Little vessels sailing by;
Chinese temple there it stands,
Seems to cover all the land.
Weeping willow bending o'er
Little bridges with three or four Orange trees with oranges on,
Palisading all along.

And the ancient Chinese romance told by the design is that of two long ago lovers who eloped from an angry father. He followed them over a bridge, and they took a boat. Still, he pursued, and rather than be separated the lovers turned themselves into two birds and flew away.

PEACH STAINS.

They May Usually Be Removed With Javelle Water.

Peaches should always be served with a doily, as there is no fruit stain so difficult to remove. It will yield to renewed applications of javelle water, but the cloth is weakened unless great pains are used.

Javelle water, by the way, is a convenient article to keep in the house, but it should be under lock and key or high on a shelf out of reach of inquisitive children. It is simply a solution of choride of potash and if purchased under that name will cost less than when bought as javelle water.

Pour a little of the solution over a stain; then almost immediately immerse the garment in lukewarm water and rub well.

If the spot does not come out repeat the operation, letting it soak a moment longer in the solution.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Do not use strong soapsuds on paint, varnish, linoleum or oilcloth. Wash such a surface with tepid water and a little powdered borax. Going over it with a soft cloth wet with milk and water is beneficial.

If egg yolks are put in a jelly glass and covered with cold water they will remain fresh and soft for several days. Change the water gently each morning.

If ants should invade the house remember that they detest ground cloves and will not cross a white chalk line.

A wooden rack which can be scrubbed daily is a great protection to a porcelain sink.

An apple in the bread box keeps the contents moist, and a slice of bread in the cake box keeps cookies and cakes from becoming dry.

After sweeping matting go over it with a woolen cloth dipped in a solution of salt and water. This is far better and more lasting than using ammonia.

Kitchen Kinks

Intelligent Use of Butter.

It is almost universally admitted that vegetables require the addition of fat in order that they may be at their best, and there is no fat which is so suitable as butter for the majority of vegetables, judged by the character of the dish and also by its flavor.

Some housekeepers have a way of looking upon the use of butter, milk and cream in the preparation of vegetables, soups and sauces as if these ingredients were simply "luxuries" and not food essentials. But it should be remembered that these articles are valuable foods and naturally increase the food value of the dish of which they form a part. They are all wholesome foods, and, although generally more expensive than the vegetable foods with which they are combined, their use in reasonable quantities is certainly to be recommended.

Increasing the cost of the dish by the free use of butter, cream, etc., may, after all, be economy if the increase is intelligently made, and the vegetable soups and purees made richer as well as more appetizing by the addition of butter or cream combined with smaller quantities of meat.

Preserved Ginger.

Those people who like it should keep a few jars of preserved ginger on hand. Now is the time to buy the ginger root. Young roots are put into a vessel and kept at the scalding point until tender, when they should be peeled in cold water. Make a thin sirup and pour it over the ginger and allow it to remain for five days. Then place the ginger in the jars for keeping and enrich the sirup by the addition of sugar. Boil thoroughly and pour over the ginger. It is then ready for sealing.

Ginger pears are novel. The pears should be ripe. Peel them and remove the cores, then cut into thin slices. To every four pounds of pears allow the juice of two large lemons, three and one-half pounds of sugar, four ounces of ginger root shaved fine and one gill of water. Dissolve the sugar, then drop in the pears, ginger and lemon juice and cook for an hour very slowly. Place in the cans and seal when hot.

Blanched Vegetables.

Green string beans, onions, full grown lima beans and other green garden vegetables are made more delicate and palatable for many by blanching them, to remove the strong or acrid flavor, before cooking them. This is done by dropping the prepared vegetables into a saucepan well filled with boiling water and salted, immediately brought back to boiling point and boiled continuously from five to twenty minutes, according to the kind and condition of the vegetable.

The cover, if used at all, should only partially cover the saucepan. The blanched vegetables must not stand in this water. If not convenient to finish cooking them at once, drain them from the hot water, throw into cold water to cool at once; then drain again and set in a cool place covered with a piece of cheesecloth until ready to finish the cooking.

Fruit Sirups.

To make fruit sirups boil the fruit till soft and let it drip through a jelly bag. Put juice in a preserving kettle, boil and skim it, add a pint of sugar to each quart of juice, boil it five minutes, and skim. Have ready bottles sterilized by putting them in cool water brought to a boil. Fill them with the sirup and stand them in pans of water in the oven for ten minutes. Have boiling juice ready, fill the bottles, put in corks that have been in boiling water, and coat the corks with paraffin. Stand the bottles where no draft can strike them till cool; keep them in a cool, dark place.

Dutch Butter Cakes.

Dutch butter cakes are delicious. They are made as follows: Take one-half pound butter, three cupfuls flour, one-half pound brown sugar, a heaping teaspoonful baking powder, one-fourth pound sweet almonds and yolk of one egg, cut into small pieces. Mix butter and sugar until soft; add all other ingredients, mix thoroughly with hands until they stick together; form into cakes and brush each with white of egg. Bake in very hot oven; not too brown, as otherwise butter becomes too dry.

How to Can Beets.

Wash young beets, and leave on an inch of the stems. Boil them till tender, drop them in cold water then rub off the skin, pack them tightly in jars, set these on a rack, fill the jars to overflowing with boiling water, and add a teaspoonful of salt to each jar. Put on rubbers and covers loosely, set the jars in a kettle of water that partly covers them, and boil them for three-quarters of an hour. Then tighten the covers and let them cool in the kettle. Carrots may be canned in the same way.

Crisp Cabbage.

To treat cabbage in order to have it retain all its fresh, crisp, clean qualities for a long time, strip off the root and old outside leaves clear down to a compact head. Take two or three thicknesses of clean newspapers and wrap each cabbage in a tight, neat little bundle. Place in a box or barrel.

Any vegetable harmonizes with beef.

ENEMY HARD HIT IN ATTACKS

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE TOOK TASK TOO BIG

Had Best Prussian Troops, Seige Guns and Austrian Cavalry But Army Gave Way Before Russians — Thirty-six Heavy Guns Were Abandoned in Bog

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 31. — It is officially announced at Bordeaux, says a Reuter despatch, that the rescue ship Admiral Ganteaume did not strike a mine, but was attacked by a German submarine.

The Daily Mail says that the Germans, having evacuated Ostend, are making a naval base of Zeebrugge, 15 miles farther east.

Nnofficial announcement was made in Paris today that the French Government will return from Bordeaux to Paris on November 20th, and Parliament will meet on December 15th.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Petrograd says the German Crown Prince requested and was given command of recent German operations to force a passage of the Vistula, break the Russian centre, reduce Ivangorod, and disorganize the Russian army before winter set in. He commanded the German centre, his forces including the best Prussian troops, with siege guns and Austrian cavalry, but his army gave way under the vigorous Russian counter attacks and retreated, abandoning much material, and thirty-six heavy guns were stuck in a bog.

Thes Crown Prince endeavored to reform his beaten army at Radom, but the Russian pursuit, which still continues, prevented this.

TRIP DESCRIBED BY COL. ROGERS

Letter Was Written When Canadians Were Nearing Southampton

FINE LOT OF BOYS

Mr. C. H. Rogers, Grafton, has received the following letter from Lt.-Col. C. H. Rogers:

S.S. Casandra,
Tuesday, 4 p.m.
Oct. 13, 1914.

As we are nearing our destination, Southampton, I think, although not officially stated yet. I must tell you something of our long, yet uneventful trip across the ocean.

Since leaving Gaspe Bay from where I wrote you last, a week ago last Saturday, we have been proceeding at about [illegible] miles an hour according to the speed of the slowest ship.

Our formation has been in three long lines of eleven ships in each line headed by a cruiser with another cruiser bringing up the rear.

On the 3rd day out the Glory, a first class cruiser, joined us, and last Friday a dreadnought, the Princess Royal, appeared to port, so we are well looked after.

We started as the rear ship of the

GIFTS FOR BOYS LEAVING OMEMEE

Field Glasses and Woollen Articles Are Given

Omemee, Oct. 31. — An entertainment was given in Omemee for the Omemee volunteers to the Overseas Force, when an address of appreciaciation was read to the young men departing for the front. Each received a handsome and powerful pair of field glasses, and also some useful woollen articles, which had been knit specially for the occasion.

The Omemee volunteers are Messrs, H. Clement and Lowery Brock.

SOLDIERS LEAVE TUESDAY MORNING

Fifty-Seven Volunteers Have Been Accepted

In all probability the second contingent of volunteers from this city will leave here sometime Tuesday morning. The Lindsay contingent are leaving at 7.20 p.m. on the C.P.R. and at Burketon Junction they will board a special train which will come East, and gather up the recruits all along the line.

Recruiting will however continue at the Armouries until the full quota of men is obtained, but it is expected by Monday evening 75 men will have been secured. The men will complete their training in Kingston. Up till last evening 57 volunteers had been accepted.

VICTORIA COUNTY COUNCIL PROVIDE FUND OF $16000

CANS EXPLODED; WOMEN ARE HURT

One Victim Loses the Sight of One Eye

Hamilton, Oct. 31.—Four serious eye accidents have occurred during the last month, caused by the explosion of syrup cans which were being opened. It seems that when the lid was pierced an explosion resulted, causing, in the case of Mrs. Jacob Page, of Palmero, the total loss of one eye. Three other cases have come to the attention of Dr. Morton, mostly of a less serious nature, but all caused in the same way. In all probability action will be taken against the manufacturer of the syrup, as it is understood that in the four cases goods of the same brand were being opened, and it is thought that the stuff was either improperly canned and that it had fermented generating gas, which caused the explosion.

GREAT FUN FOR GIRLS AT Y.W.C.A.

Masquerade Party Was Largely Attended

The masquerade party at the Y.W.C.A. last evening was a great success. Over one hundred girls enjoyed the fun and merriment. The costumes were wonderful creations and showed both inventive minds and skilful fingers.

The gymnasium was gaily decorated and the pumpkin lanterns threw their mystic shadows everywhere. The home of the witch with her brooms and cap was a popular resort as what lady does not wish to learn her future. Who was who was the game of the evening and much fun was the result. All were glad they came and sorry that there were only sixty minutes in an hour, as the time sped along all too quickly.

FATHER'S HAT.

The feelings of the coal heaver of the following story, as given in Tit-Bits, had sufficient cause to be ruffled:

"Liza," he expostulated, "don't I always tell you I won't 'ave the kids bringin' in the coals from the shed in my best 'at?"

"Oh, just 'ave sense," replied his wife. "You've spoiled the shape of that 'at already, and what can a little hextra coal dust do to 'arm yer 'at?"

"You don't see the point," protested the husband, with dignity. "I only wears that 'at in the hevenin's; and if, while I'm hout, I takes it orf my 'ead, it leaves a bloomin' black band round my forehead. Wot's the consequence? I gits accused of washin' my face with my 'at on, and it ain't nice, Liza! It ain't nice!"

INDIANS ENLIST

Cobourg, Oct. 31.—When the volunteers of the 40th Northumberland Regiment leave here for Kingston, they will have a number of Alderville Indians, who came in from the Rice Lake Reserve to enlist. Sergeant Cornege, one of the number, is said to have marked efficiency in military matters. Ten young men who enlisted at Norwood arrived in town yesterday.

New Move Will Prolong War

Turkey's Action Complicates Situation and Widens Scope of Conflict

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The complications of the European war have been increased by the entrance of the Turkish empire into the conflict on the side of the Teutonic allies. Following the Breslau's exploit in bombarding Theodosia, Russia, Turkish destroyers have sunk the Russian gunboat Donets in Odessa harbor and damaged three Russian and one French merchantmen.

No official declaration of war has been made, but Turkey's action seems to make it probable that the area of conflict may be greatly widened and the issues complicated. The Balkans, whence sprung the present European conflict, present such a network of hostile interests that Greece and the other Balkan nations may easily be drawn into the vortex.

Greece it is believed will likely be the first state now neutral to throw her weight against the Ottoman army. Bulgaria holds a remarkable position. She is bound to Russia by racial ties and to Great Britain by obligations for financial support in the last war. But her interests and sentiments are violently hostile to Turkey and Greece.

An attempt to invade the Caucasus on one side and Egypt on the other is the program military men think the Turkish army is likely to endeavor to carry out. Turkish forces have been gathering recently in Syria and Palestine, but a march across the Sinai peninsula will be a hard one, because the country is virtually a desert. The English papers are confident that the protection of the Suez Canal against a raid and of Egypt against invasion are well provided for. They recognize that the addition of Turkey to the belligerent forces probably will prolong the war and increase its horrors. They say that this means that Great Britain must raise more men. How long Italy can remain aloof is a question being asked by the newspapers.

Many a man makes the mistake of his life three or four times a week. —Detroit Free Press.

TRAIN GOES OVER EMBANKMENT

Two Passengers Killed and Fifteen Hurt

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Unofficial reports issued from the Lackawana railroad office here say two persons were killed and fifteen hurt when train No. 32, westbound, went over an embankment this morning.

Wires were down and communication interrupted.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Passenger train No. 32 on the Lackawana, of five cars, carrying a dozen Binghampton passengers and a large number of employees, went over an embankment at Alford, Penn., shortly before seven o'clock this morning. The call for surgeons came to this city, and a relief train has been rushed to the scene. Officials fear a large casualty list.

C.P.R. TRAIN KILLS HORSES

Three Animals Wandered on to the Track

Three, four year old horses, valued at $700, by the owner J. J. Herron, of Spingville, broke out of the pasture field on Mr. Herron's farm last night, rambled onto the C.P.R. track and were killed by the Toronto-Ottawa train which passes through Peterborough at 1.28 a.m.

The accident happened a short distance west of Kendry. Six horses were in the pasture but only the three which were killed broke out.

HINDU TO HANG

Says He Shot Official for Sake of His Countrymen

VANCOUVER, Oct. 31. — Mewa Singh, the self-confessed slayer of Immigration Inspector Hopkinson, was yesterday morning tried and found guilty of murder and sentenced to be hanged on January 11. He made no denial of the offence.

A lengthy written statement was made by the accused, in which he protested that the shooting of Bhag Singh and others in the temple had burned into his soul. He alleged that late Inspector Hopkinson had tried to get him to swear falsely to secure the freedom of Bela Singh, charged with the temple shooting, and protested that he gave up his life for what he believed to be a righteous cause in the hope and belief that the sacrifice would benefit his fellow-Hindus in Vancouver.

LOSSES AND GAINS FOR THE ALLIES

Between Arras and La Bassee All the Attacks Were Repulsed With Heavy Losses to Germans—Allies Have Better of Fighting Around Aisne Woevre, Chaulnes and Souvain

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Oct. 31. — The Official afternoon announcement says: Yesterday was marked by a general offensive movement by the Germans along the entire front from Nieuport to Arras, and by violent attacks at other points in the line of battle. Between Nieuport and La Bassee there was alternate advance and retreat, while between Arras and La Bassee all German attacks were repulsed with heavy losses to them.

The Allies lost ground to the south of Ypres, but gained to the eastward of that point.

In the regions of Aisne, Woevre, Chaulnes and Souain the Allies have gained ground.

TWO GERMAN SRUISERS REPORTED CAPTURED.

LONDON, Oct. 31. — An unconfirmed despatch to the Post from Sydney, New South Wales, says the German cruisers Scharmhorst and Gneisenau have been captured as the result of failure of the coal supply.

DECREASE IN MARRIAGES

Cupid not so Busy as in October of Last Year

The vital statistics for the month of October show an increase in births and deaths but a decrease in marriages when compared with the statistics of October, 1913. It may be possible cupid has enlisted to do battle with his bow and arrow as he has not been very busy of late. The number of marriages is only 20 while the year previous 31 brides were led to the altar during this month.

During this month the stork visited 57 homes while in October, 1913, he made 43 calls.

The inevitable call has been answered by 25 while in 1913 the number was 12 or less than one-half.

WILL NOT PAY FOR SOME CASES AT HOSPITALS

At the meeting of the finance committee yesterday afternoon the ire of the committee was raised on account of the number of people who were trying to put the expense of hospital treatment on the city, and who were able to pay themselves.

MANY LOST WITH SHIP

Some Were Lost in Attempt to Swim to Land

WOMEN WERE SAVED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WHITBY, ENG., Oct. 31. — Fifty more men were saved from the stranded hospital ship Riasilla today, and there is said to be still sixty on board. A number, in response to signals from shore, attempted to swim to land. Some succeeded, but a number were drowned.

The bodies are now being washed up.

WHITBY, Eng., Oct. 31.—The loss of life on the British hospital ship Rohilla, which crashed on the rocks of the Yorkshire coast near here before dawn yesterday, is a matter of doubt to-day. It is believed at least 100 perished. The vessel, however, is a total wreck, having broken in two, while lifesavers on shore were shooting lines and trying vainly to make one fast to the ill-fated ship.

Bearing physicians, nurses and hospital supplies, the Rohilla was on her way to a Belgian or a French port to succor the wounded, when she was driven ashore. It is understood that all the women on board were saved, including one who was a survivor of the Titanic disaster. The fate of the physicians is uncertain, as is that of the captain and the crew. The total number of people on board is not definitely known, but some estimates place it at 200.

THE MILLING INDUSTRY AND FLOUR.

THE PRICE of flour under the circumstances arising from a great war could not do otherwise than advance. Previous to the outbreak of the war, Canada was slowly recovering from the effects of a period of frenzied real estate speculation in which a much too high percentage of native and foreign capital was hopelessly locked up in unproductive investments in or relating to farm and city property. The day of reckoning came, and a full realization of its lessons was dawning upon the Canadian comprehension when this further disturbing factor, the war in Europe, arrived.

At the time of this outbreak at least three of the larger milling companies were out of business from lack of capital and a number of others were having a hard time. Export business was languishing, and only those companies that were firmly intrenched in the domestic markets could claim to be making a satisfactory showing. The total capacity of the country was vastly above its own requirements, and the percentage of idle time in all but a few mills was high.

This the war changed, and for the better. Government contracts for an aggregate of 1,300,000 bags of flour were immediately allotted at a price that gave the millers participating in them a good profit. Moreover, a foolish panic on the part of a large section of the Canadian public resulted in a tremendous domestic movement that cleaned up available stocks and crowded the order books with a volume of business that has kept every plant in the country running steadily ever since. This business was done at a good profit.

Other factors tended to raise the price of flour. The rapid increases in the price of wheat were important, and also the uncertainty and the scope for speculation tended to keep the price up. But the fever has subsided, the price of wheat has declined, the public has become settled, and the Government orders largely completed. In view of these facts, the price of flour should have declined also, but it has been maintained obviously for selfish and exploitation purposes.

GERMANY'S FOOD FOR THE COMING YEAR.

GERMANY is beginning to realize that she is engaged in a far more desperate and lengthy struggle than she anticipated. The Bundesrath, the German Upper Chamber, has just met, and discussed ways and means of conserving the food supply of the people during the coming year, and decided that with certain expedients the grain supply would be ample until the 1915 crop had been harvested. The mills will be allowed to convert larger percentages of grain into flour; ten per cent. of rye may be added to wheat flour, and twenty per cent. of potato flour added to rye.

It was also decided to prohibit the feeding of wheat and rye to live stock, whereas heretofore one-fourth of the rye yield was consumed in this manner. It was further decided to restrict the amount of rye used for distilling spirits to 60 per cent. of the normal consumption. The hoarding of grain for speculative purposes is prohibited, and compulsory selling under expropriating proceedings provided for. The Bundesrath adopted a scale of maximum prices for grain. The maximum price for rye is 220 marks ($55) a ton for Berlin, with a proportional difference for other cities. The price of wheat remains 40 marks higher than rye.

These preparations show a weak spot in Germany's battle front that will play an important part in the next year of the war if it lasts that long, as it probably will. Britain and the Allies will certainly make every effort to prevent food getting into Germany, and perhaps this explains the anxiety of the German armies to secure control of the Belgian and French seaports. But the Germans won't get them if they can possibly be prevented.

TRYING TO CLIMB INTO THE BAND WAGON.

THE FOLLOWING PARAGRAPHS from the Toronto News express pretty well the efforts of many Liberals and the Liberal press to climb into the patriotic band waggon now that the emergency so long foreseen by Conservatives has come true in a lamentable way:

> No longer than last autumn the Globe declared that "to speak of a Canadian army is absurd. Canada has no intention of withdrawing her young men from industrial life to make an army." Last year the British War Office advised as a precautionary measure the purchase by the Canadian Militia Department of cannon, howitzers, machine guns, rifles, uniforms and ammunition. Whereupon, the Globe appealed to the voters of South Bruce, where a bye-election was being held, against the waste of money for such purposes.
>
> Three months before the war broke out the Liberal organ called upon pacificist members of Parliament to oppose the Government's militia estimates. Again, it accused the Minister of aiming at the preparation of 250,000 men "ready to take the field and provided with ample war material." It is a pity that was not his goal and a pity he did not reach it despite the ill-informed champions of Germany who blocked the way to adequate defence measures on the land as on the sea."

SUSTAIN THE PAYROLL.

THAT CIRCULAR MESSAGE of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, "Keep Factories Running," means that for the sake of prosperity the wheels should be kept going and the payrolls sustained. It expresses the truth that the basic fact about prosperity is the payroll. It says nothing about profits or dividends. It recognises the dynamic efficiency of one thing only—the wages of labour. It is a set aggressive purpose to maintain in a state of earning efficiency the hundreds of thousands of men who depend on the factories of Canada for their livelihood. But unless the people who buy spend their money for goods made in Canada, the payrolls can't be maintained.

The merchants of this country need the dollars of the workingmen. Cut off the wages of labour and you close the doors of business. Keep wages going at full strength, and the buying power of the country stays up. Buy the products of Canadian factories and you help keep up the payrolls, and to insure your own income. Buy foreign goods, and you work against your own safety. The going factory is usually conditioned on the home market for goods made in the country. If its products are bought by the Canadian people, a Canadian factory can keep up its payroll. If not, it must shut down, lay off hands, or reduce wages.

As believers in practical economy combined with patriotism, we can't practise the principle of self-preservation unless we buy goods made in Canada and keep the wheels of the great organism, symbolized by smokestacks and powerhouses, running as near as possible to a peak load.

Its the going factory and the sustained payroll that keep the country united in a time of dislocation caused by a world war. It's the dollars of Canadians spent for goods made in Canada that guarantee the going factory, the sustained payroll, and a new era of prosperity to the whole country. And it's everybody's business, from the financial magnate to the man with the dinner-pail, to see that the dollars of Canada are spent for this practical, patriotic purpose.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

W. G. TRETHEWEY, the Cobalt millionaire has joined the British Aerial Corps for service with the Expeditionary Force. In our opinion Trethewey ought to go up very soon.

THE FIRST MEMBER of the German royal family to be killed in the war was Prince Maurice of Battenberg. Is this the beginning of the end?

A Prophecy.

(By Lord Tennyson.)

O who is he the simple fool,
  Who says that wars are over?
What bloody portent flashes there
  Across the Straits of Dover?
Are you ready, Britons all,
  To answer yes with thunder?
Arm! Arm! Arm!

Nine hundred thousand slaves in arms
  They seek to bring us under—
But England lives and still will live—
  For we'll crush the despot yonder—
Are you ready, Britons all,
To answer yes with thunder?
Arm! Arm! Arm!

"Treachery" to Germany.

(Westminster Gazette.)

The German soldier seems to think that the whole world belongs to him. The Belgians, for daring to defend their country and to deny to the German troops an unimpeded passage, are criminals who have to be punished, as at Louvain and Malines. The "little French lad" who dared to keep his mouth closed when Germans demand to know where French troops are to be found is a "traitor" who is immediately shot. And this glorious feat of arms is actually reprinted for the edification of the German people at home. "A good Christian, a good soldier," said the Kaiser once in one of his innumerable speeches. Well, when next the Kaiser shows himself on easy terms with the Almighty, the image which will cross our mind will be that of the "little French lad" whose "treachery" to Germany cost him his life.

No Snobbery.

(Punch.)

When young Bertie Bunn, scion of the English nobility achieved the remarkable feat of living for 21 years, his fond parents decided to invite all their tenants to come to the house and over-eat themselves.

The great night arrived, and, punctual to the minute, so did the guests. They were shown into their seats, and not till then was it noticed that old Gummersol, the father of the village, had not taken his seat on the right hand of the hostess.

All at once he was observed in a chair half-way down the table.

"Don't sit down there, Gummersol!" beamed her ladyship, "Your place is the seat of honour, beside me!"

Gummersol raised one eye.

"Thank 'ee, mum, but if it's all the same to you, I'll stay by this 'ere puddin'!"

The Monroe Doctrine.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

The Pittsburgh Dispatch says that the Monroe Doctrine would not prevent a German army from overrunning Canada, if it were able to do so, but would prevent Germany remaining in possession of this Dominion. If the Germans should be able to land their armies here and conquer the country, the Monroe Doctrine might as well go into the hands of a receiver.

"Patriotic" Enthusiasm.

(Calgary Albertan.)

Military excitement in Calgary is not on the wane. Parents of healthy twin girls in Calgary have named the damsels Przemysl and Sarajevo. That is an evidence of some enthusiasm and courage.

The Fight in the Irishman.

(Calgary Herald.)

Thirty-five thousand Irishmen from the Ould Sod have joined the British army since war began. The fighting blood is still there.

Shortens Mail Route, To North Pacific Coast By More Than Two Days

Residents in the busy little city of Prince Rupert, British Columbia are enjoying this week for the first time, the benefits of a direct mail service with the East. Postal service over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Edmonton and Prince Rupert has just been inaugurated and a great saving of time is being effected. Hitherto the mails have been taken from Prince Rupert and other coast points to Vancouver by steamship, and then sent east by rail. Under the new arrangement of direct service over the G.T.P. there will be a clear saving of two, and possibly three days time. A letter posted in Montreal or New York should be in Prince Rupert within five days. Via Vancouver it would have taken at the very least seven days.

Prince Rupert is destined to be an important stopping place on the shortest route around the world, for any scheme that has for its ultimate object the swift circling of the globe must reckon the city on its right of way. The distance from Liverpool to Yokohoma by this route is 10085 miles as against 10858 via New York and San Francisco. Moreover, ships sailing from Prince Rupert, pass, with a few strokes from the land locked harbor to the high seas, and begin their journey across the Pacific 500 miles nearer the East than a ship would by sailing at the same time from any other Pacific port.

Explosion an Accident.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31. — The supposed bomb outrage in the tenement block on Frontenac street, which resulted in the instant killing of a Russian inmate, Peter Dishthra, and the deaths the following morning of Mrs. Morris Jurludky, one of the tenants whose limbs had to be amputated as a result of the explosion in the tenement, was declared by the coroner's jury yesterday to have been an accident, and not a crime.

The jury, however, could not decide as to the cause of the explosion, whether it was due to dynamite or gas.

Another Zeppelin Over Paris.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 31. — According to The Frankfurter Zeitung, a Swedish paper published at Gothenburg, declares that on Wednesday of this week a Zeppelin dirigible balloon flew over Paris and dropped six bombs on the city. Three of the missiles, according to this account, did considerable damage, killing eight persons and wounding several others. French airmen, the newspaper adds, attacked the Zeppelin, but without success.

German Teachers at Front.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Amsterdam says that according to the Berlin newspapers the usual course of instruction in the schools of Germany cannot be continued as 40,000 teachers are now at the front.

British Threatening Reprisal.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(By wireless to Sayville, L.I.)—Germany has notified Great Britain, through American Ambassador Gerard in Berlin, that if German civilians in England, excepting those against whom there are grounds of suspicion, are not liberated by Nov. 5, all British subjects in Germany will be similarly arrested. The feeling on this subject in Berlin is high.

Seizing German Property.

PARIS, Oct. 31. — A court order was issued yesterday confiscating the chateau of the Princess Hohenlohe, near Brest. The property of 20,000 firms and 100,000 individuals is expected to be seized as a result of the Government's new policy of sequestrating all property belonging to alien enemies.

TO PREVENT OVERLAPPING IN CHARITIES

The two classes in all charitable work were, the large number of people needing help and the other large number wanting to help. The two problems to be met were to provide for the needy, and to protect those who were willing to assist in making this provision. This could only be accomplished by co-operation of workers and a thorough investigation of all cases. He strongly condemned all indiscriminate giving, especially of money, as tending to pauperization.

As protection for the workers the associated charities conducted a central office for the registration of cases, giving details of the circumstances of those in need and of the help which had been given to them. It also provided for a thorough investigation as to the methods and carrying on all sorts of charitable aims of all societies formed for work. When these societies are considered satisfactory a card of endorsation is given to all those who may be soliciting contributions, and thus obviates all danger of imposture.

The association further aims at discovering the causes of poverty and as far as possible, remedying them.

In conclusion Dr. Turnbull said the two great requisites in this work were a hard head and a soft heart.

Mr. Harry Rush, as chairman of the Charity Board made a few remarks. A most cordial vote of thanks to Dr. Turnbull was moved by Mrs. Kendry and seconded by Mr. Gardiner and carried by a standing vote.

It was decided to call a meeting at an early date, to see what can who wanted work and not help, and be done to organize a scheme of associated charities in Peterborough. The meeting closed witht the singing of the National Anthem.

MAUD MULLER UP TO DATE.

MAUD MULLER on a summer's day
  Raked the meadows sweet with hay.

And as she raked in the early morn
She heard the honk of an auto horn.

Anon there drifted on the scene
A car propelled by gasoline.

The judge rode up in his motorcar
And said to Maud, "Ah, there you are!"

He chilled his engine in the shade
Of the apple tree to chin the maid.

He spoke of the mileage on his tires,
As is the way of all good liars.

He said his car was quite the best
And had the edge on all the rest.

He invited Maud to take a ride,
And, nothing loath, she jumped inside.

The judge from a purling brooklet drank
And forthwith started in to crank.

He cranked and cranked till his arm was sore,
Then started in and cranked some more.

He cranked and cranked till he reeked with sweat
And cranked till after the sun had set.

He cranked away with a right good will,
And the chances are he is cranking still.

And of all devices with which we're cursed
The auto crank is about the worst.
—Woman's National Weekly.

The Way of the Stairs.

In a suit in court a lawyer was cross examining Jerome Gerlach, a German, the point in question being the relative position of the doors, windows and so forth in a house in which a certain transaction was alleged to have taken place.

"And now," the lawyer said, "will you be good enough to tell the court how the stairs run in your house?"

Gerlach looked dazed for a moment. The lawyer repeated the question, but still the German did not understand.

"How do the stairs run?" he repeated.

"Yes," said the lawyer, "how do the stairs run?"

"Vell," said Gerlach slowly, "ven I am oopstairs dey run down, and ven I am downstairs dey run oop."—New York Times.

Fighting in East Africa.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. — In a brief message yesterday from Consul Hays, the American Government learned of the complete interruption of communication between the British island of Zanzibar and Dar es Salaam, a port on the east coast of German East Africa. Mr. Hays, at Zanzibar, cabled north by way of British East Africa. This was believed to indicate a renewal of activities between the German and British colonial forces.

WHAT CAME OF A LARK

By OSCAR COX

"If I were to lose my fortune," said Frank Atwood to his friend, Ned Colby, at the Athenaeum club, "do you know what I'd do?"

"What?"

"I'd hire out for a coachman."

"You'd have to make it a chauffeur. There are no coachmen any more."

"There are a few. I have no fancy for a machine, but I love a horse."

"If there were any young women in the family there'd be one of these secret marriages that we see so often mentioned in the newspapers, followed by the customary annulment or divorce."

"Oh, no, there wouldn't!"

"I'll bet you there would."

"How could we settle such a bet?"

"By putting the matter to practice. Advertise for a position and when you find one with a pretty girl in the family take it. I'll bet you a hundred that within three months you marry the girl."

"That would be interesting, wouldn't it?" said Atwood thoughtfully.

The upshot of this bit of dialogue was that Atwood advertised as suggested and, after answering several invitations to call and present credentials, at last found a place where there was the required pretty girl. His credentials were wanting, but fortunately he was able to imitate the Irish brogue and claimed to have just come over from the green isle, where he had been chief hostler for Sir Charles O'Malley. Since his employer was not versed in literature he did not appreciate the absurdity.

The bet stood $500 even that within three months Atwood would be at least engaged to Miss Bertha Fosdick, daughter of his employer; $500 more that he would marry her, and $500 more that he would run away with her.

It would seem that Colby should have received odds on such a wager, and if he had been a real coachman twenty to one would not have been enough. But Frank Atwood was a very attractive young fellow and had a smile that no girl could resist. Miss Fosdick was but seventeen, and it was predicted that when the next year her introduction to society should take place she would prove a heart smasher.

Why parents will allow their daughters to pass under the influence of their drivers is a mystery. From fifteen to twenty is an irresponsible age for a girl, and in nine cases out of ten where the sexes are thrown together without restraint, especially where they are young, a match will be the result. At any rate, Miss Fosdick, being permitted to go out alone driven by the handsome coachman, at once fell under her influence. Atwood, being full of the Old Nick, told her that he was a younger son of an Irish baronet; that the family had been impoverished by the loss of a suit in court and he had been obliged to shift for himself. He had come to America, got stranded and, having always been used to horses, had taken up their handling as a vocation.

Quite likely some of the low born drivers who steal the daughters of their employers tell some such yarn as this. Atwood's conscience did not trouble him because he was an American gentleman with a future, and in his own propria persona an excellent match for the young lady. But it served to enlist her sympathies for him, and sympathy is akin to love. She wished to inform her father of what the cabman had told her, but Colby, knowing that such a story going to his employer would result in his being immediately fired, refused permission.

And so the game went on, the handsome coachman driving the pretty Miss Fosdick every pleasant afternoon, and since it was not as pleasant for her to have him perched on the box so far above her she soon came to select a cart to ride in, so that he might sit beside her. Occasionally they would meet some of Atwood's friends, who would stare at him, wondering how any two men could so closely resemble each other as the handsome clubman and this liveried coachman. But Frank would keep his eyes on his horses and brazen it out. On one occasion they met Colby driving with a party of friends, and although Ned, according to agreement, did not give the coachman away, the ordeal was trying.

The outcome of the wager was a compromise. One day Frank Atwood appeared at the club (not in livery) and sat down to lunch with his friend Colby.

"Ned," he said, "what was intended for a lark has turned out seriously. I am going to propose for the hand of Miss Bertha Fosdick and I don't wish the girl I love to be the subject of a bet. I propose that we call the wager off."

Atwood never went back to the Fosdicks in livery. He wrote a long letter to Mr. Fosdick in which he told as much of the truth as it would do to tell, gave him references and asked permission to apply to his daughter for her hand.

It required some time for Mr. Fosdick to be convinced that there was not something wrong about the applicant, but after diligent inquiry he became satisfied that Frank Atwood's social position was excellent and his income ample to support Miss Bertha in the style to which she had been accustomed.

Ned Colby was best man at the wedding.

And She Thought She Was Lucky!

"Yes, I may say I have an ideal husband—an Apollo for looks, a Chesterfield for manners," rhapsodied the girl. "Those things don't count in husbands, my dear. Mine stays fairly sober and brings most of his salary home."—Pittsburgh Post.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

ON EASY STREET.

IT'S pleasant to be rich enough
  So you need not despair
Although your wife should buy a hat
  And other things to wear,
To have some ready cash on hand—
  At least a small supply—
So you can face the landlord up
  And look him in the eye.

Pray who would covet any more
  Than cash enough to buy
What articles he might desire,
  Although the price was high?
With change enough to scare the clerk,
  Let come to him what might,
A fellow fixed with modest tastes
  Could get along all right.

It's mighty fine to be so flush
  That in the game of life,
This rough and tumble jamboree,
  You can avoid the strife;
To be so well and amply heeled
  That if you do not seek
An extra outlet for the coin
  Your pockets spring a leak.

To have a little bank account,
  To own some bonds and stock
And be the landlord of a farm
  And eke a business block
Is sweet indeed. You have a man
  All details to arrange,
And when you toss him out a bill
  To say, "Just keep the change."

Bliss.

"What shall we talk of? Nothing amuses me but talking about myself."

"But that would bore me. Suppose we talk about myself."

"That would bore me. Tell you what let's do."

"All right. Go ahead."

"Great scheme!"

"Well, what is it?"

"You talk about yourself, and while you are doing it I will talk about myself, and we will save time and not be bored either."

Willing to Accommodate.

"What's that you have in your pocket, Willie?"

"That's a great story, teacher—'Redneck Pete, the Avenger of Canasta Gluch.'"

"Give it to me."

"I haven't finished it yet, teacher, but I've got in my desk 'Heedless Harry, the Harelipped Scout,' that you can read till I get through with this one."

Certain Remedy.

"What shall I do for a cold in the head?"

"Ever try sticking your head in a tub of cold water?"

"Yes, but it did no good."

"You didn't keep it in long enough."

"How long should I keep it in?"

"Oh, about half an hour."

Something of a Start.

"We always dress for dinner in the city," said the purse proud Percy Poindexter, explaining the details of his complex life to his country cousin.

"We got you beat there."

"In what respect, pray?"

"We always dress for breakfast."

WHEN BABY IS ILL

When the baby is ill or out of sorts give him Baby's Own Tablets. They are the ideal medicine for little ones and never fail to relieve constipation and indigestion; cure colds, allay simple fevers and promote healthful sleep. Concerning them Mrs. F. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Obeyed Him Literally.

Willie was struggling through the story in his reading lesson.

"'No,' said the captain," he read, "'it was not a sloop. It was a larger vessel. By the rig I judged her to be a—a—a—'" The word was new to him.

"Bark," supplied the teacher.

Still Willie hesitated.

"Bark!" repeated the teacher, this time sharply.

Willie looked as though he had not heard aright. Then, with an apprehensive glance round the class, he shouted: "Bowwow!"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch

A FAMILY REMEDY FOR MANY YEARS

Used "Fruit-a-tives" With The Best of Results.

GEORGE McKAY Esq.

KIPPEN, ONT., June 17th, 1913.

"I have been using "Fruit-a-tives" as a family remedy for many years. They are the best medicine I have ever tried. "Fruit-a-tives" do me the most good—they never gripe and their action is pleasant.

"I have used them for Indigestion and Constipation with the best results, and I heartily recommend them to anyone similarly afflicted.

These troubles have left me completely and I give "Fruit-a-tives" full credit for all this. A nicer pill a man cannot take."

GEORGE McKAY.

The enormous demand for "Fruit-a-tives" is steadily increasing, due to the fact that this wonderful fruit medicine gives prompt relief in all cases of Indigestion, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Rheumatism, Chronic, Headaches, and Neuralgia, and all Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

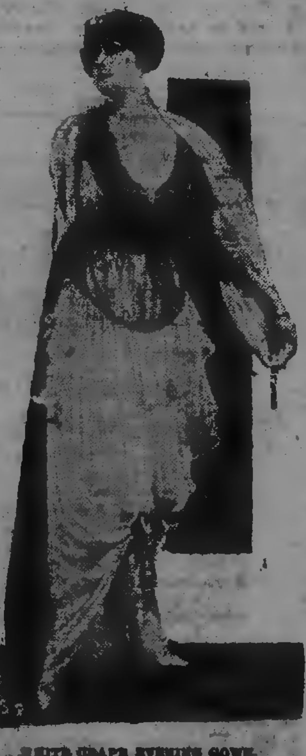
TINSEL EFFECTS POPULAR.

Spangles and Metallic Laces on Elegant New Evening Gowns.



WHITE CRAPE EVENING GOWN.

Spangles and metallic laces are featured for popularity this season. Paris has accorded them high favor in the designing of evening gowns. The model illustrated is of white tango crape, the skirt draped to form a slash and trimmed with two rippled flounces of spangled net. The bodice is of black tulle with long flowing drapery.

THE ICE SUPPLY.

Economy In Buying an Ample Quantity For the Refrigerator.

Ice is not a cleanly product in spite of its crystal clearness. It collects dust and germs on its travels. If it is not possible to wash it on the back porch, set it in the sink and dash cold water over it so that it may go into the ice box as clean as possible. Remember that it is a saving to keep the ice chamber of the refrigerator full.

A good big piece three times a week is much more economical, both in regard to the degree of coldness maintained and the amount of ice required, than a piece every day.

Never put foods in the ice chamber. It is the very warmest part of the refrigerator, and the presence of food, either lying upon or standing against the ice, causes it to melt more rapidly.

The only exception to this rule may be in the case of a vegetable which is wanted very crisp, as salad, etc.; then we must accept the extra melting. Very carefully wash the lettuce or parsley, cress or celery, wrap it in oiled paper and lay on the ice for a couple of hours.

An Appeal to Farmers.

The current number of The Agricultural Gazette, issued by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, makes a further appeal to the farmers of Canada to increase the country's wheat area. With 20,000,000 men under arms in Europe, it says, the demand for wheat next year will be abnormal.

THE LONG WAISTED BODICE.

All Fashion Leaders Seem to Have Accepted It.

The most startling fashion innovation is the quick and emphatic lengthening of the line from the neck to the hips. Very few designers hold to the short line now, and even those who would not relinquish it under the onslaught made by the Russian and Persian fashions are giving in to this new arrangement.

The threatened close fitting of the figure has not materialized. These long waisted bodices drop in a straight line from the neck to the tunic or sash and make the figure look exceedingly young by this adjustment. It evidently was the only way to get around the large waist measurements of the woman of the hour.

The sash placed as it is today, at the end of this straight basque or pinafore, contributes to this youthful appearance, but woe to the woman who adopts it when her figure cannot afford it. She should be guided into the safer method—of a binding material or a silk cord.

It is probable this dominating style will alter the waist line of all garments. Some arrangement will be made on evening gowns to lengthen the line without taking up the pinafore, which is hardly a suitable style for a dinner party. If a woman owns an evening gown that she wishes to rearrange in the new fashion the simplest method by which to obtain the desired result is to add a deep girdle of silk or satin.

As brocade is again coming into fashion, she could employ this. It must be carelessly placed, not with precision, and more material put below than above the waist. No trimming is necessary—just the plain silk artistically wrapped about the figure.

FALL GLOVE FANCIES.

White and Black Will Be the Chief Colors Exploited.

It is stated that the dress fabrics for fall and winter wear will be very largely of the darker tones, and these dark shades will not encourage the matching of the glove with the color of the suit or dress, says the Dry Goods Economist. Therefore a large business will be done in white and in black, especially in the former.

A very large business is confidently expected in suede-lisle gloves, chiefly in white, although the natural chamois color, black and a few staple colors will not be overlooked. A good proportion of this class of handwear will have the three row embroidered backs.

A Necessary Evil.

The artful boy applied for a job.

"Do you want a boy?" he asked of the manager of the offices, standing before him, cap in hand.

"Nobody wants a boy," replied the manager with unpleasant emphasis on the "wants."

"Do you need a boy?" asked the applicant, nowise abashed.

"Nobody needs a boy," came the discouraging reply.

The boy stuck his cap on the back of his head.

"Well, then, mister," he inquired, "do you have to have a boy?"

The manager collapsed.

"I am sorry to say that we do," he replied, "and I think you're about what we have to have."—New York Times.

Willie's Tact.

There was company to dinner and father was carving his prettiest on a fine roast when suddenly the knife struck a skewer, made a sliding motion and came out on top. Father attempted to cover his real feelings with jests, but there was an embarrassing silence. Willie took advantage of it.

"Cook has burned her nose orful," he said.

"Too bad," muttered father, still wrestling with the roast. "How did she do it?"

"Trying to pull those skewers out with her teeth."—People's Home Journal.

EVENING SLIPPERS.

Extreme Elegance Is This Season's Footwear For Smart Women.

Much importance is attached to the elegance of the footwear donned with evening costumes. Illustrated here one sees the latest novelty in evening slippers in black satin with embroidery of silver metal threads, clear crystal beads and rhinestone brilliants. It emphasizes the fondness for black and white effects by use of white crystal beads and jet in combination. Much importance is attached to decorative footwear in Paris. This model is shown in vivid shades of satin matching the dress. With these slippers are stockings in fine black silk duplicating the pattern of embroidery on the slippers.

SATIN EVENING SLIPPERS.

Hand Mirror Case.

For the woman who travels a hand mirror case will be a convenience. It is made of heavy cardboard lined with cotton flannel and covered with cretonne and bound with gold galloon. The two sections are caught together all around the handle and part way up the sides of the round part of the glass, then left open so that the glass may be slipped in. Ribbon ties at the end hold it in place.

TURKISH AND RUSSIAN SHIPS BATTLING IN THE NORTH SEA

Bedouins Are Massing on the Egyptian Frontier as a Result of Turkey's Entry Into the War and Situation in Southern Europe is Complicated.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Rome says:

"It is reported from Constantinople that a battle between Turkish and Russian fleets is in progress off Odessa.

A despatch, however, received in Vienna from Cairo and forwarded to London by the correspondent at Amsterdam, of the Central News Agency, says that the entire Turkish fleet is reported to have left the Black Sea in which Odessa is an important grain port. It is also said that strong Turkish cavalry divisions have arrived in the neighborhood of the Gulf of Akabah on the Red Sea about 200 miles from the Suez Canal.

A despatch from Amsterdam says: "It is reported that scout vessels of the Turkish fleet have been observed at the entrance of the Gulf of Suez. The vessels are equipped with wireless apparatus.

Reports to Lloyd's agency in London yesterday were that the Russian gunboat Donits was sunk by a Turkish torpedo boat in a raid on the forts of Odessa on Thursday and part of the crew drowned. The Russian steamers Lazareff, Willaz and Whampia, and the French steamer Portugal were damaged by shell fire and a number of sailors killed or wounded.

The suburbs of Odessa were shelled and some civilians killed. Some American property was damaged.

It was also stated that the Russian Ambassador at Constantinopel has been withdrawn and Russian consuls ordered to leave Turkey.

The Berlin newspaper, Zeitung Am Mittag, published yesterday what purports to be an official communication from Constantinople. It states: "Russian torpedo boats attempted to prevent the Turkish fleet leaving the Bosphorus and steaming into the Black Sea. The Turkish ships opened fire and sunk two of the Russian vessels. More than thirty Russian sailors, saved by the Turks, were made prisoners. The Turkish fleet sustained no losses."

In anticipation of the possible invasion of Egyptian territory British Ambassador Mallet, acting under instructions from his Government, has plainly informed the Grand Vizier that if the Turks cross the frontier it would mean war with the entente powers.

A clamorous mob surrounded the Turkish Embassy at Petrograd, manifesting against Turkey. The people were restrained from violence by mounted gendarmes.

Earlier the same mob paraded the streets with bared heads, singing and cheering. They called the orchestras out of the hotels and demanded that they assist by playing the national anthem. The excitement in Petrograd is the greatest since the declaration of war against Germany.

Now that Turkey has cast the die the most important news from the near east is the unrest among the Bedouins, who are reported to be massing on the Egyptian frontier. At Damascus, in Asiatic Turkey, great demonstrations have been held in favor of a holy war against Christians, with Britain as the particular enemy.

In Russian circles the Turkish outbreak is regarded as of more vital concern to Britain than Russia owing to the religious sympathies which the Turk may excite among his co-religionists of India and Egypt. Egypt has been described as "the meeting place of East and West, a jumping-off place in which Imperial forces can be concentrated for action in Europe, in India, in eastern Asia, or in South Africa. Recently German shipping in the Suez Canal excited suspicion, and the Khedival Government, acting under British advice, ordered the vessels to clear.

The canal could easily be blocked by the sinking of one or several mercantile steamers, or by the blowing up of some of the locks. All these contingencies have engaged British attention, and precautions have been taken to prevent German secret agents doing any damage to this important strategical waterway.

Petrograd accepts the situation quietly, and disclaims any idea of aggressive warfare against the Turks. Russia asserts her intention merely to protect Russian interests around the Black Sea from attack.

English newspapers take an equally philosophic view of Turkey's action, and express the belief that, while the military situation will not be greatly changed, Turkey in Europe is doomed to extinction. Unless Bulgaria joins the enemies of Turkey an invasion by land of European Turkey is impracticable, according to British observers, and the warfare will be naval. The Turkish navy, assisted by the former German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, is considered here to be far more formidable than her army, which is said to be inefficiently equipped and poorly fed.

Italy To Act For Russia.

ROME, Oct. 31. — Turkey's attack on Russia without a declaration of war is causing a serious impression, as it is generally taken to mean a further extension of the war and also its indefinite prolongation.

On the request of the Russian Government the Italian Government has instructed the Ambassador of Italy at Constantinople to protect Russian subjects and interests.

left column, but a small steamer of 2,000 tons fell in behind us off Newfoundland carrying 500 men of the naval reserve, so in all we numbered 33 transports and six men-or-war, the largest fleet that ever crossed the Atlantic. So you see we have already started to make history.

The trip has been a pleasant one with good weather and I have thought more than once that the prayers from so many Canadian homes have left the old ocean quiet for us and it is only now that we are off the coast of Ireland that we are getting some wind. The nights too have been beautiful and in the moonlight nearly all of our ships have been visible, in fact when you look out at night you would imagine you were approaching a large city as each boat carries a large tail light, all others being darkened.

A year ago the 16th October we were spectators at the launching of the Queen Elizabeth and this year I will likely be near the same place but I will be even a more interested spectator.

Yesterday the Princess Royal came in close and passed alongside of us. I was standing on top of the Marconi house aft, and on signal from my whistle everyone gave three cheers and then it was returned and the band on the battleship played "The Maple Leaf Forever," while all the men sang, and afterwards "Rule Britannia." It was a thrilling scene and one long to be remembered but I daresay there will be many.

All on board are well—one case of pneumonia—and he is doing well, a broken nose yesterday in the boxing competition. I had a new job for me "time keeper in the ring." Heber Rogers won a wrestling event yesterday.

Yesterday we heard from the Caulden Station in Cornwall of the fall of Antwerp. We get a little news every night but there does not seem to be much change in the general situation.

Thursday, Oct. 14th, 6.30 p.m.

Have just arrived at Plymouth and it looks as if we would disembark here early in the morning and go to Salisbury Plains for training. It is just dark and the boys, "a fine lot," are cheering and singing as we approach the docks. It is indeed good to see land again.

A WOMAN'S RIGHT TO HEALTH

No Reason Why They Should Suffer From Backaches and Headaches

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active, happy life, yet nine out of ten suffer, often in silence, from splitting headaches, torturing backaches, violent heart palpitation or some other of the many evils that follows anaemia, or bloodlessness.

That is why one sees so many women with pale, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures — sure signs that the blood is out of order. All suffering women should win the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich blood of health that promptly transforms them into healthy, attractive women. There is no other medicine can supply this new, rich blood so speedily and so surely as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Through this medicine thousands of tired, suffering women have found new health and strength. Mrs. James Drost, Chipman, N.B., says: "For years I did not know what it was to be entirely free from headache or backache. My hands were cold and clammy all the time. It was difficult for me to get my work done, and to walk even a short distance would leave me completely worn out. My life was one of constant worry and I thought I would never be better. I was doctoring all the time but without a bit of benefit, and finally the doctor stopped giving me medicine as he said he could not help me. Do you wonder that I was in despair. My mother urged me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but I said "what's the use, medicine can't help me." However, my husband got six boxes of the pills, and to please him I began to take them. By the time I had finished them I undoubtedly had improved and there was the signs of returning health in my cheeks and hands. By husband thought the improvement so great that he got another half dozen boxes, and before these were completed I was enjoying such good health as I had not in years, in fact, I was a well woman, and have since enjoyed the best of health. I sincerely feel that I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and shall always recommend them to all sick people."

You can get these pills at any medicine dealers, or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FARMER KILLED

Accident Takes Father of Twelve Children

PORT STANLEY, Oct. 31. — Wm. Jennings, a farmer of Yarmouth township, while driving home on the wrong side of the road last night, was run into by an automobile driven by Percy Glover, of Port Stanley.

Jennings was thrown out and killed, and the horse had to be destroyed. Inmates of the auto escaped injury. Jennings leaves a wife and twelve children.

NEW SEA LORD RELENTLESS

Will Not be Squeanish About Mines

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Fred. T. Jane, naval author and journalist, whose intimate acquaintance with naval matters makes his statements authoritative, writing in The Evening Standard, says that under the Fisher naval administration "we may expect a rapid curtailment of the rights of neutrals to come and go as they please in our waters."

"Ruthless, remorseless, and relentless," the writer says, "was one of Lord Fisher's war maxims in the old days. We may look for short shrift from him for any German captured who has achieved results by using any flag except his own. It will probably be a case of hang first and inquire afterwards, and if public opinion or the Cabinet object let them object."

Mr. Jane suggests that the humanitarian element in the British Cabinet has hitherto interfered in a question like that of mine-laying, and he says that Lord Fisher will not permit such interference.

LOCAL LABOR AND MATERIAL FOR NEW BARRIE BUILDING

Fine New Premises Will be Completed by the First of March

The National Constuction Co. of Toronto, have been successful in securing the contract for the erection of the new Barries Ltd. building, the base of which has been already constructed. This company was the lowest tender but was not awarded the contract till they entered upon an agreement to employ local labor and use local material in preference to outside labor and material, in every case.

The construction will be a basement and four story building of brick, steel and cement with a front finished of stone and tile. The basement is to be fitted for stores or offices at the front. At the rear section will embrace fire and damp proof vaults for fur storage and a steam heating plant. The ground floor will contain two retail stores one of which will be occupied by Barries Ltd. for their retail fur business. The other will be rented.

A centre entrance between these two stores will give access to a roomy vestibule where a passenger elevator will be found to convey persons to all parts of the building.

The second and third floors will be fitted up into suites of modern offices, steam heated, lighted with electric lights and having modern sanitary arrangements.

All of the fourth floor and part of the third will be utilised for a fur factory and shipping department of Barries Ltd. At the rear of the building a goods elevator is to be erected which will do away with unloading boxes, etc., on George Street.

It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by March 1st, 1915.

Traffic Officer Saturday Morning

The action of Police Chief Thompson in stationing traffic officers at the congestive corners of the main street is highly commended, but many citizens say they would like to see an officer at the corner of Charlotte and George streets from 9 o'clock till 12 on Saturday mornings. The crowds crossing the street to the market and the usual Saturday morning hustle among delivery rigs makes this corner extremely dangerous. With an officer on duty, much danger could be eliminated.

On several occasions rigs have been left standing in front of the stores immediately north of Charlotte street. With the Jackson Park and George street cars coming up every few minutes, this practice will sooner or later be the cause of an accident.

SPIES AS BOY SCOUTS

Germans Have Thus Obtained Access to Military Areas

LONDON, Oct. 31.—German spies disguised as scout-masters, and in some cases, even as boy scouts, a correspondent learns, have been giving considerable trouble to the military authorities recently, although it is understood that this latest espionage scheme so far has gleaned little information of value to the Kaiser's General Staff. The Home Office and Sir Robert Baden-Powell have been co-operating to stamp out the spies' activities along this line, and already many arrests have resulted.

A notice posted at the Boy Scouts headquarters in Victoria street, however, shows that at least one German secret agent is still roaming about in the uniform of a British scout-master. The scouts are directed to watch out for this man, a full description of whom is given, and who is characterized as "a dangerous international spy." His method appears to be to visit strategical military points, ostensibly performing the scout-master's duties, but really supplying sentries with liquor which he apparently hopes will lead them to divulge secrets, or at least permit him to enter forbidden places. He is considered the most daring of all who have adopted this form of disguise. At present the Boy Scouts have access to many areas, such as military camps and closed ports barred to the ordinary public. There is grave peril in alien enemies donning Baden-Powell's world-famous uniform to satisfy their illegitimate curiosity with regard to British armaments.

PENSIONS FOR THE DEPENDENTS

The Militia Department Has Problem Under Consideration

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—The scheme of pensions to the paid to the widows families and dependents of Canadian soldiers who may be killed in the war now being waged will be drawn up shortly by the Militia Department, and will be submitted to the Cabinet. It will be made effective, in all probability, by a Pension Bill next session. As yet there is no statement as to what amount will constitute the pension to be paid in the case of the ordinary private, but it is understood that it will be considerably in excess of that received by the British soldier, a shilling a day, or the French soldier, a franc a day, and will be about on the same scale as the United States pension, about six-tenths of the regular day's pay. This would amount to 60 cents per diem in the case of a Canadian soldier, who receives a dollar per day while on active service.

Of course it may be decided to grant an even larger pension than that, but at all events there is little prospect of the sum given being any lower. As it is, the Canadian soldier is much better treated in the matter of service pay than his English comrade, who receives less than half that he does.

SHOULDER DISLOCATED IN FALL FROM KEG

Charles Lloyd, an employe of the Matthews-Blackwell Co., had the misfortune to fall and have his shoulder dislocated. It appears he was standing on a keg in the cellar helping to load a vat with meat, and in some manner he lost his balance and fell. He was conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where his injury was attended to by Dr. Morgan. He will be able to be around again in a day or so.

Hungary Exhausted; Weary of War.

LONDON, Oct. 31. — Rumors are again current in London to-day that Hungary, weary of a war in which she has nothing to gain, would welcome a chance to quit.

It is suggested also that Servia soon may be compelled to retire within her own borders and assume a purely defensive role in consequence of the national exhaustion resulting from the fighting of three campaigns in as many years.

ALLIES PRESSING STEADILY FORWARD IN BELGIUM

The Foothold of the Kaiser's Troops on the Allies' Side of the Yser Has Been Lost and German Offensive on the Coast is at an End—Disheartened Soldiers Are Deserting Wholesale.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—All reports indicate that the Germans have lost their last foothold on the allied side of the Yser, and that the French-British-Belgian forces are pushing steadily forward into Belgium. It may be stated positively that the German offensive on the coast is definitely ended. However, no one believes for a moment that the Kaiser's commanders will relax their efforts to cut a way through to the French coast. The next operation, it is thought certain, will be directed against Boulogne. For this purpose heavy reinforcements are arriving at a point not far from Ypres. North and northeast of that town allied forces won favorable positions yesterday, emphasizing their successful advance of the last three days, which has resulted in pushing the German front backwards a good distance from the town.

The British official press bureau at 11.15 p.m. issued the following statement of conditions in the western theatre of the war: "Severe fighting continues with little intermission along the allies' line, especially towards the north. The German resistance is stubborn, and fierce counter-attacks are made by them frequently.

"Nevertheless, the British are steadily gaining ground. In a counter-attack one brigade delivered a brilliant bayonet charge, accounting for many of the enemy, whose losses throughout the fighting are heavy."

Both The Handelsblad and The Telegraaf report that the Germans have evacuated Ostend.

Dutch correspondents declare that the German base at Aix-la-Chapelle, across the river from Liege, is being heavily fortified, and that the invaders are preparing for a retreat by way of Namur and Liege in the event of complete disaster. Great stores of war material are arriving at Aix-la-Chapelle. Information from Holland also says that many German soldiers, disheartened by their losses and the ineffectual attempt to take Dunkirk, are striving to reach Holland and surrender to the Dutch.

In order to prevent these wholesale desertions, the Germans have organized a bicycle patrol that is watching all roads to Dutch territory. Many German stragglers found on both the Belgian and Dutch side of the border are erased from their terrible experiences on the fighting line.

The entire front from Nieuport eastward to a point beyond Ypres is covered with the corpses of German soldiers. At Dixmude the streets are choked with dead, and half-mad stragglers hide in the few remaining buildings. Every village between Nieuport and Dixmude has been completely obliterated. The allies are taking such sanitary precautions as the exigencies of the situation will allow.

It is again asserted in a despatch published in London that Lille has been reoccupied by the allied troops.

The French advance in Alsace and Lorraine is seriously troubling the German plan of strategy. The armies of the republic are now menacing Strassburg, where hurried preparations are under way to withstand a siege. All wounded Germans at St. Louis have been removed across the Rhine. Applications for safe conduct in Upper Alsace are denied.

Breastworks are being thrown up all along the Rhine, and both Metz and Cologne are in a state of excitement, as guards are doubled and the fortifications strengthened.

The Telegraaf states that fierce fighting between the Germans and the allies was restarted yesterday in Flanders. Heavy firing was heard all night, and yesterday German troops continually were moving to Zeebrugge, where the garrison had been reinforced by 11,000 marines stationed near Heyst.

There is a persistent rumor here that the allies have re-occupied Ostend, but this is regarded as premature. But the situation in Flanders and northwestern France is steadily improving. Early yesterday the Belgians opened the dykes of canals west of the River Yser and flooded a great area. When the surging waters approached the German trenches the men scrambled out and started a retreat. Immediately the allies' warships and a number of the French land batteries opened on the fleeing foe. The loss of life is said to have been appalling. Rain is falling steadily in this zone.

Fresh regiments of the reserve and several Prussian footguard regiments were thrown back from Couckelaere toward Bruges. Between Lepe and Middlekerke fierce fighting has taken place. The German batteries in this region could not be trained on the allies without sweeping their own advanced lines, and the fighting has been at close rifle range, interspersed with desperate bayonet charges.

Peace Proposals Denied.

LONDON, Oct. 31. — "The report that Germany has made peace proposals to France, offering special concessions, was repudiated yesterday by the German Consul-General at Amsterdam as completely unfounded," says a despatch from the Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co.

Italy's Premier Better.

ROME, Italy, Oct. 31.—The health of Signor Salandra, the Italian Prime Minister, was much better yesterday, his temperature being normal. He hoped to be able to go to the Foreikn Office to-day and preside over the meeting of the Council of Ministers.

That is the value of Canada's manufactures for one year----in money. But what of their value measured in the comfort, the happiness and the well-being of the whole country?

To produce them gives employment to over six hundred thousand workpeople, whose total wages amount to $288,000,000 each year.

These workers, with their families and those who benefit by their purchasing power, number nearly one-third the population of Canada -----supported by Canadian manufactures.

How readily it is apparent that the prosperity and happiness of every Canadian----of yourself-----depend on the continuous employment of these people-----on the consumption of goods "Made in Canada."

Canadian factories support one-third of our population. Are you helping to support Canadian factories?

ADDRESS FOR YOUNG MEN AND THE QUESTION DRAWER

Dr. Gordon Will Hold Two Meetings in Grand Opera House on Sunday

Dr. Gordon will conduct two special services in Peterborough on Sunday. He will deliver his second confidential talk to men in the Grand Opera House at four o'clock in the afternoon, and also conduct in the same building a question drawer at half-past eight o'clock Sunday evening. Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw will sing at both these meetings. It is Dr. Gordon's special desire that a particular effort should be made to secure the presence at the evening meeting of those who are not in the habit of attending any church service.

The meeting last evening in the George Street Methodist Church thronged the edifice to the doors, fully forty-five minutes before the opening exercises began. There were seated upon the platform Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. Robert Pogue, Adjutant McElhiney, Rev. J. R. Webb, Rev. F. A. Conners, and Rev. James Rollins. The opening prayer was offered by Mr. Rollins, who read in a beautiful fashion a selection from the New Testament, giving a scriptural picture of "The Prodigal Daughter."

Mr. Greenlaw sang two selections, "The Holy City," by special request, and also the selection entitled, "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?" The congregation joined heartily in the chorus of the latter.

The following is a brief outline of Dr. Gordon's address on "The Curse of the Double Standard."

I desire to speak this evening concerning "The Curse of the Double Standard," and have selected for my text a passage to be found in the first part of the Old Testament, Leviticus xxiv. 22: "Ye shall have one manner of law, as well for the stranger as for one of your own country: for I am the Lord your God."

A double standard is a dangerous thing for a nation or an individual. When the Roman Empire was fast falling to its doom, it was said that every man had two religions, namely, the one which he professed and the other one which he believed. There is not room in the universe for more than one God, nor room in the heart of man for more than one religion. A man should be honest in his religious thinking and sincere in his attitude toward God. This is the corner-stone in the granite wall of character.

There was a time when men of genius, like Byron, Burns, and Goethe, were supposed to be above the laws, rules and regulations which have been ordained to govern ordinary people, but God never recognized the distinction. When our beloved Scottish poet, Robert Burns, swept by the social dissipations which were sadly characteristic of the day in which he lived — when "Bobbie" Burns, in a drunken stupor, lay down one chill night on the cold flagstones to sleep off the results of an over-allowance of Scottish hospitality — nature seemingly failed to recognize the fact that he was a "child of genius." The chilling winds of the north swept over him just as ruthlessly as though he had never written a poem or breathed a brilliant syllable, and in less than a year the great man was in his grave. Nature recognizes no such thing as a "double standard."

The double standard! I know that phrase is applied in a special and particular way in the social realm. We have witnessed such plays as "A Man's World" and "As a Man Thinketh." Splendid dramatic productions, aimed to strike a blow at such shallow standards of social ethics as permit the opening of the doors of modern society for the admission of moral lepers who possess gold and fame and power, while the victims of their foul leprosy are crowned with contempt and thrown out into the cold night of social exclusion and pious disdain, but I am trying to deal with the subject in a broader way. We have a double standard in society because we have a double-faced sophistry interwoven into the very fibre of our modern thought. We are crooked in our cogitations and lame in our thinking. For the social leper I have a supreme contempt. But what must be the sensualist's contempt for himself when memory speaks, when conscience speaks, when the shadows of time begin to gather, when his own children cluster about his knee, when parental concern for his own loved ones brings into view a standard of morality which he saw fit to ignore or violate in the days of his youth?

Need Is Sincerity.

But I prefer this evening to deal with my subject in a more general way. For I am convinced that the need of the world is sincerity. Honest thinking is the foundation of every true achievement and the secret of all genuine progress. Let us clear our minds of cant. In dealing with "The Curse of the Double Standard," I wish to remark in the first place:

First: There is a double standard at work in the church, socially, where one man is more welcome than another. If there is one place more than another where a pure democracy ought to be enthroned it is in the church.

The social circle of Christian men and women which is not large enough to lovingly and sympathetically contemplate and include all humanity in its desires and designs is not large enough to be spoken of as "New Testame Christianity."

It is a sad day for the church when it begins to bid for the "influence" of fashionable society. Then the question of admission into the church is not, "How much of God has he in his heart?" but "How much gold does he bring in his hand?" It is not, "What does he believe?" but "How much can he bequeath?" The question, then, is not, "What are his convictions?" but "What are his connections?"

Double Standard in the Pulpit.

Second: There is a double standard at work in the pulpit when the pulpit orator preaches one thing while he believes another. A true preacher must think his own thoughts and speak his own mind. Hypocrisy is a thousand times more dangerous than heresy. The one sin which blights and blasts the influence of a preacher is insincerity.

What a compliment was that which was paid to Savonarola, and what a reflection on the priesthood of the middle ages, too, were the words of Lorenzo, the Magnificent: "This man is a true monk, and the only one I have ever seen." Lorenzo did not like Savonarola, but he was compelled to respect him. Respect is better than admiration. I would rather be powerful than popular.

Third: There are two standards in operation in the legal realm when the rich man receives more consideration at the bar of justice than the poor man. If Harry Thaw, the murderer of Stanford White, had been as poor as most of us he would have been sent to the gallows or the electric chair within six months of the date of his crime, but because he was the son of a millionaire he enjoys every comfort which can be provided in an asylum for the insane, while every possible influence has been brought to bear on judge, jury, district attorney and state legislature to secure his release. So we judge men on this continent, not by the Golden Rule, but by the Rule of Gold.

Fourth: There is a double standard in operation in the commercial realm when a young woman receives only six dollars a week for doing the same work for which a young man would receive ten or twelve dollars a week.

"Girls" are employed because they are "cheap." Cheap girlhood opens the door for cheap womanhood. Cheap womanhood means cheap morality, cheap character, cheap virtue, cheap religion, cheap Christianity and cheap civilization. There is something wrong with our social system and commercial realm when young women and girls by the thousands are compelled to leave the homes where they are needed and where they belong and seek for a subsistence in competition with their male companions, who should naturally be their guardians and protectors. But, once in, they should be treated on an equal footing with all others, and compensated according to service and ability.

Fifth: There is a double standard in operation in a man's soul when he forgets the principles of his youth in order to gain wealth, favor, or social position. "Where, oh where, are the visions of the morning?" "Gone, alas, like our youth, too soon!" Visions of purity! Visions of virtue! Virtue of home! Visions of character! Visions of destiny! Gone, gone, gone. Dissipated by the force of an earthly gravitation. The voice of God in the soul drowned by the rattle of moving wheels and jostling chariots. The clear air of the morning has become the dusty, smoky atmosphere of the noon hour.

Sixth: There is a double standard in the social circle where the successful man is admited without regard to the moral quality of his success. We live in an age when men and women, especially women, worship success. Blessed is the man who succeeds. All past sins — sins of omission and sins of commission, are judged in the light of a present success. What difference does it make, if a man only succeeds? If he only "gets there?" He may neglect his church, scorn his Bible, reject his Christ, break the Sabbath, forsake his friends, turn his back on everything which is pure, healthy, holy and honorable, and fling his conscience overboard, but what difference does it make if he only gets there, say some.

The meetings of the campaign will be continued in the George Street Methodist Church next Monday evening, and will probably close on Thursday evening. Dr. Gordon states that this is one of the most successful campaigns for interest and depth of feeling which he has had the privilege of conducting in Ontario.

The man who steps on your corn needn't expect to get a boost from you, whether he knew you had a corn or not.

President Poincare has received a coveted British honor, and Masterlinck will probably get a coveted French honor. The allies have begun sawing-off with their decorations.

Everybody Loves A Lady Fair

And a Lady Can Have a Fair, Clear Complexion by Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers After Each Meal.

You women ought to hear some men rave over a beautifully clean and shell clear skin. There is nothing that so charms a man or a woman as this. Where there are pimples, blotches, liver spots, etc., the blood is diseased and filled with impurities. Clean the blood and these effects disappear at once. That is what Stuart's Calcium Wafers do almost beyond belief.

"She Was a Pimply Person Once Upon a Time."

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are known to hundreds of thousands of men and women. Perhaps some of the faces you admire now were made beautifully free from skin blemishes by Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

You won't be always worrying about what your friends and strangers think of your "broken-out" face, if you give these wonderful little wafers a chance.

That's because they go right to the seat of the trouble, the blood, driving out all impurities, strengthening it, toning it up. And when the blood is clear the skin is free from blemish.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are perfectly harmless and may be taken freely by any one. They contain absolutely no mercury, no poisonous drugs, no opiates.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain Calcium Sulphide, and a mild alternative — every doctor prescribes them a hundred times a year. They are the most effective blood-cleansers known to man.

It doesn't matter whether you have blackheads and pimples "something awful," or boils, tetter, rash, carbuncles, eczema, liver spots or a muddy complexion, try Stuart's Calcium Wafers and get a surprise in a short time.

MOTHERS' CLUB HELD SALE FOR THE BOYS

The Y.M.C.A. was a scene of great activity yesterday afternoon and evening. The Mothers' Club conducted candy and cake booths, and they also served tea, from 5 to to 9 o'clock. During the evening Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw rendered a couple of selections, much to the enjoyment of the large number present. The proceeds of the sale goes to the boys' work. It was a huge success.

The membership campaign is progressing favorably, the time has been extended until the 16th of November. This was thought to be to the best interest of the boys.

MANY LOST WITH SHIP

When the stricken vessel broke in two, eight men could be seen from the shore clinging to a piece of wreckage from the afterpart of the ship, and it is assumed that they were swept to their death in the boiling sea.

Rain was falling in torrents, a gale was blowing and the seas were mountainous when the vessel hit the rocks. Distress rockets immediately flared above the Rohilla, attracting the coast guards, but as the sea continued violent it was possible to launch only two boats from the shore. These boats brought back all the people they could carry.

Most of the ship's boats were crushed in the attempt to launch them, and only one got away bearing a handful of survivors. Even these had to be dragged upon the beach, as the boat capsized in the breakers.

For four hours members of the crew and others could be seen clinging to the rigging, their plight becoming more desperate as the tide rose. In an effort to reach them the lifesavers shot many rockets. Then at 8.30 o'clock the inevitable came—the ship's back broke.

It is believed that most of those on board perished. Eleven physicians were among them, it is said.

Loss In Penang Harbor.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 31.—Out of a crew of 335 men on board the cruiser Chemtchoug, destroyed in Penang Harbor by the German cruiser Emden on Oct. 28, 85 were drowned and 112 of 250 saved, sustained more or less serious wounds. This information is contained in a despatch to the Russian Board of Admiralty from Penang.

The Emden came into the harbor at full speed and by virtue of her general appearance and the Japanese flag flying at her mast, she was taken to be a vessel of the Mikado. It was five o'clock in the morning when the daring marauder steamed past the forts and proceeded toward the Chemtchoug, firing a torpedo at short range which struck the Russian vessel near the bow.

The guns of the Czar's warship immediately opened fire but before they could effect any damage on the Emden a second torpedo struck from the German went home and the Chemtchoug began to sink. The invader then made a dash for the Straits of Malacca and, in passing, fired a third torpedo at a French destroyer, which sank at once. It has not been learned whether the crew of the latter was lost.

Belgian refugees are arriving at New York City by nearly every ship. The peace of this continent is an irresistible magnet for war-stricken races.

BISHOP SWEENY AT ST. JOHN'S

A men's fellowship meeting will be held in St. John's school house, at five o'clock, Sunday afternoon at which the Lord Bishop of Toronto will be the guest of honor. All men of the congregation are invited to be present.

Bishop Sweeney will be the special preacher at the Dedication festival service in the church at seven o'clock.

Higher Tea Prices Predicted

In London, Calcutta and Colombo teas are fetching average higher prices today than they have for twenty-two years, with prospects of the market going still higher. The crop has been large, but quality poor, and the sinking of the steamships "Diplomat" and "City of Winchester," with nine million pounds on board has more than acted as a set-off to the large crop.

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World —Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

Fox Creek, N. B.—"I have always had pains in the abdomen and a weakness there and often after meals a soreness in my stomach. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better and I can work with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers."—Mrs. WILLIAM S. BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N. B.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

WAS TOO COLD FOR SUICIDE

Lad Plunged Into Water and Changed His Mind

KINGSTON, Oct. 31.—George Redden, a youth, tried for the fourth time to take his life Thursday night when he went to the Cereal Company's wharf and jumped into the river. The cold water made him change his mind, and, clinging to the wharf, he called for help. A watchman pulled him out and handed him over to the police. He was fined $3 and costs in the police court yesterday for being drunk and disorderly. Two weeks ago he took an overdose of laudanum and was saved by a doctor, and before that he drank carbolic acid. On another occasion he jumped in front of an automobile which was traveling at a fast rate of speed, but received only minor injuries.

Students Resume at O. A. C.

The Ontario Agricultural College students are back again at work. In the freshmen class there are about 155 students this year, a slight decrease from last year. There are about 150 sophomores, 100 third-year men, and 50 fourth year.

The new dining hall was used for the first time at the opening of the term. It is a decided acquisition to the group of college buildings, has a seating capacity of 500, and is furnished with 50 polished fumed oak circular tables with chairs to match. Each table has space enough for ten persons to sit around it. The kitchen is situated in a convenient place and an elevator makes it easy for transporting trays and other things up and down.

CANADIAN DRIVER KILLED.

First Casualty To Canadians Occurs In Death of Wm. Cockhill.

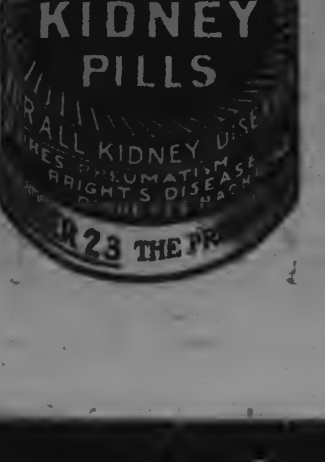
MONTREAL, Oct. 31. — William Cockhill, of Montreal, was killed at Lille, in France, while on active service. Messages to that effect have been received here.

Cockhill had been a chauffeur in the employ of Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, and went with the Canadian overseas expeditionary force, having joined the mechanical transport section of the Army Service Corps as a driver.

The majority of this part of the contingent at once proceeded to the continent and joined the allied army to serve on the transport section. At Lille a shell struck the car Cockhill was handling and a gas tank exploded, the driver being instantly killed.

A sister received official notification of the death of Mr. Cockhill. Mr. Cockhill was married two days previous to his departure from Montreal.

The man who goes too far runs a good chance of never getting back.



MARKET PRICE OF TUBERS THE SAME AS IN STORES

Falling off in Supply of Eggs — Potatoes and Fowl Plentiful

The prices on the market maintained the same standard as last week.

Potatoes still command 65 cents per bag, which is the same as the stores are asking, and the offering was large. Fowl was very plentiful and the buying was brisk. Eggs were 33 to 35 cents per dozen, and scarce.

BACK TO THE LAND

War Conditions Promise to Give Impetus to Movement In Canada.

The head of one of the largest financial houses in Canada, who has the reputation of always making money no matter how the winds of fortune veer, announced to his friends recently that he had possessed himself of a Western Canadian farm producing 25,000 bushels of wheat and would clear a profit of about $20,000 before the war is over. On his advice, many others have placed their available capital in agricultural enterprises, going on shares with farmers of known ability, the idea being that farm products for the next several years are immune from risk and certain of a keen demand.

This movement to win Canadians back to farming is being actively fostered by insurance companies and other institutional lenders who have on their hands excellent farm lands, forfeited by foreclosure during the past year or two. The war is not responsible for the tenantless condition of these properties, which exist in great numbers in all parts of Canada, for most of them have been on the hands of the mortgagors for more than 12 months. What an excellent opportunity is offered at the present time to practical-headed men willing to stake a small piece of capital and some hard labor on agriculture is indicated by the following statement of an insurance official:

"We have first-rate farms in the West of 160 acres which can be secured for as little as $200 cash payment, the balance on mortgage at easy terms. The average crop of the average year—allowing for hail, rust, and everything else—is 15 bushels an acre. Certainly on the 160 acres a farmer should harvest 2,400 bushels. Supposing the price to be $1.32, there is about 25 cents off that for warehouse and other charges. Even at one dollar a bushel, there should be $2,400 gross, reckoning on a conservative basis."

It is not more true of Canada than any other country that the big lending institutions, as well as private lenders, are obliged now and then to take over farm properties on which interest payments have been permitted to lapse. Every reasonable opportunity is given the farmer to retain his rights, for a farm without an occupant is looked upon as a very serious burden. Besides producing no crop and paying no interest on the mortgage, every month's idleness reduces the ultimate selling value. The only interest of the lenders, therefore, is to get their money out of the property by the quickest route. Very seldom is more than ten dollars an acre loaned on farm security. Under the law, a farm cannot be sold until six months following foreclosure, in order to give the occupant a chance to re-establish himself. If the property is finally sold, the mortgagor can take out of the proceeds only his own money. One of the strongest deterrents to the displacing of farmers for reasons of non-payment is the Weeds Act, which has effect in the prairie provinces and in Ontario. Should an unoccupied farm become overrun with weeds, the provinces have authority to collect periodical fines or to clear the farm of weeds and charge the costs to the mortgage holder. No company, therefore, cares to risk a long term of absentee tenants, and every effort is made to keep land under cultivation.

BRIGANDS COFFEE

A traveler in the wilder parts of Europe where brigands still flourish once told me that the best coffee he had ever tasted was made after a recipe supplied by one of these gentry. The coffee berries are wrapped up in a maize leaf and placed in hot ashes to roast. While hot the berries are bruised with stones and put into a pot of fast boiling water, which is held over the fire five minutes. The fragrant beverage is now poured into a pitcher, at the bottom of which a lump of honey has been placed, and is drunk forthwith. It is delicious. The quantity of berries put into the pot is regulated according to the strength of the coffee required.

HOW TO GROW ONE'S OWN VEGETABLE SEED

By W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist

As conditions in some of the countries which supply Canada with vegetable seeds are not likely to be favorable for the production of seed next year, and as there was no doubt less seed produced this year in those parts of Europe which the war has affected, it would seem desirable that Canadians should make an effort this year to save some home-grown seed and to plan to grow some next year. Not only would it ensure having a supply, but it would be found a very interesting occupation, and the results which have been obtained in the past from using home-grown seed have been very good in many cases.

It is a simple matter to save seed of vegetables which have only an annual growth, such as beans, corn, peas, peppers, tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, squash, pumpkins, radish, lettuce, etc. All that is necessary is to clean the seed as soon as possible after the vegetables are ripe, dry it rapidly and then keep it dry until it is needed for sowing. Raising seed of biennials such as beets, carrots, parsnips, onions, cabbage, cauliflowers and celery is a little more difficult, but it is those which are imported mainly from other countries, and it is hoped that a large number of persons will try raising seed of them.

Beets, Carrots, and Parsnips.

To raise seeds of beets, carrots, and parsnips, good medium sized shapely specimens are selected at digging time, the tops are cut off to within about two inches of the end of the specimen, thus leaving the centre shoot. Cutting back close to the root will remove this centre shoot, which is not desirable. Store the roots in a cool, fairly dry cellar or they may be pitted outside, but if this is done care should be taken not to cover them with much soil until really cool weather sets in so as to avoid danger of heating. Early in the spring plant the roots out in good, well-drained soil, planting the roots about two feet apart in rows three feet apart. When planting it is desirable to have the top of the beets, carrots or parsnips slightly below the surface of the ground. Cultivate the ground regularly and the reward is likely to be a fine crop of seed. The stalks are cut when the seed is beginning to ripen, and allowed to dry thoroughly, after which the seed may be threshed out and put away in a dry place until it is needed in spring. To grow cabbage seed, plants having the best heads should be selected, and the whole plant dug. Half formed heads or even the stumps after the heads have been removed, will produce seed, but it is recommended to use plants with good heads.

Keep in Cool Place.

During winter the plants should be kept in as cool a place as possible without freezing, and if freezing cannot be prevented they should be kept where they will thaw out gradually. The best plan is to store them outside. A trench is opened where water will not lie, wide enough for three or four cabbages side by side. They are set in this in a slightly sloping position with the roots down. The tops are then covered with straw at first or a light covering of earth to keep out light frosts, and later covered with sufficient soil to prevent freezing. It is important not to put the soil on until it is necessary to prevent frost, as there is danger of the cabbage heating. Cabbage can be successfully stored in any cool cellar if it is not very dry or very wet. In the spring the cabbages are taken out and planted when severe frosts are over about three feet apart each way, putting all the root and stalk below ground and leaving the head above. When solid heads are used, slits should be made cross-wise on the top of the head when planting, which will make it easier for the seed stalk to force its way out. Seed stalks will soon be thrown up, and each plant will produce a large quantity of seed. Banking the earth against the stalks will help support them. When part of the seed pods have become broken the stalks should be cut and hung up and threshed when dry and the seed kept dry until needed. Cauliflowers are treated much the same as cabbage, but are much more difficult to bring through the winter. Where the season is long, plants from early spring seeding might ripen seed the same season.

Growing Onion Seed.

In growing onion seed, the first step is to select medium sized, well shaped and well ripened bulbs, and then store them in a cool, dry place. Early in the spring they should be planted out about six inches apart in rows three feet apart. If the onions have sprouted, the sprouts should be cut off when being planted, as they will then throw up straighter stalks. The upper side of the bulbs should be an inch or two below the surface of the ground after being planted. This will protect them from spring frosts. The ground is then kept cultivated. When plants have grown sufficiently they should be banked up about six inches, to help support the plants when the tops become heavy with flowers and seed. When the seed stalks show yellow near the ground the seed balls are cut off with about two inches of the stalk attached, it being necessary to go over the plantation several times, as they do not all ripen at once. They are then spread out to dry, and when dried are threshed and the seed is cleaned and put in a dry place until needed. It is important to dry the seed as rapidly as possible.

It is rather difficult to grow celery seed in this country. Where celery seed is grown in quantity the plants are left outside and protected from frost if it should be sufficiently severe. In most places in Canada it will be necessary to store the plants unless they can be protected sufficiently in the rows they are growing in to keep out frost. This may be done with care, but there is danger of the plants heating in the spring unless some provision is made for ventilation. This can be effected by nailing two boards together in the shape of a trough and then inverting this and putting it over the plants after they have been well moulded up, supporting and raising it enough for air to readily pass through. When there is danger of the plants being injured by frost they should be banked up well, the inverted troughs put in place, and then some straw put over. As soon as severe frosts come and there is no danger of the plants heating, more soil should be put on and the plants protected sufficiently to keep out frost. Towards the close of winter the ends should be opened to let the air pass through. Celery may be stored for seed purposes in the cellar, but it is very difficult, unless conditions are very good, to prevent it from rotting before the plants can be set outside in the spring. When severe frosts are over in the spring the plants are set out about a foot apart in rows three feet apart, and the land kept cultivated. It will not be long before seed stalks are thrown up. The seed is gathered when about ripe, dried and cleaned and put away until needed.

The methods which have been suggested for obtaining home-grown seed may not in all cases be such as are adopted by large commercial seed growers; the object now is rather to tell how the average householder can grow his own seed.

Just Politeness.

"Present company excepted," said the man who was knocking his neighbors.

"But why except us?"

"Because you are here, for one reason."

The Reason.

"I have been to church quite regular lately."

"Indeed! When did they do it?"

"Do what?"

"Get a new, young minister."

Good Reason.

"Do you think women really want to vote?"

"I know they do."

"Why?"

"Because they can't."

Wanted to Help.

"They say you are a very industrious man."

"No; I only work under pressure."

"Come on, boys; let's pile the safe on him."

DEADLY GUNCOTTON.

Characteristics of This Terrible Explosive of Warfare.

Many and odd are the materials entering into the manufacture of modern explosives, but perhaps the most interesting of all these elements of destruction as well as the simplest is guncotton. The guncotton manufacturing industry is large, as enormous quantities are used in the charging of torpedoes and for similar purposes.

The base of guncotton is pure raw cotton or even cotton waste, such as is used to clean machinery. This is steeped in a solution of one part of nitric and three parts of sulphuric acid. It is the former ingredient that renders the mass explosive, the sulphuric acid being used merely to absorb all moisture, thus permitting the nitric acid to combine more readily with the cellulose of the cotton.

After being soaked for several hours in the solution described the cotton is passed between rollers to expel all nonabsorbed acid, a process carried to completion by washing the cotton in clear water. This washing process is a long one, requiring machinery which reduces the cotton to a mass resembling paper pulp. Should any nonabsorbed acid be allowed to remain it would decompose the cotton.

If the explosive is to be used after the manner of powder it is still further pulverized and then thoroughly dried, but if intended for torpedoes it is pressed into cakes of various shapes and sizes—disk shaped, cylindrical, flat squares and cubes. When not compressed guncotton is very light, as light as ordinary batting.

A peculiar characteristic of this terrible explosive is that a brick of it when wet may be placed on a bed of hot coals, and as the moisture dries out the cotton will flake and burn quietly. If dry originally, however, the guncotton will explode with terrible force at about 320 degrees of heat.

In general it is the custom to explode guncotton by detonation or an intense shock instead of by heat. In a torpedo the explosive charge is wet, this wet cotton being exploded by means of dry cotton in a tube, this having been fired by a cap of fulminate of mercury, the cap itself having been fired by the impact of the torpedo against the target.

THE CANADIAN LEAGUE SUFFERS WITH OTHERS

Unfair Deal Which Majors Have Been Giving Minors is Brought Home to Canack Clubs

Many kicks have come from Canadian League clubs as a result of the ruling that only class "C" prices need be paid for men drafted from this league. Secretary Farrell has ruled that owing to a technicality the Canadian League was never really granted class "B" rating. In voicing Ottawa's complaint, the Citizen says:

The Ottawas, after paying $1000 cool cash to the Adrian club for Jack Mitchell, were notified that he had been drafted by the Indianapolis club of the American Association. They expected $750, but only received $500. Their case is now before the National Association, and if necessary will be carried to the Commission. Ted Baldwin, of the Hamilton club was drafted by the Memphis club of the Southern League, in which Ed Renfer performed last summer. Hamilton only gets $400 for Baldwin. Now comes word that the Lincoln club which drafted Louie Bierbauer from London only expects to cough up $400 for the best first baseman in the minors. The rank injustice in this case can be readily understood by the "fans" who have seen Mitchell and Bierbauer playing. Baldwin is no star, but the Ottawas cannot replace Mitchell for twice $500, and London could not get another Bierbauer for less than $1800. Men like Mitchell and Bierbauer cannot be picked up any day. The unfair deal, which the majors have been giving the minors is now brought home to the Canadian Leaguers, and no surprise need be occasioned if the small clubs get together and cause trouble. If the Federal League could not only guar- Federal League could only guarantee them protection for a short time, the minors would soon cut loose from the baseball "trust." Certainly there is no encouragement for the minors to develop stars and then have them taken away for such ridiculously small prices. It is ten to one that if the league continues next year Ottawa and London will not have to invest fortunes before they land worthy successors to Mitchell and Bierbauer.

EXIT WHITE HOPES --- JESS WILLIARD IS ONLY ONE LEFT

Thanks to Grim Reaper, Black Hand, & Co., the stock of white hopes has dwindled away to — Jess Willard. He's some hope, at that, lifting his top-piece 6 feet 7 inches into the empyrean before reaching capillary district.

Of the white men who have risen to the hope altitude, the following have succumbed to various vicissitudes: Luther McCarthy, Arthur Pelkey, Al Palzer, Frank Moran, Carl Morris and Gunboat Smith. They are shouting, "Next!" at Willard now.

Of the men named, the demises were accounted for as follows:

Carl Morris — Was reduced to hamburger by James Flynn.

Al Palzer—His glim was doused by Luther McCarthy.

Luther McCarthy—Killed in a ring by Arthur Pelkey.

Arthur Pelkey — Rocked to sleep by Gunboat Smith.

Gunboat Smith — Sunk by the black hand of Sam Langford.

Frank Moran — Another victim of Ethiopian mitt, Jack Johnson officiating.

Many persons are saying nice things about the only surviving hope. We understand privately that they aren't developing hopes any longer—not any longer than Willard, at least. Having the altitude, the power and the gameness, he's well supplied with the essentials for the making of a championship machine.

We've seen many machines that looked good. But they didn't deliver. Not all have the right spark and many fail to run up to appearances. Perhaps Jess is just another of these.

MIGHTIEST ARM IN BASEBALL IN BAD SHAPE

Jimmy Archer of the Chicago Cubs, is the fastest, the most deadly of throwers to the bases. He is the nonpareil of all catching wizardry, and his height, medium; his weight, the same. His throwing arm! What a world of seeming contradiction in that arm!

First of all, the arm is permanently bent and stiffened at the elbow. It is impossible for the great catcher to straighten it, and it is fully an inch shorter than the left. The forearm is deeply ridged and scarred from the effects of terrible burns sustained in an accident at a cooperage works at his home in Toronto.

The hand itself has been fearfully battered by foul tips, wild shoots and the various fatalities that lurk for the unwary catcher. The thumb has been dislocated, and the joint is swelled to double its natural size. The index finger has been broken no less than four times and every joint is gnarled and bent.

The bones of the second finger have been shattered on three occasions, the third once, the little finger has been dislocated several times and its joints creak like a rusty hinge. Lastly, the elbow has suffered a compound fracture. It would be hard to picture an arm apparently so little adapted to throwing the ball swiftly or accurately. And yet this mishappen, battered arm is the most deadly, the most dreaded, whip on the circuit.

While the most crucial games in the Canadian Rugby organizations are being paid today the big game between Harvard and Michigan Universities will be played at the Boston Stadium. This is the first clash in years between these two teams and critics pick Michigan to win as the Harvard team is greatly weakened through the absence of Capt. Brickley.

Seaforth held their annual hockey meeting the other evening and decided to enter an Intermediate and Junior O.H.A. team.

The fact that the St. Louis Browns have cancelled the draft for Marhefka, the New London backstop, will be welcomed by the scorers on Ban Johnson's circuit.

Edmund Lamy, the speedy London centre fielder and champion speed skater of the world, may be seen on the steels in this city during the coming winter. Lamy intends to perform in this section of Ontario where he has become very popular through his connection with the Canadian League.

COMMENT

As You Like it

Today's rugby games are the most important of the season. Every one of Toronto Senior teams concerned are battling for its life. A loss for Varsity, Argos or T.R. and A.A. puts that team out of the running. Of the three Varsity has the hardest contract on hand. The team for which "Gamey" Stratton and Dick Sheehy line-up performs in Kingston against Queen's. If Varsity loses McGill wins the championship.

In Toronto the hardest go is between the T.R. and A.A. team, for which Frank Heffernan puts forth his efforts, and St. Patrick's of Ottawa. The Hamilton Rowing Club have subdued the infant Ottawa crew and the Torontos expect to do the same, but as the latter has formed the habit of blowing up in the last few minutes of play their supporters will be nervous till the final gong.

The atraction at Rosedale between Ottawa and Argos will, it is said, draw the majority of the Toronto fans although the Ottawa team is out of the running. The Ottawas have always been hard to beat in Toronto and should they succeed this time, the Argos are done.

The other senior game is in Hamilton with the Montreal combating against the Tigers. It looks like a win for the Jungle Kings.

Perhaps when the 1915 Canadian League curtain is raised another prominent figure will be missing. The Ottawa Citizen states as follows:—

Frank Kubat, the Ottawa pitcher, is not likely to be seen here next year. "Cubby" is now in Milwaukee, engaged in some civil engineering work for the St. Paul Railroad. He will be there for an indefinite period Kubat is a graduate of the University of Illinois and while his baseball prospects are of the brightest, he will never have to depend on sport for a livelihood. He has been offered a permanent position on the engineering staff of the St. Paul line. Kubat is popular all round the Canadian League circuit and if he decides to retire, he will be missed. "Cubby" intends coming to Ottawa this winter to get a line on Canadian hockey, about which he has heard so much.

The announcement that peerless Frank McGee has enlisted with the Forty-Thirds for the second Canadian contingent, recalls the fact that he was probably the only hockey star who retired from the game before he struck the down-grade path. They go fast when they hit that road but McGee hung up his skates when in his prime. All succeeding efforts to induce him to return were unavailing. Tom Phillips, Russel Bowie and the majority of the others stayed in hockey too long, but enthusiasts will always recall Frank McGee as a lightning skater, wonderful stick handler and brilliant shot. He was the best centre man Ottawa ever produced.

Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion of the world is a slight favorite in the betting on the bout between him and the former titleholder Ad. Wolgast which takes place at Madison Square Garden, New York, on Monday. The bout will be a ten-round no-decision one.

Jimmie, Freeman, the Cobourg intermediate wing man, is in Preston and will be seen on the Spring's line-up. Feeman has played here on several occasions and always showed great speed.

His Piety.

"He has a good opinion of himself."

"Yes, but still he is pious fellow."

"Pious?"

"Yes; goes to church regularly."

"Yes; he believes in giving tone to the struggling institutions of the town."

LOUIS BIERBAUER TO BE WITH FEDS. ?

London Player Belongs to Club in League Which May Flop

London, Oct. 30. — Louis Bierbauer is in a fair way to become a Federal Leaguer. The Lincoln club which drafted Bierbauer from London belongs to the Western League, and at the present time the Western League is seriously considering throwing in its lot with the outlaws. The Western League has bitterly complained of the raids on its ranks made by the major leagues, and as the big leaguers have made no efforts to fill up the gaps, there is trouble brewing. The Western League owners feel like the club owners of many other minor leagues do, that they have been paying out good money for years for protection that they failed to get when they needed it. The Federal League is at present making overtures to the Western League, and has offered them protection in exchange for a working agreement. The club owners believe it would pay them better and give them better baseball to make an arrangement with the Federals than with organized baseball. There is no doubt that if the Western League leads the way, several other minor leagues will follow suit and make working agreements with the Federal League. This would give organized baseball a blow that it would hardly recover from.

An Armed Crab.

"This crab," said the keeper of the aquarium, "goes armed in his native state. In his claws, which are too weak to fight with, he always carries sea anemones.

"The crab is of the genus Melia. He lives among beds of coral in tropical seas. The anemones he carries—one in each claw, like a nosegay—are stinging, poisonous ones.

"They are his defence against enemies, and when I see a soldier carrying a gun I think to myself that there is a little pink crab in the sea that is quite as wise as any soldier."

Just as a Compliment.

Count Baldissare Castiglione wrote of manners in sixteenth century Italy: "Discourse of love is used by every gentleman, * * * not only when impelled by ardor, but also merely to do honor to the lady with whom he speaks. The pretense of loving her is, at any rate, a testimony to her worthiness to be loved. She, on her part, will for a time seem to fail to understand and anon will take it all as a merry jest."

MR. Q. HOPE JONES

Delivers a Lecture on Ambition and Perseverance.

By M. QUAD

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

ESTEEMED fellow men and women:

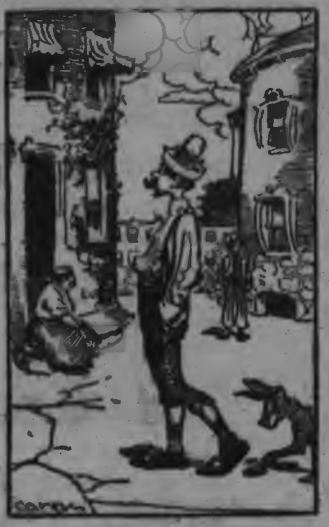
While I cannot say that this is the proudest moment of my life and worth thirty years of toil and poverty, I can conscientiously say that I am pleased beyond expression to note the cultivated and corpulent audience in the hall tonight. The pink handbills scattered around town with lavish hand have given you the subject of my lecture.

My friends, there are tens of thousands of men in this world who are waiting for money to help them begin a career. They are sitting around on the fences, loafing around the groceries and walking up and down the streets looking for some one to hand them a stake of $10,000. It never occurs to them that they have the capital wanted right at hand, if they would only make use of it—ambition and perseverance. Our first picture this evening may not be recognized at first glance, but after a steady squint you will be able to identify it as the man who upset Europe for years—the Emperor Napoleon. For years and years as a young man he hadn't a quarter left on Saturday night after paying his board bill. Nobody believed that young man had it in him to sell county rights for a patent churn. But they were mistaken. He had ambition and perseverance. All he was waiting for was to get a hold with his toes, and when he finally got it he went sailing for the top like a rocket. He jumped from the garret to the head of an army, from red herrings and dry bread to the fare of an emperor. He said to himself, "I will conquer," and conquer he did.

You who are wearing out the heads of the cracker barrels in Skinner's grocery night after night as you wait for some one to come along and give you an upward boost can do as Napoleon did.

Some of you in this representative audience have probably heard of Christopher Columbus. He hung around a corner grocery years and years waiting for his career to come along. Our artist has caught him as he loafed around town with his dog at his heels.

One morning Christopher woke up loaded with ambition. He had made up his mind to discover something. I don't suppose he was at all particular what it was at first, but after a little he decided on discovering America. That was ambition. Perseverance didn't come in till after he had been turned down. No one believed in his theories. No one would lend him a dollar. For several years about all his time was spent between sneaking free lunches and trying to make folks believe that Spain and Portugal were only half the world. He finally began to gain on it, and after discouragements enough to have driven most men to back up against a buzzsaw he was outfitted for a voyage, and America was duly discovered.



WITH HIS DOG AT HIS HEELS.

Suppose that Christopher's ambition hadn't been aroused? I tell you, my friends—and Q. Hope Jones knows what he is talking about—this country had the closest kind of a shave from being left out of the swim.

Take the case of Caesar. When his father died there wasn't $7 in cash in the house. Young Caesar had neither trade nor capital, and about forty different creditors were piling on to him for the old man's debts. He sat down on the fence to think things over. Should he throw his hands up in despair or should he call ambition and perseverance to his aid and conquer fate? He decided on the latter course.

Take my own case, for instance. Modesty forbids me to make any extended reference, but in a spirit of confidence I wish to observe that but for perseverance the name of Q. Hope Jones would never have stood out in letters a foot high in the Cohoes Exhorter, as was the case only yesterday.

Huh!

"I met your brother the other day, and he told me he was going to the front." "He has to go when he's called. He's a hotel bellboy."—Baltimore American.

Mrs. Kendry gave a luncheon on Thursday in honour of Mrs. Wallis who has been visiting with Mrs. Walter Roger.

A movement is now on foot to arouse interest in the work of the Patriotic Association in the surrounding districts. On Friday evening a party of Peterborough people motored to Keene to hold a meeting at that place. Amongst those in the party were Dr. Cameron, Mr. F. D. Kerr, Mrs. Travers and several others.

The first meeting of the Morning Musicale was held at Mrs. Rollins' home on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Allan was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. R. E. Wood, who has left to join her son, Dr. Edward Wood, in New York. Mrs. Buchanan was elected vice-president, in place of Mrs. Rollins who has been obliged to resign owing to press of other engagements. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

By his refusal to bother about red tape or politics Lord Kitchener is probably storing up a lot of trouble for the Asquith Government. But the party's loss is the nation's gain.

TO PREVENT OVERLAPPING IN CHARITIES

Dr. Turnbull Explains Usefulness of Associated Charities

A meeting of the local council of women was held in the hall of the public library on Friday evening, when an address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Turnbull of Toronto, on the subject of associated charities. The president, Mrs. Davidson, was in the chair. In the absence of Miss Weir, Miss Erskine acted as secretary. The president in her opening address made a strong appeal to the members of the council, to do their share in helping the Empire by maintaining a calm, normal, cheerful outlook on life.

Dr. Turnbull before beginning his address, said he would like to have some little idea of how the charitable work of the town was carried on. Mr. Finch Miller briefly outlined the work done by the charity board, and Mrs. A. E. Coulthase made a few remarks as to the methods of the King's Daughters.

Mr. Langley, the secretary of the Peterborough branch of the Industrial Association of Ontario spoke of the number of men on their books who wanted wok and not help, and asked all those who could aid in this matter to communicate with the Association. Dr. Turnbull in his address spoke of the usefulness of an associated charities idea, to prevent the overlapping which so constantly occurs in charitable work. The necessity at the present time was for scientific and systematic methods of carrying on this work.

He considered the most important point was to regard all cases as individual, living souls to be helped each in the best way and that this was sometimes more successfully accomplished by providing friends than merely funds.

The cottagers of Stoney Lake are pleased to learn that the Stoney Lake Navigation Company have decided to place a new steamer on the canal route, to be in commission next season.

--- THE BROWNING CLUB ---

On Thursday evening, October 22, in the Y. W. C. A., the Browning Club held their first meeting. There were sixteen members present, and the leader, Mr. F. J. A. Morris, read the poems, "Love Among the Ruins," and "Two in the Campagna." Both poems were then discussed, and the proceedings closed with an interpretation of the latter poem. On the following Thursday, the subject before the Club was, "Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came." Some questions of general bearing on the poem were first suggested, and the members were asked to have these in mind in their study of "Childe Roland." The poem was then read, and a discussion that promises to be of some interest arose on detailed passages throughout the course of the poem. Next week and the week after, the Club will meet on Friday; the interpretation of "Childe Roland" will be continued, and then two short lyrics, "Home Thoughts from Abroad" and "Prospice," will be taken up. In the interests of English poetry and its lovers, the organizing Committee of the Club decided to admit visitors and guests to the meetings.

A Reading of "Two in the Campagna."

A pair of lovers wander through the Campagna, viewing the crumbled relics of ancient Rome, now almost buried beneath a living mantle of grasses and flowers. The sight of these pathetic ruins makes the two pensive and silent. At last they sit down, hand in hand, and lose themselves and each other in lonely reverie. The speaker's mind (in the state where thought and emotion are indistinguishable) broods over the mystery of life.

Of all things living, man is the only creature to whom death causes a terrible wrench. Look at that tomb there, built with tears and sigs, centuries ago, over some loved one lost, by men and women who have themselves passed away; the very tomb has crumbled, and out of its ruins has sprung a plant of fennel —cradled in a grave. These same plants were growing here in the days of the Romans; they have sprung up, blossomed, seeded, and withered away, generation after generation, and never any sense of sorrow or loss in the death of individuals. In all Nature below the scale of man there seems absolute peace and contentment, happiness everywhere; whatever need or desire is felt among flowers and insects is immediately satisfied; there is no such thing as "their reach exceeding their grasp"; no problems of personality, no yearning after the infinite, no stifling of nature. See that orange-red flower; in a few days it will be withered away, but there's no death-struggle, no sorrow among survivors; indeed, its life-purpose is already fulfilled, for there's a cluster of tiny beetles feeding in its pollen-meal, and, all unconscious, helping to pass on the torch of life to the next generation. They, too, in their tiny span of a few weeks, fill out the whole round of their desires far more completely than any of us in our three score years and ten. And it's the same all over the Campagna; what an expanse of grasses! and the wind, blowing where it listeth, as it plays through their feathery tops, wafts the pollen-dust all over the land; and everywhere in the grass, flowering plants; and feeding in them, or moving over them, what a wealth of insect life, beetles, bees, butterflies, all apparently happy, and in their play performing miracles—God's blind instruments in handing on the torch of life. Everywhere Nature runs riot; no concealment, no thwarting; perfect fruition in the full blaze of God's sunlight. In all this harmony of Nature, the only jarring note is Man. What a strange thing is human nature! With the birth of self-consciousness there awoke in each of us a sense of shame and a desire to conceal our inner thoughts and yearnings from the light of day.

We hardly know our own nature, each of us, and far more of it remains hidden from our fellow-men; even friends and lovers, the nearest and dearest, are often utterly alone in thought. I wish it were a law of nature that, when twin souls meet, their union made the two wills one, so that neither had any longer a wish or an ideal that the other had not. If only, when once we love, our whole life became love and nothing else—But, no! as often as I try to live in love alone, this barrier of personality and self-consciousness thrusts in between, and I find myself in solitary pursuit of ideals, and with yearnings after an infinite, that I cannot communicate or express in words. And so it is doomed to be always; man, the only one of God's creatures, conscious of creation, in the midst of universal happiness and contentment, remains alone sad and unsatisfied.

Religion.

Amongst those studies to which, from distant ages, thinkers and philosophers have devoted themselves with the greatest assiduity religion takes the premier place. It is easy to see why it should be so. Man, a thinking, observing creature, finds himself surrounded by an universe of wonders and mysteries. For these his nature forces him to seek a Maker. Within himself also he feels a world of longings, fears, thoughts, hopes and visions quite as wonderful and mysterious and he seeks for the source of these also. He thinks of them in youth, when health and happiness are uppermost and when probably the very enchantment of living has a tendency to dim the truths that like stars are beginning to shine in the firmament of his imagination. He thinks of them in the very zenith of his career, when the thousand and one activities that belong to life are usually uppermost in the mind. But he thinks of them most when the evening shadows approach and suffering and grief and death show him the necessity of a closer communion with a spirit greater than himself.

It is not surprising that this, the most powerful, the most essential of forces should have produced an immense amount of diversified literature and that many doctrines touching upon the worship of a Supreme Being should have been enunciated ere the light of Christianity shone upon the world.

I have before me as I write a little volume entitled "Religious Denominations." In it the tenets of no fewer than 161 forms of faith are set forth, some of them Pagan, most of them professedly Christian. It is an interesting book to read and it makes one realise what gigantic efforts mankind is making and has ever made in his search for religious truth. Whichever way we turn, whether to Plato, to Aristotle, or even to the lowest forms of idolatry practised by the African savages we still find the idea uppermost of the necessity of worshipping or propitiating a Great Spirit. At the time of Christ's appearance all the heathen nations worshipped a multiplicity of gods and demons whose favour they courted by obscene and ridiculous ceremonies and whose anger they endeavored to appease by the most abominable cruelties. Their conceptions were entirely based on the belief that the universe was governed by evil and not by good and the consequences were seen in the absolute lack of morals, they displayed.

At this period the religion of the Romans as well as their arms had extended itself throughout a great part of the known world. Yet, in spite of the seemingly insurmountable obstacles in the way of Christianity it soon found its way to the remotest bounds of that great empire. This was due in large measure to the fact that profound peace reigned at that time over the earth and because it was an age universally distinguished for science and erudition. Discerning minds were beginning to see the absurdity of worshipping spirits in stocks and stones and readily lent an ear to teachings that appealed to heart and understanding alike.

The perusal of a book like the one I have mentioned does more than provide a glimpse of the religious efforts of the centuries. Whilst it shows the influence of external circumstances on internal belief and the effect of perfect freedom of religious inquiry in multiplying sects and dividing extensive religious organizations into numerous branches, it also inculcates a lesson of charity and forbearance towards those who may entertain theological opinions different from our own.

There are in the Public Library over 800 volumes dealing with religious subjects and the enquirer into matters spiritual need go no farther than our shelves for the matter of which he may be in quest.

THE ALLIES PROGRESSED IN SUNDAY FIGHTING

IMPORTANT MOVEMENTS AGAINST ARRAS FAILED, GAINS ON FRENCH CENTRE

THE PARIS STATEMENT

Turkish Ships Bombarding Sebastapol Are Driven Off by Shore Batteries --- Goeben Puts Into Constantinople for Repairs

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 2. — The afternoon official communication says:

"The German offensive on the left wing continued yesterday with maximum violence, but nevertheless the Allies made some small progress, with the exception of losing part of the village of Messines.

"Important movements against Arras and other points were repulsed by the Allies.

"On our centre also slight progress was made, and all German assaults were repelled.

"On the right wing reconnaissance in force by the enemy towards Noment was repulsed.

"In the Vosges, besides recapturing the heights which dominate Saint Marie, we have occupied the heights in Ban-de-Sapt region, from whence the enemy had been bombarding Saint Die."

BIG BATTLE EXPECTED ON RUSSIAN FRONTIER.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 2—A despatch says Turkish ships bombarding Sebastopol were driven off by shore batteries and that later a wireless message was intercepted from the cruiser Goeben, saying that she was damaged and is returning to Constantinople for repairs.

Berlin reports little change in France and Belgium and another big battle is expected on the Russian frontier.

Addressing the Brandenberg regiment near the front in France recently Emperor William closed his speech with these words: "When the war is finished, we should see each other again, and under all circumstances the enemy will be beaten."

LONDON, Nov. 2. — Lloyds today demanded premium of 60 per cent. to insure against a declaration of war by Italy before the end of November.

BISHOP SWEENY WITH ST. JOHN'S CONGREGATION FOR DEDICATION FESTIVAL

The services at St. John's Church yesterday were of a special nature, being commemorative of the opening of the church 79 years ago. All day long the flag over the edifice was flown to bespeak the fact that it was the church's birthday. No less a distinguished visitor than the Lord Bishop of Toronto was present, and his lordship officiated at Holy Communion at eight o'clock. The number of communicants at the 8 o'clock and 11 o'clock services was very large. At the latter service Rev. Canon Davidson preached an appropriate All Saints' Day sermon on the "Sanity of the Saints," referring to the power and beauty of the life which God gives the people of the world power to lead.

Men's Fellowship Tea.

At five o'clock in the evening a men's fellowship tea was held in the Sunday school building, which was artistically decorated with patriotic colours. These teas have been a feature in the work of St. John's Church for many years, and yesterday's was one of the most largely attended and most successful. Over one hundred men sat down to tables tastefully arranged by Coleman Bros., who have always been closely allied with the success of St. John's teas.

Volunteers Were Present.

Opportunity was taken to invite the members of the Peterborough contingent who were spending their last Sunday in their home town. Some thirty of them accepted the invitation, and as they were brought forward and introduced to the meeting, they were received by long, loud and enthusiastic cheers from the standing assemblage. The Bishop of Toronto entered a few moments later, and was likewise greeted with considerable applause. After the National Anthem and Grace were sung justice was done to the repast. Several present followed with short addresses, during which the presence of Bishop Sweeny and the members of the contingent was referred to. Appeals were made for the work being carried on in the parish certain needs and opportunities were pointed out and the determination to carry forward the cause of the church with increased enthusiasm was evinced.

The principal address of the afternoon was made by Bishop Sweeny. He referred to the difficult and momentous times in which we are living, when history is being rapidly made and maps being changed: It was indeed an awesome and strenuous time and should call for everything strongest and best in mankind. The burden and responsibility should not be left to a few, but should be shared by all. Heroic determination should be called forth.

Bishop Sweeny, in addressing the members of the contingent, gave them a farewell charge, expressing his approval of their self-sacrifice and confidence. Above all, they would conduct themselves as becomes Christians, British soldiers, and gentlemen. He impressed upon them the great need of personal religion, which will be their stay and strength in the perilous experiences they will have to undergo. They should be borne up by the knowledge of prayers and sympathy of those left behind in Canada.

The address was punctuated by frequent applause, and similar sentiments were re-echoed by the voice of the congregation. After the hymn "Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult" was sung, the members dispersed, imbued with a strong feeling of fellowship. The committee in charge of the tea was composed of Messrs. W. E. Conway, F. J. Linton, A. W. Turner, A. Kingdon and J. Edgar.

Most of the members of the soldiers remained for the evening service, and they formed a very conspicuous part of the congregation. Canon Davidson expressed the feelings of the congregation to the members of the contingent, remarking that when in foreign lands and amid arduous service their thoughts would travel homewards, and they could not but remember the ivy-clad church in the midst of their home town, where they had spent a portion of their last Sunday, and from those memories they will receive a message from the Saviour of the world, for whom the church stood.

Bishop Sweeny also preached, having for a subject, "Common Salvation." He issued an appeal for united support of home and mission work of the church, especially during these warlike times, when great work is called for. His lordship's words were eloquent and inspiring.

The decorations in the schoolhouse were provided by J. J. Turner & Sons.

Brothers Serving The King in The Canadian Contingent

The two young men shown are the sons of Lieut.-Col. Æmilius Jarvis, Governor-General's Bodyguard, of Toronto, both of whom are officers in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, now encamped on Salisbury Plains. Lieut. W. D. P. Jarvis of the Governor-General's Bodyguard (standing) is well known as a yachtsman, a sport in which his father is intensely interested. He is the eldest son. The mounted man is Æmilius Jarvis, Jr., who is a lieutenant of the Royal Canadian Dragoons. He is the second son of Lt.-Col. Jarvis who himself has done and is doing much to further the work of recruiting. Lieut. Col. Jarvis took a leading part in recruiting a crew for the H. M. S. Niobe.

INTEREST CONTINUES IN GORDON MEETINGS

Subject To-night Will Deal With Lies Told by Some Good People

Dr. Gordon speaks this evening in George Street Methodist Church on the subject, "The Lies Good People Tell." He will have something to say concerning "The White Lies of Modern Society."

Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw will sing selections which have been called for again and again by special request, namely: "The Recessional," "Steal Away to Jesus," and "I Want to be a Christian." The meeting will begin at seven-forty-five o'clock, and Dr. Gordon will answer a number of questions.

Two special meetings were held in connection with the Citizenship Campaign yesterday. Both these meetings were held in the Grand Opera House, and filled the building to its utmost capacity. In fact, before the time announced for the meetings to begin, namely, four o'clock in the afternoon and half-past eight o'clock in the evening, the doors had to be closed against those who desired to secure admission.

Two thousand men listened to Dr. Gordon's second confidential address yesterday afternoon. Mr. E. O. Weber of Berlin presided, and made a very careful, business-like statement, with reference to the financial affairs of the campaign, and then introduced Dr. Gordon.

The following is a brief outline of Dr. Gordon's address, "Success in Its Relationship to Personal Character, and the Purity of the Home Life."

I believe it was Dr. J. M. Buckley, the editor of the New York Christian Advocate, who once said that the very best lecture which he had heard on the subject of "Success" was delivered by a certain individual who was an absolute failure in everything.

EMPIRE'S CALL FOR TROOPS

Mayor Calls Public Meeting for Tuesday Evening, at the Armouries

Mayor Buller has received the following letter, which speaks for itself:

To His Worship the Mayor,
Your Worship,

In view of the more serious turn of events due to the declaration of a war of pan-Islam against the Allies it is our duty in Canada to do immediately all that we can to answer the Empire's call for troops. I would suggest with your permission that a public meeting be called at the Armouries to be addressed by those you may select, for the encouragement of enlistment of our young men. We have I understand not filled out the second quota allotted to us and this clearly should not be the case. We can all do something for the cause and we should do that something whatever it be as if our hearts were in it. We have all the material needed for doing our share in the Empire's defence to the full but possibly it would not be unwise to rouse it to a more stirring sense of what this world-wide conflict is calling upon us to do. Can Canada, can Peterborough lag behind?

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

As soon as the Mayor received the above letter he agreed to the suggestion and issued instructions to call a public meeting Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, in the armouries. The list of speakers will be announced later.

There can be no doubt but that this is a good move as Great Britain needs all the help we can give and as soon as we can give it. Let us have a rousing meeting. Be present and show your sympathy with the movement. WILL YOU help?

COMMISSION WILL CONSTRUCT MAIN

At a meeting of the Utilities Commission today at noon it was decided to construct a water main for Maud and Lansdowne Streets.

This decision is in answer to an application from a number of residents.

LOST BOTH LEGS DIES IN HOSPITAL

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Brantford, Nov. 2.—James Aichison of Copetown, was brought to the hospital yesterday with both legs cut off by a Grand Trunk train and died from loss of blood shortly after being admitted.

OFFICERS CANNOT ENLIST AS PRIVATES

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—Officers in the Canadian volunteer force who enlist for service in the second contingent will not be allowed to waive their rank and serve in the ranks as privates. A large number of officers did this in the case of the first contingent, so eager were they to see service at the front. Besides this many more officers were taken over with the first contingent than commands could be found for.

There is, of course, a possibility that their services may be available for the second division, but at all events, qualified officers are now none too plentiful in the Dominion. On this account it is understood that officers will not be allowed to go as privates with the second contingent, but that, if places cannot be immediately found for them, they will probably be retained here for further drafts.

ARMORED TRAIN SAVED SITUATION FOR BRITISH

Ten Thousand Germans Who Had Almost Surrounded Regiment Were Routed and Scattered

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 2. — Ten thousand Germans were completely routed and scattered by an armoured train, according to the Daily Mail correspondent in Northern France. The Germans had almost surrounded a British regiment, which fought doggedly on, though so vastly outnumbered. Suddenly an armoured train shot up the railway line, which the British were holding. The train poured broadsides right and left, mowing down the Germans at every yard, until each side of the track was covered with heaps of German dead.

SON FOLLOWS HIS FATHER TO THE WAR

Majority of Soldiers Leaving To-morrow Are Single Men

Peterboro volunteers will leave for Kingston tomorrow noon. There have been instances where the parents of volunteers have refused their consent. The volunteers are mostly single men and quite a number are young Englishmen.

One volunteer named Jordan is following in his father's footsteps, the latter having accompanied the first contingent.

It is hoped that the full quota of seventy-five men will be secured by tomorrow. All the men received their pay on Saturday.

The second contingent will parade at the Armouries tomorrow morning at 10.15. The men will be addressed by J. H. Burnham, M.P., G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., His Worship Mayor Buller, Judge Huycke, and Rev. Jas. Rollins. This will be open to the public, to which they are all cordially invited. The band will be in attendance.

After the addresses, the ladies in charge of the Women's War Fund, will give the volunteers a dinner and later Canon Davidson will conduct a short religious service.

The volunteers will leave the Armouries about 11.45 and parade to the C.P.R. station where they will entrain for Kingston. The special train is expected here about 12.15. There are twelve more recruits wanted to bring the quota of men up to 75.

Six more recruits were accepted Saturday night, which brought the number of to 62. In the afternoon the volunteers were inspected by a few of the officers of the 57th Regiment, at the close of which Canon Davidson gave a personal address.

GUARD WAS SUSPICIOUS.

Gr-rr-r-h! The train drew up with a mighty crash and shock between stations.

"Is it an accident? What's happened?" inquired a worried-looking individual of the guard who came running up the line.

"Someone pulled the communication-cord!" shouted the guard. "Boat express knocked our last carriage off the line! Take us four hours before the line is clear!"

"Great Scott! Four hours! I am supposed to be married today!" groaned the passenger.

The guard, a bigoted bachelor, raised his eyebrows, suspiciously.

"Look 'ere," he demanded, "I suppose you ain't the chap that pulled the cord?"

The contribution sent by Marmora to the Belgian Relief Fund is estimated at over $1,000.

ASK FOR ORDER TO WIND UP BIG MONTREAL FIRM

Immediate Claim is for Small Sum on Promissory Note

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Montreal, Nov. 2. — Application was made to the courts today and a petition filed in the insolvency court for a winding up order against W. H. Scroggie, Ltd., one of the largest dry goods stores in this city.

The immediate claim is for three hundred and fifty-four dollars and fifty-five cents on a promissory note which was not met.

The liabilities are said to be seven hunded thousand dollars.

Used Lances on Foot.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—A semi-official announcement was made in Paris Saturday afternoon, as follows:

"In one of our attacks delivered the day before yesterday a village, strongly held by the enemy's infantry, supported by artillery, was taken by a detachment of French unmounted cavalry belonging to two dragoon regiments. The men charged with their lances in their hands. The enemy left in the village more than 300 dead, and abandoned 200 of their wounded."

CAN USE ARMOURIES.

A telegram was received today from Gen. MacDonald, at Ottawa, giving permission to use the Armouries for a public meeting tomorrow night, to encourage the enlistment of men.

ASPHODEL SLOGAN IS WHAT WE HAVE, WE HOLD

Champion Plowman Hopes to Give Burnham Trophy a Longer Stay

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., is in receipt of the following letter:

Indian River, R. R. No. 2,
October 30, 1914.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P.,
Peterborough:

Dear Mr. Burnham:

I have received your favour of Oct. 28th. In reply, let me say that words fail me to express my appreciation of the kind offer enclosed.

I am sure it is largely through your influence that this beautiful cup is to be in my possession for the ensuing year, and let me assure you that it will have a longer stay in the township of Asphodel if my ability as a plowman will keep it here.

Thanking you very much for your kind interest in my behalf, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
CHAS. E. WOULD.

Mr. Burnham says that the conditions allow the County Council to give the cup into the custody of the winner for one year on his giving a bond to return it safe and sound. The letter to which this one is a reply was merely one of congratulation. The winner's thanks are, in reality, due to the Council, not to the donor of the cup.

CERTAIN TO TAKE OSTEND

Decisive Victory in Flanders Will Give Seaport to Allies

LILLE EVACUATED

Strict Neutrality to be Maintained by Bulgaria

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 2—The Times correspondent at the front says that Ostend is now so feebly held by the Germans that it will fall into the Allies' hands at the moment decisive victory is achieved in the big Flanders battle.

The Times says that Lille certainly has been evacuated by the Germans and has probably fallen into the hands of the Allies, who have penetrated to the north and east of the city.

The Times correspondent says Bulgaria will maintain the strictest neutrality.

A Times despatch from Chile says German cruisers in the Pacific are regularly supplied with coal by German merchantmen, which leave Chilean ports under false declarations.

A Central News despatch from Rome asserts that Turkish gunboats are at the mouth of the Suez Canal.

MILLIONS HOMELESS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Brussels, via London, Nov. 2. —Between six and seven million Belgians have little or nothing to call "home."

They are a people almost without a country. Practically every acre is now swept of everything valuable. It is estimated there are now two hundred thousand Belgians in England, and eight hundred in Holland. The lowest estimate makes the number of Belgian homes destroyed or rendered uninhabitable, one million.

NOVEL HERO SUICIDED.

New York, Nov. 2.—Paul de Clairmont, well known along Broadway as "Baby Paul," the supposed hero of Elinor Glynn's sensational novel, "Three Weeks," was found dead Saturday morning, in a small hall bedroom at 25 West 51st Street. After an examination of the body, Coroner's Physician Schultz said that the man had committed suicide by taking cyanide of potassium.

Frankford is sending six men with the second contingent, three of these men are Italians. One of the Italians saw active service in Italy and all are anxious to get to the front and strike a blow for Great Britain.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1914

THE NICKEL QUESTION.

A NUMBER of newspapers, among which are the Montreal Mail, News, and Journal of Commerce, and the Toronto Star and Globe, have called attention to the disposition of Canada's nickel resources and output. The majority of people may not realize how important a commodity nickel is, especially at the present time. Nickel is an important constituent of what is called nickel steel, and this kind of steel is used almost exclusively in the construction of guns and battleships, or wherever armour plate is required. It is used because of its great strength, hardness and resisting power. It is recognized as the strongest steel made, and hence figures largely in war equipment.

The principal sources of supply for many years have been the French colony of New Caledonia and Sudbury in Northern Ontario, the latter producing eighty per cent. of the whole. It is said that sixty per cent. of Canada's supply goes to Germany, where most of it is used to strengthen the German navy.

It has been hinted that the Canadian nickel mines are not controlled in Canada or by Canada, and to know that we have been shipping this metal to an enemy is a revelation. Certainly the matter is very important, and should receive immediate attention. Export to Germany of Canadian nickel or "matte" — the compound form of it composed of nickel sulphide and copper sulphide in which it is exported from Canada —should be stopped at once. The handling of this question is a difficult and delicate affair, owing to the business in this metal with the United States. The investigation ought to show how some valuable industries that use this metal can be started in Canada. Much the same thing can be said of asbestos, eighty-five per cent. of the world's supply coming from Canada. It is to be hoped that Canada will in future have more control of, and regard to, her natural resources, that she will not be in so compromising a situation as she now finds herself with regard to nickel. The matter is one that should be dealt with in the coming session of the Dominion Government.

WHEN WILL PETERBOROUGH HEAR THEM?

LECTURES relative to the great European war are being given in Toronto, and the big Convocation Hall there is being regularly filled with large audiences. Such subjects as, the Awakening of Russia, the Trend of Modern History, the Beginnings of British, French and German Diplomacy, are treated in a most illuminating and attractive manner. The local Canadian Club is supposed to be making arrangements for some lectures to be delivered in Peterborough, and we trust they will soon be announced, as there are men from both Queen's and Toronto Universities who can be obtained. Speaking of the work of our universities, particularly of Toronto University, the Toronto News says:

> "We are too likely to think that a university is merely a glorified high school, a place for the education of young people. It is that, but it is much more. It is a conservatory of knowledge, an association of learned men trained in habits of thought and expression and serving not only the students but the country-at-large.
>
> In a sense, a university takes the news of the day and relates it to scientific history, just as a new chemical theory is tested or elaborated by skilled observers. The professors headed by President Falconer have not been sparing themselves in offering their abilities to the public. Not only are they speaking frequently in Toronto, but they are accepting outside engagements.
>
> The country understands fully that the Ontario Agricultural College is in existence for the benefit of the farmers of Ontario. But frequently it fails to see how a faculty-group of lectures on English or History or Philosophy or even Political Economy can be of direct benefit to the Province, the Dominion, and the Empire. The great pride we have in our British citizenship rests in our complete freedom. Let the universities tell us continuously why we are free, how British history is based on a practical, though perhaps unwitting apreciation of the essentials of Psychology. Let them continue to give adequate and scientific reasons for the Democratic sense, let them contrast our citizenship with that of a Bureaucracy, of an Absolutism, and even of a Republic, and the people of Canada will begin to realize that they have been, perhaps, neglectful of their proudest possessions."

SEATS on the New York Stock Exchange cost over fifty thousand dollars. Why go to New York? There are seats in the city council that can be obtained for less than that many cents.

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS.

NEVER BEFORE since we claimed a right to be considered a free, self-governing country, had Canadians such a sense of partnership in Canadian prosperity as we have today. Not long ago we had wide-open flood-gates of immigration, packed steamships, railways vibrating with colonist cars, tourist cars, and box cars clanking to the tune of people coming in and goods going out. We all rejoiced in a great uplifting dynamo of prosperity that none of us stopped to trace up. How long it would last none of us knew. We hoped—forever. But we knew better. The turn came. Tight money, caused by wars that upset credit, upheavals of one kind or another in various countries, real estate boomsters by the hundred thousand whose only aim in life was to inflate foot-frontage values—suddenly unable to pay their rent, thank God! Then the great war that got all the financial centres and manufacturing nations more or less by the throat, got this country in its grip as never we knew it before. Suddenly, as a people, we were "down to brass tacks," not only in sending men to the front, but in keeping the people at home as prosperous as possible. Did we shirk either of these great tasks? Not much! We have tackled both in the spirit of a free, independent people. Our men have landed in England. Our farmers are sending out the wheat at high prices. Our manufacturers are keeping the factories open. Our workmen are kept on the payrolls that sustain prosperity. The movement has been started. Now, in this time of national conservation and reconstruction, it is absolutely up to us as citizens of Canada to keep every dollar circulating for goods made by our own people.

THE LOSS FROM INSECT PESTS IN CANADA.

INSECT PESTS constitute a serious problem to Canadian agriculturists, and every effort should be made to handle them scientifically. Mr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, has a short article relative to this problem in the October number of the Agricultural Gazette.

The question is sometimes asked, he says: "Why are the losses due to insect pests proportionately greater in Canada than in older countries?" The chief reason is that a new and fertile country is being opened up and developed; large tracts of land are being put under cultivation providing an abundance of food for insects which previously lived in small numbers in restricted cultivated patches or on wild plants. For three thousand miles our territory adjoins that of a country where development preceded ours, and in the process of this development foreign pests were accidentally introduced, with the result that more than half of the worst insect pests are introduced species. Development requires imports of natural products, such as trees, plants, seeds, fruit, etc.; such natural products carry pests from their native countries; on establishment in the new country these pests increase more abundantly owing to the absence of their natural enemies, which, unfortunately, are not imported at the same time. All these conditions are mainly peculiar to a new country.

The losses occasioned by insect pests in Canada are realized in a general way; the aggregate destruction suffered continually, however, is not usually conceived owing to the retiring disposition of these enemies, their small size and insidious methods of attack. Estimating from our statistics of production and the known percentage of losses due to insect pests, it can be shown that, taking the minimum average loss, the annual loss in Canada due to the depredations of insect pests on field, vegetable and fruit crops live stock, stored grains, and forest products is on a conservative estimate, considerably over one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000). A very great portion of this loss could be prevented even with our present limited knowledge of control methods. The prevention of such loss would mean, both directly and indirectly, an immense saving to the country.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ONE DAY governments will appoint editors for their blue books. Any publishing house that issued valuable volumes in such hodge-podge style would be bankrupt within a month.—Monetary Times. We do not know whether this suggestion has been made before, but at any rate it is one that has not yet been acted upon, though long needed. It would be a lasting benefit to introduce some system of editing into the production of blue books. The present government has made a few improvements, but there is still much to be desired.

SHORTLY after the death of one of England's great poets, says Everybody's, one of his devoted admirers visited the little village where the poet had lived and died. The stranger entered into conversation with an old man, a native of the village, remarking sadly on the death of the poet. "Aye, aye," answered the old man encouragingly; "still I mak' no doot but the wife'll carry the business on.'

DO YOU THINK Turkey will last till Christmas, with all those hungry soldiers in Europe?

Four-Year-Olds.

(Exchange.)

One of the coaches of Yale tells of an old countryman and his wife who, on a visit to New Haven, were interested witnesses of certain manoeuvres of the football team. The old gentleman walked slowly round one stalwart player, looking him over as he might have done a horse he was about to purchase. Then: "Sarah!" he exclaimed. "What is it, Henry?" "He's nigh on six feet, ain't he?" "Every inch of it." "Weighs about one hundred and ninety-odd, eh?" "I reckon." "Well, football sure does develop 'em most powerful." "He's a fine young man," commented Sarah. "Man!" exclaimed Henry. "He ain't no man! Professor Hunter, who never lied in his life, has jest told me that young person is in his fourth year!"

Roars and Roars of Laughter.

(Orillia Packet.)

The Peterborough Examiner declared that "the Borden Government has been obliged to fall back upon the naval policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier." The roars and roars of laughter which greeted Mr. Rowell's allusion to the Laurier navy, on Friday evening, give assurance that the Examiner's joke will be appreciated.

RELIEF FOR BELGIANS.

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,

I notice that the Township of Otonabee is considering the question of some relief to the much afflicted Belgians. There is a bountiful supply of poultry in this township, and I would suggest that the residents meet together and decide on sending a car load of poultry, which I think would be one of the most acceptable gifts that could be made.

Yours truly,

OTONABEE RESIDENT.

SOME ROYAL TITLES

The Kaiser Is the Most Be-Titled Man in the World.

King Alfonso is the proud possessor of 42 independent and separate titles. His list of suffixes would form the major part of almost any letter which be might write. Whatever his predecessors might have been, whatever claims they made in their dignities, he has preserved them as trailers to his individual name of Alfonso.

Quite amusing is his claim to territories which have long since passed from under the Spanish domination. For instance, he is, along toward the last of his fictitious titles, "King of the East Indies," "King of the West Indies," "King of Gibraltar," "King of India," and, with a bombast and sweeping magnificence, "King of Oceania." Such pretensions lend an almost opera-bouffe flavor to the resonant terms such as "King of Castile," "King of Arragon," "King of Navarre," and "King of Galicia."

To the Spanish don this pomp and show appeals with unction. Nor is it peculiar to the Romance nations, this worship of grandeur. The Emperor of Austria boasts 61 extra titles, and the Sultan of Turkey 82.

The Sultan has by far the most laughable list of names. He starts out by being High Prince and Lord of Lords. Then he specifies in great detail practically all of the States and cities and even districts of the Orient, and explaining after each of the various names that he is ruler of "all the forts, citadels, purlieus, and neighborhood thereof." Nothing is presumed to belong to anyone else.

A land may have never belonged to Turkey, except in some transient raid or invasion, but that matters not to the Sultan; he adds it to his string, calm and indifferent to the progress of other nations. He loves to proclaim his religious prominence. "Head of the Faithful," "Supreme Lord of All the Followers of the Prophet," "Direct and Only Lieutenant on Earth of Mohammed" are some of his most extravagant phases. His more nearly valid title of "King of Jerusalem" is also claimed by his more civilised brother rulers.

The Kaiser with his love of publicity, has 72 names. Most of the States of Germany are included in the list of the Prussian King, and have been ever since the union of the States.

King George of England has a very modest outlay in comparison. It merely reads: "George V. by the grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India." Some of the lesser nobles in Britain boast of long lists, the Duke of Argyll leading with 27 titles.

Cured of Discontent.

"I never complained," once said Sa'di, the poet, "of my condition but on a single occasion, when my feet were bare and I had no money to buy shoes, but I saw a man without feet and became instantly contented with my lot."

Being asked from whom he learned his philosophy, Sa'di replied, "From the blind, because they never advance a step until they have tried the ground."

"They asked me," Sa'di writes in the Gulistan, "'Of whom didst thou learn manners?' I replied: 'From the unmannerly. Whatever I saw them do which I disapproved of, that I abstained from doing.'"

The Magic Whirlpool.

Fill a glass tumbler with water, throw upon its surface a few fragments or thin shavings of camphor and they will begin to move and acquire a motion both progressive and rotary, which will continue for a considerable time. If the water be touched by any greasy substance the floating particles will dart back and, as if by a stroke of magic, be instantly deprived of their motion and vivacity.

OLD CRUISER GOES DOWN

Britain Loses Another Warship to German Submarines

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Secretary to the Admiralty Saturday night made the following announcement:

"The old cruiser Hermes, Capt. Lambert, was sunk to-day (Saturday) by a German submarine in the Straits of Dover, as she was returning from Dunkirk. Nearly all the officers and crew were saved, but the exact loss cannot be ascertained until the men are mustered. The loss of the vessel is of small military significance."

The Hermes was a comparatively old vessel, and from a naval standpoint was of no value, but the fact that she was attacked so near home indicates that the German submarines must have a base somewhere on that part of the Belgian coast, which is occupied by German troops, from which they can menace ships of the allies passing between England and France. Only a few days ago one of them sank the French steamer Admiral Ganteaume, which was carrying refugees from Calais.

The cruiser Hermes is the seventh British cruiser to meet such a fate at the hands of the German submarine or to be destroyed by mines. Others in the list are the light cruiser Amphion, the scout cruiser Pathfinder, the armored cruisers Cressy, Hogue and Aboukir and the cruiser Hawke, sunk by a submarine Oct. 15.

It has been announced that the Hermes remained afloat for 40 minutes. Of her crew, which numbered 800, two hundred were landed at Dover by torpedo boats.

The loss of life in the sinking of the Hermes was much smaller than in the destruction of other warships by German submarines. Only two men were known to have been killed, although 40 are missing, and only 9 were injured.

Dr. Moffatt, surgeon of the British cruiser Hermes, which was sunk by a German submarine, speaking last night to a recruiting meeting on the marine parade ground at Dover, gave a brief story concerning the sinking of his vessel.

"We were all sitting at breakfast," said Dr. Moffatt, "and the first intimation we received that anything was wrong was when the plates on the table flew about the ward-room and our breakfasts fell into our laps. There was no panic. Every men flew to his station in good order. I went to the "sick bay" and saw to the removal of the invalids and then went on deck again and reported that all the sick men had been put into boats."

Dr. Moffatt urged an immediate response to the call for men to support the King and the country.

A Romance of Flowers

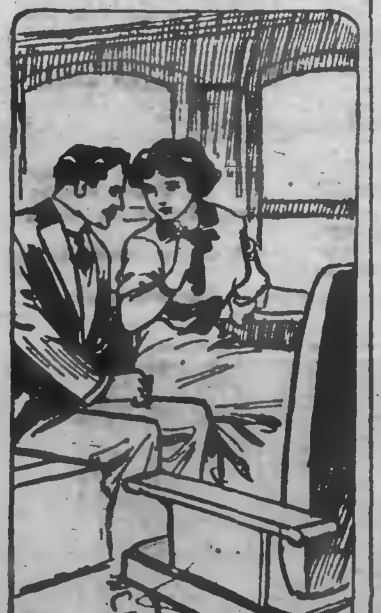
But There Was Much in it That Was Practical

By EUNICE BLAKE

Mary Blackmore had the misfortune to lose her parents when she was sixteen years old and was left with no support. A Mrs. Asburst, an old friend of her mother, was the only person upon whom Mary could rely for advice. This lady had her own peculiar notions. She regretted the necessity for women to earn their own living, assigning as a cause the gradual segregation of the sexes. Reaching down below this, she found a prime cause in the increased expense of providing for a family which threw men into clubs, where they spent their incomes instead of on homes. This in turn gave rise to women's clubs, and the separation was complete. Among the poorer classes the result was dependent directly on the high cost of living.

Such was the basis of Mrs Ashurst's views. Though acknowledging that if men would not support wives women must support themselves, she deprecated the situation. When Mary asked her to help her to get work the good lady let out a storm of reproach upon men for spending their lives frittering away their incomes instead of choosing various good girls who would be helpmeets to them and enabling them to concentrate the flow of loose change constantly dripping from bachelors' pockets into family savings banks. "But," she added, "I admit that there is a risk in any man's doing so. There's not a family of my acquaintance that is not spending every dollar of its income, if not more, in trying to keep a position among people who care nothing for them."

Having thus delivered herself, Mrs. Ashurst concentrated her words on the individual case of the applicant. "I've known you since you were a child Mary," she said, "and I'm sure you would make a good wife for some young fellow who is beginning life as you are. At the end of ten years he and you would be better off than either of you would be separate. I won't try to get you a position, for I don't approve of that plan for you. But I'll try to find you a husband. Come and make me a visit for an indefinite time, and we will see what can be done."



"SUCH A DEAR, GOOD MOTHER MUST HAVE A DEAR, GOOD SON."

Mary would have declined this proposition, but she had not a cent in the world, not a roof over her head nor a mouthful of food to put into her stomach. She therefore agreed to the first part of the proposition, trusting that something might turn up for her. She made herself as helpful as possible to her benefactor, but there was not much that she could do.

Mary had been with Mrs. Asburst two months when the lady came to her one morning and gave her a letter to read. It was from a young man twenty-two years old, who had rented a house with some grounds about it near the city of San Francisco with a view to the cultivation of flowers in a small way for the market. He had been well brought up among associates of the better class. Among strangers he found himself looked upon as a sort of huckster and formed no acquaintances among persons such as he had known at home. He needed an assistant—a woman who would relieve him of much of the care of his plants—and it had occurred to him that a wife, if she were the right sort of person, would be more serviceable to him than any one else. Did not Mrs. Ashurst know of some young woman who had been well brought up, but whose necessities compelled her to begin on the lowest rung of the ladder, that would consider an offer?

"Now, that's what I call a practical way to begin life," said Mrs. Ashurst.

"I've always been devoted to flowers," said Mary, her eyes brightening rather at the work than at the husband.

"Just the thing for you. I have written the young man that I have exactly what he wants. But I'm afraid you'll have to take a leap in the dark. He can't afford to come across the continent to court a girl and go back again, possibly, without her."

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Mary, catching her breath.

"I would rather select a husband for my daughter than have her select one for herself. I mean by that that the average girl would have a better chance for happiness in her parents' selection than in her own—that is, if the intrinsic worth of the man is made the chief consideration."

"Do you really think so?"

"I do."

"The only romance I see in this matter," said the poor girl thoughtfully, "is the flowers."

Mrs. Ashurst, who could not repress a smile at this rueful remark, gave Mary a kiss.

"I have known this young man from boyhood and have always had great faith in him. I can heartily recommend you to him."

"If I go out to him of course I must marry him. But suppose he doesn't like me?"

"Oh, you can't tell about that till after you have been married for some time. If you find out after awhile that you don't like each other you can easily get a divorce. Divorces are as common as marriages nowadays, and since the chief consideration in life is keeping up a show of respectability it is a wonder there are not more of them."

The lady spoke this contemptuously.

"Can't I see a photograph of him?"

"No, my dear. There is a reason why you cannot, which will appear later. Besides, it would do no good. If you find his appearance repulsive to you—which you will not—and conclude not to marry him you'll be no worse off than you are now. Indeed, you'll be better off. In a country where your antecedents are not known you will not be ashamed to do anything for a living that is necessary. You can be a chambermaid in a hotel, a waitress in a restaurant, a shopgirl, a nurse"—

"I'll be none of these; I'll marry your friend if he is an ogre."

"Spoken like a brave girl. Then, too," with a smile, "think of the flowers."

"I shall have the flowers. That will be delicious, anyway."

"Yes; you will have the flowers. And remember that while a romance will fade forever the flowers continue in endless succession."

And the good lady kissed her again.

• • • • • • • •

It was the last day of Mary Blackmore's journey to San Francisco. During the morning a young man sitting near her offered her a book to read, and later the two fell into conversation. Mary's meager account of the reasons for her having come to California apparently excited the young man's curiosity so far that he took pains to get the story. Indeed, she longed for some one to tell it to in order that she might get sympathy.

"Singular," he remarked; "my mother has the same views concerning me that this lady has for you."

"And are you willing?" asked Mary.

"I am tempted in the matter on account of my situation. I am a stranger in a strange land. I lived in the east, graduated at an eastern college and came to California to seek my fortune. I live by myself without the city, have no means of making social acquaintances such as I have been accustomed to mingle with and am lonely."

"Would you, if your mother should find a mate for you, marry her without a courtship?"

"I think I would prefer at least to meet her before marriage, but those more experienced than I tell me that a courtship is a continued effort on the part of two persons each to make the other believe he or she is perfection, with the advantage on the side of the woman, who is more adept than the man in appearing at her best."

Mary remained thoughtful after this. She felt that if her proposed mate was not repulsive to her at their first meeting she would suffer herself to be guided by Mrs. Ashurst's views, marry him and hope for the best.

"We have," said the young man when the train was but a few miles from the terminal, "but a short time for an explanation that I have to make to you. Read that."

He handed her a letter addressed to her in the well known writing of Mrs. Ashurst. It read:

> This will be handed you by my son, Henry, whom you are going to meet. What is for your good is also for his. May you be happy together.

Mary looked up from the letter to the face of Harry Ashurst, which beamed with satisfaction. Neither spoke for a few moments. Harry bent down and kissed his betrothed. The first words were spoken by Mary:

"Such a dear, good mother must have a dear, good son."

Henry Ashurst, graduate of the —— Agricultural college, aided by the knowledge gained there of cultivating plants and his wife's love for flowers, did not remain long in the business of a general flower supply. With capital acquired in that way he established a rose house and every year adds a new glass conservatory to those he already has. His roses go in large quantities to the city, where they are sold at a good profit.

But young Mrs. Ashurst instead of taking up society has taken up a specialty. She interests herself in procuring homes for young girls. When they ask her if there was no romance in her marriage she says thoughtfully:

"Well, there were the flowers; we have the romance now."

SOME THEATER BORES.

Haven't you been annoyed at the theater—

By the enthusiastic friend who nudged you when there was an especially funny or telling point in the play?

By some one who insisted on telling the plot to a companion while you were listening to the actors on the stage?

By the man or woman in front who dodged about so you could scarcely get a glimpse of the stage?

By the criticisms or explanations of some one who had seen the play before?

By persons who came bustling in late, making you miss the opening of the play?

By the stranger who borrowed your opera glass or insisted on loaning you his or hers against your will?

If there wasn't so much miss-placed confidence there would be fewer breach of promise suits.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.—Liverpool cables were 1¼d to 2d higher, and Paris 1¼d higher, causing an extremely strong opening on the local market today to the extent of ¾d to 1¼d. The advance, however, did not last long. A decline set in owing to heavy profit taking, and the gain of the morning was lost, prices becoming steadier around yesterday's close.

A fairly heavy export trade is being carried on daily. One firm early in the day had worked 60,000 to 70,000 bushels of wheat, and fair sales are also being made of oats and barley. During the week the amount of sales for export has been heavy, and there appears to be enough wheat offered to fill requirements.

Winnipeg wheat option closed ⅛c lower, following a strong opening. Oats closed ⅛c to ⅜c lower. Flax closed 1¼c to 3c lower.

AN IMPOSTER'S TRICK.

The Cheerful Liar That Made a Fool of the Grand Monarch.

Louis XIV. was taken in once in a most humiliating way and by an impostor whose only art was lying. In 1667, just after he had returned from one of his most dazzling military successes against the Dutch, Louis le Grand received word that an embassy from Persia had just landed at Marseilles en route to the French court to bring salutations and presents from the Shah. Pleased that his fame should actually have run around the world, he sent word that all the towns on the way from Marseilles to Paris should fete the ambassador.

As a result the journey to Paris was a march of triumph. Children sang and flowers were strewn along the way. Arrived at Paris, several regiments of the Swiss guard met the Shah's representative and escorted him to a magnificent suite in the old palace of the Tuileries. Louis sent no less a person than the Duc de Richelieu to welcome the potentate and invite him out to Versailles to a special reception in the hall of mirrors.

The ambassador presented himself as Riza Bey of the Persian court, and after showing his credentials advanced to kiss the hand of Louis le Grand and give him the Shah's congratulations on his recent victories. A caravan of presents from his imperial sovereign were on their way and would arrive in Paris in a few days, said the ambassador.

Festivals followed at Versailles. The bey received magnificent presents from Louis and royal entertainment. He lounged gracefully on divans at the French court and smoked in Persian languor. He gave the grand monarque a few fragments of opal and turquoise, saying that they came from a Persian district bordering on the Caspian Sea. The woods there were full of them, he explained, and he offered to divide with France—had planted the French flag there already, as it were!

At last the day came for the formal presentation of the Shah's gifts, and on that morning early Riza Bey melted into space. He was never seen or heard of again. He had, as some one said, "gone glimmering through the dream of things that were." The gems that he had left were worth, if anything, about 15 cents apiece, being glass.

A Skeptic.

"Do you believe in telepathy?"

"Not fully," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "If it could be practically demonstrated there would have been a company formed to promote it long ago."—Washington Star.

A Mysterious Disappearance Solved

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

Some workmen tearing down a building in Paris, on reducing the level of a compartment, closet or something of the kind about big enough for one to stand in upright, came upon a human head. There was hair on it, but not much. It was more than a skull, yet not exactly a head. As the men went on lowering the walls they revealed a female figure in the clothing of a man, which crumbled as they proceeded downward.

The figure faced an iron door behind wainscoating. A panel was made, or, rather, had been made, to slide sideward, and the door behind it opened inward, leaving sufficient room for the figure to get into the closet and shut the door. There was a latch on the outside. The panel had originally been moved by weights and locked with a secret spring. But both door and panel had been walled up a long while before, and their existence had become unknown.

The master workman sent word of the find to the owner of the building, asking for instructions as to what to do in the matter. The owner came, accompanied by a gentleman wearing the button of the Legion of Honor, and the latter examined both the body and its incasement carefully. He was a professional antiquarian. He advised that the body be buried and began a search for the reason of its having occupied for so long the position in which it was found. In time he published in a Paris magazine the result of his investigations, the following being an abbreviation of a long story:

The building in which the body was found dated back to the reign of Louis XI. In this reign the king increased his power at the expense of the nobles, and the royal authority became absolute. His successors maintained what he had gained, and from that time down to the beginning of the reign of Louis XVI. the government was one of tyranny and intrigue.

In the reign of Louis XIII. plot and counterplot reached their height. The king was a weakling, and Cardinal Richelieu governed virtually in his stead. There were conspiracies against the king, the cardinal and every one connected with the court. At this time the building was occupied by the Marquis de Fontayne, a nobleman who was mixed up with these feuds and joined a coalition consisting of the king's brother and other persons to seize the government. Mlle. Louise de Fontayne, the marquis' daughter, was in love with Rissioli, one of those favorites Catherine de' Medici had brought with her from Italy.

Now, this Rissioli was as black hearted a villain as ever lived. Being implicated in that conspiracy which was the most formidable of all the plots against the king, when it was discovered his name was given to the prime minister as one who must be taken at all hazards. Knowing his influence with Mlle. de Fontayne, he fled to her house and begged her to conceal him.

Louise, who was a noble character, proposed that they exchange clothing. While she was being taken away in his stead he might escape as herself, and upon her identity being discovered she could rely on the influence of her father to save her from punishment for aiding and abetting the escape of one of the king's enemies. Rissioli acceded to this, and the exchange was made.

It was not long after this that the main door of the chateau was thrown open and a party of armed men burst in, seeking the Italian. It was plain that if they found him they would kill him on sight. He had expected this and had realized that whosoever they found personating him would be stabbed to death, but was too contemptible to decline to permit Louise taking this risk. Hearing the clamor below for his blood, he darted away, leaving Louise to her fate.

Louise, realizing that if found in Rissioli's clothes and mistaken for him she would be killed, ran to a secret closet of which she knew and intended for a place of concealment in case of danger. Having removed the panel and opened the door, she stepped into the closet, shutting both behind her.

Rissioli escaped to Italy and was never again seen in Paris. He being the only person with Mlle. de Fontayne when the party came for him and not knowing where she had gone, there was nobody in the secret of her hiding place. After the commotion she was missed. Day after day passed and she did not appear. Indeed, though every effort was made to find her it was unsuccessful.

The antiquary found records of this disappearance of Louise de Fontayne occurring at the time of the discovery of the conspiracy against the king. He also found a statement made by Rissioli giving an account of his being with Louise up to the time the men broke into the house and he and she darted away in different directions. This enabled the searcher of the story to tell it up to that moment.

A careful investigation was made of the apparatus for opening the doors of the closet with a view to determining why the imprisoned girl could not release herself, but so old and decayed were the apparatus and locks that it was impossible to tell why they had not worked. Only a hypothetical solution could be given. The iron door was found closed and locked. For some reason it could not be unlocked, but as to why there was no evidence.

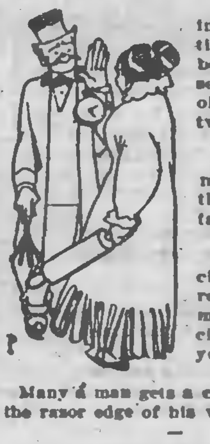
Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The man who pays the bills doesn't often speak, but when he does the rest are due to sit up and take notice.

Somehow we never seem to know how comfortable we are until discomfort comes along to hector us.



A boy believes in his father until he begins to believe in himself, and then the old man isn't one, two, three.

A few of us make good, and the rest of us talk about it.

Be clever, my child, and let the rest of the community have a chance to knock you.

Many a man gets a close shave from the razor edge of his wife's tongue.

Some men seem to think that because you take their word it gives them an excuse for taking your money.

When a man has to fall back on his sense of humor he is apt to give some one the laugh.

People who borrow trouble are apt to pay it back with exorbitant interest to people who never lend.

It is always the point of the joke that tickles our sense of humor.

The Only Time.

We're living once again, we are.
Old lethargy has got a jar,
And every blessed mother's son
Is looking for a large home run
And things that in such times are cast—
The baseball season's in full blast!

With checkers, authors and a few
Such games we passed the winter through,
Played snowball, maybe at a pinch
Pulled off a quiet game of cinch,
But still there was a vast and wide
Want that was never satisfied.

That want [illegible] you can guess.
That's right, [illegible] nothing less
Than quiet rooting and subdued
In language strong and many hued
And all the other things that go
To make the grand and only show.

And now we're in the happy days
When any one may catch the craze,
When any one who has the price
May on the rooters' bench cut ice
Or, failing that, may look across
The fence and grumble at his loss.

Then all in friendly chorus call
To experts uniformed, "Play ball!"
And let us drop our business cares,
Our labors and such small affairs
And hie us to the diamond where
They play the only game that's square.

Sure Indication.

"Percy is devotion itself so far as Ethel is concerned."

"Yes; she says she quite loves him."

"Poor fellow!"

"Why do you say that?"

"I see she means to refuse him."

Not to Be Thought Of.

"They are always quarreling."

"Yes."

"Wonder why they can't agree."

"It would be fatal."

"Fatal! To what?"

"Their constitutional contrariety."

PRAYING FOR BRITAIN

Mohammedans in India Offset Turkish Action

SIMLA, British India, Nov. 2.—(Via London.)—The announcement of the unfriendly attitude of Turkey toward the allies was made throughout India yesterday in an official communication, wherein the Viceroy of India deplores "the endeavor of a Chauvinistic element to drive Turkey into a war with Great Britain for the benefit of Germany and Austria."

The reception which the announcement received in the outlying districts will not be known for some days, but responsible leaders of the Mohammedan community already are holding meetings in support of Great Britain, while the mosques are offering prayers for the success of the British arms. The Mullahs are preaching homilies urging Turkey to maintain a neutrality or side with the allies.

Out of France By Nov. 20.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—It was stated on Saturday at the headquarters of Gen. Gallieni that all fear of a successful coast raid by the Germans has been dispelled as the result of the last few days' fighting and that all Germans in France will have been driven out by Nov. 20.

Confesses To Murder of Five.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 2. — Scott Stone Saturday made a written confession that he murdered his wife and four children at Tolona, Ill., Sept. 28, by dynamiting his home while they were asleep. Stone afterwards enlisted in the United States army here under an assumed name.

P.C.I. THIRDS WON IN LAKEFIELD GAME

P.C.I. Thirds performed against Grove School of Lakefield on Saturday afternoon at the Grove School campus. The Pikes were far too strong and had an easy victory. The final score was 41-6 in their favor. The work of Jack Green of the P.C.I. team was about the only bright feature of the conflict, his tackling and running being superb.

PROGRESS OF DAIRYING

The report of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner for the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1914, has just been issued.

This report deals with the progress of dairying: the expanding home market, the export trade, the importation of New Zealand butter, and the work of the Finch and Brome dairy stations, of the extension of markets division, of the fruit division, and of the division of cold storage.

In the appendices, of which there are eight, the reports of the chiefs of the various divisions are given; these include many details illustrative not only of their work but of the progress being made in dairying, marketing, storing and shipping fruit.

This report, which is issued as Sessional Paper No. 15a, is a volume of 112 pages. Copies are available upon application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

THE BELL AT LLOYD'S.

Tells When a Ship Is Posted In the Chamber of Horrors.

One of the most interesting of bells is the one at Lloyd's, the great London marine insurance exchange. Its ringing has more significance than the sound of most bells, for it is rung only when a vessel is reported lost or when a ship long overdue and considered lost unexpectedly reaches port.

The bell now used at Lloyd's belonged to the Lutine, which was wrecked near the Zuyder Zee in October, 1799, while taking specie from English merchants to Hamburg.

There is a room at Lloyd's known as the chamber of horrors, and here are posted the telegrams that report casualties at sea. Unimportant accidents are not entered in the loss book, but the most serious are not only entered there, but are cried aloud by an official who stands in gorgeous uniform beneath the sounding board.

When after a week's disappearance it is feared that a vessel has gone down the owners make an application to the committee at Lloyd's to have the ship posted. That is done by posting up a notice in the chamber of horrors which says that the authorities would be glad of information concerning the boat.

A week elapses, and then a second notice is put up, saying that the boat has not since been heard of. When you read that a ship has been "posted" as missing you may know that declaration is upon the notice board at Lloyd's. On that day the insurance money is payable, and all who were upon her are legally considered dead. When a ship is posted the old Lutine bell is tolled once. In the very unusual event of a vessel arriving in port after being posted the bell is struck twice, and the caller makes his announcement from the rostrum amid a breathless silence.—Youth's Companion.

Fell Into Mine Shaft.

KINGSTON, Nov. 2.—Jas. Abrams, aged 25, was killed; Thomas Stevens had his leg broken, and another man whose name is not known, had a narrow escape. The men were doing some work around a dismantled shaft of a mica mine at Sydenham Village, when some of the timbers gave way and the men fell into the shaft, a distance of 40 feet.

Abrams met almost instant death. He was married. Dr. D. E. Mundell, coroner, of this city, has been notified and will hold an inquest to-day. Stevens, the injured man, was brought to the Kingston General Hospital.

King Albert Meets Poincare.

HAVRE, Nov. 2.—Having left the firing line in Belgium to receive President Poincare, who paid them a visit of ceremony, King Albert and the Queen are here "on furlough." The royal couple soon will return to the war zone. King Albert, whose democracy is patent in his sayings to the soldiers, "My skin is worth no more than yours," visits all parts of the trenches encouraging his troops, and Queen Elizabeth takes an active part in the field hospital work and does notably efficient work because of her medical training.

GERMANS HAVE NOT GAINED ONE MILE IN THE LAST WEEK

Although They Have Suffered Appalling Losses, the Kaiser's Troops Have Not Profited by Desperate Attempt to Get to the Channel---Destruction of Dykes Drives Them Back.

LONDON, Nov. 2. — While in the centre of the battle line in France, the Kaiser's forces have made gains of great importance, for instance, in the locality near Vailly, where the French troops were beaten back to the south bank of the River Aisne, the Germans were checked yesterday in their latest attempt to advance on the line of battle between Nieuport, Belgium and Arras, France.

The Germans, as though beginning to obey with a will the Kaiser's reputed order: "Take Calais or die," with renewed fury and desperate vigor hurled themselves against the French and British near La Bassee. It is the Kaisers' great desire, apparently, to gain possession of the canal routes to the sea coast, and probably assemble on the coast in time to check the rush of Italian troops into the northwestern theatre of war. The British this time checked the Germans in the vicinity of La Bassee.

In the meantime French troops are marching from important defensive positions west of Roulers.

The German army headquarters issued the following yesterday morning: "The operations in Belgium have been rendered difficult owing to inundations of the Yser and the Ypres canals by the destruction of the sluices at Nieuport. Our troops have advanced near Ypres. At least 600 prisoners were captured, also some British guns.

"Forces fighting to the westward of Lille also have progressed. A number of prisoners were taken near Vailly—about 1,500.

"In the region of Verdun there has been only insignificant fighting.

"In the northeast the battle against the Russians is still indecisive."

The fighting in Flanders and in France has been but a repetition of that which has been going on for days past. The Germans have continued to push their attack, which was aimed at placing them in possession of the French coast ports, but, as before, it has been a ding-dong affair, first one side making progress only to lose the ground gained on the next day or night.

From the point of view of the allies, their position is satisfactory, as the Germans are no nearer to their goal than they were a week ago. There have been tremendous losses, which for once cannot be exaggerated, while the capture of a few prisoners and guns from one side or the other is a matter of daily occurrence, fighting has become more severe along the River Aisne, in the Argonne forest, and along the River Meuse, between Verdun and Toul, but so far without making any appreciable change in the fronts of the two armies.

A despatch from Rotterdam to The Evening News, dated Saturday, says: "Esschen, a Belgian town on the Dutch border, directly north of Antwerp, has been occupied by German soldiers and marines, who are preparing winter quarters there.

"The Germans are strengthening and mining the roads around Brussels, Grammont, Antwerp, Lokeren and Ghent.

"Six submarines which arrived at Antwerp by rail are now being fitted and tried in dock."

"The way to Bruges is now open to the allies owing to their recapture of Roulers, and the Germans are digging new trenches behind Ghent with feverish energy. To do this is to announce their retreat." This statement is made in The Observer in a despatch dated "near the Franco-Belgian frontier."

The Paris War Office announces that in spite of the statements from German sources that Verdun was destroyed, the town never was struck by German shells. One fort, called Bouamont, was bombarded at long range by the enemy, but no damage was done notwithstanding the cannonading of 24 hours' duration.

The French troops continue to bar the road to Verdun.

Reports of German victories in the Argonne region are asserted to be without foundation.

It is officially reported, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Paris, that when the French captured Quesney-Sur-Deule, six miles northwest of Lille, Saturday they took 200 prisoners, two guns and a large number of quick-firers.

GERMAN ATTACKS ARE FRUITLESS

Assaults Have Been Repulsed At Several Points

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The following official communication was issued in Paris last night:

"In Belgium there is nothing new to report.

"During the day we have repulsed violent attacks of the enemy in the vicinity of Lihons, Lequesnoy-en-Santerre, Vailly on the Aisne, and in the Bois de la Grurie, in the Argonne forest.

"To the north of Souain we have continued to make slight progress.

"In the Vosges, through our offensive movements, we have taken possession of the heights of Varsines de Sainte Marie."

The French official statement issued at three o'clock yesterday afternoon says: "There is nothing new to report on the Nieuport and Dixmude front.

"The Germans have continued their fierce attacks throughout the region to the northeast and south of Ypres. All these attacks have been repulsed, and we have made slight progress to the north of Ypres and progressed perceptibly to the eastward of this locality.

"At daybreak hostile forces debouching from the Lys succeeded in seizing Hallebeche and Messines, but these two villages were retaken towards evening by vigorous counter attacks on the part of the allied forces.

"Upon the rest of the battlefront yesterday (Saturday) was marked by violent cannonading and several counter-attacks of the enemy, which were intended to recover the ground conquered by us during the last few days.

"The struggle is still very violent in the Argonne region, where the Germans, however, have made no progress.

"According to statistics furnished by our service in the rear, 7,683 German prisoners were interned during the week of Oct. 14-20 alone. These figures do not include the convalescent wounded in our field hospitals, nor the detachments which are ready to be sent from the front to the rear."

If it is such a good thing to do to cheer up, with so many people telling them to do so it is a wonder more people don't do it.

TSINGTAU BURNING.

Desperate Fighting Going On at Far East Fortress.

TOKIO, Nov. 2. — Official advices show that a desperate fight is being made at Tsingtau. For miles from shore the sea reflects the flames from the burning ship yards, gas reservoirs and houses that had been set afire by shells from the Japanese and British warships and land artillery which cover the rushes of the infantry.

The Germans are strongly entrenched, having at least thirty-five fortified positions, with 100 guns, while elaborate systems of barbed wire entanglements and subterranean mines have impeded the advance of the allies. Since Oct. 28 there have been casualties daily. The losses Saturday were slight.

Be prepared for the worst, and you will usually get the best of it.

FEARS FOR MISSIONARIES.

Berlin, Ont., Mennonites Are In Danger In Turkey.

BERLIN, Ont., Nov. 2.—Fear for the safety of a number of Mennonite missionaries in Turkey is entertained here. The headquarters of these missionaries are at Everett and Hadgin, and although they have $2,000 in the banks in those places they cannot withdraw their accounts owing to seizure by the Turkish authorities.

The British consuls, in these places are endeavoring to see them safe to the border. Their houses have been taken for military purposes by the Turkish Government.

Those from Ontario in that section of Turkey are Mrs. Barker and two children, the family of Rev. Mr. Barker who is now home on deputation work; Mr. and Mrs. D. Eby, Mr. and Mrs. Storms, while Misses Bredemus, Lambert, Tomey and Misses Bowman are from Indiana.

Lansdowne's Son Was Killed.

LONDON, Nov. 2. — Lord Nairne, the second son of the Marquis of Lansdowne, Conservative leader in the House of Lords, has been killed in action. He was a major in the 1st Dragoons and served in the South African war.

Lord Nairne was born in 1874. In 1904 he married Lady Violet Mary Elliott, daughter of the fourth Earl of Minto, who was a former Governor-General of Canada. Since 1910 Lord Nairne had been an equerry-in-waiting to King George.

Hon. P. S. G. MacKenzie Dead.

QUEBEC, Nov. 2. — The sudden death of Hon. Peter S. G. MacKenzie at his home in Melbourne, Que., at an early hour yesterday came as a severe shock to his many friends in this city. Mr. MacKenzie's death is attributed to apoplexy or heart failure.

Hon. Mr. MacKensie was born in Cumberland House, Hudson Bay Territory, on Dec. 19, 1862. He was married two years ago to Miss Ponfold of the Eastern Townships.

MILLIONS FOR THE BELGIANS

Rockefeller Foundation Will Render Aid to Non-Combatants

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The Rockefeller foundation has determined to employ its immense resources for the relief of non-combatants in the countries affected by the war, and stands ready to give "millions of dollars" if necessary for the purpose. This was announced Saturday night by John D. Rockefeller, jr., president of the foundation.

In pursuance of this philanthropy, the foundation will send a commission to Europe in a few days to report first hand as to how, when and where aid can be rendered most effectively. At a cost of $275,000 it already has charted a ship and loaded it with 4,000 tons of provisions for the relief of the starving Belgians.

Mr. Rockefeller has been in communication with Ambassador Page at London, and makes public a cablegram in which the Ambassador says that "it will require a million dollars a month for seven or eight months to prevent starvation."

ITALIAN CABINET FACES CRISIS

Ministry Resigns on War Tax Disagreement

ROME, Nov. 2.—The members of the Cabinet presented their resignations to the King Saturday night. The King reserved decision and invited the Presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies and leading statesmen to confer with him on the situation. It is generally believed that Premier Salandra will be asked to form a new Cabinet within a few days.

Following the resignation of the Cabinet all Italy is aflame with the war fever. Public sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of the allies, the people demanding to be led against the Germans and Turks. Demonstrations took place in many cities yesterday, and in some instances troops had to be called to prevent rioting.

The army is mobilized and one million men are ready to go on the fighting line. If Albania should be seized by either Turkey or Austria, Italy's control of the Adriatic would be seriously imperilled.

It is asserted that Gen. Zuppelli and Vice-Admiral Viale will retain respectively the portfolios of marine and war.

All the Cabinet Ministers who resigned Saturday met yesterday in the presence of King Victor Emmanuel, with whom they discussed the situation for about two hours.

Owing to the European crisis, Signor Rubini continued, the revenues instead of increasing had diminished by about $20,000,000, the new taxation bringing in $6,000,000 instead of $16,000,000. He added that he recognized that necessary for urgent military expenses, but wished to counterbalance them with new taxations.

A majority of the Ministers preferred to postpone the taxation until after the war.

LOSSES ARE ENORMOUS

German Casualties in Flanders Alone Total 150,000 Men

LONDON, Nov. 2. — A correspondent of The Observer, writing from France, says: "The German losses have been enormous. A German officer captured yesterday estimated that there have been 150,000 killed or wounded since the occupation of Ostend, in Northwest Flanders alone. Whole batteries and battalions have been annihilated by the shell fire from the warships. Thousands have been drowned as the result of the opening of the dykes. In hand-to-hand fighting the German losses have far exceeded those of the allies. Thousands of bodies of Germans floating on the inland sea bear bayonet wounds.

"Only the main roads and railroad tracks remain exposed above the flooded area. The shattered German regiments are being given no time to re-form and amalgamate. They are abandoning their wounded, guns and transports. Unless their fleet comes out to create a diversion they will be driven from the Belgian coast within a week."

REAR GUARD IS ROUTED

Russians Administer Further Defeats to Retreating Germans

PETROGRAD, Nov. 2.—The Russian General Staff makes the following communication:

"On the East Prussian front our troops are progressing in the direction of Wladislow, government of Zuwalki and the forest of Romentin.

"The German attacks in the direction of Bakalarzevo, on Oct. 31, have ceased, following terrible losses suffered by the enemy.

"Beyond the Vistula we have advanced victoriously along the whole front. We have occupied Petrikau, Opotozno and Ojoroff. Battles took place on the roads leading to Opatoff, where we routed the rear guard of the enemy. We took 40 prisoners and captured six rapid fire guns, convoys and provisions.

"Upon the San river, near Lesachovo, a Russian regiment which had entrenched itself step by step, reached the enemy's position and, profiting by the panic among the Austrians, took by assault a temporary fort. Five officers and 500 soldiers were taken prisoners and five rapid-fire guns were captured.

"A column of the enemy which descended from the Carpathians and fortified itself near Nadvarna, was attacked and put to flight.

Crown Prince Was Leading.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Daily Mail publishes a despatch on the Russian campaign, saying that the German Crown Prince especially requested that he be allowed to command the assault on the Vistula river lines.

"For this plan," says the despatch, "very large forces were assembled. The best Prussian troops were allotted to the Crown Prince in the centre with heavy siege guns and Austrian cavalry.

"The unexpected vigor of the Russian counter-attack carried all before it. The Crown Prince's army gave way, abandoning much material and 36 heavy guns which were bogged in the mud. The attempt to rally at Radom proved an utter failure and the pursuit continues."

ULTIMATUM TO BALKANS.

Novoe Vremya Says If Allies Accord With Turkey It Will Be Treason.

ROME, Nov. 2. — A great impression has been produced in Rome by an article appearing in the Russian newspaper Novoe Vremya, which is considered in Italian political circles to be an ultimatum for the Balkan States and also a warning for the neutral countries.

"The Balkans," the newspaper says, "cannot forget their past slavery, and that they became free chiefly through Russian intervention. Now, the moment has come, not for words, but for deeds. Whoever is not with us is against us.

"Bulgaria, freed by Russia, cannot remain a spectator in the war. Her least attempt at accord with an enemy of Russia will be considered treason. Bulgaria must choose between Turkey and Russia.

"At the end of the war only the participators in the gigantic conflict," the newspaper concludes, "will be invited to the banquet. Whoever thinks he will snatch a mouthful without having made the necessary sacrifices, will be much mistaken."

The race is to the swift and the battle to the strong if the first be swift enough and the latter strong enough.

OTTOMAN EMPIRE IS NOW AT WAR WITH ALLIES

Turkish Troops Have Entered British Protectorate While Berlin Despatch Says the Porte Has Formally Annexed Egypt---Turkish Fleet is Reported to be Menacing Ports on the Black Sea.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Turkey has definitely thrown in her lot with Austria and Germany, and if Portugal is counted, there now are eleven powers at war, with prospects of three more —Greece, Bulgaria and Roumania— being drawn in.

It is reported here to-day that eight army corps (240,000 men) of the Sultan have crossed into Egypt.

A despatch from Rome says that it is reported that 400,000 Turkish troops are massed on the Caucasian border, and that 300,000 are awaiting at Jaffa, Beirut and Syrian ports for transportation to the Sinai Peninsula. All of these ports are guarded by French and British men-of-war.

The same despatch says that official notice of the mobilization of the Greek army has been served on the Italian Government.

The brother-in-law of the Khedive of Egypt, Prince Asuouf, now in Rome, has issued a statement declaring that Turkey is making the worst move of her career by going to war with the allies.

The note which Great Britain presented to Turkey on Friday last, demanding an explanation of the actions of the Turkish fleet in the Black Sea and the dismantling of the former German cruisers, the Goeben and the Breslau, was really an ultimatum, to which Turkey was requested to make a reply by Saturday morning.

So far as is known here, telegraphic communication with Turkey being interrupted, no answer was made, and the Ambassadors at the Ottoman capital of the Triple Entente, it is understood demanded and received their passports.

Turkish troops, which have been on the Egyptian border for some time, already are reported to have crossed the frontier, while the Turkish fleet continues to menace Russian towns and shipping in the Black Sea.

Turkey has formally annexed Egypt, according to a German official statement, which has been received from Berlin by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co.

Petrograd reports that the Turkish ambassador was given his passports yesterday.

Turkey's communications with Europe and Asia have been cut.

The Turkish Minister of the Interior informed Mr. Morgenthaux, U. S. Ambassador at Constantinople, that Turkish warships within the last three days had bombarded Sebastopol.

Neither Russia nor Great Britain was unprepared for this move on the part of Turkey which, Government officials say, was known to have been under the influence of Germany and the allied powers have forces on hand ready to oppose a Turkish invasion.

When the regular forces were withdrawn from Egypt to take part in the war in Europe they were immediately replaced by troops from home, much greater in numbers at least, and only last week they paraded through the streets of Cairo, making a splendid impression.

The British Foreign Office statement says:

"The Turkish Minister of War, with his German advisers, has lately prepared an armed force for attack upon Egypt. The Mosul and Damascus army corps have, since their mobilization, been constantly sending troops south, preparatory to the invasion of Egypt and the Suez Canal. From Akabah and Gaza, a large body of Bedouin Arabs has been called out and armed to assist in this venture, and some of these have crossed the Sinai frontier. Transports has been collected and roads have been prepared up to the frontier of Egypt.

"Mines have been despatched to be laid in the Gulf of Akabah.

"The notorious Sheik Asis Shawiab has published and disseminated through Syria and probably India, an inflammatory document urging the Mohammedans to fight against Great Britain."

Dr. Pruffer, who was so long engaged in intrigues in Cairo against British occupation, and who is now attached to the German embassy in Constantinople, has been busily occupied in Syria to incite the people to take part in this conflict.

OBITUARY

MRS. AGNES FOSTER.

Mrs. Agnes Foster died today in her 67th year. She was born in Scotland and came to this country when very young with her parents, settling in this vicinity. Her maiden name was Agnes Telford. Her death will be a great shock to her many friends by whom she was highly respected.

Left to mourn his loss are one mother, Mrs. Telford, who is 94 years of age, also three sisters, Mrs. Lowes, Mount Pleasant, Mrs. W. Ford, Toronto, Mrs. J. Record, East City; one brother, Thomas of Gates, N.Y., and one son, John of this city. The funeral will take place from the family residence, 218 Wolfe St., on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. Rev. R. B. Grobb will conduct a service at the house at 2 o'clock.

PARENTS BEREAVED.

The death took place yesterday of Florence Elizabeth, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Becroft, formerly of Hamilton.

The funeral took place this afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery.

LENA BATES.

The death took place in Nicholls Hospital yesterday of Lena Bates.

The funeral will take place from the Margaret Cox Home tomorrow at 3.30 to Little Lake Cemetery.

Rev. R. G. Peever will conduct the service at 2 o'clock.

CATHERINE PERRIN.

The death occurred Saturday at the House of Providence of Catherine Perrin, in her 82nd year. Funeral took place in Norwood today.

FRANK BROWN.

The death of Frank Brown removes an old and highly respected resident of this city. He had been a life long resident here, and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends.

Deceased had been ailing for about a week from appendicitis and his death which was a great shock to the community took place early yestefday morning at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Left to mourn her loss are one sister, Mrs. J. Bryson, of this city; two brothers, John of this city, and Peter in Massachusetts. He was in his sixteenth year. Brownton was named after him.

The funeral will leave his late residence, corner of Monaghan Road and Lundy's Lane tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock to Sacred Heart Church, and St. Peter's Cemetery.

Yesterday at the Church of the Sacred Heart Rev. J. J. O'Brien paid a tribute to the late Mr. Brown, remarking how his regularity in attending various church services and the pactical Catholic life he lead was an example for the rest of the community. In the death of Mr. Brown, one of the most prominent parishioners of the Church of the Sacred Heart has passed away.

Tonight the members of the Sacred Heart T.A.S. will assemble in their hall at eight o'clock and proceed to the late residence of the deceased.

Rebels Defeated

LONDON, Nov. 2.—A despatch to Reuters Telegram Co. from Cape Town says:

"Col. Alberts has defeated the rebels in the Lichtenburg district of the Transvaal, killing thirteen, wounding 30, and capturing 240. Among the captured is Commandant Clauscens.

"Commandant De Villiers was out reconnoitering when he met a strong rebel commando with white flags attached to their rifles. De Villiers approached the band, whereupon the rebels attacked him and captured 110 of his men. The rebels then advanced against Col. Alberts force from two directions, but Alberts defeated them and chased them twenty miles across the border. In their flight the rebels discarded their carts and bicycles."

Good form

Bohemian Supper.

The invitations to a Bohemian supper are supposed to go to only one's most intimate friends and those who are talented, for people who can "do things" to entertain others are always in demand.

For the true Bohemian supper one must be the possessor of enough individual chafing dishes, silver, copper or aluminium to go around, for each guest may choose and prepare his or her own special dainty undisturbed when the spirit moves and while the entertainment progresses. If one has not a large stock they can always be rented for the occasion.

The lights are all yellow shaded, the flowers are yellow and those in season that are most decorative. Each chafing dish outfit is on its tray. The hostess presides over one large dish, which contains usually her favorite lobster a la Newburg, and many guests prefer it to making a dish for themselves.

On the sideboard should be ingredients for a number of dishes. These may include mushrooms, sweetbreads, minced chicken, oysters, clams, lobsters and other well known foundations, with sauce accompaniments known to international cookery. In the center of the table is the revolving relish dish, surrounded by crackers, cheeses and various breads.

National drinks that go with the edibles are in evidence. The final thing to be served is the Turkish coffee with its spiced and burning brandy, and it is accompanied by Turkish candy, which is generally partaken of by all present.

Gossiping In Public.

One of the most common habits that is reprehensible is that of discussing personal affairs in public. They may be your own affairs or they may be matters that concern others. At any rate, they should not be discussed in the hearing of strangers.

The withholding of names is no excuse. Very frequently a listener has been able to follow a conversation and to know perfectly the ones under discussion. Women who have the habit of talking in this way in public seem to think that no one knows anything but themselves.

Street cars, railroad trains, elevators, restaurants and the promenade where there are crowds are places where the conversation should be restrained. Keep your gossip if you must indulge in this evil practice for your own home.

Even then it will probably be repeated with a different accent and given a different interpretation. Generally speaking, gossip brings a punishment on the one who is responsible for it as well as working incalculable harm.

Timing House Guests.

It is good form and entirely correct to make the dates for visits from your friends suit your own convenience, with due regard, of course, to when it will be possible for them to come. You can say: "Can you spend the last two weeks in September with us? I have invited Miss B. and her brother, Mr. and Mrs. C. and Mr. F., so, you see, we shall be a party of eight, just enough for tennis, rowing, etc. Do send me a line to say you will be here the 15th, and we will meet you," etc. Such an invitation leaves no room for doubt as to length of visit.

Your friend will understand that she is expected to arrive on the 15th of September and stay the fortnight, expiring on the 30th.

Dinner Service.

Where the hostess has a handsome set of silverware it is customary to place it upon the sideboard, and also any silver or ware that is to be used during a formal dinner is placed ready to hand. The observance of this saves much tribulation of spirit for hostess and help. If her help is trained she knows there will be no gap in the service. If untrained, a half hour lesson to initiate them will be well spent.

As Honor Guest.

When a young lady is the guest of honor at any entertainment given for her every one should be presented to her, older or younger, for the reason that her host and hostess are making her their honor guest and others they wish her to know are invited to meet her.

Clearing the Table.

A waitress should be instructed not to pile up dishes when clearing the table, but to set them noiselessly upon a large platter; also to remove everything not pertaining to dessert and to remove the crumbs from the cloth before serving the last course.

Crochet Bonbon Baskets.

Crochet bonbon baskets are shaped like the little French gilt baskets and are three inches tall from the bottom to the top of the handle. They are especially designed to use with the Irish crochet doilies and centerpieces.

May Suspend Patents.

Hon Martin Burrell has by order-in-council been given power under the War Measures Act passed at the emergency session of Parliament to deal with the question of patents held in Canada by alien enemies.

No general cancellation of these patents is contemplated at the present time, and the provisions of the order are substantially the same as the rules passed by the British Board of Trade under the Imperial War Measure, which state that patents may be suspended during the war and for six months after its conclusion.

A Polished Diplomat.

"Did you see anything that particularly struck your fancy when you were looking around the furniture shops to-day?" asked a young husband of his bride on her return from a tour of furniture inspection.

"Yes," she replied, "I saw something exceedingly pretty in looking glasses."

"I have no doubt you did," he observed, "if you looked into them."

And the halo of a calm, sweet peace rests upon that home.

Making Sure.

"How shall I express my sentiments toward you?" said the infatuated young man tenderly.

"On paper, please," said the lovely, but clear sighted, girl. "Then there can be no chance of your wriggling out of it."—London Telegraph.

Where They Differed.

"I always try to look at everything from both sides."

"Your wife tells a different story."

"How's that?"

"She says you haven't seen the inside of a church for years."—Chicago Herald.

WOMAN IN HISTORY.

She Appears to Have Got Herself on a Good Many Pages.

Some advocates of equal suffrage and feminine progress seem to think that woman has not been given her proper place and due credit in history.

And yet, don't you know, we had not observed the historic discrimination against woman! On the contrary, the place of woman in history has looked pretty good to us.

What about Joan of Arc? And Charlotte Corday? And Rebecca the Jewess? Anything namby pamby in them? Who said Martha Washington and Florence Nightingale? Then there are —don't let everybody speak at once— Ruth and Rachel and Potiphar's wife, not to mention Lot's.

You bet Caudle had no contempt for Mrs. Caudle, nor Mantalini for the madame.

We need not go so far back as Cleopatra and Aspasia except to remark that in their day they cut a rather wide swath around Alexandria and Athens, and appear no small bunch of radishes on both the dramatic stage and the historic page. Moll Pitcher was a bummer in American history and Sal Jennings a loller in English history; Meg Merrilies was no slouch. Does Catharine of Russia count for nothing, nor Maria Theresa of Austria, nor Elizabeth and Victoria of Britain, among feminine sovereigns?

Gracious, here come trooping in at the door, their bright eyes shining and their rosy cheeks glowing, Jessie Brown of Lucknow and Jeanie Deans of Midlothian, and Ethel Newcome and Lucy Fontain and Florence Dombey, God bless their sweet souls, each and every one!—Louisville Courier Journal.

Protect the House Wren.

The rich, bubbling song of the house wren is one of the sweetest sounds in country life. It behooves the farmer's boy to provide wren boxes, the entrances to which are about an inch in diameter, nailing these in the gables of barns and outhouses and orchard trees. Grasshoppers, beetles, caterpillars, bugs and spiders are the bird's principal items of food, but cutworms, weevils, ticks and plant lice are eaten in large quantities.

Exaggerated Evils of Insomnia.

Of the five minor exciting causes of functional nerve disease insomnia is the chief, and its intrinsic evil effect is invariably exaggerated by the importance attached to it by the sufferer himself. If a man does not mind lying awake quite half the mischief is obviated, but in nervous people the idea of fatigue doubles the actual exhaustion.—Schofield's "Functional Nerve Diseases."

Ground Flat.

An old couple from the country were in town on a holiday, and on going along one of the streets they saw above one of the stair doors "James Simpson, Ground Flat," when the old woman was heard to remark: "Sic a death. Surely he's been run oor wi' a steam roller."—London Mail.

Should Lay Plans Now.

In a special appeal to the farmers of the prairie provinces, with a view to securing the greatest possible production of wheat next year, Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, urges that particular care be taken to get both summer fallow and stubble land into good shape this fall by plowing and harrowing, then to be all ready for seeding in the spring. The work being done well and only the best seed being used the wheat yield, he says, can be increased millions of bushels in this way.

Just Like George.

A mother met her husband at the door with a telegram one Saturday.

"Our son," she gasped, "wires us that at football this afternoon he broke his left leg and his nose."

MR. BOWSER'S TRAMP

Our Hero Makes Amends for an Unfeeling Woman

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

THE girl being out, it was Mrs. Bowser who answered a ring at the front door at 8 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Bowser had finished his cigar and was half asleep, but he roused up and caught her words as she said:

"Nothing for you this evening. I gave you money two or three days ago."

"Who was that?" asked Mr. Bowser.

"A big, lazy tramp. He has called here four or five times in succession. It's a wonder the police allow such men to ply their vocation!"

"But you spoke to him mighty curtly."

"Of course I did. I got through saying 'please' to tramps long ago."

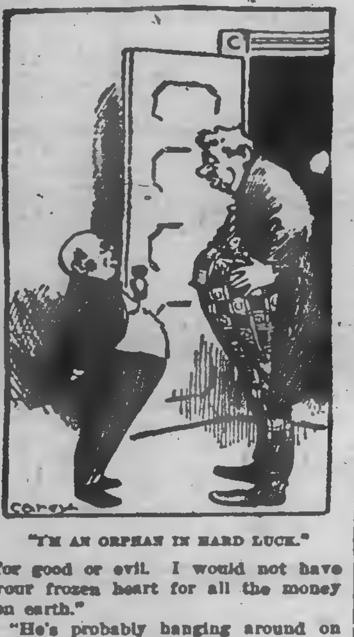
"In other words, you didn't care whether you hurt his feelings or not. It was not enough that he must go away with hunger unsatisfied, probably to walk the streets all night, but you must add to his miseries by your cruel words."

"Perhaps I ought to have invited him in and given him the guest's chamber for the night!"

"There is no call for sarcasm," said Mr. Bowser. "A tramp is simply an unfortunate. He is entitled to our sympathies. If people extended an encouraging hand there would be no tramps. You are like all the rest—you want to kick a man when he's down. I shan't envy your feelings if that poor man is found dead tomorrow morning."

"What do you want me to do?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"I want you to speak kindly and gently, even if you can give nothing. A word may turn one of these men for good or evil. I would not have your frozen heart for all the money on earth."



"I'M AN ORPHAN IN HARD LUCK."

"He's probably hanging around on the block yet. Why don't you call him in and extend your sympathies?"

Acts on Mrs. Bowser's Suggestion.

"Your suggestion is a good one. I will call him in."

"Don't be foolish."

"Never you mind about my foolishness. That poor old tramp shall be made to understand that there is at least one person with feelings on this street."

Next minute Mr. Bowser was on the front doorsteps. He hadn't the least idea of finding the tramp and therefore was disagreeably surprised to find the fellow leaning against the gate. As he had started in to raise a racket, he must carry it out, and he could do no less than call the man in. He proved to be a big, strong "tourist," with a red nose and a strong smell of whisky about him, and there was nothing gentle or sympathetic in his tones as he stopped in the hall and said:

"If it's ashes you want carried out I've got a lame back and can't do it."

"Are you hungry?" asked Mr. Bowser as he conducted him to the dining room and found Mrs. Bowser gone.

"Not just this minute. What I want is to raise the money for a night's lodging. If you can spare me a quarter, old man, I'll never forget it. I'm an orphan in hard luck."

Weary Willie Makes Himself at Home.

Mr. Bowser winced at the familiarity, but invited the man to sit down. The invitation was not promptly accepted, but the tramp pulled a pipe from his pocket and looked inquiringly about in search of tobacco and a light.

"You need money, of course," said Mr. Bowser after awhile, "but you also need something else. If you could feel that the world sympathized with you it would give you encouragement and ambition to make a new start."

"It would, sir. Yes, Uncle Joe, you have struck it dead right. What I'm after is sympathy and money."

"The want of kind words must harden your heart."

"It do, sir. Yes, sir, when I'm turned away from a door I feel like killing some one."

"It is not your fault that you are down."

"Not at all, old pard. I held three aces and bet all my money on 'em, but the other feller had four kings. I ought to have won on them three aces."

"You would like to make a new start in life, wouldn't you?" asked Mr. Bowser, but without much interest in his voice.

"You bet! Yes, sir, you just sympathize with me for about four weeks and put up a hundred in cash and I'll make a new start. I'll blossom out in some sort of game to skin the public and divide the profits with you. Give me your hand. You are a trump, you are!"

Mr. Bowser's Ire Aroused.

"Look here, but I don't like your way of talking," said Mr. Bowser, as he rose up, "you evidently need manners more than sympathy."

"And what's manners got to do with it?" impudently queried the man. "You invited me in here to sympathize with me and pony up. I'm not doing the society act."

"I—I'm afraid you are not in need of sympathy. If you are, I've got none to give you."

"Oh, you ain't? What's your little game, grandpa? Did you call me in to make a fool of me?"

"Who are you addressing as grandpa?" demanded Mr. Bowser, as he bristled up.

"Well, I'm sorry if you don't like it. Come down with a plunk and I'll go."

"I'll come down with nothing, sir! I find that I've been mistaken in you. You are evidently an old bum instead of an unfortunate man!"

"And you invited me in here to say so, didn't you? Your wife turns me away cool as ice, and then you invite me in to hurt my feelings. Don't monkey with Tom the Tourist!"

"I'll see you out!" replied Mr. Bowser, as he preceded him to the door.

"And no plunk?"

"Not a penny!"

"And I'm an old bum?"

"You are!"

"Then smell that!"

His Visitor Also Loses His Temper.

The "that" was the tramp's fist, and it smashed against Mr. Bowser's nose with such force as to land him on the floor in a sitting position and brought blood pouring out over his chin. It was a couple of minutes before he could struggle up and figure out what had happened, and then the tramp had disappeared. Mrs. Bowser hadn't, though. From her position on the stairs she had seen and heard all. As Mr. Bowser stood with his hands to his nose she called down:

"Did you speak kindly to him, dear?"

Mr. Bowser looked up at her and gasped—but he couldn't say a word.

"He seemed to have new aims and ambition as he went out!" she said, as she sat down on the stairs.

Mr. Bowser began jumping up and down, but the words wouldn't come.

"I'm sorry about my frozen heart," she went on, "and you'd better go down to the kitchen to wash the blood off. When you"—

He didn't wait to hear any more. She had been in bed two hours when he came softly upstairs and undressed in the darkness and without uttering a word. He wanted to say thousands of things and yell them out at the top of his voice, but his nose was swelled to three times its usual size, his back ached, and he was in a hurry to get to bed and sleep. He owed Mrs. Bowser one, but it was on ice to keep till the next time.

Knew How it Felt.

"It says here that Binks, the author of 'Ten Years In the Penitentiary,' the book that exposed the horrors of prison life, never spent a day in prison," said Mrs. Gabb. "I wonder where he got his information."

"Maybe he was married for ten years," growled Mr. Gabb.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Then as Now.

Apollo had proposed taking Venus to the Olympian games.

"How long will it take you to get ready?" he asked.

"Ten minutes," Venus answered.

"By thunder," muttered Apollo after waiting half an hour, "when she has only to twist up her hair!"—Judge.

Her Comment.

"I don't see why you play golf," said she when he foozled a drive.

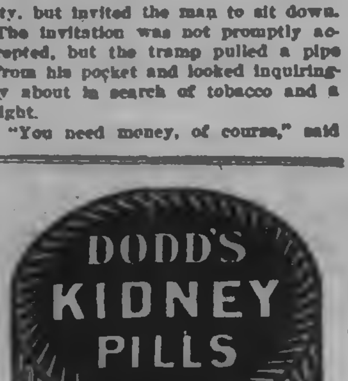
"Why not?"

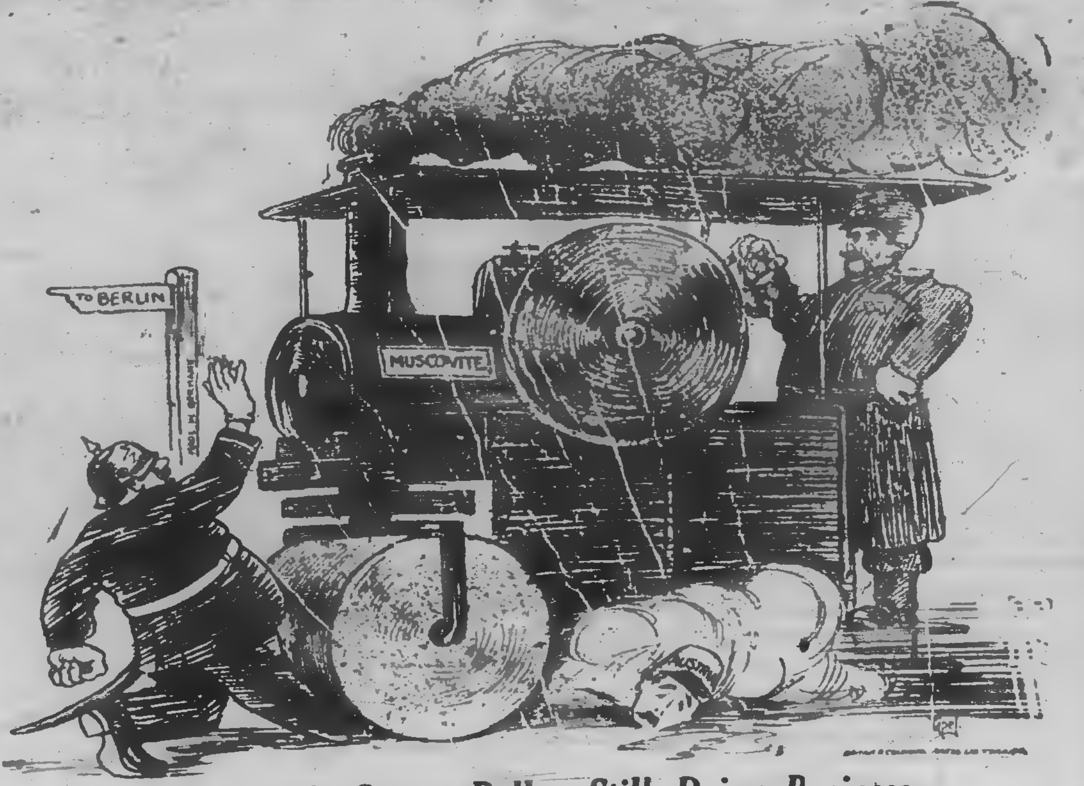
"When you get exactly the same result by staying at home and hitting your thumb nail with a hammer."—Detroit Free Press.

Mean Men.

"A woman's heavy hair," she complained, "is very oppressive these hot days."

"It must be," said her mean husband. "Why don't you get yourself some summer hair, my dear?"





The Czar's Steam Roller Still Doing Business

PRICE OF CLOTHES HERE SHOULD NOT ADVANCE

Canadians have little to fear in the present war situation so far as food is concerned, because Germany and Austria supply few of our table necessities.

But it is not enough for man to be plentifully fed—he must be properly clothed. And of many kinds of clothing, using that word in its very widest sense, we do not produce enough for our own needs, but import them from other countries. As it happens, fortunately, comparatively little of the ordinary plain clothing required by the ordinary citizen comes from Germany or Austria, although they both do a certain amount of business in supplying us with goods in the fancy dress section, says the Toronto Star Weekly.

But the vast bulk of the clothing which we import comes either from Great Britain or from the United States. With the seas clear for British sea-borne trade, we shall be able to import manufacture goods from the former as freely, or almost as freely, as though war were not on. British manufacturers are eager to increase their output to the Canadian market, in order to counteract the loss of their export trade with Germany and Austria. And, though the rally to the colors has taken many from factory and workshop, yet the fact that unemployment is on the increase in Great Britain and that there is a good deal of short time in clothing factories and workshops, shows that there need be no diminution in our supply of clothing from Great Britain, and hence no appreciable increase in its cost. Such increase as there may be should be mainly due to increase in freight and insurance charges just now.

As regards the clothing we import from the United States, there need be no increase in the cost of this. In fact, the closing of so many European ports will make it necessary for manufacturers in the United States to secure new markets and to increase their hold on others, if their normal level of production is to be maintained.

There is an extensive boot and shoe industry in this country, but we are yet far from being self-supporting in this line. Last year we exported leather boots and shoes to the value of $116,710, of which sum three-quarters went to the United States. On the other hand we imported leather boots and shoes of the value of $4,351,974. Of this sum, something like $3,650,000 went to the United States and nearly the whole of the remainder to Great Britain. Of leather we imported only some $660,000 worth, while we exported about $2,200,000 worth of it, the great bulk of it going to Great Britain. The respective amounts of our exports and imports of rubber boots and shoes are about equal.

The cotton manufactures we export are of very trifling amount. But our imports in this line are of large value, amounting to not far short of $18,000,000. Of this amount the vast majority comes from Great Britain which, with the present amount of unemployment prevailing in Lancashire by reason of the loss of large and valuable European markets for her cotton goods, will be only too ready to continue supplying us with what we want in that line. What we do not get in the way of cotton manufactures from Great Britain we obtain mostly from the United States. In fact, other countries are an almost negligible quantity in this connection. For instance, of printed, dyed, or colored cotton fabrics, we import nearly $5,000,000 worth from Great Britain, and $1,600,000 worth from the United States, and only about $550,000 worth from Germany. As regards both bleached and unbleached cotton fabrics, while our imports, in these lines, from Great Britain, are of the respective values of (approximately) $2,600,000 and $1,500,000, our imports, in such lines, from Germany and Austria are practically nil. While we import over $1,000,000 worth of sheets and quilts from Great Britain, we only import $30,000 worth of them from Germany.

Our exports of wool and woollen goods, last year, were only of the value of about $800,000. But, on the other hand, we imported woollen manufactures to the tune of about $28,000,000 worth. The great bulk of these came from Great Britain. Indeed, in many lines there is, virtually, a British monopoly. For example, while we imported nearly $1,700,000 worth of cassimeres, cloths, and doeskins from Great Britain, our imports in this class from Germany were of the value of only $60,000. In coatings and overcoatings, the value of the imports from Great Britain was twelve-thirteenths of the total value of those goods imported. The tweeds imported from Great Britain were of the value of nearly $1,260,000, while those arriving from Germany valued only $17,000. The socks and stockings we imported from Great Britain were of the value of $1,672,000, while those we imported from Germany were of the total value of $55,000. The yarn we imported from Great Britain was of the value of $2,200,000, while we imported $20,000 worth from Germany.

Last year, we exported $23,000 worth of hats and caps. On the other side, we imported about $4,700,000 worth. Of this amount about $3,000,000 worth came from Great Britain, and the great bulk of the rest from the United States.

Keeps Her Busy.

"Does that girl ever do anything?"

"I should say so. She is the busiest creature I know."

"What does she do?"

"She is a regular little flirt."

Caustic Wit.

A well-known doctor who dabbles in literature recently published a poem. Shortly after its appearance he was conversing with a lady celebrated for her wit.

"Well, doctor," she remarked, "so I understand you have taken to writing verse."

"Oh, merely to kill time."

"Indeed! Have you disposed of all your other patients?"—London Globe.

Her Bargain.

Wife—Oh, this is awful! These curtains I got at the bargain sale don't match our furniture.

Hubby—Return 'em.

Wife—I should say not—cheap as I got them? We must have new furniture at once!

Bound to Go.

When a fifteen-year-old boy of Paris was told he was too small to join the army he replied: "A wound is like soup—it makes you grow. If they refuse me I'll find a way to wriggle to the front ranks."

SHOCKED THE JUSTICE.

And Was Taught a Lesson by a Member of the Supreme Court.

How the justices of the United States supreme court deal with any attempt at an assault upon the confidences of the court was disclosed to an indiscreet young woman who was visiting at the house of an associate justice of the court who had known her since she was a child. She was sitting at the tea table one afternoon with the justice and his wife and, all unconscious of any wrongdoing, began to talk about a case that was awaiting the decision of the court.

The wife of the justice exhibited as much alarm and distress as though a live dynamite bomb had been introduced into the company, but she could not catch her visitor's eye and stop her.

"I hope," said the prattling visitor, "that you will decide it in favor of the —— company, because if you don't the price of the stock auntie left me will go down."

The justice froze stiff. He assumed what his wife calls his "prisoner at the bar manner" as he stood up. He was as grave and as stern as could be, and he nearly scared the young woman to death as he said:

"My dear child, you must never speak on such a subject to me again. I am going to leave the room now as a mark of my displeasure at the disrespect you have shown me and my position, and if you are ever so thoughtless again as to refer to the business of the court in my presence I shall see that you are never admitted to the house afterward."—World's Work.

One or the Other.

"I've just had a queer telegram from my daughter."

"What's wrong with it?"

"I don't know. Here it is. I'll read it to you: 'Zimersogollamnovdfhjkptuwxy.'"

"What on earth do you s'pose it means?"

"Why, it either means that the wires are crossed or else she's engaged to a Russian nobleman."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

To Start a Balky Horse.

In Farm and Fireside John H. Cowan tells as follows one way to start a balky horse:

"If you are driving a team and one horse balks take up the reins and get on the back of the balky horse. Press the heels gently into the flanks, speak a few encouraging words and then say, 'Get up,' as if going to ride. I have seen this tried many times and have never seen it fail."

The Cheerful Man.

"Is this train on time?" asked the restless passenger.

"No," replied the conductor, "We're two hours late."

"That's good. I'd rather be here than in the town I'm going to."—Washington Star.

The Patriot's Food.

"I think I will take a little fish, waiter."

"Yes, sir. Bluefish or whitefish, sir?"

"Bring me a little of each and also a portion of red snapper. I'm nothing if not patriotic."—Seattle Post.

BEING A DICTATOR

A Case of Quick Thought and Speedy Action in Latin America.

Half a dozen men in the lobby of a New York hotel were discussing the frequency of revolutions and assassinations in Mexico and other Latin-American countries. A short, dumpy little Englishman, who had a cold gray eye, told this:

In a country which we will call Dumala there was a president whom we will call Harera. He had made it the custom, by official proclamation, for the guard of honor, which consisted of sons of prominent families of his country, to present arms whenever he emerged from the presidential palace. While the men and officers presented arms, the standard bearer raised the great flag and exclaimed:

"Viva Harera!"

People who wanted Harera put out of business bribed the standard bearer and six members of the guard of honor to assassinate him. The plan was that, when he came out of the palace the standard bearer was to hold up the flag, shout "Viva Dumala!" and throw the heavy banner over the president. While he was knocked down and blinded by the folds of the flag, the six traitors were to shoot at him.

At the appointed time Harera came out. The standard bearer, holding his flag aloft, shouted "Viva Dumala!" and hurled the banner over the president, the folds of it enveloping him and throwing him.

The traitors, seeing him helpless on the ground, fired at his head under the banner. That was where the plot went wrong.

As Harera went down under the weight of the falling flag, he had the presence of mind to lie flat on his back and hold one of his arms straight up from him, thus supporting the flag and giving the impression that his fist was his head. The only wound he received was one bullet through his hand.

The traitors, having figured that six of them shooting at him would be sure to kill him, did not have extra cartridges. When he stood up and threw off the flag their companions arrested them.

"You must have your hand dressed," suggested one of the officers, seeing the blood flowing from the president's wound.

"I'll do that," said Harera, "as soon as these traitors have been executed."

He had them lined up in front of the palace and gave the word that resulted in their death from a volley by their companions. After that he went into the palace and had his wound dressed, all of which indicates that the gentle art of being president in Latin America calls for quick thought and speedy action.—Popular Magazine.

His Mean Trick.

White—What's the trouble between you and Green?

Brown—Oh, there's no trouble, only he refuses to speak to me. Claims I did him a mean trick about a year ago.

White—How's that?

Brown—We were both courting the same girl, and I withdrew from the race and let him marry her.

OTTAWA DOPESTER HAS FINE PIPE DREAMS

Pencil Pusher on Free Press Springs a New One — Only Another Idea of Freezing Peterboro Out

There's still framing ways and means to keep Peterboro out of the 1915 Canadian League. The latest explosion from the pencil pusher on the Ottawa Free Press suggests that a league composed of London, Ottawa, Hamilton, Montreal, Syracuse and Utica would take well and would qualify for Class A rating.

The writer hints that towns like St. Thomas, Peterboro and Brantford cannot stand the 1914 pace, and will have to be dropped, and that Erie did not patronize the games and may drop out. He adds: "Montreal, Ottawa, Montreal, London, Syracuse and Utica, there would provide a Class A league with a combined population of a trifle short of a million, as follows: Montreal, 473,712; Syracuse, 137,249; Hamilton, 100,808; Ottawa, 100,180; Utica, 74,419; London, 55,026. Total, 941,394.

So far as the jumps are concerned, the league would be more compact than it was this year. It would practically describe a triangle around Lake Ontario with two cities on each leg. The railway facilities are good, night trains out of Montreal, the extreme eastern point, arriving in Utica on the south, in London, the western terminus, the following morning. Each trip means a week's stand, in which two towns are played; Ottawa and Montreal are but 100 miles apart; London and Hamilton about 60, and Utica and Syracuse around 50, with Sunday ball in Ottawa and Montreal, the circuit is hard to beat. Incidentally, Syracuse and Utica are just as accessible to Hamilton and London, as they are to Montreal." This scheme of ridding the Canadian league of the larger cities would enable St. Thomas, Brantford, Guelph, Berlin, Stratford, Woodstock, Galt, and Niagara Falls, N.Y., to form a compact class C league. This league would make more money for the clubs interested than the league in which Brantford, St. Thomas and Peterboro were in the past season.

If we could overlook the fact that he called Peterboro a town and forget that Syracuse and Utica belong to the New York State League and Montreal to the International League, we might take up his line serious. As it is we are forced to pass it up as the first product of the Hot Stove League.

Hamilton boasted a week ago of winning two rugby games on the same day. It's Toronto's turn to crow at Varsity, Argos and T.R. and A.A. all won on Saturday.

HARVARD WON BY 7-0

Michigan Met Defeat in Big American Game

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 2.—Michigan met defeat at the hands of Harvard Saturday afternoon by a score of 7 to 0.

About 25,000 spectators, 2,500 of whom came from the west in sixteen special cars, saw the game.

Neither team showed championship calibre. The tricks which Yost was said to have up his sleeve to spring on Harvard were not there.

Michigan had two chances to score. Hughitt was not up to the occasion either time. In the first period, by a series of line plunges and old-fashioned plays, Michigan crushed Harvard back fairly against the crimson goal posts. Hughitt three times tried Harvard's line. It held like a rock. Instead of calling for a drop kick, as everyone thought he would, he tried that crimson line again. Harvard held and Francke punted well out of danger. The third time happened again in the third period.

On the front pages one reads of armies double-crossing one another and on the sport page it is majors double crossing the minors.

VARSITY, T.R. AND A. A. AND ARGOS WERE VICTORIOUS ON SATURDAY

Heffernan, Hill, Stratton and Sheehy Figure Prominently in Crucial Games

Varsity 25, Queen's 17.

Kingston, Nov. 2.—The University of Toronto took the intercollegiate game from Queen's University on Saturday afternoon by 25 to 17 in a very spectacular struggle. The teams were evenly matched, but snappy work on the part of Toronto on several occasions gave them the victory. U. of T. secured four touchdowns and three of these were earned by good rushes and bucks. Had the game lasted another half minute, Toronto would likely have scored another touchdown, for when the final whistle sounded the ball was right at Queen's goal line with Toronto in possession.

Toronto won the game in the third quarter by scoring two touchdowns, which were made by Nicholson and Lindsay, and two rouges. Queen's made a single point and the score stood Toronto 25, Queen's 11. All the scoring in the last quarter was done by Queen's and consisted of a rouge and a touchdown by Hill. Bryans of Toronto retired in the third quarter with an injured knee, while Kennedy and Rowlands of Queen's were knocked out in the last quarter. Rowlands, Queen's half, who had done some fine sprinting, was unconscious for some time after being carried from the [illegible].

Hill for Queen's and Stratton and Sheehy for Varsity are all Peterboro boys. "Gamey" had one touchdown to his credit.

T.R. and A.A. 38, St. Pat's. 11.

Toronto, Nov. 2. — An Ottawa team made its initial appearance in an O.R.F.U. senior game in Toronto on Saturday and was overwhelmingly defeated by T.R. and A.A. by 38 to 11. The easy victory of the locals was expected and as a consequence a crowd of about five hundred was in attendance.

Despite the superiority of the locals, there was much good football for the spectators, especially in the first half. It seems to be characteristic of the O.R.F.U. games that there is considerable exchange of punts between the opposing backfields. This style of play makes the game interesting for the spectators, and keeps up the interest.

It was only the good punting of the Williams brothers, Jack and Ken, on the Ottawa backfield that sustained the interest in the game, but neither showed ability at ball carrying. The wing line was unsteady and played a wide open game.

DeGruchy played his usual good catching game, and his kicking showed a decided improvement. He did not kick so far as in past games, and gave his wings plenty of time to get up under the ball. In returning punts, however, he outkicked the Williams brothers. Heffernan broke away for several long runs, but Vivian was not so fortunate. Duncan, a new player, replaced Burkart at outside wing and showed excellent ability as a tackler.

Argos 30, Ottawa 2.

Toronto, Nov. 2. — Argos handed their ancient enemies, the Ottawa team, a 30 to 2 beating Saturday and evened many an old sore. The game is succinctly described by the score. Ottawa never had a chance. They tried hard, but Argos' big wing line ripped them to pieces almost at will, while Argos' rear guard had it all over them in all departments. Ottawa has a light wing line this year, and against them Argos looked like world-beaters.

The entire Argo rearguard played stellar games today. Murphy was very tricky and Frank Knight's tackling was the best seen for many years on a Toronto field. Murray tackled well too, and Babe Burkhart woke up and played one of the best games of his career. He scored two touchdowns. Motley continued his good work.

D. McCaun and Davies looked like Ottawa's best men. Boucher also showed up very well. Ottawa had a lot of new-fangled trick plays, but the Scullers solved them with ridiculous ease.

COMMENT

As You Like it

When the National Association of minor leagues goes into session in Omaha the voice of President Fitzgerald of the Canadian League is to be raised in an effort to ascertain why Secretary Farrell handed the Canadian League what Bert Perry in the London Advertiser calls "a double-cross." After a hard fight last spring Class B rating was granted to Fitz's league and now clubs drafting players from this league need pay only Class C prices.

President Fitzgerald forwarded the additional fee for Class B rating when the ruling of the Commission was made known, but it was returned. Again the fee was sent and again it was returned. Now when Secretary Farrell is asked why Class B rating does not figure in the drafting of players he lets out the information that the additional fee was never sent.

Mr. Fitzgerald has several other things to be given attention, one of them the Hamilton-Gilhooly case. Judging from dispatches other minor leagues are complaining of the treatment the majors are handing them so altogether signs give promise of a warm session at the Nebaska city. Ban Johnson will be present.

The reason Connie Mack gives for asking waivers on Bender, Plank and Coombs, is that one of the famous trio approached him and stated that he had an offer from the Feds. He further announced that he had been tempted with an account far higher than the Philadelphia management would meet. Mack suggested that possibly some other American League club would meet the Federal figures. "I am for the American League in victory or defeat," quotes the Peerless Connie," and I am going to keep those players for our league if possible."

OSHAWA CURLERS ENTHUSIASTIC

Electric Lighting Will be Intalled in the Rink

Oshawa, Nov. 2. — The annual meeting of the Oshawa Curling Club was held in the Club rooms at the rink and judging from the large number present, it is pretty safe to say that the "roarin' game" will boom in Oshawa this winter.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Charles R. Bailes.
Vice-President—A. G. Lambert.
Secretary-Treasurer — T. H. McMurty.
Committee of Management — Messrs. Stalter, McAdie, Lambert, T. W. Luke and F. C. Bailes.
Membership Committee — Messrs. W. A. Coad, H. G. Lander and L. O. Clifford.
Auditors—C. E. Hare and L. Stevenson.
Collector—D. M. Hall.

It was decided to install electric lighting in the rink thereby making it the equal of any city rink.

It was also decided to enter rinks in the Ontario Tankard and District Cup competitions and it is expected that Oshawa will be heard of when these events come off.

Undoubtedly this will be a big year with our curlers.

The three pitchers who will no longer wear an Athletic uniform did wonderful work during their careers. Each has figured as a hero in world's series games.

Walter Knox, the Canadian athlete, who was engaged as trainer of the English Olympic team in all branches of athletics, has been temporarily released from his engagements and will return to Canada. Practically all the men under training for the great event which was scheduled in Berlin in 1916 have joined the English army.

The Peterboro Hockey Club intends arranging for an exhibition game with St. Michael's of Toronto for the opening attraction.

Mr. C. H. Ruppel of Harrowsmith is here on a visit.

Miss Grace Gumpricht entertained a few of her musical friends, on Hallowe'en. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. B. Mulligan and their daughter, Florence. The decorations were appropriate to the occasion and every one had a most enjoyable time.

Recently, Mrs. T. H. Jackson, formerly of Peterboro, and now of Hartney, Man., promoted a patriotic evening in the town hall at Hartney, and the event proved a great success. One hundred and forty pairs of socks and a quantity of woollen gloves were received and these with $140, the receipts of the evening, will be forwarded by Mrs. Jackson for distribution among the soldiers.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Miss Alma Darling, Smith, on Monday, Oct. 26th, when friends to the number of about fifty, gathered to spend a social time with her before her departure from their midst. She will be missed at Lakevale Chuch and especially in the choir there. As an appreciation the members of the choir presented her with a handsome silver pudding dish. She was the recipient of many other pretty and useful gifts. Miss Darling has the best wishes of her many friends as she goes to gladden her new home.

Choral Society At St. Andrew's

The choral society, which has been organised at St. Andrew's Church, will meet tonight and it is probable that officers will be elected.

At the first meeting last Monday night, there was an attendance of thirty and indications point to a successful organization.

Mr. Treneer, the organist at St. Andrew's is the leader.

Suggests St. Alban's As Name For Mission Started in Browntown

Yesterday afternoon the Bishop of the Diocese, Dr. Sweeny, of Toronto, paid a visit to the Church of England mission in Brownton and expressed himself as delighted with the encouraging start this latest mission in Peterboro had made. He suggested that the mission should be known in the future as St. Alban's Mission.

The hearty manner in which the gathering took part in the service showed that all were Church of England people.

Last Sunday week, there were thirty-eight children in the Sunday School and there were twenty-nine present yesterday afternoon.

As there were only forty-eight chairs, a number of the adult persons had to stand during the service. Perhaps this intimation of the mission's needs, will appeal to some well-wisher and in the future, it will not be necessary for any of the congregation to stand.

which he had ever undertaken, except the lecture on "Success." He failed in the ministry. He failed to keep out of debt. He failed to bring up his children in the right way. There was not anything which this which was worth doing, which he did not fail in his attempt to do, except his lecture on "Success." That lecture was a tremendous "success." Once it was delivered in a city church or town hall, the community always yearned for the hour when the famous orator would return, and, in eloquent periods, expatiate on the all-important subject of "How to Succeed in Life."

If success is the main thing in life, it might be well for us to stop long enough to find out what this wonderful thing is. How many kinds of success are there? What is the highest interpretation of success? Which is the lowest? Does the possession of money constitute success? Is the man who flings his conscience overboard a success? What is it to achieve a genuine success? In this discussion I present for your consideration four interpretations of success:

First: There is the dictionary definition of success. Every young man should own a dictionary. There is a wealth of knowledge in the meaning of words. No man can speak clearly who does not think clearly, and no man can think clearly who does not know the weight of a word. A word before it is spoken stands for a mental image. So we go to the dictionary to ascertain the meaning of the word "success," and we find that success is succession, one thing following another, like "successive ages." The word also has another meaning — it is success for that which is underneath to take a position on top. And, if it is success for that which is underneath to take a position on top, then it is success for the under crust to become the upper crust, then there is more real genuine success to be achieved in the dawning of the twentieth century on the continent of North America than at any time or place since Adam first entered the Garden of Eden.

Second: There is that which I am prone to call the individual interpretation of success. Every man has his own aim and ambition. It can be compressed and expressed in one word. That word shall be weighed and freighted with the motive and meaning of a whole life. One type of man congests the master thought of his soul in one word, "cash." A nobler type of mind writes down in syllables of eternal value, "character." One man exclaims, "Possessions, boundless and ever increasing, for me," while another, in a more practical and matter of fact way, mutters with a grim determination, "Political preferment, if I can only secure it." My neighbour to the south would walk amid the mountain ranges of all knowledge, science and literature. My neighbour to the north would rise above and beyond all the beacon lights of human history, up, up, up into the clear, serene, unclouded atmosphere of communion with God. And so his favourite song is "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Third: There is that which may be spoken of as the popular interpretation of "Success." The popular interpretation of success is "success," as we find it in common parlance, success in the language of the street, success in its most vulgar definition. Success in its lowest interpretation is simply and only and always the ability to "get there." It doesn't make and difference how you get there, some say, if you only get there. A man may take his Christ, his Bible, his church, his religion, his conscience, and fling the whole blessed circle of divine things overboard, but what difference does it make, if he only "gets there"? To some people this is success, and to such people nothing succeeds like success. Some success is scum sucess. Success is the survival of the fittest, and not the survival of the slickest. I inquire of my neighbour, "Who is that masculine mortal who sails down the main aisle of the sanctuary every Sunday while all the folks on both sides of the aisle crane their necks and twist their bronchial tubes to gaze upon his imperial proportions?" And my neighbour replies, with a peculiar twinkle in his eye, "Don't you know him? Why, that fellow is worth a million dollars." Then I venture to inquire, "Where did the fellow get his million dollars?" And my neighbour, adding a wink to his twinkle, remarks with a drawl, "It doesn't make much difference where he got it; the main fact is that today possession is nine points of the social code."

To get there. This is success. And nothing succeeds like success.

But I demur. Nothing succeeds like character. Is a man a success when, if every other man were the same sort of success, there would be no such thing as success? If you desire to ascertain whether or not a man is success, take him and multiply him by seven million and ask yourself the question, What kind of Dominion would we have if every man in the Dominion of Canada were a duplicate of your original? That man must be a dubious character whom it is not safe to duplicate.

If you are willing to accept a successful man's achievement without any regard for the moral quality, which must enter into every man's work, then every epoch produces its successful man who has no regard for conscience or for God. Leave out the moral quality and Julius Caesar was a success. Ignore the moral element, and, up to a certain point, Napoleon was a supreme success. If you are disposed to judge of a man's success without any reference to the moral quality which ought to enter into every achievement, then there are in every community successful men whose acquaintance would be no compliment and whose companionship would be a disgrace to any man who has any regard for conscience or for character. Let us be explicit. The man who throws his conscience overboard is a failure. No amount of money will make a bad man a success. The more colossal the collateral the more complete the collapse. The poorest man in the world is the man who has wealth and nothing else.

Fourth: The highest interpretation of success is this, that a man should, with a due regard for the most of himself and his circumstances. This is success according to scripture, science and common sense. What can a man do more than to make the most of himself and his circumstances? If I can look within and bring forth all that God hath implanted of mind, will, purpose and genius; if I can reach out and around, and gather up all that belongs to my condition, environment and surroundings; if I can wed these things at the altar of destiny, then I shall have made the most of myself and of my circumstances. This is success. An angel could do no more. The highest compliment ever conferred on any individual in the world's history was bestowed on a woman: "She hath done what she could."

Dr. Gordon conducted a question drawer in the Grand Opera House last evening, and in spite of the rainy weather, the building was crowded to the doors. He spoke for forty five minutes, and during that time answered the following questions:

1. How do you account for the spread of Socialism?
2. Can you suggest a remedy to bridge the chasm between labour and capital?
3. Do you believe in evolution?
4. Is it necessary for a young man to be a "good fellow," in order to achieve a marked degree of success?
5. What do you think of the tipping system?
6. What is the remedy or the solution of the domestic service problem?
7. Are commercial travellers, as a class, a credit to our Canadian citizenship?
8. Is it possible for the generous deeds of the wicked man of wealth to counterbalance the evil effects of his life?
9. Who is the most dangerous man in the community?
10. How do you account for the increase of the divorce evil in Canada?
11. What is your most important advice to the young theological student about to enter the ministry?
12. Wherein lies the deepest secret of the public speaker's power?

Dr. Gordon closes his campaign on Thursday evening, and states that up to the present time this series of meetings, for depth of feeling, for the interest which has ben manifested in the question drawer, for the large attendance of young men, business men, and for the presence of the preachers of the local churches at the various meetings, has been the most enthusiastic and most encouraging campaign which it has ever been his privilege to conduct. He has bad the assistance of a splendid committee of successful business men, and everything has been done by all those interested in the project to make the campaign an unusual success. The meetings of this week will doubtless grow in strength and in power.

Mrs. Gordon arrived from Winnipeg on Saturday morning, and is stopping with Dr. Gordon at the Oriental Hotel, and will accompany her husband from Peterborough to Ottawa, where the next citizenship campaign is to be conducted under the auspices of the Presbyterian churches of the Capital, and in the edifice known as Chalmers Presbyterian Church.

NEW MEMBERS FOR THE W.C.T.U.

Delegates to Provincial Convention Give Reports

The W.C.T.U. met last Friday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A. with the President, Mrs. Whalley, in the chair. There was a good attendance of members. The union was very much pleased to welcome three new members.

After some discussion it was decided to send a contribution from the Union to the Dominion Alliance.

Twenty-five Canadian Hymnals were purchased for the use of the Society; also 50 calendars for the W.C.T.U. year.

Interesting reports of the Provincial Convention, held recently in Toronto, were given by Mrs. Thornton and Mrs. Dodds. They spoke of the account given by Mr. Copeland of the Y.M.C.A. of the excellent work done by that organization at the Valcartier camp.

The W.C.T.U. has assumed the cost of one of the six men the Y.M.C.A. have sent with the first contingent.

CHEQUE FOR $100 FROM ELLIOT'S

That success crowned the efforts of those in charge of the Women's War Fund in raising funds for patriotic purposes, through securing a percentage of the sales at Elliot's Store on Saturday was this morning made known when Mrs. Travers received the following letter from Mr. T. C. Elliot:—

Mrs. Travers,
Peterboro.

Dear Madam,

Please find enclosed cheque for one hundred dollars which we have very much pleasure in handing you to aid the victims of the war.

Would you kindly convey to the ladies our appreciation of their kindly, genial courtesy and their whole-hearted help for the cause we all have so much at heart.

If we can in any way be of assistance to you in your noble work in the future we will esteem is as a favor to be called upon.

We are yours, very respectfully,
(Signed) T. C. ELLIOT.

During the afternoon and evening Asa Huycke's orchestra was in attendance and favored the crowds with delightful music.

VIOLENT CANNONADING BETWEEN RHEIMS AND THE RIVER MEUSE

SEVENTY-NINE MEN ANSWER THE CALL

Enthusiastic Scenes at Armouries and Station — Soldiers Were Dined by the Ladies and Presented With Helmets and Wristlets

Peterborough men, for the second contingent to the number of seventy-nine have gone. Amid much enthusiasm the boys were royally entertained this morning. About 10.20 the members assembled at the Armouries and were photographed, after which they assembled and listened to the parting words of appreciation of their action in volunteering and best wishes for their welfare.

THE ADDRESSES.

"No greater honour could be done me than to ask me to say a few words of God-speed to those about to offer their lives in defence of their country," said Mr. Burnham in his remarks to the soldiers. "It is hard for us in remote and peaceful Canada to realise that we are at war—at war in all its terribleness and in all its heart-breaking horror. But the crash of conflict, the death of tens of thousands, the groans of hundreds of thousands, and the anguish of the desolate, need no words in addition to proclaim the fact. You are going to do your share in defence of the Empire, and in defence of those remaining at home. The East is preparing to enter the conflict. The millions of religious fanatics in Asia, from the East to the West of that mightiest of continents, are, we are told, preparing to side with Prussian militarism in an effort to overturn all that we know and love as our civilisation, happiness and prosperity; in a word, in an attempt to overthrow the world. The world has seen great conflicts, but nothing like this one. Our share is small, and yet it is great. We are small in numbers, but the loyalty and fervour of Canada in this great cause means far more than mere numbers. Canada is proud of you. The city and county of Peterborough are proud of you. We are sure that you will be brave and of good courage. You will uphold the good name of Canada which, after all, is all that a man or a nation can have that is worth having. We will read of you constantly in good and evil fortune, with emotion; we will watch your course from day to day with all the pride of those who love you and wish you well. Though like some others, I have volunteered, I am not young enough to be taken to the front at the first call, but we can all serve in some capacity, as do those, we are told, who merely stand and wait, but with a good heart. Stand fast for the Empire. Stand fast for Canada, and time will never efface the record of your constancy, your valour, and the gratitude of your countrymen."

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., said: "I can only add my few remarks to the former speaker, in wishing you God-speed and a safe return. We all feel sure you will do your duty. The outlook is dark at present, but we hope that it will be better when you reach the front and we also feel if more are called to go we will meet with a great response."

Proud to be Mayor.

Mayor Buller expressed himself as being proud to be a mayor of a city of this size that could send so many men to the front, to form part of a second contingent. He said it was a bad day for the British Empire just at present and he expressed a wish that the boys would be able to clear away the mists that have settled over the Empire, and that it would be cleared up for all time to come. "We will watch the work you do, and we have no fear, but that you'll do your duty," said His Worship. He concluded by asking for three cheers for the boys of this contingent, which were heartily given.

Judge Huycke in his opening remarks said it was sweet and beautiful to die for one's country, but no less to live for one's country. "You all are going out either to live or die for your country, going out to fight for Great Britain, defender of the faith. I am glad to know that Peterboro is sending more men than what she was asked for. He said if it was

ARABIAN TOWN TAKEN

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 3. — The fortified town of Akabah in Arabia has been shelled and occupied by the British cruiser Minerva.

The Admiralty announced the occurrence as follows: "Upon arriving at Akabah the cruiser Minerva, Captain Percival Warleigh, found the place occupied by soldiers and armed natives. One of the soldiers had the appearance of a German officer.

"The Minerva then shelled the port and the troops. The town was evacuated and landing parties from the Minerva proceeded to destroy the forts, barracks, post office and stores.

"There was some loss to the enemy, but no British casualties."

Pte. Hopkins Writing From Salisbury Plains Says the People Gave Canucks a Great Welcome

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hopkins have received the following letter from their son Private E. W. Hopkins, serving with the Toronto 48th Highlanders at Salisbury Plains.

Dear parents,—

I arrived here all O.K. and feel fine. We had a nice trip across the water and I was not seasick. This sure is some country and I am not sorry I came here as there are a lot of things to see and learn.

We had an awful time to get our money changed and when we did we had some fun trying to count it.

This is a large camp. They say it is sixty-four square miles. We are in tents but it is not cold and it has not rained since we landed.

We are only eighty miles from London so we get all the news.

We got a great welcome from the people here. You sure can't judge them from what you see out there, and as for the country, I don't know why they leave here as it is a pretty place.

We can get to the front in six hours from here but I don't think we will get there by the way things are going now. Did you ever receive the parcel I sent? Sometimes we have been unable to secure stamps but we have lots of time to write.

Remember me to every one and don't forget to write. Try and be good like we have to. We are like Sunday School kids.

Spy in Peterboro ?

It was reported around the streets today that a German spy had been arrested here.

When Police Chief Thompson was approached in regard to the matter, he said it was news to him and that he had not heard of it.

ENDURANCE AND FRESH FORCES WILL DECIDE PRESENT FIGHTING

OFFICIAL PRESS BUREAU REPORT

Lord Kitchener, President Poincaire and Belgian Premier Met in Dunkirk

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 3. — Lord Kitchener was in Dunkirk Sunday evening, where he met President Poincare and the Belgian Premier.

The report of an eyewitness with the British troops covering operations up to Oct. 26th, issued today by the official bureau, says the Allies have been on the offensive against the Germans since the 20th. The report says the Germans, although only partially trained men, are fresh, and fight with determination, although prisoners captured declare all are heartily sick of the war.

Success, says the report, will favor that side possessing the most endurance and able to fling fresh forces into the fray when most needed.

German losses continue to be appalling. On October 21 they attacked the entire battle line with utmost courage. In the vicinity of Armentieres they left six thousand dead on the field after one battle. The 104th German Regiment was absolutely annihilated. Four hundred were picked up and buried. The report severely criticizes German officers, who show fault of leadership which the almost superhuman bravery of the soldiers cannot offset.

The N. Y. Tribune hints that Von Moltke's resignation was not due to liver trouble so much as the growing feeling that his own war strategy had punctured a tire.

FLOUR SACKS AS PILLOW COVERS

London, Nov. 3. — Ten thousand sacks which brought Canada's gift of flour have been purchased at five shillings apiece. The proceeds will go to the Prince of Wales' fund.

Many purchasers are converting them into pillow covers. A proposal comes from the Prince of Wales that a sack should be placed in every museum.

The Germans will be greatly strengthened by the Turks as the latter can stab a Red Cross nurse or cut off a baby's hands almost as neatly as the Germans themselves.

BRITISH WEDGE WRECKED PROPOSED RAID ON CALAIS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 3. — Telegraphing from Calais, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "The British wedge which Crown Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria and Grand Duke Albrecht of Wurtemburg tried to crack between them, still puts forward a veritable bayonet thrust at the heart of the German line at Ypres, and has finally wrecked the raid on Calais.

"In the last three weeks Germans who had advanced fifteen miles from Ostend, have been beaten back five miles, with losses estimatede at from 35,000 to 50,000 men.

"A naval officer tells me that the losses to the British flotilla during the bombardment did not exceed a score of killed and about fifty men wounded."

UNWAVERING IN SUPPORT OF BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 3. — Despatches from India represent the native press as unwavering in support of Britain. The Bombay Chronicle says that Turkey is committing suicide, and the Advocate, of India, says: "Turkey has been made the tool of a country whose ideals are not those which have given India peace, power, and freedom." The Nizam of Hyderabad, ruler of the largest Mohammedan state in India, has issued a manifesto declaring it the bounden duty of Indian Mohammedans to adhere to the British.

LONDON, Nov. 3. — The Morning Post's Petrograd correspondent denies the reports of the fall of Przemysl and says what happened was the capture of four thousand Austrians with much equipment during a sortie.

FRESH ATTACKS BY GERMANS IN VAIN

Front is Everywhere Maintained or Re-established in Spite of Determined Attacks — German Efforts in the Argonne Have Been Checked---Favorable Engagements Along the River Seille

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 3. — The official announcement this afternoon says:

"On our left wing the enemy seems to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser down stream from Dixmude, and reconnaisances by troops of the Allies undertaken on highway in the inundated regions were successful in re-occupying points of passage across the river without great difficulty.

"To the south of Dixmude and in the direction of Gheluvit, our advance was particularly perceptible. In the region to the north of the Lys, in spite of determined attacks in considerable force, our front was everywhere maintained or re-established by the end of the day.

"Fresh attacks by the Germans on the environs of Arras resulted in failure.

"On the centre, in the region of the Aisne, to the east of the forest of Aigue, we have made some progress. To the east of Vailly, according to latest news, our troops who held positions on the slopes of the plateaus north of the villages of Chavonne and Soupir, had been compelled to draw back into the valley to the east of this location. We have maintained our positions at Amont on the right bank of the river. There was violent cannonading during the day between Rheims and the Meuse, as well as on the heights of the Meuse. Further efforts on the part of the Germans in the forest of Argonne have been checked. We have continued to make progress to the northwest of Pont-a-Mousson.

"On our right wing there have been some engagements favourable to our arms along the River Seille."

Street Lighting is Not Satisfactory

Numerous complaints are being received from various parts of the city in connection with the old street lighting system. At last night's Council meeting Ald. Johnston was called upon for an explanation. He stated that the Utilities Commission is just getting started, and it will be hard to remedy any conditions until things are running smoothly. Ald. Green suggested that the power committee and the fire, water and light committee meet some evening and ask the Utilities Commission to have a man present. The meeting then could get at the bottom of any trouble and remedy it. The suggestion was felt to be a good one, and a motion to that effect carried.

This meeting will also determine the cost of street lighting and decide whether it's more horsepower or better transmission wires that is required to make the street lighting brighter.

IS CITY TAKING NECESSARY CARE AND PRECAUTION IN BUILDING OUTFALL SEWER ?

Things were drifting along quite regularly at last night's meeting of the City Council until Ald. Langford arose and asked if the city is going into this big, expensive proposition of an outfall sewer, with the necessary care and precaution. He had learned through the press that the intention was to place the pipes in concrete. He has received inside information that such a method has not proved successful in Toronto. While not claiming any knowledge of the relative value of concrete or brick, Ald. Langford wanted to find out the City Engineer's opinion.

Mr. Parsons explained that he has had considerable experience along that line, and further stated that he had secured the opinion of the most prominent engineers throughout all Canada. They all favored the use of concrete, although in some places it has been known to fail to do the work. Wherever such has been the case, the reason was that chemicals from nearby factories were allowed to pass through the sewer, and these chemicals were injurious to the concrete.

In answer to the question, "Now are you satisfied?" from the Mayor, Ald. Langford stated that he was not satisfied at all, and furthermore he didn't want to be marked for finding fault; he wanted to bring the matter before the Council to find if the proper care is being taken as a security against another "Romaine Street Sewer."

Mayor Buller claimed that if the city hasn't confidence in City Engineer Parsons, why the city doesn't want him. His Worship, however, expressed himself as having full confidence in him, and he was [illegible] this outfall sewer would [illegible] a manner that would be [illegible] Mr. Parsons' efforts [illegible] position and bring [illegible]

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1914

THE CHALLENGE TO PETERBOROUGH.

SIXTY-THREE men of those who enlisted in this city have been accepted for the second Canadian contingent. Seventy-five men are required, yet that number was not forthcoming. That is surely not the showing this city can make, and, in view of the concern which Canada has in the progress of the war, the full number required should be forthcoming from every city, town and hamlet throughout the broad Dominion.

Canadians should realize that the war has no prospect of being short, as was at first predicted, and that, so long as the issue hangs in doubt, the integrity of the Empire and the safety of the Dominion are uncertain. Britain trusted Canada with her own government, and that trust involves great responsibilities. Sheltered, as we have been, by the strength of the British navy, blessed as we have been by the advantages of English law, we should fulfil every obligation and every responsibility that arises. Testing time of the Empire as it is, this also is the testing time of Canada. With the theatre of war enlarging, Canada must be prepared to place one hundred thousand men in the field, and such a call upon our resources means a greater requisition on this city, as on every part of the country, than has yet been made. It means a great deal of hard training, for the success of war such as that now waged depends almost as much on the science of it as on the numbers engaged. Practice in shooting, in judging distances, in using the bayonet, capacity for marching, are a few of the details requiring considerable time. Canada does not want to send men to Europe as cannon fodder, but as warriors in a great cause, capable of presenting as formidable an attack as any soldiers in the field. Peterborough should be well represented in the splendid bodies of men now forming, and it is hoped that a full and complete response to the call of duty will maintain the good name of Peterborough among those other Canadian cities which are making splendid sacrifices for their country and the Empire.

THE TOWN OF TSING TAU.

THE PUBLIC has been reading in the papers about the operations of the Japanese against the town of Tsing Tau, which is the principal town, or capital, of the German province of Shantung. While the Germans have merely leased the territory, they have created trade rights and other interests, for the protection of which forts and defence works have been built, so that to all intents and purposes they have a colony in this property.

Apart from the railway and mining enterprises (in which about 70,000,000 marks have been invested), the new harbour, with its wharfs, etc., the lighthouses and other aids to navigation, the floating dock (of 16,000 tons capacity, with its giant electric crane and machine shops, etc., built by the government at a cost of some 50,000,000 marks), a number of fine public buildings have been erected during the period — a church, colleges and schools, government offices, a police court, three commodious barracks for the garrison, extensive hospitals, a residence for the governor, an observatory, etc. Neither money nor labour has been spared to improve and beautify the place, so that this erstwhile fishing village is now a beautiful, modern town, which, considering its youth, will stand comparison with any in the East. Wide and fine streets for driving and riding, fitted with granite-paved tracks for the, here, indispensable wheelbarrows, and lined with trees, traverse the picturesque town, with its ornamental houses and wooded hills, and lead into the heart of the rugged Lau Shan mountains. Everything possible has been done in the way of sanitation; the streets, lighted by electricity, are kept scrupulously clean; a perfect system of canalization serves streets and houses; and a plentiful supply of pure water, obtained under control of a bacteriologist from the bottom of the Litsum river, is pumped a distance of some ten miles to the reservoir on a hill sufficiently high to supply all houses. A model slaughterhouse, under the supervision of an expert, with cold-storage rooms and a refrigerator sufficient for supplying the community with ice, and strictly supervised markets, where abundant supplies of fresh fish, poultry, fruit, and vegetables are obtainable, ensure a constant and excellent food supply; as well as milk, cream, and butter, supplied by foreign and Chinese dairies under police control, in excellent quality throughout the year. The hills in the town and neighbourhood, formerly almost barren of vegetation, have been planted with trees of all descriptions. A great variety of shaded walks and driving roads traverse this young forest in all directions and afford beautiful views at every bend of the road. Added to this, the good climate, the cool sea breezes in summer, and the salubrious mountain air of the Lau Shan, the health conditions of Tsing Tau must be considered excellent. There are three hospitals — the Government, the Civil, and the Chinese hospitals — with a number of specialists, caring for the sick, and two sanatoria, one in the town and the other in the Lau Shan, for the convalescent. The now fairly large influx of summer visitors finds good accommodation in a number of hotels and boarding houses.

From these facts it will be seen what a high value Germhany has placed on colonies, foreign trade and connections. Much money has been spent here to make the property profitable, but the province is, on the whole, not rich or prosperous. War has been preached to Germany as the one method to secure the kind of colonies and foreign trade control that her interests demand. That is why the existence of the British Empire is threatened by this war.

"HOW GERMANY MAKES WAR."

SUCH is the title of a new edition of General Von Bernhardi's famous work, "Germany and the Next War." The new book is an abridged translation of the larger work, and is published in a well-printed, cheap edition by Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton, whose Ontario office is 17 Wilton avenue, Toronto.

This book gives one a good idea of the philosophy of war dominant in Germany today. The following passage shows how little Germany was really disposed to peace:

> "With every move of our foreign policy today we have to face a European war against superior enemies. This sort of thing is becoming intolerable. The freedom of action of our people is thereby hampered to an extraordinary degree. Such a state of affairs is highly dangerous, not only for THE PEACE OF EUROPE, WHICH, AFTER ALL, IS ONLY A SECONDARY MATTER FOR US, but, above all, is most dangerous to ourselves. It is we, whose economical, national, and political development is being obstructed and injured; it is we, whose position in the world is being threatened after we have purchased it so dearly with the blood of our best. We must therefore strive to find out by all means who is for or who is against us. On this depends not only the possibility of carrying into execution the political aims befitting the greatness and the wants of our country, but also the very existence of our people as a civilized nation."

Further in the book, Bernhardi maintains that there must be no qualms in sacrificing men. Men's lives must be spent prodigally, so that force will win. He upholds terrorizing methods to make enemies of Germany afraid of German soldiers. Thus he says towns must be destroyed food supplies destroyed, people driven from their homes, and killed, if necessary, in order to weaken resistance.

Perhaps it is because actuated by such principles that the atrocities in Belgium were committed. The book is worth reading, as giving the German point of view.

The companion book, "The German Army From Within," describes the discipline, training, and lack of morals, of the great German war machine.

Ralph Connor—Sky Pilot.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

Ralph Connor has enlisted for service at the front. Surely the auhtor of the Sky Pilot is entitled to a job with the aviation corps.

Not to Mention Canada.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

Our Methodist brethren propose to raise $675,000 for missions the coming year. It might be well to sidetrack the Orient for a season, and confine their evangelization to Europe.

Hard Winter Predicted.

(Port Rowan News.)

The walnut and chestnut trees along this shore are bearing abundant crops this year. Old hunters take this as a sign that the coming winter will be severe. They say nature has a way of her own of providing for her children, and that she has so arranged her cycles that the same causes that produce a hard winter provide abundant food for the squirrels.

What Might Have Been.

(Cobalt Nugget.)

At the end of the war there will be hundreds of thousands of men in England who have volunteered for active service who will be unwilling to return to office life and many of them will likely come to Canada or settle in Australia. Immigrants of the right type are the very life blood of Canada, and this will be a unique opportunity to obtain a larger number than has ever offered itself before. As soon as there is oportunity, therefore, the immigration officials should get busy on an energetic campaign for inducing prospective settlers to come to Canada.

The Voice of the Colonies.

The towers proclaim the rock whence they were hewn;
  The seed lives yet in all its fruit.
Right well the giant saplings, sown and strewn
  Unto earth's ends, recall their root!

Royal the Mother; loyal are the sons
  And daughters of her house of pride.
The rumor of the thunder of the guns
  Brings us, one army, to her side!

Before she called us, we have answered—we Hers from the first; hers now as then.
O England, of thy own we give to thee
  In English women, English men!

One proffers balm to heal thy wounds, and grain
  To feed the poor that throng thy lands,
And one strong ships to serve thee on the main,
  And all true hearts and sturdy hands.
East, west, and north and south, one path we tread,
  Far as the Empire's flag is seen,
Led by the standards of the mighty dead,
  Whose broad battalions march between.

What foe shall fell the tree that still has borne,
  That still can bear, such goodly fruit,
Her crowning leaves shall catch the world's new morn,
  And every branch recall the root.

—S. Gertrude Ford.

S. Gertrude Ford was born in Rosendale Valley, Lancashire, and for a time worked as a telephone operator, but for some years has supported herself by her pen. The late W. T. Stead made it a rule not to publish original verse, but published Miss Ford's fine plea for peace, "The New Crusade," and referred to it as "the beautiful verses of my friend Miss Gertrude Ford."—(Editor.)

The Saucy Arethusa

The Arethusa, the ship which played so important a part in the fight off Heligoland, bears a famous name. In the great French war there was a famous frigate, the "Saucy Arethusa," which fought an action with a French vessel which was immortalized in one of Dibdin's most celebrated sea-songs. The Admiralty has ordered the following verses from that song to be engraved upon a brass plate and fixed in a conspicuous place in the H. M. S. Arethusa of to-day:

Come, all ye jolly sailors bold,
Whose hearts are cast in honor's mould,
While English story I unfold,
  Huzza for the Arethusa!
    Her men are staunch
    To their fav'rite launch,
And when the foe shall meet our fire,
Sooner than strike we'll all expire
  On board the Arethusa.

And, now we've driven the foe ashore,
Never to fight with Britons more,
  Let each fill his glass
  To his fav'rite lass;
A health to our captain and officers true,
And all that belong to the jovial crew
  On board the Arethusa.

All the ships which took part in the action off Heligoland are to have the words "Heligoland, August 28th, 1914," painted in gold lettering in some convenient place.

TO ENSURE PUBLIC SAFETY

Primary Aim of Government Says Sir George Foster

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—In his reply to delegates of municipalities, which waited on the Government yesterday afternoon, about unemployment, Sir George Foster said it was gratifying to the Government to have its work commenced. It had been no light undertaking to deal with alien enemies in Canada, in the light of the different social customs and the desire to protect people at home without inflaming others. The Government in any event would see that public safety was ensured fully. It was now working out details of the registration system, and would announce them in a few days.

Speaking of the relief of aliens Sir George admitted that depended largely upon the Dominion, but in respect to the general principle of unemployment he said the primary responsibility rested upon the localities of the provinces, but the Government would assist in every way it could.

GERMANS IN U. S. ARMING.

Big Railway Official's Warning Is Referred To Ottawa.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—The stories that the Germans of the United States are contemplating a raid on Canada have been given emphasis by a letter received by William Galbraith, former mayor of Westmount. The letter, which came from the vice-president of one of the biggest railways in the Western States, said:

"I overheard a conversation last night on a steamboat going from Norfolk to Richmond. It was between Germans, and to the effect that all the German singing societies, which are 800,000 strong, are carrying on a propaganda of secret arming and other arrangements for the purpose of attacking Canada from this side."

Steps have been taken to bring this information to the attention of the Dominion Government.

Spoiled His Chance.

"Why don't you propose to that girl? You like her, and I'm sure she would have you."

"All true, but there is an insuperable obstacle between us."

"All family or religious objections can be overcome."

"Nothing like that. I got a little too gay when I first met her and told her I was getting $50 a week whereas I am getting only $25."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

New German Army.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Information has reached here showing that the recently raised new German army has a total strength of 580,000 men, and is made up principally by calling out the recruits of 1915. The remainder are volunteers of all ages. The army is divided into twelve corps, and will be used as follows: Six corps for service in Belgium and France; two to form a reserve force, and stationed around Strassburg, and the other four to be employed in a special effort to take Verdun.

Coal For German Cruisers.

LONDON, Nov. 3. — German merchantmen regularly provide German cruisers in the Pacific with coal and provisions from Chilean ports and furnish the warships with wireless information, according to The Times' correspondent at San Diego, Chile.

The correspondent says that the merchantmen obtain "leave to depart from the ports by making false declarations regarding their destination to the Chilean authorities."

Two Trainmen Killed.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3. — At 9.20 yesterday morning a double-headed freight train, eastbound, on the C. P. R., struck a rockslide which had been brought down by the heavy rains near a tunnel three-quarters of a mile east of Hope, a station 31 miles from Vancouver. Both engines were derailed and slid down the steep bank into the Fraser river. Two men were killed and a third is missing.

Censoring The Mails

Letters to Germany and Austria Under Scrutiny These Days

Mail communications between Canada and Germany or Austria are under a ban quite as rigid as that which now blockades the transatlantic telegraph services. Emphatic orders have been issued to every postmaster in Canada to seize all mail matter directed to the countries of the enemy, and authority has been given to examine the contents and to hold the sender fully responsible for the character of the message, says The Toronto Star Weekly.

The activities at the local postoffice in sifting out forbidden correspondence have been directed mainly at the mass of mail sent by Canadians to relatives in Germany and Austria. Strange to say, the news that the countries concerned were in a state of war did not prevent hundreds of people from attempting to continue their letter-writing according to their previous customs. Every day in the week letters are sorted out of the mail bags gathered from all parts of the city, upon which the postoffice censors must pass their judgment. The procedure in the great majority of cases is to open the suspected letters and carefully scrutinize their contents. If regarded as innocent they are returned to their senders with a printed explanation of the action taken by the authorities. Some of these have been re-posted, only to meet the same barrier and the same official refusal.

On more than one occasion the mail censors have come across letters which justified a detailed examination. On such communications they have gone so far as to gather information respecting the sender, his local occupation, nationality, and character. It is stated, however, that in no instance has an arrest been found necessary. Obviously a trained German or Austrian spy would not jeopardize his budget of secret information by any such clumsy device as using the regular postoffice facilities. What reasonable information has proceeded out of Canada to date has been delivered undoubtedly by personal messengers. Rumors have persistently stated that full details of the training camp at Valcartier are remitted to the Kaiser's headquatrers by way of the long distance wireless station at Sayville, L.I., and whether or not the rumor is occurate it is practically impossible to place an embargo on military intelligence which local sympathizers might like to send to German quarters.

A way out of this censorship on outgoing Canadian mail has occasionally been found by seeking the aid of friends living in the United States, who might be able to utilize the United States mail services to foreign points. This process, however, is surrounded with special difficulties, and is workable in only a very small percentage of cases.

Attempts to circumvent the Post-office Department's censorship have betrayed not a little ingenuity. By addressing letters to points in Holland some have attempted to connect indirectly with the German postoffice system, which is in normal operation between these two countries. Even this, however, has been banned as irregular and Canadians with relatives in Holland have found their letters included in this same general order.

In normal times considerable sums of money have been remitted through the local postoffices by Gallicians, Bulgarians, and other foreigners to their families back in their native countries. Before the war, this remittance money found a route through German and Austrian agencies, but with the interruption of financial relations a great proportion of the postal remittances were held back indefinitely. It is said that thousands of dollars have been deposited in the postoffice savings banks awaiting a more favorable opportunity for transference to countries of continental Europe.

Jews Not Persecuted.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 3.—A semi-official note denies the German allegations that Jews are being persecuted in Poland. The note points out that the war is being conducted by a united Russia, comprising all nationalities without exception.

"Unfortunately, in contravention of article 44 of The Hague convention," says the note, "the enemy's troops operating in Russian territory are exacting from the Jewish population information concerning our army and means of defence, thus making the population liable to inevitable responsibilities."

None of the war correspondents have as yet reported that the Finns can see their Finnish.

A TELEGRAPHIC FLIRTATION

By MAY C. ETHERIDGE

I am, or, rather, was till lately, a woman telegraph operator. I was sitting at my operating table one night reading a novel to kill time—for I had little to do—when there came a night message from a distant station. As soon as it was finished the operator who sent it said good night to me. I replied that I wished I could say good night to all the world, for I was tired and sleepy and would like to go to bed. This resulted in a bit of conversation, in which my correspondent used certain masculine phrases that indicated him to be a man. But when I asked if he were a man he surprised me by saying that he was a woman. Next I was asked as to my sex, and, half suspecting that the operator was trying to humbug me, I replied that I was a man.

Then followed a period of love making, in which I as the man took the lead. I found it very difficult to make love as a man would, and the effort constituted the principal part of the amusement I derived from the affair. When I had nothing better to do I would write out certain lover-like phrases, then go over them, taking out the feminine give aways, substituting masculine phrases. These I would use in the corrected form the next time my lady called me up. I flattered myself that in this way I would avoid the appearance of being a woman.

My correspondent, if a man, which he claimed not to be, surely played the womanly part very well. He used very flowing language and expressed himself with such words as "I declare!" "That's just too funny for anything!" "Goodness gracious!" while I gave vent to "The dickens you say!" "Cut it out!" and "You bet!"

While I had been led to believe my correspondent was a man, a constant use of feminine expressions altered my opinion. I did not believe any man could avoid making some slip that would give him away. I certainly found it almost impossible to avoid revealing myself as a woman and realized that I could only do so in the manner I have indicated—that is, by writing my phrases and correcting them.

We exchanged, or pretended to exchange, photographs, though mine was one of my cousin, a handsome fellow about twenty-five. My correspondent was a comely girl with a spark of mischief in her eye. It was this expression that convinced me my correspondent was a girl. As I looked at her photograph it struck me that she was just the person to indulge in such a wire flirtation as was being carried on between us. I looked forward with pleasure to the day when we would meet and I should see the look of surprise on her face when she discovered her mistake.

To accomplish a meeting and apply a test at the same time I proposed that if my correspondent were coming my way he should call and see me. If he were really a man he would not scruple to do so. If she were a woman and believed me to be a man she would not come to see me, but expect me to come and see her. She stood the test. When I made the proposition she expressed herself as greatly surprised that I should do so, saying that she would not think of going to call on a man. She would, however, be happy to have the man call upon her.

If there was any doubt left in my mind that my operator was a woman this dispelled it. I apologized for what I called my thoughtlessness and said that I would take an early opportunity to call upon her. Nevertheless if it should turn out that some man had been representing himself as a woman it would be embarrassing for me, so I concluded to forego the pleasure of laughing at the girl and let the matter drop.

One morning a young man alighted from a train, came into the station, wrote a telegram and asked me to send it. The message was an unimportant one, simply stating that he would be in a certain place at a certain date. I counted the words, told him the price of the message, and he threw down the money. But he kept me at the window asking me questions about the town, how far it was to this place and that place and the running of trains. He was deferential, and I was not displeased to answer his questions. Finally I broke away to send his message, and as I did so he called to me:

"If the party is not found tell them to leave the message."

He went off uptown, but returned in about an hour with some flowers and, advancing to the window, laid them on the board over which messages are received and asked me if he might not send a telegram himself. Since he knew the Morse alphabet and thought he could stumble through one I assented, and, coming into the operating room, he sat down at the instrument and began to rattle off with the fluency of a professional telegrapher the name and address for the message. The address being the station of my correspondent, I pricked up my ears. The message read:

I have found the operator who has been pretending to be a man, and she is a woman, as was plain from the constant use of "Dear me." She is comely and attractive. I have brought her some flowers.

With that he turned with a sparkle in his eye to find me staring at him with cheeks red as the flowers he had brought me.

Woman's World

Mrs. George Law, International Beauty, a Red Cross Nurse.

MRS. GEORGE LAW

American women who live in Paris and London have been leaders in relief work there. Money for the work, splendid mansions for use as hospitals and personal service have all been tendered to the Red Cross.

Mrs. George Law of New York, whose beauty has been the admiration of two continents, is one of the recruits. It is with the French Red Cross that she is said to intend to work.

Mrs. Law was Miss Alga Smith. In 1894 she married George Law, who made a fortune in traction interests. Her husband died in 1898, and she was left a widow at twenty-two years of age, with an income of $300,000 a year. Since the death of her husband Mrs. Law has lived in Europe, residing in Paris and London.

She has been presented at most of the European courts and was a friend of the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

At various times she has been reported engaged to the maharajah of Kapurthala, the khedive of Egypt, Count de Dion, Count Chasselon, Prince Fuerstenberg and Gerald Lefevre Poutalis.

German Potato Salad.

The Germans excel in the art of preparing potato salad in a variety of combinations. Their first consideration is the potato, which must be just right. They use a hard little potato, which boils tender, but does not crumble. These potatoes may often be bought in delicatessen shops in your city and are usually called German salad potatoes or Hamburg potatoes. Blend them with onions, green peppers, beets, string beans, radishes, okra, carrots, cucumber, tomato, parsley, cress and lettuce for a vegetable salad.

With salt or smoked fish, shrimps, salmon, sardines, oysters or scallops you may have a different potato salad every day, so well do they combine with other good things to eat. All cooked meats, fresh or salt, make most excellent salads combined with potato. Poultry and fresh fish, except those mentioned, are an exception.

Potato salad is the one exception to the rule of serving salads as cold as possible. They are very good served hot and ofttimes should be served in this way, particularly for luncheon or supper with cold meats, or, if combined with meat, as a warm supper dish. Potato salad should never accompany a regular dinner of roast and vegetables, as it is too hearty a dish in itself.

A Neighbor Told Him To Take Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

If you want to know what Gin Pills will do for you, just drop a line to Mr. D. A. Yorke, at Bellrock, Ont. He will tell you what Gin Pills did for him, after he had suffered with Kidney trouble for 13 years. Here is his letter:

"I suffered for about 13 years with my Kidneys. I could get nothing to help me. The pain went all through my back and shoulders, and down the calves of my legs. When I would sit down for a while, I could not straighten up again until I would walk a rod or more, the pain was so great. A neighbor advised me to take GIN PILLS. I did so and six boxes cured me. It is about two and a half years since I quit taking them. My back is all right; no pains and no more backache. I thank GIN PILLS for it all—they are worth their weight in gold." D. A. YORKE.

FIREFLIES IN JAPAN.

Catching Them For Decorative Purposes Is a Regular Trade.

In Japan there is followed the pretty custom of employing in garden parties and in various other social functions the native fireflies for purposes of decorative illumination. In some cases these tiny creatures are disposed about in cages; sometimes they are released in swarms in the presence of guests.

To meet the demand for fireflies thus used it follows that there must be some systematic method of effecting their capture in sufficient quantities. There are a number of concerns in the Japanese cities that employ men to catch the fireflies. These hunters proceed about their task in this way:

The start is made at sunset, and the hunter takes with him a long bamboo pole and a bag of mosquito netting. When a suitable growth of willows near water is reached the hunter makes ready his net and strikes the branches, filled with the insects, with his pole. This jars them to the ground, where they may easily be gathered if one proceed about the job quickly before they have had time to recover and fly away.

The skilled hunter, sparing no time to put them at once into his bag, uses both hands to pick them up, and he tosses them lightly into his apron, where he holds them unharmed until it can contain no more. Then he transfers them to his bag.

This work proceeds until about 2 o'clock in the morning, at which hour the insects are beginning to leave the trees for the dewy soil. Then the hunter changes his tactics. He brushes the surface of the ground with a light broom to startle the insects into flight, when they are taken as before. It is said that an expert may capture as many as 3,000 in a single night.—Washington Star.

STICKY FEET OF THE FLY.

Why the Germ Laden Pest Constantly Rubs and Brushes Them.

Before the men of science terrified the world with their talk of germs most people thought that the housefly was a harmless creature and very cleanly in his habits, since he seemed to spend a great part of his time in cleaning his legs, but since public opinion has turned against him some explanation has to be found for his apparent cleanliness. Says the Bibliothek der Unterhaltung und des Wissens:

"The fact that a fly can walk on a glazed or slippery perpendicular surface has long been a matter of observation. It was at first thought that the fine hairs that cover his legs were so small that they could enter the pores of the smoothest surface and in that way bear the weight of his body. Later it was thought that a sticky fluid was secreted by the feet, which caused them to adhere slightly to the wall. The advent of the microscope has made it possible to observe the precise facts about the fly's unusual powers.

"It is true that the fly's feet secrete a kind of grease, but not in a liquid form. Each leg has from 1,600 to 2,000 minute hairs, and each hair carries a certain amount of this fat. When the fly lights on a smooth surface the whole mass of hairs adheres to it, and each individual hair can be seen under the microscope to leave a distinct grease spot, which has a little circular mark in its center made by the hair itself.

"With such sticky feet it is naturally the case that the fly collects a good deal of dust in the course of his daily perambulations. If he wishes to walk on glass or upside down on the ceiling he must spend a few hours every day keeping his feet clean of this coating of dirt."

Of Course!

Barney Phelan, Father Healey's servant, was celebrated for his ready wit. "Begorra, I dunno," replied Barney, "unless it is to keep your calf from eatin' your corn."—Boston Transcript.

A Point Gained From an Impostor

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

I began my public career by writing books; but, although I became favorably known as an author, my income from my literary work was not large. I presume I wrote for the few whose taste is refined. I entered the lecture field and found the work much easier and far more productive.

After having lectured in the principal cities of the United States during several successive seasons I turned my attention to foreign lands. One of my books was of the popular kind and was published all over the world, being translated into five different languages. This gave me good audiences wherever I went, and my profits were correspondingly large.

Having made engagements to lecture in Australia, I took a steamer for Melbourne, but, owing to a break in the machinery of the vessel that bore me, did not arrive there till the day after the date announced for my lecture. On driving to my hotel I saw my name posted on the streets with the date of the lecture which had passed. I wondered what had been done about the matter.

On reaching my hotel the gentlemanly clerk swung the register around for me to enter my name, and I wrote Ambrose Pemberton in large, round letters with a flourish under the words, as was my habit. When the clerk wheeled the register back and read what I had written he looked up at me with a surprised expression on his face. I returned his gaze inquiringly, but he did not enlighten me as to the cause of his surprise. Calling a boy, he handed him a key and told him to show me to my room.

When I came down to dinner I took up an evening newspaper, and what was my astonishment to read a report of a lecture I had delivered the night before. Not only had I lectured, but I had made a profound impression on the audience.

It was evident that some one had been personating me. Either those whom I had instructed to make the necessary preparations for me—I had no regular manager at this time—had hired a man to give the lecture or some person had taken advantage of my name and, having all things at hand for the purpose, had personated me. Having eaten dinner hastily I went out into the general rotunda for guests and others wherein the office was situated intending to make inquiries as to the person who had lectured in my name. On the way I passed three men, one of whom was introducing the other two:

"Mr. Williams, this is Mr. Pemberton, who won us all by his lecture last night."

I sank into an easy chair near by and, pretending to read the newspaper I had in my hand, listened.

"I was one of your audience, Mr. Pemberton," said Mr. Williams, "and have to thank you for a very agreeable evening. Some years ago I heard a man of your name lecture in Hongkong. Is he a relative of yours?"

"That fellow is an impostor. He goes about in places where I am known by reputation, but not in person and, taking advantage of the reputation, draws an audience and pockets the proceeds."

"That's a singular way of swindling. I never heard of such a thing before. I should think he would be an injury to you. His lecture was a very dull affair, I assure you."

Interesting as was this dialogue to me, I confess my amour propre was at this point somewhat ruffled. I controlled myself, however, and continued to keep my ears open.

"As I remember the fellow's lecture, which was on the pyramids of Egypt, it was as dry as the sands of the desert. Yours, on the contrary, was as fresh as a meadow in springtime."

"I never go into those details that are interesting only to bookworms," replied "Mr. Pemberton."

This latter remark decided me as to whether or not I should expose this real impostor. I determined to use the advice he had given me and pay no attention to him. In fact, I was indebted to him for an excellent point. The dialogue had informed me of what I required. I had been a close student of the subjects upon which I lectured, but I had relied too closely upon the body of my discourse, the information I conveyed, paying no attention to those artful accessories upon which the successful orator relies to catch and hold the attention of an audience of average intelligence. Following "Mr. Pemberton," I accosted him:

"Beg pardon, sir. I believe you are Mr. Pemberton, the lecturer. May I ask when and where you will lecture again? I am desirous of hearing you."

"Next week at Sydney."

"I am going to Sydney. I shall hear you."

The man looked at me suspiciously, but I passed on without saying anything more. I was advertised to lecture at Sydney the next week and resolved to go there incognito. I did so and attended the man's lecture, for he played the same game as at Melbourne.

He knew very little about his subject—only what he could read up hastily—but was full of humor and excellent in the use of pathos. From him I learned to introduce a quantum of light material into my lectures and from that time forward felt that my audiences were better pleased with my efforts, which gave me confidence, and the result was in all respects admirable.

BAD OPERATION AVOIDED

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Sowers' Own Statement.

Hodgdon, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

How to Launder Fine Nets.

The best process for washing fine nets and lace curtains is to wash them in warm water, not too hot, and the best soap. To wash them in too hot water makes them tender and causes the threads to break. After washing out the dust in warm water soap them and allow them to stand for fifteen or twenty minutes. Then wash them by hand and always wring lace curtains carefully through the wringer, never by hand. That strains them and causes them to break in places. Rinse well in cold water, then starch with warm starch. If this process does not whiten them, scald, but do not boil them. This is the best way to wash fine curtains, especially ecru colored.

Desert of Sahara.

The world's largest desert is in the vast region of northern Africa extending from the Atlantic Ocean on the west to the valley of the Nile on the east. The length of this immense arid region, the great desert of the Sahara, from east to west is about 3,000 miles and its area about 2,000,000 square miles. Rain falls in torrents on the Sahara at intervals of five, ten or twenty years. In the summer the heat during the day is excessive; but the nights are often cold. In winter the temperature of parts of the desert is sometimes below freezing point.

The Lost Company.

"Hungry, I suppose?" said the sharp faced woman as she opened the door just a little bit.

"W'y, no," answered the ragged wayfarer. "I've clean forgot how to be hungry. But I'm out and out lonely."

"Lonely!"

"Yes. You see, I hain't had nothing to eat for so long that I've got so thin I can't cast no shadder, and you ain't no idea what company a man's shadder is to him while he is travelin' along the road."

Honey Cookies.

Mix together one cupful of strained honey, one cupful of granulated sugar, two eggs well beaten, two level teaspoonfuls of soda and a little salt. Add flour enough to knead into a soft dough and let it stand overnight. In the morning roll out the dough and cut it into fancy shapes. Bake in a slow oven.

ANNIVERSARY NEXT SUNDAY

To Mark Seventy-fifth Year of Anglican Diocese of Toronto

(Fom thé Toronto Gloge.)

The Anglican Diocese of Toronto commemorates its seventy-fifth anniversary on Sunday week, November 8, with services in all the parish churches of the diocese. Had it not been for the war, something more elaborate would have been done by way of celebrating the event; but in the circumstances simple thanksgiving rather than jubilation, has appeared to the authorities to be fitting.

At present the diocese comprises the counties of York, Ontario, Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough, Victoria, Simcoe and Halton. In 1839 it took in all of Upper Canada, as old Ontario then was called, including the districts of Algoma and Thunder Bay.

In 1857, because of the great increase of population in the London district, the Diocese of Huron was set off by itself, Archdeacon Cronyn, father-in-law of the Hon. Edward and the Hon. S. H. Blake, becoming Bishop. This diocese, which has never been subdivided, is one of the largest in the Canadian Church, in point of number of clergy being second only to Toronto. In it are Grey, the Bruce peninsula and the other counties on Lake Huron, the Lake Erie counties and the inland counties, excepting Wellington. The see city is London and the Bishop is the Right Reverend David Williams.

The year 1862 saw the erection of a new diocese for the eastern end of the Province with the now inappropriate name of Ontario. Kingston or, still better, Cataraqui, would historically have been more to the purpose, seeing that in that town, under its Indian name, Anglicanism in Upper Canada had its beginnings in 1785.

Ontario, two of whose coadjutor Bishops have borne the title of Bishop of Kingston, was divided in 1896, Ottawa being the name given to the diocese then formed. To Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion, Dr. Lewis, the fist Bishop of Ontario, had begun to look early in his episcopate. Cornwall, one of the earliest missions to be established in the eighteenth century had been deemed by the late Dr. Mountain, when rector of that parish, to be a suitable place for the centre of a see, and accordingly he provided in his will for an endowment for a diocese to bear that name. Under this will Ottawa has recently received a handsome addition to its endowment fund.

Some Important Changes.

Dr. Lewis had begun soon after his consecration, in 1862, also to take a deep interest in the business of the recently formed Provincial Synod of Canada, of which he and the Bishop of Quebec, Montreal, Toronto and Huron were members. In 1865 he had the honor of moving the resolution of that body which led untimately to the meeting, in 1867, of the first Anglican Conference at Lambeth. In 1893, when the General Synod was organized at Trinity College, he, as Metropolitan of the Province of Canada, which by that time included Niagara and the Maritime Provinces, became an Archbishop and Primate of Canada. The Primacy of all Canada went to Archbishop

TURKEY'S EFFORT TO AVOID WAR HAS NOT SUCCEEDED?

If Peace Party in Turkish Cabinet Has Secured the Upper Hand the Ottoman Empire May Recede on Original Terms Offered by Allies

LONDON, Nov. 3.—An unconfirmed news agency despatch from Constantinople says that the Grand Vizier has tendered an apology for recent events in the Black Sea. To whom this apology was made is unknown. The British and Russian Ambassadors are said to have left the city Sunday night for Salonica, and the French diplomatic representative has arranged to make his departure to-day. It is also problematical as to whether such an apology has been made to Russia alone or to France and her allies. If the peace party in the Turkish Ministry has prevailed it means that Turkey can only recede from her perilous position by complying with all of the articles in the ultimatum of the Triple Entente, delivered a few days ago. The chief points involved are the disarmament of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau, "bought" from Germany, and the immediate discharge of all German officers in the Ottoman army and navy.

The Turkish Ambassador here, Tewfik Pasha, was given his passports yesterday, and the same applies to the Sultan's diplomatic agent at Petrograd. Similar action was expected at Bordeaux.

Despite the patience of the Triple Entente with Turkey and their willingness that the peace party in her Cabinet should extricate her from a position obviously the work of German agents, it was stated last night in an authoritative quarter that Turkey will have to do much more than apologize. The departure of the Ministers from Constantinople and of the Turkish diplomats here and at Petrograd indicate that the Grand Vizier's belated peace efforts have failed.

Simultaneously with the report of an apology by the Sultan comes a despatch from Athens, which says that the Turkish gunboat Dubakreiss and the Turkish armed steamer Kinaliada have been sunk in the Gulf of Techechme.

That the vessels have been lost is indicated by conflicting statements as to the means by which they were sunk. It is known that the Franco-British fleet entered the Gulf of Techechme yesterday morning, and one message says that the allied warships caught up with and destroyed the Turkish craft. Another report from Ottoman sources declares that the commanders of the vessels blew them up when the allied fleet appeared on the horizon.

That the cruiser Goeben has been driven off from the attempted bombardment of Sebastopol is the information contained in a cablegram from that famous fortress, at whose gates nearly every nation of Europe has hammered with small success. This message says that the guns of the Constantinowskawa battery compelled the Goeben to retire. Shortly afterwards a wireless was intercepted from the big battle cruiser, saying: "Damaged; will return to Constantinople for repairs."

Out of a mass of disconnected reports emerges the fact that Turkish gunboats have moved from the Red Sea into the Gulf of Suez and that Turkish soldiers have already started a formidable raid into Egypt from Sinai. Their objective is plainly the Suez Canal. British forces are well prepared to halt this raid, and both French and British warships command every point on the Mediterranean from which the 300,000 Turkish troops mobilized on the Syrian coast can be transported to the Sinai Peninsula.

It is reliably reported that 400,000 Ottomans are concentrated at a point near the Caucasus for a quick blow at Russia. But the Czar has not been caught unawares, and a force estimated variously at from 500,000 to 1,000,000 men is within a few days' march of all strategical points by which the Turks might enter. In addition, there is no hardier soldier in the world than the natives of the Caucasus, who have fought the Turk for centuries. It is also interesting to note that of the 13,000,000, or 14,000,000 Mahommetan subjects of the "Little White Father" in the Caucasian zone, practically every one is expected to remain loyal. German and Austrian efforts to spread a "holy war" propaganda have failed here, as they did in India. The situation is thoroughly comforting from all angles as concerns the likelihood of dangerous Turkish aggression in this quarter.

During Sunday Turkish warships again bombarded Odessa and also flung a number of shells into Anapa, at the extremity of the Caucasus. The Breslau and Goeben led the second naval assault on Odessa, supported by four Turkish torpedo boats.

The attack on Anapa is believed to have been in the nature of a signal to the Caucasian Mahommedans, whom, it was hoped by the Germans and the war party at Constantinople, would rally on the Crescent and slay their Russian neighbors. The uprising failed to eventuate, and the Mohommedan leaders and newspapers along Russia's southern border declaim against Turkish action, swearing fealty to the Czar.

RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE BEYOND VISTULA ALMOST UNOPPOSED

Germans Retreating From Warsaw Are Falling Back Towards Silesia and Austrians Are Returning to Galician Frontier

PETROGRAD, Nov. 3.—The following report from the General Staff of the Russian commander-in-chief was made public here last night:

"On the front in Eastern Prussia our troops have repulsed German attacks directed against Vladislavoff, driven the enemy from the eastern edge of the Rominten Forest and advanced to the north of Lake Raigorod.

"Beyond the Vistula our troops continue the offensive without being opposed. Only in the region of Opatow the Austrians attempted to resist us with considerable forces. They were repulsed. Beyond the Opatow river the Austrians hold a fortified position.

"In Galicia, on the San river, our troops entered the Village of Nisko, where fierce fighting took place.

"On the rest of the front the situation is virtually unchanged."

The military correspondent of The Novoe Vremya, explaining the changing disposition of the enemy's forces, says:

"The Austrians are moving south and southwest toward the west Galician frontier and Cracow, while the Germans, retreating from Warsaw, are falling back west and southwest toward the Silesian frontier. As the Russian troops from Warsaw and Novoe Georgiewsk follow the Germans, the Russian East Prussian corps is moving in force on the regions northwest of Warsaw, covering Warsaw from the direction of Mlawa and occupying both banks of the Vistula below Warsaw."

necessary some of the older citizens would go including himself. He said it has always been a great tradition to uphold the country of the British soldier in the days that are gone.

Rev. Jas. Rollins said: "I count it a sacred honor to be permitted to address you. I can only heartily endorse what has already been said. Duty was the highest thing in life, and life itself would be a simple thing if we only had to do one thing at a time. You have been confronted with the same things, and you have chosen the hardest duty. You confer an honor upon us. We are not confering an honor upon you because we address you. I honor you and respect you and I hope the spirit of enlistment will become contagious and that others will catch the enthusiasm. A high tribute aught to be paid to the mothers of these men. It is they who are making the sacrifice. He impressed upon the men to form a comradeship, with the French and Belgians as they stood shoulder to shoulder in their efforts to conquer.

$2 for Each Soldier.

The members of the contingent then received little presents from the officers of the 57th Regiment. It was the sum of two dollars for each out of the Regimental Funds.

The contingent then sat down to a sumptuous dinner provided for them by the ladies of the Women's War Fund. The tables were tastefully decorated with small Union Jacks, American Beauty roses, and small ferns. The women are to be congratulated on their fine taste. During the meal the men were presented with wristlets and caps, by the ladies.

After justice had been done to the inner man the boys lined up for their march to the station after which Canon Davidson conducted a short service. Headed by Mayor Bulle, Adjutant McElhipey and Alderman Duncan headed the parade, followed by the 57th Band, Bugle Band and the volunteers accompanied with some of the members of the 57th Regiment paraded to the C.P.R. station where the volunteers boarded coaches waiting for them. About 12.35 the special train drew in and picked them up. The train drew out amid great cheering and several selections by the 57th Band. Except for several touching scenes, every one seemed to be thrilled with great enthusiasm.

Sweater Coats Presented.

The soldiers from Lindsay, who were also on the train, were presented with sweater coats by the citizens of Lindsay.

Temporary Sidewalk.

On motion of Ald. Duffus and Green a temporary sidewalk will be built on Murray Street between Bethune and Stewart Streets.

No Civic Cement Factory.

Ald. Duffus, chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee, reported that it will be impossible for the city to manufacture their own pipe for the outfall sewer during the coming winter and they have met with no success in their efforts to secure a building.

Wanted License.

Two young men appeared before the meeting and asked for a six months' license to peddle fish for $15. The cost of a license for a year would be $30. While the aldermen would like to have assisted them they did not deem it advisable as it would interfere with the business of the merchants who pay taxes.

INJUNCTION AGAINST HYDRO IS REFUSED

Toronto, Nov. 3. — The Lincoln Electric Light Co, failed in its attempt at Osgoode Hall yesterday to get an injunction till the trial of its action against the Hydro-Electric Commission of St. Catharines. The application ought to prevent the commission from using the company's poles for its distributing plant. The commission on Saturday had the city lighted by Hydro light for the first time, but it is said to be cutting in on domestic lighting which caused the company to bring the action.

C. H. Connors, for the commission, stated that a stated case had been offered to the company months ago, but the company let the matter lie until the commission plant had been completed. He urged that in any case it was a matter for damages, as the right of the commission to use the poles was undoubted. The city of St. Catharines was behind the commision to pay any damages.

A DEATH TRAP SAYS ALD. GREEN

Delay in Repairs at Creek is Dangerous

Ald. Green launched last evening's meeting of the City Council into discussing the question of the city repairing the covering over the creek immediately south of McDonnel St., and on the private property west of Downie street. The City Solicitor explained that he had his report on the matter, and it will come before the next meeting of the board of works. Ald. Green put forth the warning that delay was dangerous, for if someone is injured or killed, the city may be held liable. "It's a death trap," Ald. Green exclaimed, "just as sure as heaven is above us."

Aldermen to Be Present.

Mayor Buller reminded the aldermen of the meeting in the Armouries tonight, and urged them to be present. "Canada is at war, as well as Great Britain, and it's the duty of this Council to assist," His Worship remarked.

FOR INFORMATION OF THE HORSEMAN

Mr. Burnham has received the following communication from Major-General Macdonald, Ottawa:—

Department of Militia and Defence.

Ottawa, 31st October, 1914.

Dear Mr. Burnham, —

In reply to yours of 30th instant, I fear that there is some misunderstanding as no intructions or authority have been given to anyone to purchase horses for the Canadian Government; the circumstances you refer to must be in connection with the purchase of remounts for the British Government.

As I have already stated in my previous letter, this Department has not anything to do with these purchases, all arrangements being made through Major General Sir Frederick Benson. It is regretted that you have been inconvenienced in any way but I assure you that it is through no fault of this Department.

I would suggest that you communicate on the subject with the above named officer and I am sure that a satisfactory explanation will be forthcoming.

Yours faithfully,
D. MACDONALD.

BOARD OF WORKS FOR ALD. WEIR

Is Also Appointed to the Fire Water and Light Committee

At the meeting of the Council last night Ald. Weir, the new East City representative, was appointed to the Board of Works, Fire, Water and Light and Power Committee. His predecessor, Ald, Anderson, was also on the finance committee but Ald. Stratton was given the seat as he is an older member and likewise a chairman of a committee.

IS RESTAURANT A PUBLIC PLACE?

Is a Chinese restaurant a public place?

G. N. Gordon, counsel for several young men who, it is alleged, were gambling in a restaurant, raised this point at Police Court this morning.

Magistrate Dumble had his doubts on this point, and as a result he adjourned the case for a wek.

The defendants were charged with gambling in a public place.

MAY BE SENT TO FIGHT TURKS

Some of Canada's Soldiers Likely to Serve in Egypt

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—Full instructions concerning the composition of the second Canadian contingent, have been received from the War Office. There may be some further negotiations. It is understood that the instructions are given on the supposition that the second force will comprise a full division of at least 22,000 men, of which the 16,000 men now being enlisted will form the infantry branch, but it is not considered that the same amount of artillery will be provided.

It is considered probable, in view of the situation which has developed in the Near East, that some Canadians may see service in Egypt. The recent massing of Turkish troops in the vicinity of that country may be the cause of drawing certain units hither.

COURT DOUBT'S MINOR'S STORY

Lad Said He Got Liquor From Stall in Hotel Yard

"This boy's only 16 years old, and I want to find where he got his liquor," said the Police Chief when the culprit stood up in the dock at Police Court this morning and pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly last night on Aylmer street.

In the witness box the lad said he was 16 last December. He got the liquor in a stall at the Palace Hotel yard.

"That's no good," remarked the Chief.

"We've heard enough of that," added his Worship. "Straighten up and tell the truth."

The lad, however, refused to change his story.

"I'll ask for a remand for a week. This isn't his first time," said the Chief.

William Hargrave said he was guilty of being drunk.

"I was waiting for my train," quoth William.

The Court said $2.00 or ten days, and Bill sat down.

Frank Fountain received the same dose.

Henry H. Clancy also tarried over the flaming fluid, and he heard the same alternative.

A GREAT COMRADE TO THE SOLDIERS

KING ALBERT OF BELGIUM.

"The Belgian King's bearing when he is under fire is splendid," says the Tijd's Dunkirk correspondent at the front. "While the wounded were being withdrawn on one occasion he stood calmly smoking a cigarette and superintending operations with projectiles bursting all around.

"The King is a great comrade to the soldiers. Frequently he takes his meals at the soldiers' mess, discussing with the men the conduct of the campaign and the likelihood of early peace. He has been greatly amused at a visitor's account of the huge retinue of guards with which the German Emperor is surrounded."

Among the Peterboro boys who have signed with the 57th Regiment for active service with the overseas forces is Mr. Allin MacNabb, son of G. T. R. Station Agent MacNabb, formerly of Lindsay.

COMMITTEE REPORTS ADOPTED BY COUNCIL

REPORTS ADOPTED.

The following recommendations of committees were last night adopted by the council:—

Your Legal Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:—

That no action be taken on the application of Dumble & Johnston that the sum paid by the George Street Methodist Church for garbage collection be refunded.

That the by-law to appoint fence viewers be passed and that the following persons be named as fence viewers under the by-law: R. H. Parsons, James Brown and Joseph Metheral.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Your Board of Works beg leave to report and recommend as follows:—

That the City Engineer be instructed to advertise for tenders for snow ploughing and to make the contracts the same as last year with the added provision that the snow must be removed in such a manner as to keep the sidewalks level.

That a cheque for $20.00 be issued to Rev. W. J. McColl to pay the cost of construction of a sidewalk on Hunter Street at St. Mary's School.

That an account from the Fire Department for $16.82 be referred to the City Engineer and if he finds it correct that it be paid.

That a temporary crossing of plank be put in on Benson Street at Ernest Telford's to serve until it is ascertained where permanent crossings will be required.

That Stewart Street south of Perry Street be graded and water tabled.

That the City Engineer be given power to act on a request for a wooden sidewalk on the north side of Wolfe Street from George Brenton's house to Rutherford Avenue.

That the Peterborough Utilities Commission be requested to lay water mains on Maud Street, on Rubidge Street south of Murray Street and on Gilchrist Street between Murray Street and the creek.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ALD. DUNCAN,
Chairman.

WON'T FATTEN BANK ROLLS, AS FENCE VIEWERS

Some Objection to Names Suggested for the Job

As the by-law for appointing R. H. Parsons, J. Metheral and J. Brown, fence-viewers was being passed by the City Council last evening Ald. Green expressed himself as being in favor of giving the work to men who do not possess so much of this world's goods as the three named. Ald. Duffus was of the same opinion claiming that the job should be given to men with as much brains and not as much money. Mayor Buller claimed that none of the three men were millionaires and as the services would be required perhaps only twice or three times a year, no one could get fat on the salary. His Worship remarked that the three men named would do the work in a manner which would be a credit to themselves and the city and fair to the parties concerned. It was decided to let the three names, submitted by the Legal Committee, stand.

Another by-law was passed appointing Miss Jessie C. Swinton, deputy-city treasurer, for a period of six months. The City Solicitor explained that it was necessary to have a deputy-city treasurer in the absence of City Treasurer Adams, so as to have the debentures, etc., properly signed.

REPORT TO COUNCIL BEFORE MONEY IS PAID TO COMPANY

At a previous meeting of the council it was decided to give the City Solicitor the power to pay the $100,000 for the property of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., which now rests in the Court of Ontario, to the Power Co., when he deems it advisable.

At last night's meeting Ald. Stratton expressed himself as being in favor of the Solicitor reporting to the council before the money is transferred. The Mayor thought that the solicitor should use his own judgment in the matter but the rest of the aldermen decided the Ald. Stratton was better, so a motion, to that affect was carried.

Machray, Metropolitan of Rupert's Land.

The Missionary Diocese of Algoma, with the Bishop's seat at Sault Ste. Marie, was created by the Provincial Synod in 1872, all of the country to the north of the organized counties being taken away from the Diocese of Toronto. It is interesting to note that this see was declined by Dr. Du Moulin and Dr. Hamilton, both of whom afterwards became so widely known as Bishops of Niagara, the former having first made his mark as fourth rector of St. James', Toronto, and the latter being now on the point of giving up his work as Archbishop of Ottawa and Metropolitan.

Only in the following year, 1873, was the see of Algoma accepted by Dr. Fauquier, rector of St. Paul's, Woodstock, which subsequently gave another of its rectors, Dr. Sweatman, to be third Bishop of Toronto, and still another, Dr. Farthing, to be the present Bishop of Montreal, after an interval of two years spent in Kingston as Dean of Ontario. Dr. Fauquier's successor in Algoma was Dr. Sullivan, who, on his resignation of the bishopric, became fifth rector of St. James', Toronto.

Last Division Toronto Diocese.

Only once more was the Diocese of Toronto divided, in 1875, when that of Niagara was founded, under the jurisdiction of Dr. Fuller, who had been rector of St. George's Toronto, and an Archdeacon. The title, Bishop of Niagara, had, for a few months in 1867, been held by Dr. Bethune, who early in that year had been elected coadjutor to the first Diocesan of Toronto, the famous Bishop Strachan. In November the title lapsed, for, Dr. Strachan dying, Dr. Bethune became Bishop of Toronto.

When Upper Canada was still under the ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the Bishop of Nova Scotia, as it was from 1787 to 1793, the clergy at no time numbered more than three, they being stationed at Kingston, Fredericksburgh and Niagara, all situated outside the present boundaries of the Diocese of Toronto. It was only in 1800 that the first Bishop of Quebec, who, with his immediate successors, had jurisdiction over Upper Canada from 1793 to 1839, could find a clergyman, Dr. George Okill Stuart, who was willing to stay in "muddy little York." Even he was glad to go to Kingston in 1812, to succeed his father, for that village seemed to have a greater future before it than the village of York, now Toronto. But in that same year, 1812, Dr. Strachan of Cornwall became rector of York, and under his more immediate care the Church prospered with increasing population, the Bible Society being organized, new settlers followed up as fast as possible, and the Indian cared for.

At the death of Dr. Jacob Mountain, the first Bishop of Quebec, in 1825, the Upper Canadian portion of his diocese contained twenty-six clergymen. By 1837, when the second Bishop, Dr. Stewart, died in England, worn out by his truly apostolic labors, they had increased to forty-three, with five catechists besides. In 1839, on the separation of the Diocese of Toronto from Quebec, the numbers stood at fifty-five, increasing to one hundred and two within four years of Dr. Strachan's consecration.

Number of the Clergy.

After the several subdivisions of the diocese already referred to, the clergy numbered in 1858, 135; in 1862, 104; in 1872, 139; in 1877, 119; not counting at any period those who had been superannuated. Now they number 231 on the active list, showing clearly that, notwithstanding the energy of Dr. Sweeny, the present Bishop, and of his assistant, Dr. Reeve, the time for a further subdivision is coming, if indeed it has not already come.

Of these 231, eighty-four are laboring in parishes in Toronto, eighteen are engaged in educational work in Toronto, Port Hope and Lakefield, four are chaplains in public institutions, and other four are entrusted with the oversight of diocesan missions, social work, Sunday School work and foreign missions. Thus over half the total number are engaged in ordinary parish work outside of the city of Toronto.

Within the territory comprised in the Diocese of Toronto at its establishment, in 1839, there are six hundred and fifty-four clergy, in addition to the bishops. The latter bear rule over six dioceses, which, together have since 1912 made up the ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, with the Archbishop of Ottawa as Metropolitan.

NO LONGER BATTLE BUT BUTCHERY

Arrivals in Holland Say Germans are Deserting

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The correspondent of The Amsterdam Handelsblad at Sluis telegraphs as follows: "All German attempts to break through the line of the allied forces between Nieuport and Dixmude have failed. In spite of the greatest sacrifices the Germans have not succeeded in gaining ground on the other bank of the canal.

"Communication with Ostend is almost completely interrupted. Permits to leave Bruges are no longer given, but tram cars are still running, and the German marine band gives daily concerts in the market place. German soldiers, tired of the war, continue to cross the frontier near Sluis in large numbers. They declare that it is no longer a question of battles but of butchering."

Statue of Carnegie Pelted.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A despatch to a news agency from Dunfermline, Scotland, says that local sentiment against Andrew Carnegie because of his alleged pro-German attitude is so strong that the statue of Mr. Carnegie, which was erected by the citizens of his native town last June, was pelted by a crowd.

Carnegie films which have been exhibited at moving picture houses have been withdrawn, the correspondent says.

FREEDOM OF POLAND IS ONE OF THE EVENTS OF THE WAR

Not even the issue of that great battle on the plains of Belgium, where the artillery of five nations is awakening echoes as portentous as those of Waterloo, should wholly avail to distract the attention of the world from the momentous rescript of the Czar of Russia which promises to the Poles the realization of most if not all of the dreams and the aspirations which they have treasured for nearly a century and a half with a patriotism and a fidelity surpassing even that which has animated the French as they looked across an arbitrary frontier to the mournful prospect of their lost provinces.

Alone of the races the Poles, divided between three great powers, the subjects of Prussia, Russia and Austria, have failed to achieve even a partial risorgimento, although of all races they have most ardently and loyally preserved the memory of former solidarity and cherished the dream of future reintegration. To them now the Czar, with all the solemnity and publicity of an irrefragible oath, has promised the right to speak their language, pursue the natural evolution of their own race, if, in this great European crisis they give to him and his nation the loyalty which may assure him victory.

And this sacred promise does not apply merely to the 12,000,000 people who live in that restricted district, no larger than Lower Ontario which bears the name of Russian Poland and contains the ancient capital of Warsaw. Reading the rescript there is no mistaking the fact that it is equally instinct with hope for the 5,000,000 Poles now subjects of a Hapsburg and the 3,000,000 Poles who owe reluctant submission to a Hohenzollern. In a word, the rescript of the Czar points inevitably toward new and momentous changes in the map of Europe if victory shall come to the cause he has championed in this great conflict.

If Poland is to be re-established, why not Bohemia with its millions of Slavs, not less than 8,000,000, including the Slovaks on the marches of Hungary, west of the Carpathians? Ever since the "Defenestration of Prague," even since the battle of the White Hill that sent the Winter King into exile, Bohemia has been subject to the Germans, and millions of Czechs have maintained a desperate battle for racial independence. To-day Europe is fighting because the Czar chose to extend to the little Slav brother on the Danube the protection of his great empire. To-day the Serbs of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Croats of Dalmatia and Croatia, the Slovenes of Carniola, Carinthia and the Coast Lands, all the southern Slavs from the Alps to the Balkans are included in the great Pan-Slavon renaissance which has followed the victories of the Slavs of Bulgaria and Servia in the Balkans.

Not as an appeal to a fraction of his own people, not as a pledge to bind the halting loyalty of some millions of subjects on a threatened frontier, is the Czar's rescript to be accepted. It has a far wider meaning not mistaken either in Berlin or Vienna, or indeed in London.

Poland restored, even with its frontiers of language alone, would give Europe a State of nearly 25,000,000 inhabitants. It would take from Germany at least three provinces and from Austria half its population, if to the freeing of the Poles there was added the logical work of liberating all Slavs, Austria would disappear from the map of Europe. There would appear at least three Slav States in its place: Poland, Bohemia and Serbo-Croatia. To Slavdom there would be added not less than 30,000,000 of Slavs, bound by ties of race, religion and common hatred of the German.

Such in its wider aspect is the meaning of the rescript of the Czar. In it is to be found much warrant for the German assertion that at bottom the present war is a struggle between Slav and Teuton.

Censorship Necessary

Britons Merely Unaccustomed to Having News Supply Abridged

Perhaps one of the most striking things about the war has been the veil of secrecy thrown over the operations of the campaign, thanks to official censorship and the co-operation of the press. In no country has the silence been more significant or more useful than in Great Britain.

The British public is more than most communities in the world, jealous of the least infringement upon the liberties of the press and has grown up to rely absolutely upon the press for its daily news. The fact must be borne in mind that the British Empire has not been engaged in a great European war for such a great number of years that the public is unaccustomed to restrictions on the news supplied to it by the press.

Undoubtedly the numerous small wars in which Great Britain has been engaged since the Crimean campaign are in some quarters responsible for the impatience manifested in certain quarters over the strict censorship. While Britain was engaged in campaigns against Afghans, Abyssinians, Afridis, Burmans, Ashantis, Maoris or Soudanese there was no object in closely censoring news, even that transmitted from the front by newspaper correspondents. The enemy had no facilities for getting any useful intelligence which might have published back from the points of publication in time to be of use, and if they had obtained it, its value from a military point of view would have been more or less limited.

The situation in the present war is very different from that which existed during any of the small wars of the past century. The enemy is one especially alive to the value of military intelligence, one that has reaped inestimable benefits from its possession in the past campaigns; and that by the establishment and careful maintenance, regardless of expense, of elaborate intelligence and spy systems in every corner of the world, has equipped itself to promptly gather in every scrap of news calculated to be of direct military value.

It is a well known and universally admitted axiom that the success of a nation which appeals to arms depends to a great extent upon the concealment of its plans and their operations.

On the other hand, ample and accurate information about the enemy is the best guarantee for success and an absolute essential to security. Napoleon said that a general who was ignorant of the enemy's doings and intentions was ignorant of his profession.

Chief of Imperial General Staff Avoids the Limelight

General Sir Charles W. H. Douglas Chief of the Imperial General Staff is little known to the public. A dour Scotch soldier, he participated in Roberts' famous march to Candahar and served with distinction in India Egypt, and South Africa. In the last Boer war he was on the staff and so did little of the showy work, but his list of "mentioned in despatches" has rarely been excelled. Douglas would be mightily astonished if anybody cheered him, and he would probably consider it an impertinence. Anyway, his is not one of the faces that decorate picture postcards, and not one in a thousand would recognise his photo if they saw it.

GENERAL SIR CHARLES DOUGLAS

THE SWISS PRESIDENT

Not an Overwhelmingly Important Figure in the Mountain Republic

There is one highly civilized country in which not one person in four could give the ruler's name.

That country is Switzerland. Switzerland recently elected a new President, but his appointment passed practically unnoticed, even in Switzerland itself.

One reason why the President is almost unknown either by name or by sight is that he is not a public figure at all. He has no privileges as President and no official uniform—not even of the army.

Switzerland has a fresh President every year. He has no personal authority as President, and is practically only the Speaker of Switzerland's unassuming little Parliament.

It is recorded that at a meeting of Swiss business men no one could recall the name of the President. The waiter was asked. He happened to know, because the President was his uncle. His name is Arthur Hoffman.

Napoleon Retired Flags

Before Napoleon's time it had been the custom for armies to carry huge, unwieldy flags mounted on poles, which, while they afforded a rallying point for their corps, also drew the enemy's fire. Napoleon revived the ancient symbol of the Caesars. The Napoleonic eagle itself was 8 inches in height and 9 inches across the wings. It stood on a brass block 3 inches square.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Immense export sales, possibly the largest ever known, gave the wheat market today an upward swing after a brief downward turn at the start. Prices closed firm, ⅝c to ⅞c above Saturday night. Other leading staples, too, all scored a net advance—corn ⅛c to ½c, oats ⅝c to ½c, and provisions 7½c to 20c.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—There was a good demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today at a further advance of 6d per quarter, and sales of 25 loads were made, but considerable more business would have been done if the ocean grain room was available. There was also a good demand from exporters for wheat on spot, and sales of 150,000 bushels were made. The local trade in coarse grains was fair at firm prices, there being an improved demand for oats and corn. A firm feeling prevails in the flour market, but the volume of business doing for both local and export account is still small. Millfeed is steady under a better demand.

The butter market is quiet, finest creamery at the auction sale selling at 27¼c.

Cheese is also quiet. Exports for the week were 51,945 boxes, as compared with 48,622 for the same week last year.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 3985 cattle, 2037 hogs, 2335 sheep and lambs and 402 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice steers and heifers sold from $7.25 to $7.75; good at $6.75 to $7.15; medium butchers' steers and heifers at $6.50 to $6.75; common butchers' steers and heifers at $6 to $6.25; choice cows at $6.50 to $6.75; good cows at $5.75 to $6.25; canners and cutters at $3 to $4.50; bulls at $5 to $6.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Choice feeders sold at $6.25 to $6.60; good feeders at $5.75 to $6.25; common feeders, $5.50 to $6; stockers at $4.75 to $5.60; eastern stockers at $4 to $4.50.

Milkers and Springers.

Only a limited number of milkers and springers were offered, and these sold at $60 to $90 each.

Veal Calves.

Choice calves sold at $10 to $10.50; good calves, $8.50 to $9.50; medium, $7 to $8; common, $6 to $7; inferior eastern calves, $4.50 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, light ewes, $5.25 to $5.75; heavy ewes, $3.50 to $4.50; culls and rams, $2.50 to $4; lambs, good to choice quality, $7.50 to $7.70; medium quality lambs, $7 to $7.30; cull lambs, $6 to $6.50.

Hogs.

Hog prices declined 25c per cwt. The bulk of those on the market were from the northwest. Selects fed and watered sold at $7.25, and $7.50 weighed off cars, and $6.90 f.o.b. at country points.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, a weak tone developed and prices as compared with this day week showed a decline of 50c per cwt. for steers and 25c for bulls, while cows were unchanged. The bulk of the steers coming forward from Ontario points were contracted for by drovers with farmers and feeders sometime ago at much higher prices than they could be bought for today, and it is claimed that they are losing from $10 to $15 per head. At the above reduction in prices noted the trade in cattle was very slow. A few loads of choice Ontario steers sold at $7.50 to $7.75, and northwest ranch cattle sold at $6.50, while picked lots of choice domestic cows brought $6.75 per 100 pounds. The supply of canning stock was large, and the demand limited, with prices 25c per cwt. lower. Bulls sold at $4.50 to $4.75, and cows at $2.50 to $4.25 per cwt.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for lambs, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.50 to $7.75; do., medium, $6 to $7; do., common, $4.75 to $6.25; canners, $3.50 to $4.75; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $6.50 to $6.75; do., medium, $5.50 to $6; do., bulls, $5.50 to $6.50; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $75; do., common and medium, each, $60 to $65; springers, $50 to $55; sheep, ewes, $4.75 to $5; bucks and culls, $4.25 to $4.50; lambs, $7 to $7.75; hogs, f.o.b., $8; calves, $5 to $20.

Digging Deeper

Mr. Manufacturer: You are asking the public to support you by buying Canadian made goods. What are you yourself doing to help the cause?

Few manufacturers take absolutely raw material from field or mine and turn out an absolutely finished product, ready for consumption.

A maker of biscuits, for example, uses flour, sugar, flavoring extracts, boxes, labels, etc., all of which have passed through various processes of manufacture before they come to his hands.

The wheat is ground into flour, the sugar is refined, the boxes fashioned, the labels printed by other manufacturers.

In the same way your industry is dependent on others just as others are dependent on yours.

Are you, Mr. Manufacturer, buying your "raw" material, which is really a manufactured product, from Canadian makers? Much of what you need is produced here. Your own markets depend on the continuous employment of every Canadian workmen.

A REMARKABLE PROPHECY PREDICTED THE WAR

The Present Conflict Foretold Sixty Years Ago — Complete Overthrow of Germany and Austria

There is in Germany a famous prophecy. It is called "The Prophecy of Mayence," and dates from 1854. It comprises eighteen verses of prediction, of which the first nine have been fulfilled in the most remarkable manner. Here are the verses:

1. When the little people of the Oder shall feel themselves strong enough to shake off the yoke of their protector and when the barley is sprouting from the ears their King shall march against Austria.

2. They will have victory upon victory up to the gates of Vienna, but a word from the Great Emperor of the West shall make the heroes tremble on the field of victory, and the barley shall not be gathered in until he has signed the peace, shaken off the yoke and returned triumphantly to his country.

3. But at the gathering in of the fourth barley and that of the oats a dreadful sound of war shall call the harvesters to arms. A formidable army, followed by an extraordinary number of engines of war that hell alone could have invented, shall start towards the West.

4. Woe to thee, great nation, woe to you who have abandoned the rights divine and human. The God of battles has forsaken you; who will succor you?

5. Napoleon III., mocking his adversary at first, shall soon turn back towards the "Chene-Populeux" where he shall disappear never to re-appear.

6. In spite of the heroic resistance of France, a multitude of soldiers, blue, yellow, yellow and black, shall scatter themselves over a great part of France.

7. Alsace and Lorraine shall be carried away from France for a period and half a period.

8. The French shall only take courage again as against each other.

9. Woe to thee, great city, woe to thee, city of vice! Fire and sword shall succeed fire and famine.

10. Courage, faithful souls, the reign of the dark shadow shall not have time to execute all its schemes.

11. But the time of mercy approaches. A prince of the nation is in your midst.

12. It is the man of salvation, the wise, the invincible, he shall count his enterprises by his victories.

13. He shall drive out the enemy of France, he shall march to victory on victory until the day of divine justice.

14. That day, he shall command seven kinds of soldiers against three.

15. Woe to thee, people of the North, thy seventh generation shall answer for all thy crimes. Woe to thee, people of the East, thou shalt spread afar the cries of affliction and innocent blood. Never shall such an army be seen.

16. Three days the sun shall rise upwards on the heads of the combatants without being seen through the clouds of smoke.

17. Then the commander shall get the victory; two of his enemies shall be annihilated, the remainder of the three shall fly towards the extreme East.

18. William, the second of the name, shall be the last King of Prussia. He shall have no other successor save a King of Poland, a King of Hanover, and a King of Saxony.

All the first part of this prophecy up to the ninth verse, inclusive, is verified by the war of 1866, then by that of 1870, and then by the Commune of 1871. Here are the last nine verses:

10. Courage, French patriots, Germany cannot carry out its schemes of supremacy.

11. The time of retaliation approaches. The Tsar shall come in the midst of you to seal the alliance.

12. That is the man of salvation.

13. He shall chase the enemy of France, he shall conquer Germany until it is completely destroyed.

14. The last battle on the field of Bouleaux, near to Paderborn, in Westphalia, shall reunite seven allied peoples (French, Belgians, English, Dutch, Russians, Japanese, and Servians) against three (Germans, Austrians and Hungarians.)

15. Woe to thee, Prussia, thy seventh generation shall answer for the wars thou hast made upon all the people. (Seven generations 7x30 equals 210 years. The realm of Prussia dates from 1713. The seventh generation is, then, living between 1893 and 1923.) Woe to thee, Austria! Never such a battle shall have taken place.

16. It shall last three days in the smoke of the conflagration.

17. Finally Prussia and Austria shall be annihilated. Hungary shall fly towards the extreme east (of Europe).

18. William II. shall be the last King of Prussia. Germany and Austria shall form three realms: Poland, Hanover and Saxony.

The British army is at present engaged in assisting the Prophecy of Mayence to a triumphal fulfilment.

Ringworm Remedy

Ringworm is an unsightly disease and frequently defies the most persistent treatment. It should be taken in hand at once, and the greatest cleanliness observed to prevent its spreading. If it gets into the hair, as it does sometimes among children, it is even more difficult to cure.

A ringworm is a scaly, ring-like patch with a tendency to head at the center. The quickest and safest cure for it is iodine. Paint the sores with it, then rub with sulphur ointment. Sometimes several applications are necessary, at intervals of two or three days.

If the ringworm is on the head, eliminate as much hair as possible.

Inasmuch as the disease is catching it is always wise to keep away from any person known to have it.

Why You Snore

Snoring is often an indication of the presence of a foreign substance in the nasal cavities. Its immediate cause is using the nose and mouth to breathe with.

A person who is snoring is usually lying with the mouth wide open, and often on the back. The soft palate caught between the two currents in nose and throat flutters back and forth. Many cures have been offered at different times. Frequently sleeping on the side helps. It is not a bad plan to wake persons who are snoring loudly, and get them to change their position from back to side, or from side to side.

Sometimes it is necessary to remove spurs or polyps from the nose. Some people resort to nose closing devices but the objection to these is that the mouth would get dry.

Offers Inducements

Was it an exasperated English husband, one wonders, who concocted this advertisement, calculated to gain the consideration of the most blase cook, which recently appeared in The London Times:

"A good cook is offered a magnificent view from kitchen window to main thoroughfare, with constant arrests, small accidents, ambulance calls and other interesting incidents at all hours of the day and evening."

A PLOW THAT RANG TRUE.

It Likewise Proved Its Quality to the Buenos Aires Buyers.

In Buenos Aires a few years ago an American salesman of plows wished to demonstrate to a local customer the superiority of his goods over that of a German competitor. The American consul arranged for the test.

The German plows proved to be almost exact duplicates of the American implement in design and rather better in finish. Wasting no time in explanation, the American salesman called over a powerful peon and ordered him to swing with all his strength with a ten pound sledge upon the share of one of the American plows.

The husky Basque spat upon his hands, hunched his muscular shoulders, swung the heavy hammer in a wide circle and brought it down on the spot indicated. A note as clear as that of a bell rang out and the plow went bounding across the floor, but save for the patch of red paint that fused to and came off on the hammer head the share was unmarked. When the operation was repeated upon one of the German implements the first share was completely shattered, the pieces being scattered about the floor like so much broken crockery. Thinking that possibly the faultiness of this share had been an accident of construction, perhaps of overtempering, the dealer requested the peon to swing upon the second sample. This blow demonstrated that the German implements were not even consistent in their effectiveness, for this share doubled up under the blow and folded lovingly in around the hammer like a flower going to sleep at night.

There were tears in the consul's eyes as he wrung the salesman's hand in congratulation, but all he said was, "And they still accuse us of exporting wooden nutmegs!"—World's Work.

THE SPORTING WORLD

John McGraw is Puzzled Leader

Would Like to Bench Some of His Veterans but Would Have to Pay Salary

New York, Nov. 2. — Declaration by Manager McGraw of the New York Giants that he intended completely to reorganize his team before the 1915 season opens, caused no surprise here today, but it was generally believed that he would be up against a difficult problem when he starts patching up his club. With the possible exception of Rube Marquard, who had an off year this season, every one of McGraw's regulars is bound to the Giants by a long contract.

Chief Meyers, McGraw's first-string catcher, is drawing down a big salary. McGraw has never intimated that he wanted to get rid of the chief, but if he did he would have a big job on his hands. Meyers is about the best-paid catcher in baseball, receiving more money than any of the other clubs would want to pay. His contract has three years to run. It is a cinch that Meyers will be with the Giants for the next three years.

The same could be said for Doyle, Snodgrass, Murray, and Merkle. McGraw would not swap Burns for any other outfielder in the league, and he thinks a lot of Fletcher. McGraw, of course, can get any number of youngsters to take the place of his veterans, but it hardly seems reasonable that he would keep such high-priced men as Meyers, Snodgrass, Doyle, Merkle and Murray on the bench. These men cannot be traded, even if they should show signs of slowing up, as their contracts go with a trade.

Of his pitchers, McGraw is practically certain to keep Mathewson, Tesreau, Demaree, Schaupp and Schauer. This leaves Marquard and Fromme to be traded. When the matter is viewed from every angle, it looks as if McGraw would be forced to keep most of his regulars on the payroll, whether he wants to or not.

HATE ONLY BRITAIN

Germans Taught That England is Arch-enemy of Nation

The following is a quotation from a series of speeches which German high school professors are delivering throughout Germany:

"We know that we have no quarrel with the poor Russian soldier who is driven to the slaughter, nor with the Frenchman, who goes to war against his will. Our quarrel is with the Belgian beasts and with the calculating Briton who wants to destroy our trade, make Germany a vassal of the land-grabbing Albion, and incite the whole world against us. Just as the glass through which the English captain musters his cruisers was made at Jena, and as the cable through which runs the lying news of our enemies comes from Charlottenburg, so are our enemies still more dependent on the German conscience, which will do everything to make this war the last war of the globe."

Chaplains Must go to War

It is not generally known that clergy who have accepted army chaplaincies in times of peace cannot refuse to accompany their regiments when on active service, however strong the claims of their parishes may be. The Bishop of London has been criticized for his readiness to leave his diocese for six weeks to accompany the London Rifle Brigade wherever they might be sent, but he really had no choice in the matter, having accepted the chaplaincy. If he refused he would be liable to arrest and trial by court-martial.

Canadian League Not the Only One

Pacific Coast League Loses $150,000 in Season

San Francisco, Nov. 3.—Some idea of what an "off year" means to the baseball magnate may be gathered by the statement that the Pacific Coast league has lost this season between $125,000 and $150,000. It can be stated authoritatively that the exact loss is closer to the latter figure to the former. There is not a club in the league which can show a balance on the right side of the ledger; on the contrary, the average loss to each is approximately $25,000.

If the Coast league has lost that sum of money, how much must have all the leagues combined lost? The sensational spurt of the Boston Braves saved several of the National League clubs undoubtedly from bankruptcy, but several clubs in that league lost money, while the American league clubs suffered heavily, to say nothing of the Federal league, which caused most of the trouble, and spent money with reckless abandon of a drunken sailor.

COMMENT

As You Like it

THE QUESTION among rugby fans is: Can Varsity triumph over McGill in Toronto next Saturday? McGill will be minus four men who helped to beat Varsity, in Montreal, whose qualification this season at their Alma Mater was writing and getting plucked on supplements. The intercollegiate rule on this point states that eligible players must have regularly passed their previous examinations registered in some faculty. While Varsity has not entered a protest, it will be interesting to note McGill's course in the matter. Should "Shag" adhere to the rule and drop the four men in question it's a safe bet Varsity will turn the tables and tie up the league.

POINTS ON FLY FISHING

Catching Finny Monsters In the Far North.

There is one kind of angling which only a few men have ever enjoyed, and which is in most respects on an equality with salmon fishing.

It is fly fishing on the lakes to the Far North for the immense forked tailed grey trout.

Generally these noble fish, which run up to 60 pounds in weight, are taken by professionals in nets, or in deep cold water by weighted trolling spoons. Just a favored few know that when the ice is leaving the lakes and there is open water around the edges, the trout will rise greedily to the right kind of a fly and give all the sport their weight and agile appearance warrants.

The idea was probably developed from the common Indian custom of building a bright fire on a rocky point just at this season, and spearing the fish as they came splashing around at night to investigate.

When once it was known that the fork tails left their deep-water homes and circulated near the surface when the ice was still about, the rest was easy.

But let no decrepid or poorly equipped fisherman imagine that he will land these beauties as boys jerk out suckers from the mill streams in the spring. A long stout line is essential. A heavy, not too pliant, rod should be used. The gut leader should be of salmon quality. Small sized single hooks are probably best, though some men use a double hook, as is commonly tried for salmon. The flies themselves should be dark, with a bit of tinsel and a dash of scarlet.

It must be remembered that the time of flies is not yet, and there is no particular model to be imitated. The strike of the grey trout is often peculiar. Once the writer was somewhat listlessly watching his fly floating on the still water when, without any sign or a ripple, or splash, it disappeared, sucked in by a 27-pounder, who fought like a whale for twenty minutes without once showing himself until he gave one mighty convulsive leap to mark his surrender to superior force.

On another occasion, when instructing a youngster in the art of fly fishing, the hook struck the water, and disappeared. The trout must have seen it coming, and like an expert ball player got well under it, grabbed it as it fell!

That was a 30-pounder, which fought in and out of the water for half an hour before he gave in.

An English sportsman was quite exasperated when he had a like experience.

"It's nothing but a beastly big chub," he averred. "I have often had them do the same in the Old Land. Nothing but an eel sucks in bait that way."

He changed his mind when, after three minutes of vigorous splashing and fighting, the monster smashed his tackle and made off!

Generally, however, the grey trout dives to the deepest part of the lake after a preliminary tussle to test the strength of the line. There is no fear of the hooks tearing away when it has been drawn well into the interior of that leathern-lined bony mouth.

The strain upon arms and rod as a big fish keeps on diving is something to be remembered. And the feeling that line is swiftly running out and must reach an end before long is thrilling also. The one thing to do when one of these monsters starts for the under regions is to put on the drag.

Tobacco Growing In France.

Every citizen in France is allowed to grow in his garden for decorative purposes two tobacco plants. If he grows more than that he must declare his intention, obtain a license and register the number of plants he wishes to cultivate. When grown the only purchaser to whom he may sell his stock is the Government, which fixes the price to be paid.

The Modern Woman.

"She is an extraordinary woman, you know. She paints, plays, rides horseback, boxes, plays football, golf and is an aviator. It is too bad. If I knew how to darn my own socks I should marry her."

Victoria Crosses Were Won

Heroic Gunners Are Recommended For Coveted Distinction

(Westminster Gazette.)

The surviving members of L Battery, Royal Horse Artillery, who have returned from the front to enjoy a brief rest at Woolwich, whilst their guns are being repaired and refitted in the Arsenal, and their strength is being made up, tell a story which, despite the modest, unassuming manner of the men who tell it, is rightly characterized by the Woolwich correspondent of the Daily Telegraph as a record of heroism of the most magnificent order.

It appears that L Battery was instructed, in the support of a brigade of cavalry, to cover the retreat of that part of the Allied forces which fell back on Compiegne. For nearly three weeks, the battery, contesting every step, carried on with distinction that most difficult of all duties—a rearguard action. Without rest, except for a few moments during brief periods in the fight, the battery carried out its duty, and so tired were the men that it was a common occurrence for them to fall asleep in their saddles, being rudely awakened by falling from their horses. On the last day of the general retirement the battery was near Compiegne, a ridge about 600 yards away being occupied by French cavalry, whilst the general retreat was going on in their rear. L Battery had been instructed to be ready to move at four a.m., and to await further orders. Through the cutting of the telegraph wires, or some other cause, the expected order did not reach them, and a thick mist prevented them from seeing the retirement of the French cavalry.

The order to retire not having arrived, L Battery waited, limbered up, and formed up ready to move at a moment's notice, until just after five o'clock, when the mist cleared, and they were suddenly subjected to a terrific enfilade fire from the ridge, which they had suposed to be still occupied by the French. They learned subsequently that after the French cavalry left that position in the early hours of the morning a strong German force, with ten field guns and two maxims, had, under cover of the mist, advanced and occupied the position, and as soon as the mist lifted sufficiently all twelve guns were brought to bear on the unsuspecting and unprepared battery 600 yards away, the first volley killing nearly all the horses of the gun teams. This, of course, made retirement with the guns impossible, and with all speed the men of L Battery, inspired by their heroic commanding officer, Captain Bradbury, unlimbered and commenced to reply to the German fire. Owing to their position they were only able to bring three of the guns to bear on the enemy, but these were promptly manned by the men who had not been killed or wounded during the first few moments.

With magnificent coolness and courage these three guns replied to the German fire with such good effect that one by one the German guns were put out of action. The British gunners were, however, so terribly outnumbered, and the firing of the Germans so effective, that in a very short time two of the three British guns had been silenced, and only one remained to defend the position.

By this time (adds the correspondent) very few men of the battery were left, but the gallant little band continued to work the gun to such purpose that gun after gun of the German battery was silenced. Officers and men alike were serving the remaining British gun, but one by one they were killed or wounded, and at last only three men, all non-commissioned officers, remained to serve the gun. Although all wounded, these three men, crouching behind the shield, kept up such a deadly fire that eventually all but one of the German guns were put out of action. The enemy and the three brave British gunners ceased fire at almost the same moment. Thus, crouching behind the shield of their last gun, the three heroes were found by the strong force of cavalry and infantry who shortly afterwards came to their rescue. It is gratifying to know that all three have been recommended for the Victoria Cross.

Of the four officers with the battery, two — Captain Bradbury and Lieut. J. D. Campbell — were killed, whilst Lieut. Giffard and Lieut. Mundy were wounded. The two who were killed were especially mentioned in despatches and the decoration of the Legion of Honor has been conferred upon Lieutenant Giffard. The relieving force advanced to the German position, and found that all who had survived the British fire had retired, leaving all their guns in the hands of the Allies.

Feeding the Fleet

Cured Meats Figure Largely in Dietary of Blue-jackets

Ask "Jack" what he thinks of the food aboard, and he will probably say "It's nothing to shout about," at the same time admitting that if you are hungry it's not "bad tack." The mutton comes from Australia, the tinned beef (called "Fanny Adams," a name which is supposed to commemorate the awful fate of an over-curious young lady who was once tempted to try a ration) from America, while the pickled pork hails from Russia.

And it cannot be called exactly fresh-killed, for the authorities believe in having an inexhaustible supply in stock. The consequence is that at Malta there is a seven years' supply of Chicago beef stored, not counting a large quantity at Gibraltar.

The home victualling yards are the Royal Victoria at Deptford (close to the cattle trade centre), the Royal Clarence at Gosport, and the Royal William at Plymouth. There are also depots at the Cape of Good Hope, Halifax, Bermuda, Hong Kong, Trincomalee, Jamaica, Sydney, and Esquimault.

To eat with his meat the sailor has ship's biscuit—or "hard tack." Flour, oatmeal, cocoa, mustard, and pepper are also issued, with lime juice for all hands and oatmeal water for the stokers. This, with rum, makes up the official dietary of the British blue-jacket.

By a system officially known as "savings," however, the tar can add variety to his bill of fare. A mess of twenty-four men entitled to draw 24 pounds of meat, may agree to draw only 18 pounds. The balance is credited to the mess as savings, on the following scale: Pork, 8 cents a pound; salt beef, 3 cents a pound; tinned beef, 10 cents a pound. On cocoa 10 cents per pound is saved, and on rum 75 cents a gallon. The money thus saved is pooled among the men and spent at the dry canteen, where sardines, tinned salmon, and other humble luxuries can be obtained.

Comets In War Time

The curious are noting that in the past four centuries various great comets have been visible in the Russian dominions only eleven times, and that each time such an appearance has coincided with great wars in which Russia has been engaged. The only exceptions to the rule that a bright comet has been plainly visible every time Russia has been at war for four centuries were the Turkish campaign of 1877 and the war with Japan, though in the latter case a faint comet became visible in January, 1904.

Delavant's comet, recently discovered, keeps up the tradition, and corresponds in some respects very nearly to the comet of 1812, the year of Russia's last great national war against Napoleon. The present comet will remain visible for about the same period of the year as the comet of 1812.

What is Adam's Apple

An Adam's apple is merely a prominence of a bony shield for the windpipe. To develop the muscles of the neck by proper exercises will make it less prominent if it is so large as to mar the symmetry. To get fat will usually cover it up altogether.

Occasionally what is believed to be an abnormally large Adam's apple is an enlargement of the thyroid gland —goiter.

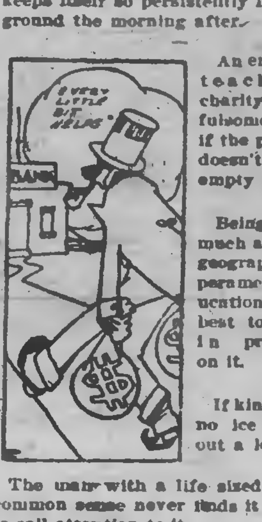
THE best temperance sermon is the one preached by the head that keeps itself so persistently in the foreground the morning after.



An empty purse teaches more charity than a fulsome sermon—if the pocketbook doesn't remain empty too long.

Being good is so much a matter of geography, temperament and education that it is best to go slow in pronouncing on it.

If kindness cuts no ice it thaws out a lot.

The man with a life sized bunch of common sense never finds it necessary to call attention to it.

A hot headed man is often confronted by conditions brought on by his own impetuosity that are calculated to give him cold feet.

We hear much about burning thoughts, but do not meet very many individuals who have thoughts to use as fuel.

There is no accounting for tastes—and no accounting with some of them either.

The Reason Why.

The harvest has been gathered,
And plenty sweetly reigns
Along the eastern stretches
And on the boundless plains.
It may have been the tariff—
On that we are not clear—
But something's gone and done it
As sure as you are here.

When everything is booming
And strictly to the good
You notice that the reason
Is always understood.
The credit goes to something
That has as much to do
With making crops and prices
As Pierpont Morgan's shoe.

And even for the weather,
When it is fine and bright,
A presidential credit
Is marked for that all right,
But all cyclones and blizzards
And windfalls of that sort
That also need explaining
Don't get in the report.

We credit up the tariff
If we are fond of it
When everything is lovely
And all the signs are fit.
But if the times are crosswise
And sounds of woe are heard
As to the cause or reason
We never say a word.

How She Succeeds.

"Yes; I have noticed that myself."

"And what do you do to be different?"

"Different?"

ORPHEUS SOCIETY

At the weekly practice last night, the members of the society decided to hold their first concert some time early in December, the proceeds to be devoted to the Belgian Fund being unanimously agreed to. J. Edward Fisher, their energetic and enthusiastic conductor, was delighted with the splendid practice and turnout of the members. The works taken up were "The Charge of the Light Brigade" (Somerville), and "The Feast of Adonis" (Jensen).

A splendid banner in the colors of the society, blue and white, was presented by Mr. Edward Langley.

MILITARY BRUSHES FOR TWO BUGLERS

Boys of the Bugle Band Make Presentations

This morning after the volunteers paraded for the march to the station, two members of the Bugle Band, buglers Spenceley and Stewart, were presented with military brushes, by their comrades of the bugle band.

Sergeant Beach made the presentation while Bugler Sergeant Sharpe read the following address:

Buglers Spenceley and Stewart,
Dear comrades,—

A few weeks ago you were with us when we said good-bye to one of our members who was leaving with the first Canadian contingent. Now you are following him with the second Canadian Overseas Force, and it is to you that our farewell must be said. It is with mingled pride and regret that we bid you goodbye; pride in having our oganization represented at the front, and regret that we are losing in you useful and popular members of the band. We know that in you we have representatives that the others will have to look up to.

We trust that you will be spared to come back to us after you have entertained the Berlin populace with a few bugle calls as the Allies march down under Der Linder, and as a souvenir of our regard for you, we ask you to accept these military brushes.

Wishing you a safe retun,
Your comrades of
The 57th Regiment Bugle Band.

Buglers Spenceley and Stewart made short speeches thanking the boys for their kindness and assuring them that the pleasant association formed in the band, would long be remembered.

THEATRICAL

Lawrance D'Orsay renewed acquaintances at the Grand last night, and the presentation of "The Earl of Pawtucket" was thoroughly enjoyed.

To say that the play was humorous and that the actors in every part deported themselves in an unusually clever manner would be but a small tribute to the production. From the rising of the curtain on the first act until its dropping on the last the lines were brimful of passages that brought peals of laughter from the audience.

The part of an English nobleman was well played by Mr. D'Orsay, who has the vocabulary of an English aristocrat at his command.

WRIST WATCH FOR CHORISTER

Frank Roberts Left With the Volunteers

At the luncheon today for the second contingent, Canon Davidson, on behalf of St. John's choir, presented Mr. Frank Roberts with a beautiful wrist watch. He was a very popular member and a most valued chorister.

On Sunday evening Rev. Canon Davidson commented upon his good attendance. He had been attending twice every Sunday for the past five years.

Mr. Roberts will be greatly missed, and his many friends wish him a safe return.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Frank Brown took place this morning. It was largely attended, which manifested the high esteem in which he was held by his many friends.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. J. Mervin, Jas. Grady, J. McCarthy, W. Grady, Jas. Murty, P. Milloy.

Rev. J. J. O'Brien took the services at the church, while Father O'Brien and Father McAuley officiated at the grave.

The solid oak casket was laden with many beautiful floral tributes, and at the grave it was enclosed in a St. Thomas steel grave vault.

Could Use Second Canadian Force

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The militia authorities here have had no formal requests for troops for protection along the border against the possibility of a German invasion, such as is outlined in the letter received by ex-Mayor Galbraith of Westmount.

It is pointed out that in case of trouble the men now under training for the second Canadian contingent, would be available and could be landed at almost any point on the border within a few hours. The department, however, does not expect any trouble from such sources.

THAT WHICH IS BUILT ON A LIE ENDS IN FAILURE

Lowest Character in History is Spoken of as "The Father of Lies"

FAMILY FINANCES

Dr. Gordon will deliver a special address in the George Street Methodist Church this evening on "The Home Life," his subject being "Family Finances," or "How Much Does it Cost to Furnish a House for Two?" As a prelude to the discourse, he will answer a certain number of questions which have been sent in by enquiring individuals. During the evening Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, the colored singer, will render three selections, the first, one of his own compositions, entitled "Childhood Days," "Would You Believe?" and, third, an old plantation melody, entitled "Steal Away to Jesus."

The following questions will be answered:

1. Is it right to talk of labour questions in the church?
2. Do you believe that those in Heaven see and know what we are doing on earth?
3. Should preachers of the gospel receive such large salaries as they do?
4. If God is just, why does He tempt us? and if He is merciful, why does He not do us the justice of taking away from our backs the load He puts upon them?
5. Is it right to have a sale of goods in the church?
6. Is it right to rent pews in the church?
7. Do you believe that the size of a man's head has anything to do with the strength of his soul?
8. Do our up-todate preachers believe in a real hell?
9. Would you place any faith in what astrologers tell you as to your future?
10. Do you slander a person when simply you tell the truth about them?
11. Can you suggest a remedy for cruelty to dumb animals?

Dr. Gordon's speech last evening was on "The Lies Which Some Good People Tell." Dr. Gordon said as follows:

The lowest character of history is spoken of as "the father of lies." The highest character referred to myself is "the way, the truth and the light." Hypocrisy is the incarnation of a lie, and the careless use of words is the first step towards insincerity. The world has a contempt for the crook in trade, the quack in medicine, the fake in society, and the hypocrite in religion. The crowning virtue is "sincerity," the crowning vice is "hypocrisy." You can love a weak man, a sinful man, a reckless man, a prodigal or a sensualist, but no man can love a hypocrite.

Wellington said concerning Napoleon, "He was bound to fall, because his messages were lies." That which is built on a lie ends in failure. A lying lock yields, a lying safe opens, a lying investment fails, a lying argument breaks down, a lying business succumbs, a lying track widens, a lying dynamo explodes, a lying wire electrocutes, a lying bridge gives way, a lying clock misleads, and a lying boiler explodes. The man who tells the truth rides in a square car of solid steel. The design of this discourse this evening is that man may be sincere, honest, frank, and transparent as the sunlight. In dealing with the subject, Dr. Gordon mentioned ten of the lies which good people are prone to tell.

First: The commercial lie.

"It is not, it is not, saith the liar," But when he has gone he boasteth." Commercial lies are as old as the book of Proverbs, and much older. Goods are marked up and then marked down, and the moral discrepancies in the commercial realm today are so striking and outstanding, that when a young man brought up in our churches and Sunday schools enters the commercial realm he finds himself battling for the ideals which he had enthroned in his soul.

Second: The social lie. The white lie of modern society is built when the mistress in the parlor asks the maid in the house to go to the front she is "not at home." The private secretary of General Grant said to the servant in the White House, who announced the presence of a visitor, "Tell him the president is not in." General Grant rebuked his private secretary, saying, "Tell him nothing of the sort. I do not lie myself, and I do not want anybody to lie for me." If you ask your maid to lie for you, bye and bye she will lie to you and lie about you.

Third: The legal lie. There is no realm of human achievement where men are more prone to play with words and mere technicalities as in the legal realm, and when a man begins to play with words he begins to play with his conscience, and no man is so great a fool as the man who fools himself. A friend of mine stated to me, "It is true that I am engaged in the liquor business, but I am engaged in the wholesale liquor business: I do not stand behind the bar," but the dangerous man in the liquor business is not the man who stands behind the bar, but the brewer, distiller, and wholesale liquor merchants, who are filling our papers with advertisements and crowding our streets with electrical signs. These are the men who are sometimes admitted to church membership and also to official relationship in the church. Mark the words of Campbell Morgan: "The Church must declare that there is no room within her borders for any man who in his business is identified with the forces which are tempting humanity."

Fourth: The patriotic lie. A British subject stood in a great patriotic gathering and sang:

"God save our gracious King,
Long live our noble King,
God save our King.
Send him victorious,
Happy and glorious,
Long to reign over us—
God save our King."

As he passed out of the great tabernacle his eyes filled with tears and he exclaimed, "I feel as though I could die for the Flag, for the Empire, for the King; God bless him, the King." Inside of three months this very man was in jail for defrauding the government.

County Council Is in Session

The Fall session of the County Council opened this afternoon at 2 o'clock, there being present Reeve R. Shaw, of Harvey, Councillors M. Brown, Asphodel; B. Squire, Norwood; B. Campbell, Chandos; M. Lane, Burleigh and Anstruther; C. Cobin, Galway and Cavendish; Dr. Kindred, Havelock; J. Darling, Dummer; H. Fitzgerald, Lakefield; S. Killan, Ennismore; W. Howden, Monaghan; A. Wilds, Belmont; E. Deyell, Otonabee; W. Anderson, Otonabee; F. McKee, Smith; J. Garbutt, Smith, and M. Welsh, Douro.

Warden Shaw's address was as follows:

Gentlemen:

I ask your indulgence to allow me to address you at this, the closing session of 1914.

You have come together about a month earlier than usual, due to the state of affairs on the European continent, in which the Mother Country is now engaged, and she being interested, we, as one of her colonies, are also interested. Other counties having made provision to assist in some way to carry to a successful terminus the unjust war now waged by another nation, is what constrained me to call you together, knowing that you, after careful deliberation, would act wisely and in a manner most pertinent to the issue.

The affairs of the county stand in a favorable condition from a financial standpoint, and considering the floating debt that existed at the beginning of the year, I am of the impression that you have so provided as to come out with a fairly good standing at the close of the year.

I am not speaking boastfully when I say that all work has been carried to completion this year in a satisfactory manner and in a most economical way consistent with good work.

The members of the 1914 Council will always be held by me with the utmost respect from the fact that my duties have been a source of pleasure the whole way, due to able assistance and courteousness from my colleagues.

Again referring to the great war now being carried on, we trust in our Maker for success of the efforts for right as against might.

Immediately after the address several communications were read in connection with the Patriotic Fund, and the matter was then referred to a committee.

Undoubtedly something will be done.

COLORED SINGER TO SING AT ARMOURIES

Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, the colored singer with Dr. Gordon, will sing at the public meeting in the Armouries tonight.

SOME SOFT SOAP

It's rather strange that when one member of the City Council reminds the Board of Works chairman, of a section of street in the city that needs attention, every member is reminded of some other section and before long quite a list of "disgraceful" streets has accumulated. Last night Ald. Langford commenced by asking if it wouldn't be possible for the board of works to repair Water Street in front of the St. Paul's Church. Ald. Weir followed with naming Murray Street, on the route to the court house, and then Ald. Green asked for attention to McDonnel Street between the Bonner Worth Co. and Park Street. The Mayor asked Ald. Saunders if he wanted any more gravel in front of his gate but the South Ward representative held a peaceful silence.

Ald. Duncan explained that a great deal of work has been done on the roads during the past year and the board of works will look into the sections mentioned. Several aldermen then took the floor commending Ald. Duncan on his work till the Mayor remarked that "it drifted from a fault finding meeting to a soft soap gathering."

Gave Chairman Power.

Ald. Green, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was authorized to use his own judgment in permitting the Bell Telephon Co. to place poles at the rear of the Fire Station and at other points, as the company's intention is to take their cable off Charlotte Street.

East City Complained.

Ald. Weir brought up the question of placing a sidewalk on Euclid Avenue. The matter will be placed before the Board of Works. The same alderman raised a little complaint about street lights being out in "Brooklyn." The chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee will look after the complaint.

PLAINTIFF GETS $1000 FROM C.P.R.

At the local Fall Assizes, before Mr. Justice Britton, Arthur Sharpe of this city was awarded $1000 damages from the C.P.R. and the T.H. and H. for the death of his son Thomas Sharpe in Hamilton on March 19th, 1913.

Yesterday at Osgoode Hall Mr. Justice Britton gave judgment that plaintiff is entitled to $1000 from the C.P.R.

PATRIOTIC MEETING

In response to requests made, a public meeting will be held in the Armouries, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 3rd, at 8 o'clock, at which addresses will be delivered on the present position and needs of the war.

A large attendance is requested, and citizens, especially the young men, are strongly urged to attend.

W. BULLER, Mayor.

Major Gillespie Praises Collegiate Cadets for Good Showing Made

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education, held last evening, with all members present, Major G. H. Gillespie's report on the P. C. I Cadets was read. He was very enthusiastic in his praise for the local boys, and commented upon their fine appearance and ability.

The resignations of Misses Hallet and Fessenden were received. They will take effect at the end of the year. Several members of the Board expressed their regret at the loss sustained by these teachers leaving.

Inspector Mowat said that the outbreak of diphtheria was nearly wiped out. He explained to the Board that Miss Kennedy was taking every precaution, and that they had not had a serious illness in any of the schools. He pointed out that none of the cases had lasted over ten days. Swabs were taken and sent to Toronto, where the Provincial Analyst makes a test, and the result is telegraphed here. If germs are found, the pupil is sent home and the house is placarded. The pupils are generally back to school inside of two weeks, as this infection has been very light.

As a number of former students of the P. C. I. have left for the front, an honor roll is to be placed in the school as a mark of appreciation of the Board.

It was moved by Dr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Miller, that Mr. Kenner be paid the sum of $30 to defray expenses of field day.

Applications for the use of the Collegiate Institute for the Teachers' Convention on November 12 and 13, and from the Kitchener Club to hold a concert on November 5th, were granted.

On motion of Messrs. Hill and Eastwood, the committee on appointments were given instructions to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of the Public School teachers.

TRAIN WENT INTO RIVER

First Reports Say Passengers and Crew Were Lost

BRIDGE WASHED OUT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MESSINA, SICILY, Nov. 4. — A railroad train running between here and Palermo was wrecked this morning. Reports received up to the present declare that all passengers on board with one exception and all the members of the train crew lost their lives.

A bridge on the line had been washed out by floods, and, unaware of this condition, the train crashed down into the river bed and the cars were overturned in the water.

RADIAL LINE SCHEDULE IS THROWN OUT

Changes Made on Account of City's Construction Work

The regular street railway timetable is thrown out considerably today and possibly will also be similarly damaged for the next two or three days, owing to the commencement of work on the city's trunk sewer.

It has been found necessary to pull up a section of the street railway tracks on Lock street south, where the sewer crosses the road. As a result, the George street cars are cut off from the loop at the south end, and cannot turn there as usual. The single-ended pay-as-you-enter cars therefore have to be withdrawn from George street and used on the Jackson Park and Edison Lines, where there are facilities for turning them at each end. This entails a considerable loss of time on each trip. It is therefore found impossible to maintain more than a twelve-minute schedule. It is hoped that the work on this section of the trunk sewer will be pushed rapidly in order that the regular street railway service may be promptly resumed.

SPEAKERS CREATED MUCH ENTHUSIASM

Rev. Jas. Rollins Suggests a Waiting List of Young Men Who Would be in Readiness to Respond to Call

The voice of the Empire, calling her sons and daughters to duty, was heard at the armouries last night. It was the first of several meetings to be held with the object of stimulating interest in enlistment, not wholly for service on the battle line but also for the home guard.

Mayor Buller presided and with him in the balcony were the representatives of Parliament, Rev. F. J. Sawers, Rev. Jas. Rollins, Rev. R. Pogue, Judge Huycke, Adjutant McElhiney, J. J. Hartley, and several aldermen. There were also many ladies in the balcony.

The appeals of the speakers were not made to the young men only. Reference was made to the miniature total of the Patriotic Fund and to the more substantial amounts raised in other cities and towns. Attention was also called to the organization recently formed — the Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association, where the members were instructed in the use of the rifle. It was suggested that citizens might join this organization if they could not be accepted for membership in the 57th Regiment.

Gathering was Enthusiastic.

There were some very fine speeches and the gathering lent an attentive ear. It was an enthusiastic gathering too and the remarks of the speakers were frequently punctuated with cheers and applause.

Rev. Jas. Rollins paid graceful tribute to the men who had volunteered but had not been accepted. He said honor was due them, just as much as the men who had been accepted. He explained that while 75 men had gone from the city that morning, 100 others had offered their services but they failed in the examination. Mr. Rollins said that altogether there had been 400 and 500 volunteers in Peterboro.

Mayor Buller in opening the meeting, took but little time, to explain its object. He appealed to the young men, their sweethearts, their fathers and mothers to do their duty in this the hour of the Empire's need.

ALLIES ADVANCE IN NEARLY ALL CASES

Reinforcements Have Been Sent to Meet New Attacks Which Are Threatening — Japanese Forces Destroy German Guns and Take Many Prisoners at Tsing Tau --- Kaiser's Fleet Reported off Aland Islands

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 4. — The afternoon official anouncement says: "The Germans now occupy on the left bank of the Yser only one bridge-head, half way between Dixmude and Nieuport. The Germans have abandoned, besides many prisoners and wounded, much material, including artillery, which is stuck in the heavy mud. Fighting has continued at most points, and the result has been the advance of the Allies in nearly all cases.

"In the eastern theatre the Russians are making satisfactory progress."

REPORT OF EYE-WITNESS OF BRITISH OPERATIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 4. — Further instalments of the report by an eye-witness of the British army's operations in France and Belgium brings events up to November 2nd. An extract follows:

"On November 1 our troops were attacked all along the line, but the enemy were everywhere repulsed and suffered very heavy loss. Our howitzers demolished two of the enemy's 8-inch guns, and every acount shows that prodigious slaughter has been occasioned by our artillery. The maintenance of an unbroken line and the repulse of repeated assaults, which have caused, in some cases, loss of entire columns, and has greatly discouraged the German troops, has naturally entailed losses on the defending force.

"The position of the Allies has been strengthened and reinforcements of every description have been sent to meet the attacks now threatened."

GERMAN FLEET SHOWS ACTIVITY

Naval Battle Reported From the North Sea

LONDON, Nov. 4. — Reports are current of a naval battle in the North Sea, but with what result is yet unknown.

The German fleet is said to have come out from its base at Heligoland with the object of making an attack before the process of mine-laying, which the British planned to have completed by Thursday, should have restricted the naval offensive.

A Dunkirk despatch says four German battleships and four cruisers have also put to sea from Kiel.

A German cruiser, retreating before British cruisers yesterday morning, let go a mine at them and sunk in the North Sea the British submarine D5. Two officers and two men from the submarine were rescued, according to an Admiralty report last night.

The report says a German squadron fired on the British gunboat Halcyon, which was patrolling, wounding one man.

Various naval movements were made, the report continues, "as a result of which the Germans retreated, rapidly, and, although shadowed by the light cruisers, they could not be brought into sea action.

"The rearmost German cruiser in her retirement threw out a number of mines and the submarine was sunk by one of these."

COUNTY COUNCIL IS URGED TO TAKE ACTION

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M. L. A., were present at this afternoon's session of the County Council and spoke a few words along the line of the Council assisting those affected by the present European war. Mr. Burnham stated that in Peterborough there is a wild endeavour being made to have the city do its duty, but, strange to say, the city has not done nearly so well as was expected. There has been but $5000 subscribed for the Patriotic Fund, and that amount will not last to Christmas. It may be possible that the fund will assume larger dimensions after last night's meeting in the Armouries, for the speakers put some of the old-time

LAKEFIELD RIFLE ASSOCIATION IS THIRD IN LEAGUE

Lakefield, Nov. 4. — The returns of team standing for 1914 in the Canadian Rifle League show that the team of the Lakefield Rifle Association won third prize in the third series, Class B. Warsaw came first, with a total score of 3417; Amabel second, with a score of 3406, while Lakefield was third, the score being 3425. Fifteen teams were entered in the series. This is the first year that Lakefield has had a team in the league, and the members are to be congratulated on the splendid showing made by them.

Elections Show Change in Complexion of the Federal House

WHITMAN, GOVERNOR

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. — At an early hour today returns from Congressional Districts in many States were incomplete, but actual returns showed a Republican gain of fifty-four seats in the House of Representatives, which would make a difference of 108 in the Democratic majority, reducing the present Democratic majority of 141 to 33. Every indication is that later returns will make a still further reduction. Republicans gained ten in New York State, five in Connecticut, one in Delaware, twelve in Illinois, two in Indiana, three in Massachusetts, two in Michigan, two in New Hampshire, five in New Jersey, one in New Mexico, one in Ohio, six in Pennsylvania, one in Rhode Island, one in South Dakota, one in West Virginia and one in Maryland.

State prohibition and woman suffrage were decisively defeated in Ohio, where Frank Willis, the Republican, is elected governor. In Michigan, Woodbridge Ferris, the Democratic representative, is re-elected governor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. — Sweeping Republican gains throughout the country, which reached a climax in this state by the overwhelming victory of Chas. S. Whitman for Governor and James W. Wadsworth to succeed Elihu Root, in the United States Senate, were indicated last night in early returns of the general elections.

Heavy falling-off of the Progressive vote in many states, the return to Congress of former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, decisive Republican gains in New York and Illinois in the House membership, and the overwhelming defeat of Representative A. Mitchell Palmer by Senator Boies Penrose in Pennsylvania were features of the early returns. Democratic leaders, however, were pleased by a triumph in Massachusetts, where former Representative Samuel W. McCall was defeated for the governorship by Governor Walsh.

TO BRING UP THE STRENGTH

Remaining 14,000 Troops Will be Called for Soon

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—Since the Government's plan is to mobilize 30,000 infantry, and to keep that number constantly in training in Canada, and since orders have gone out for only 16,000, the supplementary orders for the other 14,000 will be sent out to the commanders of the various divisional areas within a day or two. Orders will also be sent out for artillery, engineers, army service corps, medical corps, etc., to go with the second contingent as soon as the quota to be taken from each division has been settled.

A considerable force of artillery will be mobilized, part of it to go overseas and part to remain in Canada for defence purposes.

Three or four thousand horses will be purchased for the artillery lines of communication, etc., of the second contingent.

SONS OF ENGLAND HAVE SENT TWELVE MEMBERS TO THE FRONT

Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, is doing its share in sending soldiers to the front. Twelve members of the lodge have left Peterborough during the course of recruiting for the two contingents, and it is quite probable that other members of the lodge will offer their services.

Fred Thomas and Robert Gifford left yesterday, taking with them the best wishes of their fellow-members, who at the regular meeting on Monday night took the opportunity to say farewell.

The lodge members who are now under arms are: H. Johnston, Victor Gifford, E. Renous, F. Clarke, W. J. Swanger, H. Williams, W. G. Ellis, A. E. Miller, G. Currie, J. [illegible], Fred Thomas, and Robert Gifford. Victor and Robert Gifford are brothers.

The lodge has also invested $1[illegible] in short [illegible] debentures of the city.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 4, 1914

OFF TO THE FRONT—THE CHALLENGE ANSWERED.

FOUR MEN more than the number asked for left Peterborough yesterday for the front. Seventy-five men were called for, and at first it was thought that a few less than that number would be sent, but when the time came for starting, seventy-nine men left the city. Peterborough has every reason to feel proud of this splendid body of young manhood which has left this city to fight for King aud country. We watched these brave boys march from the Armouries to the station; we heard them sing the Tipperary song and gayly wave good-bye to those along the street. Every face, however, in spite of the successful effort to keep a cheerful expression, bore the mark of the struggle to put aside every fond and selfish claim for the great service they have taken up.

It is a very great matter to offer one's self for such a service. Three years of a man's life are a large period at the time when he is at the zenith of health and strength and prospects. He leaves home and friends and comfort; faces hard drills, plain fare, privation, a long, perilous trip across the ocean, besides the danger of actual battles and disease in the firing line. He has to decide that duty requires him to face all this before he offers his life and services in this supreme sacrifice.

This service is offered, not only to the King and country, but to the people who remain behind. He places his strong arm and body between them and many threatening dangers. He works to preserve the Empire, to preserve Canada as a British possession, to maintain English law and the Christian religion. Everything that makes the Empire great and a blessing to the world is threatened by Germany in this war, and, to protect this country, its homes and its people from a great danger, have these young men offered themselves in the service of active warfare. This city is proud of them, glad it can send these men in such a glorious cause. May they, with their brothers in arms who have preceded them, prosper in their great undertaking and strike sturdy strokes against the oppressor of Europe and the disturber of the world's peace.

170 SHELLS A DAY.

WITH SPLENDID SUCCESS attending their efforts, the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company is turning out approximately 170 shells per day for twelve pound field artillery guns for the Dominion Government. They are working on an order for 250,000 shells in all, which will keep them busy all winter. The company are considering the establishment of a department given over solely to the production of munitions of war, and this should give a good deal of increased employment.

BARBED WIRE IN WARFARE.

RUSSIA, according to an Eastern paper, is in the market to purchase from Canada and the United States five thousand tons of barbed wire to be used in military operations. The effectiveness of barbed wire entanglements as defence measures has been demonstrated repeatedly since the war with Spain. They were brought into use then with much success, and were very effective as a part of the Russian defences of Port Arthur in the war with Japan. The Russians probably have in mind their experience in the Far East and are hoping to make equally good use of the wire they would purchase in this country.

The Russian entanglements before Port Arthur consisted of four parallel lines of three-strand fences about three feet high. The fences were about ten feet apart and zig-zag lines of barbed wire were strung back and forth between the fences. And in addition large quantities of loose coils and pieces of wire were scattered on the ground. The combination was almost an impassable barrier. It was found that the Japanese could not make progress by cutting the wires. If they got through the first fence they became entangled in the wire on the ground if they were not shot down before reaching the second fence.

The Japanese tried the expedient of having their soldiers charge with mattresses which they threw on the fences. That was only a partial success, as many men became helpless in the entanglement of loose wires on the ground. The entanglements finally were disposed of by pulling up the posts and dragging the fences away under cover of darkness, but it was a long and costly task for the attacking force.

The use of wire entanglements is valuable as a defence measure, and even then has its limitations. An entanglement which would keep an army of Germans from reaching the Russians also would prevent the Russians from getting at the Germans. It is effective in delaying and hampering the progress of an enemy and it also protects him against pursuit and assault in case the fortune of battle is against him.

ARE WE FACING HARD TIMES?

ARE WE FACING hard times? There is no doubt of it. Real estate caused a depression from which this country was just recovering, when the war brought on a world crisis. Tremendous efforts have been made to recover, but Canada cannot escape the consequences of the immense waste taking place in Europe. Canada is facing the situation with good heart, but the immediate future is not at all bright.

Take Toronto for example. The reports from there indicate a very serious condition. In just two weeks 6,450 unemployed have registered their names in the Unemployment Bureau, 107 Adelaide street west. This number, of course, is quite abnormal for this season of the year. But the registration is abnormal in another respect also, for the majority are men who have held good positions until quite recently.

An important feature is the fact that large numbers of commercial travellers, salesmen, bank and other clerks are pouring in, and these men are out of work through no fault of their own. The majority of discharge papers shown by such applicants bear assurances from former employers that the owners were discharged because the firm found it necessary to retrench. Again, mechanics and every kind of skilled workman are in painful evidence, all jobless for a similar reason. The closing down of such firms as the Massey-Harris Company causes a decided swelling in the list.

The majority of applicants are willing to accept any kind of work available. A somewhat pathetic note is struck when healthy, well-dressed men, after filling in their cards, place opposite the entry, "Kind of work desired," the single word, "Anything."

The bureau is doing everything possible to place men. City work provides employment for three days a week, preference being given to married men with families. Farm work absorbs numbers, and a willingness to go on farms is manifested.

Last year the bureau was open from January 16 to April 16, and 10,042 names were registered altogether. Almost two-thirds of that number have registered this year in two weeks.

In view of the trend of the labour situation in Toronto and other cities, the people would be well advised to conserve their resources. The winter has not yet arrived, and times may improve a good deal in the next few weeks, but the prospects are not indicative of any marked improvement. In view of the complexion of the situation, great care of money coming in should be taken.

WHY NOT GET BUSY NOW?

CITIZENS of Peterborough remember the long wrangle over the proposal to establish civic skating rinks for the children last winter. There were proposals and schemes in plenty, with counter proposals and cross schemes just as numerous. There were those who fought wordy wars in the austere and prosaic precincts of the City Council chamber. Every ward had its valiant skating rink champion, who slid over the proposition and cut as many fancy curves as any chaser of the puck in the O. H. A. What was the result? After vast quantities of verbal ammunition had been expended in a furious assault, the war simmered down to the conclusion that a rink would have to be established in every ward at an expense that was prohibitive, and the whole scheme boiled away into thin air.

However, if anything can be done towards this worthy object during the coming winter, it would be well to consider the matter early. Very likely there will be fewer able to pay admissions for skating this winter than last. There will likely be plenty of men available at reasonable charges for the purpose of caring for such rinks. Besides providing a certain amount of employment, the scheme has many obvious advantages, if the aldermen can come to some reasonable understanding concerning it.

THE BALM-BEARER.

(By Ewyn Bruce MacKinnon.)

A heavy curtained calm o'erhung the wood
  Of folded wing and sleep-befettered flower.
  The dew fell softly like a silent shower
On each frail leaf, and it drooped and understood.
And I who stirred and shook the branch and could
  Not rest within this night-embracing bower,
  Foreign, caused the fluttered wing to cower;
And spilt the precious cup, the nectared food
Fair Phoebus spreads to feast fond sleep, and still
  I caught these pearly moonlit drops within
  My pulsing palm and thought it not a sin;
For lo, I would another chalice fill
And bear it, dream-laden, to a lovelorn heart—
  A charm to calm and visions sweet impart.

He Will Be There.

(Exchange.)

The manager of a well-known touring company wired to the proprietor of a theatre in a small town where his company was to appear: "Would like to hold a rehearsal at your theatre at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Have your stage-manager, stage-carpenter, assistant stage-manager, assistant stage-carpenter, property man, chief electrician, and all stage hands present promptly at that hour." Three hours later he had the following reply: "All right. He will be there."

Austria's Poor Record.

(New York Telegraph.)

Austria has cut a poor figure in the war. She never showed well in any war, and it always is a mystery to me how she ever continued to exist and even acquire territory. Frederick the Great used to get his armies in condition by practising on Austria. Marlborough beat her and Napoleon thrashed her. Italy, with some help, also beat the Austrians and took territory away from her. The time may come when the Kaiser may find himself without an ally.

WANTED—MEN AS LEADERS.

Editor Review,

Sir,—I see by the editorials in all the local papers that the papers have done their duties in trying to arouse the leading men of this city to a sense of their duties and responsibilities under the unprecedented catastrophe that has overtaken the whole world at the present time. Never before since the foundation of the city has one had to hang their heads in shame at the lack of patriotism and public spirit shown by the citizens of what we all are so fond of boasting of as a great and progressive city. If it were for a junketing trip or the reception of a Governor-General in which they could all participate there would be no end of leaders and means adequate for the occasion. But here we are face to fact with a condition of affairs that threatens our very existence and we don't appreciate it. Look at our contributions to the various patriotic funds. I really don't know what the exact amount that has been subscribed in the city as the local papers have I believe out of consideration for the good name of the city not published the total amount subscribed of late but the last total amount I saw published was in the neighborhood of about five thousand dollars. Compare this with, say, Lindsay, which has about a quarter of the population that we have. Lindsay has joined with the County of Victoria to raise $10,000. Lindsay itself in half a day raised over $7,000. Take Galt, $41,000; Brantford, $36,000; Guelph, $26,000; Woodstock, $24,000; Oshawa, $23,000, and so on to the small towns and villages and they shame us. What is the matter? Are we bankrupt or are we poorer than all the other towns and cities of Canada or is it that we don't understand or appreciate the situation or that we have no fellow feeling or gratitude for those brave fellows that are fighting our battles in order that we may be a free people and have a free country. When I say our battles that means you and you are Canada and Canada is part of the British Empire. Those brave fellows that we have sent represent us and mean for you. They offer to go into that awful carnage that we read about every day in the papers, and if need be sacrifice their very lives to keep Canada and the mother country free, and what sacrifice are we at home making? So far we have been willing to give a sum that equals about 20 cents a head to provide a fund to take care of the dependents of those brave fellow citizens who may fall in battle. What a magnificent sacrifice to make! Men of Peterboro are you satisfied with yourselves? If you are you will find that outside of this city that we are looked upon as a craven lot. What is the reason that the contributions of the citizens of Peterboro to the Patriotic Fund has been so miserably small? I think the view our City Council took of the matter set the pace for all after subscribers. They first did not want to give anything, then after a lot of hoggling they finally agreed to give the magnificent (?) sum of $500. They could not rise to the occasion. They did not realize that this is an occasion of a life time and let us hope of many life times. They did not realize that this is a time of sacrifice and of tremendous effort. When we read of the thousands, yes, and hundreds of thousands of men that have sacrificed their lives as a ransome for our freedom. When we look at little Belgian, torn and bleeding, whose action in holding the German horde till England and France got prepared, saved the situation. Looking at the situation squarely, what is a few thousand dollars to a city such as Peterborough? I see that the Mayor says they will look after the few married men that go from Peterborough? What a narrow view to take of such a situation. This fund (of which the finance minister of Canada is treasurer) is to be distributed among the dependents of the men that go from the whole of Canada. Every company of men that has gone and that will go will stand side by side with the brave fellows that went from our city, and we should do our share with the rest of Canada, not in any narrow manner. I'am no more anxious to pay taxes than most men, but I think if the Council had given ten times what they did give it would even then have been a small contribution. In their taxes every one has to pay in proportion to what he owns. The large property owner or company would then have to pay his fair share, and not be able to get out with a few dollars, as he has now. If the taxes are too heavy on the poorer citizens, let the Council remit the extra taxes of those who were unable to pay. Just look at the paltry sums that our leading citizens have placed opposite their names—$5, $10, $15, $25, $50. Most of these are given by men who can afford to drive their automobiles, and some have horses and carriages, as well, and they think they have done enough when they place such sums opposite their names — sums that would not pay their personal expenses for a month. I am told that the income of one man doing business on George street is between 15 and 20 thousand dollars a year, and he is content to put one of the above amounts opposite his name. Is it any wonder that others give in like proportion when they see the wealthy give so penuriously?

What had we better do to wipe away the stigmatism that attaches to our town in consequence of the meagre amount which we have subscribed to the Patriotic Fund? This is a time when we must make a sacrifice — not merely give amounts which none of us really feel. Tremendous sacrifices are to be made, and are now being made, for us who stay at home, and we ought to be willing to do our share towards keeping our country and our empire free. As there does not seem to be any local leaders that can rise to the occasion, let us import some outsiders as public speakers that will help us to realize what our responsibilities are in these awful times. Such men as Mr. H. B. Ames, M. P., of Montreal, and Madam Vandeveldt, wife of the Prime Minister of Belgium, have spoken in several places, and I think would have a good effect here if we could secure them.

If any representative body will undertake to secure either or both of the above speakers, I will guarantee to pay their expenses. The importance of this subject is my apology for such a lengthy letter.

Yours truly,

CITIZEN.

THE GAMBLING CASE.

Editor, Review:

Dear Sir,—Lest any wrong inference should be drawn from the gambling case now pending in Police Court, which took place at the Dominion Cafe, I beg to state that whatever was done was unknown to the management, as it went on within one of the stalls, but when it came to our notice we tried to stop it at once, but could not do so until the police came.

We do not allow anything of that kind on the premises, and whenever we cannot stop any wrongdoing we invariably call in the police.

Yours truly,

JIM HUM.

BACK AT POSEN.

Germany's Great Warsaw Army Has Been Battered by Russians.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 4.—The Army Messenger states that the left wing of the German army that attempted to capture Warsaw has been driven back across the Russian frontier into Posen. It presents a pitiable comparison with what was months ago styled 'the left wing of the northern army for the occupation of Warsaw.'

"The column that passed through Kielce is now heading for Cracow. It has abandoned all rearguard action, so hurried is its retreat. The other column on the Czestochowa road is rather steadier, seeking to delay pursuit on the banks of the Warta, near Novoradomsk.

"On the Suwalki front the Russians have securely established themselves inside the east Prussian frontier. They have taken possession of the Kaiser's game preserves at Rominten."

An official communication from the Russian General Staff, made public last night, says:

"On the East Prussian front the Germans everywhere have adopted the offensive. Our troops have advanced in some districts, and in one place have taken two guns, a searchlight and a number of prisoners.

"Beyond the Vistula to the northwest of Politza our troops have advanced without any considerable fighting and have occupied Schadek, Lask and Rosprza. On the front from Radomzico and Kielce the enemy is retiring in the direction of Vloscaw."

Albanians' Raid Fatal.

ROME, Nov. 4.—(Via London.)—The Giornale d' Italia's Gettinje correspondent says that an army of 1,000 Albanians, commanded by Buiram Sura and numerous Austrian officers, invaded Montenegrin territory near Djakova. Gen. Vesovitch, a Montenegrin general, permitted them to enter the mountain, and when they were in a dark defile, they were attacked and almost completely massacred by the Montenegrins. Every one of the officers were killed. Austrian uniforms captured, 1,000 guns, Austrian rifles and hundreds of wagons were taken.

A DOUBLE MISTAKE

By SARAH BAXTER

"Mr. Popenjoy!" announced a maid in a black uniform, white apron and dainty cap to Miss Angela Rivers, who was standing before a mirror in her dressing room.

"Tell him I'll be down directly."

The visit was not unexpected. Miss Rivers' mother, a widow, had some time before written her daughter that she had decided to marry again; that her fiance was not by any means an old man, but full of life and spirits. He would be useful to them both. His name was Roger Popenjoy, and he was quite well off. The mother, who was not given to long letters, deemed this quite a sufficient explanation for the present and closed by saying that Mr. Popenjoy would be in the city where they lived and would call that very day to make the daughter's acquaintance.

When her toilet had been satisfactorily arranged Miss Rivers went downstairs to meet her future stepfather. She was surprised to see a man about thirty years old and with all the airs and graces of a man of the world. Her mother was only forty, but Angela never dreamed that she would marry a man ten years younger than herself. However, good breeding required that she show neither surprise, disappointment nor any other emotion. She advanced, extending her hand graciously.

"Mamma wrote me that you would call today."

"Indeed. I expected to call soon, but I was not aware that there was any especial appointment as to the date."

"Have you been in the city long?"

"Oh, yes. I live here."

Miss Rivers was surprised at this. She supposed that her mother had met her second fate in the city where she was visiting. The young lady would have liked to ask how long he had lived in the city of her home and why she had not met him in society, but this would have been to imply that he was not of the select social circle, the social circle to which the Riverses belonged.

"I've been living here only a month," he said. "I came here to go into business."

"In so short a time you could not have made many acquaintances. I shall have the pleasure of introducing you to some of my friends."

"Thank you very much."

"Of course, considering the relationship, we shall have a great deal of freedom in going about together. We won't need a chaperon."

"Not at all."

"Only I wouldn't like mother to be jealous." This was said archly and with a smile.

"I'm more afraid of father as to that."

"Father?"

"Yes, father," looking at her with surprise.

"How old is your father?"

"How old is my father? Haven't you been told how old he is? Why, he's fifty-five."

"I confess I haven't heard anything about him."

"That's singular. I should have thought he would have told you everything."

"I haven't ever seen him."

The young man looked at her with opening eyes.

"What kind of a match do you call this, anyway?" he asked presently.

"I think it a very good match. So long as mamma is pleased I am."

"Oh, your mother's consent was necessary. Of course it was. How stupid of me!"

"I should think it was."

At this moment there was a ring at the doorbell. The maid answered the summons and preceded a visitor into the drawing room, at the same time bearing a card on a salver. Miss Rivers took it up and looked at it wonderingly. On it was the name "Mr. Roger Popenjoy." While she was still staring at it an elderly gentleman entered.

"Morning, father," remarked the Mr. Popenjoy, who had been announced earlier.

"Morning, my boy. Happy to find you here. Present me to"—

"Your fiancee! How can that be necessary?"

Miss Rivers looked on and listened with amazement. The last comer advanced toward her with outstretched hand and said cheerily:

"Your mother wrote you, I believe, that I would call."

Miss Rivers looked from one to the other of the two gentlemen for some moments before replying.

"Mamma wrote me that her fiance, Mr. Popenjoy, would call, but she did not say that there were two fiances. Can it be that mamma has forgotten she is no longer of an age to engage herself to two men at the same time?"

"Dad," cried the younger man, "didn't you write me to call on your fiancee, Miss Rivers?"

"I asked you to call on my fiancee, Mrs. Rivers."

"I see!" exclaimed Angela to the elder Popenjoy. "You are to be my stepfather. I wondered if mamma had lost her senses to engage herself to such a"—

"Fool!" supplied the younger man.

"Not at all—one so much younger than herself."

"All's well that ends well," said Mr. Popenjoy, Sr. "You can go about with Miss Rivers very nicely—no chaperon needed, no"—

The two younger persons burst into a laugh.

Canada Loses Professor.

Dr. J. B. Leathes, Professor of Pathological Chemistry in the University of Toronto, has been appointed Professor of Physiology in the University of Sheffield. Much regret is felt at the university over Dr. Leathes' depending departure, as his scholarship has been a strength to the medical and scientific departments. Although a man only in early middle life, his career has already been brilliant. He came to Canada from London, England, where he was pathological chemist in the Lister Institute. Dr. Leathes is one of the four F. R. S.'s at Toronto University, the others being Dr. MacCallum, and Dr. Brodie, of the Medical Faculty, and Dr. Coleman, of the School of Science. Mrs. Leathes, who is a Russian lady and an ardent advocate of reform, has taken a leading part in a number of women's organizations in Toronto. Her departure will also be much regreted. Dr. Leathes will remain at the university until the end of this year.

Chance For Canadians.

The Canadian Trade Commissioners in England report increased demands for Canadian natural and manufactured products, as a result of the stoppage of trade with Germany and Austria. Enamelware, brushes, brooms, tool handles, nails, wire fencing, pails, small tools, hardware sundries, boots and shoes, leather and leather manufactures are wanted.

The wheat crop of the United Kingdom is estimated at not less than 56,000,000 bushels, or 4 per cent. greater than last year. There is a sufficient wheat in the country to last for four months. The potato crop is sufficient for a year. The price of provisions is about normal.

Justifiably Drunk.

Officer 363 arrested a well-dressed man on King street, Toronto, the other evening on a charge of drunkenness, who, when searched at No. 1 police station, had $1,780 in small bills in his pockets. It was race week in Toronto.

Woman's World

Mme. Bertha von Halbach, the Woman Behind the Guns.

MME. BERTHA KRUPP VON BOHLEN UND HALBACH.

A woman is, after all, dictator to the armed powers of Europe. She is Mme. Bertha Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, heiress of the great gunmaker, Freidrich Krupp, who left the bulk of his fortune and his great armament manufacturing plant at Essen, Germany, to his eldest daughter, Bertha. She owns the steel and gun works, with the shipyards at Kiel and the famous gun and armor works at Madgeburg.

In 1906, when she was nineteen years old, she married Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, who was sixteen years her senior and had a successful career as a diplomat. They have two sons and a daughter. There is American blood in the veins of Von Bohlen und Halbach, although he is a subject of the kaiser. His father fought on the northern side in the civil war.

She not only is the richest woman in Germany, but she is perhaps the most powerful woman in the whole world. By her whim or will nations may be made or destroyed. If she chose to do so she could shut down the vast gun works and refuse to supply the munitions of war to some nation that must have them or cease to exist.

Her father had no son and educated his daughter, Bertha, to take his place. She has been trained in every detail of the business and takes personal charge of it.

It is said to be the war aspect of her work that interests her most. The manufacture of locomotives, steel girders and other products of her factories is all humdrum to her. The earliest toys of her childhood were absolutely perfect working models of every battleship and gun constructed at the factory.

She has made a careful study of every detail of battleship construction, the secrets of rapid firing guns and the composition of shrapnel, dynamite bombs and other death dealing ammunition.

For Ivy Poison.

This time of the year children or grownups going through woods are liable to get into poison ivy. Some children pull it up without knowing what it is. So here is a remedy that will often make it disappear after the first application:

Dissolve one ounce of sugar of lead in two ounces of sweet spirits of niter, add one pint of water that has been boiled, but must be added after cooling. Use only externally. Don't leave where children can handle it. This is to be rubbed on affected parts.

Lace Plate Covers.

Covers for plates of cakes and sandwiches are made of filet lace, mounted on wire frames to give them the proper form. Some are square, some round and some domelike, and they are made in various sizes. For refreshments served on the lawn or veranda these lace covers are most useful, for they protect the cakes or sandwiches or biscuits under them from flies and dust.

VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR COOKING APPPLES

APPLE GOODIE.

Cut apples in balls with a vegetable scoop and cook until tender in a little syrup, to which a little lemon juice has been added. Toast slices of bread or stale cake; dip in milk, to which a little salt and butter has been added. Pile apple balls on slices of bread or cake, with five or six balanced almonds; add bits of any kind of jelly of marmalade. Serve with plain cream.

APPLE FRITTERS, ENGLISH STYLE.

Beat one egg, add a few grains of salt and one-fourth cup of milk; cut out four rounds of bread from half-inch slices of stale bread. Set the bread into the milk and egg mixture and cook in deep fat. Stew apples, pared and cored, in a few spoonfuls of syrup. Place an apple on each round of bread and grate a little nutmeg over the top. Serve very hot.

APPLE GELATINE.

Cover one-half box of gelatine with half a cup of cold water and let stand for half an hour. Pare, core and quarter six tart apples, add the thin, yellow rind of half a lemon, cover with sweet cider or water, boil and press through a sieve; add one cup of sugar and juice of one lemon. Pour over the gelatine, mix, turn ito a mould and let harden. Serve with cream or cider sauce.

APPLE GINGER.

Wipe, pare, quarter, core and chop two and one-half pounds of sour apples. Put in a stew pan and add one and one-half cupfuls of light brown sugar, the juice and rind of one and one-half lemons, one-half ounce of ginger and just enough water to prevent the apples from burning. Cover and cook slowly for four hours, adding water if necessary. Apple ginger may be kept for several weeks. For the Christmas dinner serve around roast goose in apple cups made of bright red apples.

APPLE FRITTERS, II.

Pare and core four tart apples and cut in one-fourth inch slices across the apple. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and powdered sugar. Prepare a batter by sifting one cup of flour and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Add two well-beaten yolks to one-half cup of milk; mix and beat into the flour until smooth. Add one teaspoonful of melted butter or olive oil and cut in the well beaten whites of two eggs. Drain the apples, dip into the batter and fry in deep fat. When cooked drain on brown paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving

APPLE LOAF.

Reserve enough bread dough to make a small loaf. Work thoroughly into it one tablespoonful of butter, one-third cup of sugar, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of cinnamon and two well-beaten eggs. Add flour to make a soft dough, knead lightly and let rise. Divide into three equal parts and roll each part to fit the pan. Lay one piece in a buttered pan, spread over it an inch layer of sour apples chopped fine. Pour over the apples a tablespoonful of melted butter; cover with the second piece of dough and continue as before; brush the top with milk and let rise until very light. Steam for one hour, then place in a hot oven to brown lightly. Serve in slices with sugar and cream

GERMAN APPLE CUP.

Core fine-grained apples, pare except one ring around the center. Cut celery hearts very fine; mix with mayonnaise dressing, to which a little salt, pepper and half the bulk of whipped cream has been added. Fill the cavities of the apples and round up a little. Set on heart-shaped lettuce leaves. If the apples must stand after being pared rub lightly with a cut lemon to prevent discoloration.

FROSTED APPLES.

Pare and core ten large apples. Cover with one pint of water and three tablespoonfuls of sugar; simmer until tender. Remove from the syrup and drain. Wash the parings and let simmer with a little water for one-half an hour. Beat the white of one egg to a stiff froth and add one tablespoonful of sugar. Coat the top of the apples lightly with the meringue and place in a cool oven to dry. Strain the juice from the parings, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, return to the fire and let boil for five minutes, add a few drops of lemon and a little nutmeg, cool and pour around the apples.

GINGER APPLES.

Pare and core some good apples, Greenings or Pippins. Fill the cavity in the center of each apple with a spoonful of chopped preserved ginger. Stand them in your baking dish (not tin) and pour over them a syrup made either of sugar and water flavored with lemon, and with a piece of dried ginger cooked in it, or if there is enough ginger syrup this may be used with the addition of a little water. Bake until soft and transparent, but not broken, basting occasionally with the syrup. Serve hot or cold, with a little whipped cream garnished with some pieces of ginger.

GLAZED APPLES WITH PRESERVED GINGER.

Core and pare half a dozen apples. Make a syrup with a cup of sugar and a cup of water. Cook the apples in the syrup, cook until tender, turn while cooking, but do not cover, as the steam will cause them to break in pieces. Have circular pieces of stale sponge cake ready, take the apples up onto the cake, sprinkle apples and cake generously with granulated sugar and set in the oven to glaze. Add half a cup of syrup from preserved ginger to the apple syrup and let boil up once. When the apples are a delicate brown pour the syrup onto a serving dish, set the apples into the syrup and fill the open spaces with pieces of preserved ginger. Serve hot with cream.

GARNISH FOR ROAST GOOSE.

Cook rings of apples clear in syrup. Drain, place a stewed prune in the center of each and sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts. Arrange around the platter and place the goose in the center.

THAT "SINGULAR BEING."

Edmund Gosse's Pen Portrait of the Poet Swinburne.

In the "Collected Essays of Edward Gosse" is an elaborate pen picture of Swinburne. "Of all the human beings whom I have known," he says, "I think that Algernon Swinburne was the most extraordinary." And here is the characteristic way in which he begins to sketch that "singular being:"

"He was short, with sloping shoulders, from which rose a long and slender neck, surmounted by a very large head. The cranium seemed to be out of all proportion to the rest of the structure. His spine was rigid, and though he often bowed the heaviness of his head, 'lasso papavero collo,' he seemed never to bend his back. Except in consequence of a certain physical weakness, which probably was in more philosophical days come to be accounted for and palliated—except when suffering from this external cause, he seemed immune from all the maladies that pursue mankind.

"He did not know fatigue; his agility and brightness were almost mechanical. I never heard him complain of a headache or a toothache. He required very little sleep, and occasionally when I have parted from him in the evening after saying good night he has simply sat back in the deep sofa in his sitting room, his little feet close together, his arms against his side, folded in his frock coat like a grasshopper in its wing covers, and fallen asleep, apparently for the night, before I could blow out the candles and steal forth from the door.

"I am speaking, of course, of early days; it was thus about 1875 that I closely observed him. He was more a hypertrophied intelligence than a man. His vast brain seemed to weigh down and give solidity to a frame otherwise as light as thistledown, a body almost as immaterial as that of a fairy. In the streets he had the movements of a somnambulist, and often I have seen him passing like a ghost across the traffic of Holborn or threading the pressure of carts eastward in Gray's inn road without glancing to the left or the right, like something blown before a wind."

PUZZLES TO THE BLIND.

Lack of "Size Sense" Gives Them Odd Ideas About Animals.

The path of the teacher of the blind is beset with many difficulties, one of the greatest being the task of conveying to their mind some idea of the size, shape and features of birds and animals. In many cases, it is true, models are used, but owing to their small size they are, to say the least of doubtful advantage.

The ignorance of blind children is great, often grotesque. A teacher of a class may find that a child does not know whether a sheep or a cow is the larger, or he may even find that a hare has wings. However carefully they are told that a small model of a cow is only one-fortieth the size of the real animal, more often than not they are unable to think of the animal as being any larger than the model and will stoop and describe something about the size of a kitten when asked to indicate the size of a cow. This arises from the fact that no standard of size, form and texture—beyond those which they set up through handling—can exist for those who have never had the use of their eyes.

Even those who have had sight are found to lose their standards unless they are renewed from time to time by actual contact. An instance of this was noticed not long ago when a boy of about twelve recovered his sight after an operation and for several days following went about in a state of surprise and fear, for almost everything which he had not been in the habit of touching frequently differed considerably in size from his recollections of seven years before. The size of his parents alarmed him very much, as he imagined they were much smaller.—Strand Magazine.

Environment.

Five-year-old Henry had been enjoying the company of the little daughter of his family's colored cook. He came into the nursery, looked at Ruth, his baby sister, for awhile and said:

"Mother, when Ruth grows up I do hope she'll be colored."—New York Times.

Kidneys Wrong?—
If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones and the deadly Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills contain a most effective diuretic which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys so that they do their work thoroughly and well. Try

THE BOOK AGENT AS HE ISN'T.

A Fable In Words of One or More Syllables.

"You have sent for me," said the book agent, entering the busy man's office.

"Yes, yes," said the busy man. "Have a chair, please. Shan't keep you long."

"I can come some other day, if you prefer," said the book agent, edging toward the door.

"No, no!" cried the busy man. "I want to see if you can sell me a set of Dickeray."

"I suppose I could," replied the book agent dubiously, "but I don't believe a busy man like you will ever have time to read it. Why don't you wait until you have retired from business life and then decide whether you are still interested?"

"I must have it," said the busy man sharply. "I want something nice in crushed levant, with gold tops and all that, a limited edition de luxe, if you have it."

"Won't it be somewhat of a drain on your purse?" suggested the book agent. "This paying for books month after month becomes monotonous. A man may think it a trifle at the start, but after the first six months it gets on his nerves. Why not go to a regular store and buy your set of Dickeray in cloth at a cash price for about one-sixth of what I can offer you?"

"Oh, all right," growled the busy man. "Have it your own way. But I'm sorry to have taken up your time."

"Oh, that's nothing," said the book agent. "Some day you may have a real need of something in my line, and then I'll be glad to sell it to you. Good morning!"—Frank M. O'Brien in New York Press.

The Truth.

A few days after the new farmer had purchased a horse from a thrifty Scot he returned in an angry mood.

"You told me this horse had won half a dozen matches against some of the best horses in the country. He can't trot a mile in six minutes to save himself. You lied to me!" he denounced.

"I didna lie. It was in plowing matches he took sax prizes," calmly replied Sandy.—Kansas City Star.

A Mystery.

"My boy Josh has been talkin' to me about scientific farmin'," said Mr. Corntossel.

"He seems to have interested you."

"Yes. What I'd like to find out now is how a man that knows as little about farmin' as I do ever managed to make the place pay."—Washington Star.

Then She Said It.

Mrs. Styles—Most girls don't know when to say "No," but my daughter does.

Mrs. Myles—Well, I'm glad of that. Where did she learn?

"In school. They used to ask her every day if she knew her lessons."—Yonkers Statesman.

Methodical.

"She ought to make a good business woman."

"What makes you think so?"

"She doesn't insist on getting down to the depot an hour before it's time for her train to start."—Detroit Free Press.

Rivals.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE IN SESSION TWO DAYS

The Teachers' Institute for the city of Peterborough will hold their annual convention on November 12 and 13, to which the public are cordially invited.

The program is very interesting and entertaining and it will prove a great educational help. The morning and afternoon sessions of Thursday will be held in the public library and the others at the Collegiate Institute.

On Thursday evening an address will be given on "Some Problems in Ontario Education," by Dr. Pakenham of Toronto, who is an old Peterboro boy. The musical program arranged for Thursday evening is a choice one and no doubt a large number will be present.

Thin sliced boiled potatoes, sprinkled with chopped parsley, over lettuce leaves with French dressing.

Remember in making all salads that the vegetables should be of the best. Raw vegetables should be well chilled. Boiled vegetables should not be well done. Lettuce leaves should be torn, never cut.

A woman very seldom makes a neighborly call unless she has a fresh bit of gossip to turn loose.

Rev. F. J. Sawers pictured the situation as it exists today. He spoke enthusiastically of the rush to enlist, as witnessed by himself on the occasion of his visit to England, this past summer and he believed that Lord Kitchener would be able to secure a million men if necessary. He eulogized the British people for what had been done in the past and for the sacrifices being made at the present time to show that an Englishman's word was as good as his bond. The reverend gentleman closed his remarks with a stirring appeal to Canadians to rally to the assistance of the Empire.

Mr. J. H. Burnham acknowledged the presence of the ladies by remarking that they could always be depended upon to do their share. His appeal was to the native-born Canadians. He had volunteered and was ready to do anything, no matter how small the duty imposed. Nothing was toow small for a man to do as a sacrifice for his country. Speaking of the Patriotic Fund, Mr. Burnham felt that the citizens of Peterboro had not done their duty. In Lindsay the people had given fifteen times as much as Peterboro, according to population. Norwood had given thirty times as much on the same basis. We were away behind, he said. The county council of Victoria had given $16,000 and he felt sure that the Peterboro County Council would do its share. We must make sacrifices. On the other hand it was easy to slide back if we wanted to.

He had been from one end of the city to the other and had seen the need.

Further Contingents.

The speaker said he had been informed that there would be further contingents from Canada. If the men are not forthcoming will it be because there are not enough Englishmen in the city?

We should remember that we have a noble cause, in this great defence of civilization. We should rally to the aid of those at the front or at least to those who are left behind.

Rev. Jas. Rollins threw out several suggestions during his address. He expressed the hope that the citizens come together in the broadest, kindliest and honest way in an endeavor to retrieve some of the reputation we had been building up for ourselves. It might be that we had not struck the right method. We, perhaps, had not got after things in a united and enthusiastic fashion.

A Waiting List.

We might show our devotion and chivalry in two ways. There should be a waiting list of men, passed by the medical examiner and ready to respond. This the speaker thought was preferable to having advertisements placed in the papers, calling for volunteers. There might be a waiting list of between 400 and 500 young business men and young men in other walks of life. Then there should be an effort made to handle the local situation. It should be a sincere effort—not one of fault-finding. A business man had told him that men were required at home to keep business going. Such being so, there was a duty. Every single man who had volunteered, should be insured for $1000 and the married man for $2000.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., struck an optimistic note as he felt that the citizens would rise to the occasion, and come to the assistance of those at the front and also those left at home and that with proper leadership there would be no difficulty in securing all the men required. This would be accomplished if each one would do his duty.

Other speakers were Judge Huycke, Rev. R. Pogue, J. J. Hartley and E. O. Weber, who is with Dr. Gordon. The latter told of the campaign in Berlin.

During the evening, the 57th band played patriotic airs.

LOST EYE IN FIGHTING.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 3. — Rev. W. F. Fitzgerald, of St. Paul's Church here, received a letter telling him of a wound his nephew, Lieut. Gerald V. Fitzgerald, received in battle, and which resulted in the loss of his eye. Lieut. Fitzgerald was with Leinster Regiment, which went through three days of hard fighting. In leading a bayonet charge near Chappelle, on the Belgian frontier, he was hit by a German rifle bullet close to the left eye. At Wimbleton Cottage Hospital it was found necessary to remove the eye.

HAVE MOTHER'S PICTURE HANGING ON THE WALL

Dr. Gordon Speaks on the Home Life and Discusses Family Finances

MEN'S MEETING TONIGHT

Dr. Gordon's address last evening was on the subject of "home economics," the question of "family finances," "Marriage and Money," or "How much does it cost to furnish a home for two?" In spite of the fact that the weather was exceedingly unpleasant and there were several contra-attractions in the city, in the way of special gatherings of a popular type, the George Street Methodist Church was crowded to the doors, every available seat being occupied and some standing. Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, the colored singer, was in fine form last evening. He sang first of all, a selection of his own composition, entitled "Childhood Days," following that, a plantation melody entitled, "Steal away to Jesus," and last of all, a very appealing hymn entitled "Would you Believe." Mr. E. O. Weber who is responsible for the Christian Citizenship idea, occupied a seat upon the platform, and made the usual announcements.

This evening Dr. Gordon will conduct a patriotic citizenship meeting. His subject being "The Flag, the Man, the Hour." The Mayor and City Council, as well as the two members of Parliament, will occupy seats on the platform, and the church is being divided off into reservations, for bodies of men from the various establishments of the city. This is practically a man's meeting, and arrangements have been made by which practically all the organizations, including the Ministerial Association, will be present.

The following is a brief outline of Dr. Gordon's address on "The Home Life."

The family has occupied a remarkable place in history. There is no influence stronger than the "home influence." The Wesley family stood for religion; the Beecher family stood for eloquence; the Pitt family for statesmanship; the Darwin family for science; the Emmerson family for philosophy; the Disraeli family for literature; the Booth family for evangelism; the Arnold family for education and the family of the Rothschilds for large wealth.

Two Great Dreams.

Into every life there comes two great dreams; First, the dream of Youth, which is the dream of a home; and second, the dream of maturity, which is the dream of a house. The popular conception of the home life, congests itself in the idea that in order to have a happy home, you must have a well built and well furnished domicile or social establishment. The message which I bring you this evening is, that a happy home in the beginning, may exist between four walls in one room, and this evening we shall devote our time to the furnishing of just one room, and the young couple who is prepared to furnish a room properly, is prepared for all the comforts and happiness of the home life.

By the way, I have been in some great rooms in my life. I once visited the room in which Lincoln died. I stood in the room in which John Knox stood. I sat in the room in which John Wesley prayed. I stood half an hour in the room in which the Marquis of Argyle slept the night before his execution. I passed through the room in which Queen Elisabeth was enthroned by Bulwar Lytton, in his mansion at Nebworth. I once gased upon the room where Napoleon resigned his throne, after many emotions of indicision. I have been in the room where Thomas Carlisle wrote his magnificent books, and also in the room in Holly Rood Palace, where Mary Queen of Scots met her lover, so that this evening we are prepared to indulge in a few meditations concerning the possibilities of one room, or how to furnish a room for two persons. First: You will need a strong lock for the door, and the name of that lock is "Principle." No home can ever be destroyed wholly, by outside influences. Those are immortal words uttered by Robertson of Brightin. It must be right to do right.

"For modes of faith, let graceless Zealots fight.
He can't be wrong whose life is
In the right."

Second: You will need a rare Oriental rug for your feet to tread upon. I present to you such a rug in the promises of God. You cannot do better in the establishing of a home, than to plant your feet upon the great, rugged promises of the Great Old Book.

Third: You will need a great book for the centre table. I suggest as that book, the greatest piece of literature in the history of the world. The Bible is the master book and the mother of books, the lion in the realm of literature. The Bible Society reports the sale of ten million copies of the Bible for the last year, outstanding the combined circulation of ten of the most popular novels in existence.

Fourth: You will need a beautiful lamp hanging at the exact centre of your room. I suggest that you secure a spirit lamp, a lamp which flashes with the spirit of truth. In other words, you shall need the presence of the Third Person of the Trinity, "The Holy Spirit."

Fifth: You will need an easy chair for the hour when you are weary. The name of that chair shall be called "Faith." Remember the words of Paley, the great Christian philosopher, "It is a tremendous thing to believe in one God."

Sixth: You will need a telephone in your room, and I would suggest that you have a long distance telephone, and the name of that telephone shall be called "Prayer." Ring up "Main No. 1" in the grand central office of universal love, power and grace.

"Day by day the manna fell,
Oh to learn that lesson well."

Seventh: You will need an instrument of music. No home can be happy without good cheer. There have been only two great singing religions in the history of the world, "Judiasm" and "Christianity." Christianity began with a song "Glory to God in the Highest." Cromwell's men advancing on the enemy sang, "Let God rise, and let His enemy be scattered." Infidelity has never written a great hymn in a thousand years..

Eighth: You will need a picture for the wall. That picture I would suggest ought to be the picture of your mother. If you live for a hundred years, you will never find a love so pure, sincere, unselfish and so full of sacrifice as the love of your mother.

Ninth: You will need at least one splendid window. Through that window there must shine the golden light of immortality. Tennyson once exclaimed, "I hope I shall never be so weak minded as to let my belief in a future life be torn from me." Immortality is the golden light which guilds all the incidents of life with an eternal hope.

Tenth: You will nede an extra chair at your table. That chair should be occupied by one who shall represent your Master and your Lord, Jesus Christ." Go out and find some poor pilgrim, beggar, pauper, peasant, and in the name of your absent Lord, invite such an absent one to be a guest at your table. Do not lead a selfish life. The most unhappy home is the home where two persons live solely and only for themselves.

Dr. Gordon closed his address with an earnest evangelistic appeal.

A LETTER FROM PTE. FRED LONG

Says Canadians Are Getting Some Hard Training

Pte. Fred Long, who is with the first Canadian contingent at Salisbury Plain, sends the following letter to his mother:—

Salisbury Plain, England,
October 22, 1914.

Dear Mother,—

Received your letter here today and very glad to hear from you. Hope you are well at home. We had a fine trip across the Atlantic Ocean. The weather wasn't very rough. We arrived at Plymouth in the south of England on a Thursday afternoon and didn't leave the boat till Sunday night. We travelled till 4 o'clock in the morning on the train and then walked 10 miles into camp and got there in time for breakfast. We were in heavy marching order, too, including rifle and bayonet. There were about 35 boats in a bunch coming across and we sailed with lights out most of the time. We're getting some good hard training here these days. It sure is a fine country over here. So this is the summer we were to go over to the Old Country. Well, I beat you to it, didn't I? Well I'm glad you're all well and happy. War news is just as scarce here, practically as it it in Canada. I may take a trip to Ireland sometime soon. It's not far from here. It's rather rainy here and we're still in tents. Well there's nothing strange to tell you. Don't know when we leave here but will let you know. Love to all.

FRED.

Not Much.

"Are you putting away something for a rainy day, Tommy?" asked the little boy's aunt as she saw him at his little savings bank.

"No, ma'am," was Tommy's reply. "There ain't no ball games on rainy days!"—Yonkers Statesman.

King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by a small suite, left London today for Salisbury Plain to inspect the Canadian forces.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. — American Minister Fletcher at Santiago, Chile, reporting the naval engagement off Coronel, and the arrival of the three German warships at Valpariso, indicates that the damaged cruiser Good Hope escaped with the Glasgow and Otranto.

TURKISH MINISTER AT BORDEAUX HANDED PASSPORTS.

BORDEAUX, Nov. 4. — The Turkish ambassador was handed his passports this morning.

TOKIO, Nov. 4. — Japanese forces besieging Tsing Tau have destroyed twenty-six German guns and captured eight hundred prisoners.

PEKIN, Nov. 4. — No wireless messages have been received since Tuesday morning from the German defenders of Tsing Tau, which the Japanese have been bombarding with heavy siege guns for several days.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 4. — A fleet of German warships has gathered off Aland Islands in the Baltic Sea, northeast of Stockholm and opposite the entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

They evidently were proceeding north, and have stopped to await orders.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 4. — A Berlin paper publishes a despatch from Sophia saying that Turkish warships have sunk the Russian battleship Sinope.

TWO BRITISH SHIPS SMASHED BY GERMAN SQUADRON OFF CHILE

Five Cruisers, Under Admiral Graf Von Spee Engage Goodhope, Mommouth, Light Cruiser Glasgow And Auxilary Otranto

VALPARAISO, Nov. 4.—The British cruiser Monmouth was sunk and the cruiser Goodhope was badly damaged off Coronel, Chile, yesterday, when the German warships Gneisenau, Scharnhorst, Nurnberg, Leipzig and Dresden attacked the British fleet. It is declared that the crew of the Monmouth have all perished.

At last reports the Goodhope was on fire and it is believed she cannot be saved.

The British cruiser Glasgow sought refuge in the harbor of Coronel and is now interned there. The auxiliary cruiser Otranto has escaped to Puerto Montt.

At mid-day yesterday the German cruisers Scharnhorst, Nurnberg and Gneisenau were at anchor, unharmed, in Valparaiso harbor.

Admiral Graf Von Spee, commander of the German fleet in Pacific waters, arrived here yesterday morning and made the following report concerning a naval engagement with the British warships at sea off Coronel, last Sunday evening:

"On Sunday, Nov. 1, between six and seven o'clock in the evening, during a heavy rain and rough weather off Coronel, we sighted the British men-o'-war Goodhope, Monmouth and Glasgow and the armored cruiser Otranto.

"An engagement ensued immediately. All the ships opened a brisk cannonade with all their artillery. The Monmouth was sunk and the Goodhope after a great explosion on board, took fire. Her subsequent fate is unknown owing to darkness having set in.

"The Glasgow and the Otranto also were damaged, the darkness prevented our obtaining knowledge of the extent of it.

"Our ships, the Scharnhorst and Nurnberg, were not damaged. The Gneisenau had six men wounded. The rest of our ships were undamaged."

The British cruisers Goodhope, Monmouth and Glasgow were under command of Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, and had been searching the coasts of South America for several weeks with the object of engaging the German cruisers which had been destroying the British merchant vessels.

The British cruiser Monmouth, reported sunk in the engagement yesterday, was 440 feet long, 66 feet beam and of 9,800 tons displacement. She carried fourteen 6-inch guns, eight 3-inch guns, three 3-pounders and was fitted with two 18-inch torpedo tubes. Her complement was 655 men. The Monmouth was built in 1899.

The Goodhope, also reported lost, was the flagship of the squadron. She was 500 feet long, 71 feet beam and displaced 14,100 tons. She represented the British nation at the Jamestown Exposition in 1909. She had a complement of 900 men. The Goodhope was built thirteen years ago.

The light cruiser Glasgow, which took refuge at Coronel, was built in 1909. She is 420 feet long.

The German armored cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, are sister ships of 11,600 tons. Both were built in 1906 and are 440 feet long on the water line.

The Nurnberg is a small cruiser of 3,540 tons and carries a complement of 295 men. She has ten 4.1-inch guns.

The Dresden and Leipsic, which are reported to have been engaged in the battle, but the whereabouts of which following it have not been divulged, also are small cruisers. The Dresden is of 3,600 tons and the Leipsic of 3,250 tons. They have respectively complements of 321 and 386 men.

LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT

How many articles does a family buy in a year without ever taking the trouble to ask where they are made? Most people ask that kind of a question if they happen to be buying something that costs in the neighborhood of a hundred dollars. When it comes to the little things that cost from ten cents up to a dollar and a little more, they just buy them and don't take the trouble to look at the stamp or the trademark to find where the wages are paid for making them. It's the little things taken often enough that constitute the bulk of people's buying. The big things once got are got for most of a life-time. A piano lasts as long as a man; a sideboard last as long as a piano. A handkerchief is replaced by a new one in a few months. The piano and the sideboard may or may not be made in Canada, at any rate the buyer finds out because he invariably asks. But the handkerchief—or the necktie or the package of tobacco—suppose for curiosity you make it a point to see where they are made? When you have that settled and decide that it's worth your while to have them made in Canada, it might be a source of great satisfaction just to keep a chronicle of all you buy in six months and see how much that contributes to the grand total of keeping Canada's factories busy.

With roast pork serve baked potatoes, in the pan, and a sweet watermelon or peach pickle.

Warden's Action Meets Approval

At this morning's session of the County Council the report of the committee appointed to deal with the warden's address, was submitted as follows:—

The committee approves of the action of the Warden in calling the Council together at an earlier date than usual owing to the serious condition of affairs on the Continent of Europe, with a view of taking steps to meet the conditions arising out of the war, and expresses its deep sympathy with all those who are sorrowing and distressed by reason of it.

The Committee recommends that the important matters referred to in the address be dealt with by a committee of the whole Council.

The Committee is pleased to hear from the Warden that the financial condition of the County is satisfactory.

The committee desires to recognize the care and attention the Warden has shown in performing the duties of his office and to acknowledge his important services rendered as Warden for the present year.

Respectfully submitted,

B. W. SQUIRE,
Chairman.

Scientific Opinion the World Over is unanimous that caffeine and tannin, the poisonous drugs in tea and coffee, should not be used unless as medicines under the direction of a doctor.

These drugs in tea and coffee are known to be one of the common causes of chronic headache, nervousness, dyspepsia, "coffee heart," and other aches and ills.

If you are troubled with any such ailments, suppose you do as thousands of others have done, get relief by quitting both tea and coffee and using

DARDANELLES SHELLED BY ANGLO-FRENCH FLEET

Great Explosion is Reported to Have Occurred in Fortress, But Damage Cannot be Ascertained — Russian Army of the Caucasus is Marching Against Turkey—Germany Claims Invasion of Egypt

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that a combined British and French squadron bombarded the Dardanelles forts at long range at daybreak yesterday morning. The forts replied, but no ships were hit, only one shot falling alongside them.

The statement adds that the damage to the forts cannot be estimated, but that a great explosion, accompanied by dense volumes of black smoke, occurred at the Holles fort.

Reports that Turkish troops had crossed the border into Egypt lack confirmation.

One newspaper says: "The public in Egypt are calm and not even aware of a Turco-Russian rupture. A press censorship will be established. Meanwhile it is announced that Germany has been pouring officers and men into Turkey. Many of them speak Turkish, and will command Turkish detachments equipped with modern weapons, which the Germans are said to have supplied."

An official communication was given out in Constantinople yesterday as follows:

"According to official reports from the Caucasian frontier, Russian troops have attacked our frontier forces at several points, but were compelled to retire.

"The Russians suffered losses through the energetic resistance of the Turkish troops."

Ambassador Morganthau's latest despatches to Washington, dated Sunday, said he had been informed by a member of the Ottoman Cabinet of the sinking of two Turkish vessels by the British fleet off the port of Smyrna, and of the crossing of Russian troops on the frontier of Erzeru. The cablegram of the American Ambassador revealed that the British, French and Russian Ambassadors finally got away from Constantinople on a special train at 12 o'clock midnight Sunday.

A telegram dated Nov. 3 was received yesterday by the official Press Bureau from the British Consul at Mohammerah, Persia, stating that the Consul at Basra, Asiatic Turkey, and a number of British merchants were being detained by the Turks.

There are about twenty-five British subjects ashore at Basra, in addition to those who may have taken refuge aboard the river steamers.

A despatch from Petrograd says the Turkish Ambassador to Russia, before he left here for Constantinople, made the following statement:

"I am firmly convinced that the war will be of extremely short duration, and that Turkey will assume the position maintained before German influence became paramount at Constantinople."

Germans Harassed In Persia.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The German Consul at Tabriz, Persia, was assaulted, and took refuge in the American Consulate, with other panic-stricken German subjects, according to a message late yesterday from the United States Minister at Teheran.

United States Consul Paddock at Tabriz is extending temporary refuge to the German subjects, but the Russians in Persia are threatening to arrest and expel all Germans.

The Persian authorities have gathered up the archives of the Turkish Consulate at Tabriz and sent them to Petrograd.

Ambassador Morganthau cabled the U. S. Government that before the British Ambassador left he had given Mr. Morganthau assurances that all Turkish subjects in the British Empire would be permitted to leave.

Greek Submarine Sunk?

ROME, Nov. 4.—(Via London.)—An official Turkish message says that the British fleet sank a Greek torpedo boat in the Mediterranean that was taken for a Turkish craft.

A Constantinople despatch states that Servia yesterday severed diplomatic relations with Turkey and the Servian Ambassador asked for his passports says the Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co.

Essad Pasha and 20,000 Albanian Mussulmans are reported to be advancing on Scutari from the south, while 15,000 Catholic Maalissori are advancing from the north.

Berlin despatches report that very large Turkish forces mobilized on the Asiatic shore of the Suez Canal are provided with 2,000,000 bags of sand wherewith they propose to form a dam whenever the Turkish army advances.

A Hard Meal to Digest

Is Quickly Digested by the Taking of A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet After It Is Over.

Corn on the cob is hard to digest for some folk, but with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet it readily is disposed of by the stomach and digestive apparatus.

Don't drug your stomach. Give it just what it needs at the very moment it needs it. Here is the way a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet acts:

He—"I can eat corn now and feel O.K. A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet will quickly digest it."

One takes a tablet just after the meal is completed. It is taken into the mouth like food; is mixed with the saliva; swallowed moist and partially dissolved. It goes into the stomach and is there mixed with the stomach juices which are composed of acids and alkalies.

A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet re-inforces these juices. It quickly digests the elements which such weakened juices cannot digest.

After a while the stomach passes the meal partially digested to the intestines, where it goes through another stage of digestion. Here, as in the stomach, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets strengthen the juices of digestion and complete the work of giving the body the benefit of the meal.

There is nothing harmful in these tablets. Only natural ingredients which the body lacks are supplied. In a short time the blood and digestive juices are given the power they lack. Man can digest any food without injury and the entire health of the body is increased. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold wherever drugs are sold, price 50 cents a box. Anyone wishing a free trial of these tablets please address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., and a small sample package will be mailed free.

EIGHT COLONELS ARE PROMOTED

British Officers Made Major-Generals for Gallant Conduct

LONDON, Nov. 4.—It is announced that the following eight colonels have been promoted to be major-generals as a reward for gallant conduct in the field:

Sir David Henderson, Henry F. M. Wilson, James A. L. Haldane, Henry S. Horne, Frederick D. St. Wing, Hubert De La P. Gough, Edward S. Bulfin, and Aylmer Hunter Weston.

The President of France has bestowed the cross of an officer of the Legion of Honor on nineteen British officers and the Cross of the Chevalier on one hundred others for gallantry during the operations during October.

In a casualty list issued last night, Capt. Sir E. A. Stewart-Richardson of the Black Watch Regiment, and husband of Lady Constance Mackenzie, the dancer, is mentioned among the wounded.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

PARIS, Nov. 4. — The following official communication was issued last night:

"The only advices received this evening concerning the region at the northeast of Vailly, where we have counter attacked and retaken the farm at Mets, in the region of the de-Paris-Saint-Hubert and the Argonne, where a German attack has been repulsed and we have gained some ground."

Yesterday afternoon's official statement reads:

"On our left wing the enemy seems to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser down stream from Dixmude, and reconnaissances by troops of the allies undertaken on the highways in the inundated regions were successful in re-occupying points of passage across the river without great difficulty.

"To the south of Dixmude, and in the direction of Gheluvit, our advance was particularly perceptible.

"In the region to the north of Lys, in spite of determined attacks by the Germans in considerable force, our front was everywhere maintained or re-established by the end of the day.

"Fresh attacks by the Germans on the environs of Arras and against Lihons and Lequesnoy-en-Santorre resulted in failures.

"On the centre, in the region of the Aisne, to the east of the forest of Aigle, we have made some progress. To the east of Vailly, according to the latest news, those of our troops who held the positions on the slopes of the plateaus to the north of the Villages of Chavonne and Soupir, has been compelled to draw back into the valley to the east of this location. We have maintained our positions at Amont, on the right bank of the river.

"There was violent cannonading during the day between Rheims and the Meuse, as well as on the heights of the Meuse.

"Further efforts on the part of the Germans in the Forest of Argonne have been checked.

"We have continued to make progress in the northwest of Pont-a-Mousson.

"On our right wing there have been some engagements favorable to our arms along the River Seille."

SIX NEW ARMY CORPS BEING MOVED AGAINST THE BRITISH AT YPRES

Kaiser Has Gone There Himself To Encourage His Men

LONDON, Nov. 4.—That the German army has abandoned its attempt to hack its way along the Belgian coast to Calais is agreed by all the official reports last night. A combination of inundated country, the remnant of the Belgian army under King Albert and the activity of the British warships seemingly all contributed toward ending the costly struggle.

A Berlin official report attributes the failure of the Germans entirely to the flooded state of the country, where the water in places is over a man's head; but it is declared that the army of Emperor William withdrew in good order and without losses.

After nearly three weeks of desperate fighting, the brunt of the attack has now shifted to the Ypres region, where the British army of Field Marshal Sir John French, reinforced by Indians and territorials, apparently must meet another onslaught. To the scene of this contemplated battle, according to reports, Emperor William has gone to give encouragement to his men by his presence.

News comes from Havre that the Germans near the coast are retreating to the eastward, abandoning their dead and wounded. The Belgian troops are moving on toward the Yser. They are discovering numerous evidences that the Germans are in precipitate flight in that vicinity.

Germany yesterday began the assembling of six new army corps at Coutrai, Belgium, for an attack on the allies' line between Ypres and Arras, France. British aviators report large forces of Germans marching toward Ypres, which is expected to be the vortex of the battling for the next week. The Germans seem to have abandoned their attempt to cut their way through to Saint Omer, southeast of Calais.

A special to The Times, dated Pas de Calais, says: "The desperate attempt of the Germans to take Ypres by storm has failed. The British still hold the town with rifle and bayonet. The German soldiers, even in overwhelming force, are no match for ours. Their infantry has been driven back eastward and their artillery has again come into action at long range. Their shells fall short of the town. That was the position yesterday. On Saturday and Sunday, when the situation was critical, thousands of the inhabitants left the town. It is not yet safe for them to return. The enemy's attack has been repulsed but not yet finally crushed. The outposts of the two opposing armies are almost within a stone's throw of each other. Our sentries can hear the gramophone and the singing of the soldiers in the enemy's trenches. The battlefield is strewn with German dead. In their advance our men had to leap over them."

The Standard has the following from Paris: "The newspapers here are not allowed to give any details to substantiate their belief, but more than one declares itself in a position to affirm that the Germans are hurriedly preparing to retreat and may start falling back in force at any time. Particulars have already appeared in the London press of different defence works thrown up by the enemy to enable them to clear out of Belgium in the best order possible, while telegrams have arrived here stating that similar preparations are being made on the eastern frontier and in Alsace, particularly near Strasburg."

The Germans resumed their bombardment of the city of Rheims with great violence on Sunday and Monday, according to a despatch from Bordeaux.

Germans Surprised.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 4.—The German troops who held Dixmude for a brief period last week, had an unpleasant experience. They entered the town singing, as is their custom "Die Wacht am Rhein." The allies previously had mounted machine guns in the garrets of some of the houses and left sufficient men concealed to work them.

The Germans were preparing to stay in the town all night, when suddenly the allies opened fire from the houses. The Germans fled in panic, leaving 1,000 killed.

Contracts for Harness.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 4—Contracts for an aggregate of $1,000,000 worth of harness for the British army —part of a $6,100,000 order placed with a firm in South Bend, Ind.—were sublet to five saddlery companies of St. Louis yesterday.

The entire order is for 20,000 sets of six-horse harness. A saddle is required for every other horse. The equipment therefore will be comprised of 60,000 saddles and 120,000 harnesses. The hardware for the harness is to be furnished by firms in Canada and England.

Canada is going to make Germans and other enemies of the country report to the chiefs of police once a week. The fanatics who voted against the Dreadnoughts should come in on this.

THAT DEAR KRONPRINZ!

Belgian Officers Are Satisfied That He Has Been Killed.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Belgian officers arriving here state that they are certain that the German Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany is dead. They assert that in Brussels all the flags were at half-mast last Sunday, pointing to this as proof of their statement.

It has been rumored for a number of days that the Crown Prince was wounded rather severely in the fighting in France. Reports to this effect came from Basle, Switzerland, saying that he was ill in a Swiss hospital. Another story said that the prince had been taken to the palace at Strassburg for treatment.

A further story says it was he who led the German troops to disaster before Warsaw in Russian Poland.

Desertions Increasing.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 4. — From Ghent comes word that the desertions from the German army are constantly increasing. Sentries have been posted in tailor shops and the roads are blocked by convoys bearing German wounded.

German military headquarters have been transferred from Ghent to Thielt, in West Flanders, denoting German reverses.

MUST PRINT WHITE PAPER.

Pro-German Press In West Given a Pill By the Government.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4. — So persistent is the anti-British campaign in some German newspapers of western Canada that the Government has been obliged to deal drastically with the situation. Orders were issued yesterday to the military authorities at Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton to notify newspapers in their districts that the further publication of articles of a seditious nature, or calculated to incite in the readers of these newspapers anti-British sentiment of a dangerous character, would be followed immediately by suppression of the newspaper.

The Government will also compel these German newspapers to print the British White Paper, showing the British side of the case against Germany in the war.

USING NOVEL SPADES.

Equipment of Canadian Troops Is New To Englishmen.

BASINGSTOKE, Eng., Nov. 4.—Canadian troops arriving at Salisbury Plains carry an entrenching tool that is novel to the Englishman. It is capable of being used as a shield and is slung across the shoulder in a leather case. The tool is a spade weighing about four pounds and consequently can be carried at all times. The spade has an oval hole in the centre of it, through which a gun barrel can be thrust. This tool thus serves both as a rifle rest and shield to the soldier in the trenches.

All the spades have been subjected to heavy fire and the metal in them is practically bullet-proof. At a distance of 200 yards heavy ammunition only cracks the shields and does not penetrate them.

SHOEMAKING IN AMERICA.

Massachusetts Now Turns Out Nearly Half the World's Product.

Thomas Beard, arriving by the Mayflower in 1629, was the first shoemaker to come from England to America. He settled at Salem, Mass.

More than $250,000,000 is now invested in American shoemaking and more than 200,000 wage earners are employed.

Before 1850 practically every shoemaking process was a hand process.

Lynn, Mass., with over 100 factories, is the leading shoe city of the world.

Of the world's boots and shoes more than 47 per cent are made in Massachusetts.

John Brooks Nichols of Lynn adapted the Howe sewing machine to sew the uppers of shoes in 1851, and this was the first important step in the application of machinery to shoemaking.

William F. Trowbridge at Feltonville, now a part of Marlborough, Mass., applied horsepower to the shoe making machinery of 1855. Steam and water power came later.

The poet Whittier was a shoemaker in his youth. Henry Wilson, eighteenth vice president of the United States, was "the Natick cobbler" and was always proud of his shoemaking days.

Ebenezer Breed of Lynn is credited with securing by personal influence the first protective tariff on shoes. He was a merchant of Revolutionary times.

August Destouy, a New York mechanic, invented in 1862 the first curved needle to sew turn shoes.—From "A Primer of Boots and Shoes," Compiled by Daniel S. Knowlton.

Bombs Intended For Rulers.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A Central News despatch from North France, under date of Monday, says that a German airman skimming 5,000 feet above the Belgian town of Furnes, apparently with the knowledge that King Albert and President Poincare were going to review the cavalry drawn up before the Hotel de Ville, dropped several bombs, which, however, missed the square and did but slight damage a short distance away. Thereafter French and Belgian aeroplanes kept the sky clear of the enemy.

Arthur Stringer Weds.

CHATHAM, Nov. 4. — Arthur Stringer, the author, was married here yesterday to a cousin, Miss Margaret Stringer, at the home of the bride's uncle, George Stephens, ex-M.P. They left for California on a honeymoon trip.

No Half Measures, Says Czar.

LONDON, Nov. 4. — A despatch from Moscow to Reuter's Telegram Co. says that Emperor Nicholas, in telegraphing his greetings to the Merchants' Association, on the occasion of the opening of its sessions, said:

"Peace only is possible when Russia reaches the heart of German soil. This is the unanimous opinion of all Muscovites. Any apprehension of peace being concluded before the enemy is completely crushed is unfounded."

"Gamey" Stratton On Injured List

Peterboro Boy not Able to Attend Practice but Will Play Saturday

Toronto, Nov. 4.—Can Varsity defeat McGill at the Stadium on Saturday and create a tie in the Intercollegiate? is the big question in local rugby circles this week. Last night after the candidates had been put through their weekly drill by Prof. Williams, the Blue and White were out in force getting the sore spots, received in the Queen's game, worked out, and if they keep up the "pepper" displayed there is a strong feeling that Shaughnessy and his Montreal crew are in for the surprise of their lives when they come to Toronto.

Whether "Red" Mackenzie will get a place on the Varsity back division for the all-important game is just a question. Doyle, Sheehy and Lindsay did great work in Kingston and the big fellow will have to be in great condition before he can replace any of the others. "Gamey" Stratton and "Laddie" Cassels were the only two regulars who did not put in an appearance last night. Stratton is laid up with a sore foot, while Cassels took a rest. Clarkson and Adelard, the outside wings, are both in better shape than they have been all season while "Bobby" Sinclair is rapidly getting down to weight. The scrimmage candidates are going along in good style and with Campbell and Gardiner ready for the centre positions, the Blue and White are well fortified. Horner did some great tackling in Kingston, and is sure of a place, while every position on the team has a spare ready to jump in the game. Hume Crawford played quarter last night and can go in at any minute that Stratton falls down.

HUGH JENNINGS

Pilot of the Tigers, of whom Connie Mack says some very uncomplimentary things.

HOCKEY has received another boost in this city by the presence of C. R. Widdifield, the barrister. Mr. Widdifield has performed in the O. H.A. and Intercollegiate and may possibly hold down a place on the forward line this winter for the Blue and White. If he does not play on the Intermediate team he will be willing to assist in any way possible with the Juniors.

JOE KELLEY MAY RETIRE

Fitzpatrick is Spoken of a Manager for Leafs

Toronto, Nov. 4.—President McCaffery is going right ahead with his plans for next year, despite the unsettled condition of baseball affairs. He is quite optimisitic regarding affairs, and is not at all alarmed over the report that the Feds contemplate an invasion of his territory. As a matter of fact, he is of the opinion that before next spring peace will be declared by the warring factions, and that Toronto will benefit in a great measure. It may be that the local club will have a new manager. Though Mr. McCaffery would not commit himself in any way it is common gossip that Joe Kelly and the local magnate have about reached a "parting of the ways." Some color is lent to this supposition by the fact that an application was received yesterday from H. D. Ramsey, formerly of the Troy, New York State League, Club, asking for the job. If a change is made it is not likely that an outsider will be considered. There is a probability that "Eddie" Fitzpatrick, the hustling second-baseman of the club, will be a likely candidate. President McCaffery is a great admirer of the little infielder, both as a player and a field leader, and though "Fitz" is of a somewhat fiery disposition, and a confirmed "umpire baiter," his chances of succeeding Kelly may be tabbed as roseate.

CONNIE MACK PAID HIS RESPECTS TO HUGHIE JENNINGS FOR TALKING

Manager of Detroit Team Given Credit for Handing Information to Public About Bender, Plank and Coombs.

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—Local baseball circles were deeply stirred over the announcement that Manager Mack had asked for waivers on his three veteran pitchers — Bender, Plank and Coombs — the truth of which was confirmed by the tall leader of the Athletics. Incidentally, Mack paid his respects to Hugh Jennings, manager of the Detroit team, for allowing the news to reach the public. When asked if the statement was true that his veteran pitchers were to be allowed to go, Manager Mack said:

"Waivers have been asked on Plank, Bender and Coombs. Before releasing a player unconditionally all clubs in the American League must waive on the players. While I had no intention of retaining any of the three above-named players in 1915, I would not have asked waivers on the players at this time but for the fact that one of the three had told me that he was talking business with the Federal League; that he was offered big money, and that he did not suppose we would want to meet the offer.

"I suggested to this player that some other American League club might be willing to meet his demand. I want it understood that I am for the American League in victory or defeat. Waivers on players are supposed to be treated strictly in confidence by club owners and managers, but I could not expect anything else from Jennings in giving out the news that waivers were asked on players, as Jennings manages a ball club only six months of the year. The balance of his time is taken up in doing his vaudeville act, but he should worry as long as Frank Navin can give him a great team to manage every spring."

At the present time Coombs is on a fishing trip in Maine, Bender is in Williamsport and Plank is at his home in Gettysburg, Pa. Plank was the only one of the three who could be reached and in a statement he said:

"The announcement that Mack had asked waivers on me was a complete surprise and I knew nothing about it until a friend of mine called me this morning from Philadelphia and told me he had read it in The Record. I should have thought that Connie would have told me something about it, particularly since I told him a few days ago that I had received a strong offer from the Federal League. I was man enough to do that and Connie might at least have done the same toward me. I gave the best I had to the Athletics and would like to be able to say the club treated me as well in return. I feel that I have at least a couple of years more good pitching left in my old wing, and the fact that the Athletics want to release me will not make the Federals believe that I am all in. If the Feds think that way, I don't have to worry, for I have got mine stowed away in farms and the bank, and I don't have to play ball any more unless I want to. Even now I am not sure that I shall play ball with the Federals, but if I do, you can bet that I shall get a fat salary, and I shall give them the best I have in return. So far as Coombs and Bender are concerned, I don't know anything about them and their business is their own."

It is known that Mack thinks he has four of the best young pitchers in the country in Shawkey, Bush, Bressler and Wyckoff, and it is likely that he figures they have had enough experience to carry the club along without the aid of the veterans. He thought that Coombs might have come along after a long rest, but evidently he figures that the "iron man" has lost some of his cunning and is no longer of American League calibre. Bender has been with the club many years, and while he has made a good record this year, he did not stack up against the hardest clubs in the league.

May Play Series in Yale Stadium

New Haven, Nov. 3.—The question of playing the next world's baseball series in the new Yale bowl will be discussed by the directors of the National League at their annual meeting next month. The plan is regarded possible by Harry Hempstead, president, and John B. Foster, secretary, of the New York Giants. It was learned on Sunday night, that the recent visit of that pair to this city was for the purpose of critically examining the bowl, with a view to establishing the proposition.

Before leaving here Foster and Hepstead said that there was more room in the bowl to play a baseball game than in some grounds during the crowded condition that have existed during the past world's series.

The bowl will seat 61,000 persons and standing room accommodations for between 12,000 and 14,000 more on the parapet at the top of the big dish can be made available. Not many more than 40,000 can be crowded into any of the major league parks for a world's series.

According to Messrs. Hempstead and Foster, the big league nine owners wish to await the success of Yale's experiment in building the bowl before themselves proceeding to sink money in a similar venture.

Badinage.

"Do I bore you?" asked the mosquito politely as he sunk a half inch shaft into the summer boarder's arm.

"Not at all," replied the boarder, squashing him with a book. "How do I strike you?"—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Huh!

"It says here that if you eat garlic with your meals you will live a hundred years," said the Old Fogy.

"You won't if you hang around in my vicinity," replied the Grouch.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

COMMENT As You Like it

NEXT SATURDAY'S GAMES will have great bearing upon the championships in all the three rugby unions. If Varsity win from McGill at Toronto they will create a tie for first place. If the Toronto defeat the Rowing Club at Hamilton a saw-off in the Ontario Union will be necessary. In the Interprovincial wins for the Tigers and Argos at Montreal and Ottawa will mean a deadlock for first place between the Toronto and Hamilton teams. At that the chances of Argos in comparison with any of the other Toronto teams look the best. It is very probable that T.R. and A.A. will fall in Hamilton.

TWO NEW BOOKS

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton announce for immediate publication a sensational and most illuminating book entitled "The German Army From Within," by a British officer who served in it. "Since I am again about to fight for the country of my birth," says the author, "I can set down clearly and dispassionately the life of the German Tommy Atkins as I knew it. I was an infinitesimally small cog-wheel in the mechanism of the mightiest machine of destruction that the world has yet produced, and it is of my personal experience alone that I shall write. I propose to take the machine to pieces for you, and show you how it works. I conceal nothing, I exaggerate nothing." If the author lives up to his promise to conceal nothing and exaggerate nothing, his book should be something of a revelation.

"How Germany Makes War" is by General Frederich von Bernhardi. Everyone is reading Bernhardi, and this book is described as his "key" to the war. It has only been available hitherto in two large and expensive volumes. This edition is condensed and edited for popular reading. "How Germany Makes War" seems to have been written for the present war with an eye to the actual battlefields now being fought over. It certainly represents the views of the men who forced this war on Bernhardesque principles at the moment which they thought most favorable to the German powers.

PRESENTATION OF SILVERWARE

Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook of Smith to Reside in the City

The following address was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook of Smith last Thursday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook have taken up residence in this city, and are residing on Wolsley Street.

October 28, 1914.

Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook and family,

Dear friends,—We, a few of your friends and neighbors feel we cannot part with you from our midst without showing you in some way our appreciation of your good and noble citizenship. We have always found Mrs. Seabrook and you willing to help in any way you could for the benefit of any social function. As a neighbor we have known you to be kind and generous, willing to do your part and now that you are about to remove from us we desire to show you in some tangible way our kind regards for you and yours. We would ask you to accept this silverware trusting that you and your family may long be spared to enjoy them and that you may have a happy and useful life. As you look back over the years you spent in our midst and the kind acts and deeds rendered your neighbors and the good fellowship existing between us may those memories be sweet and ennobling, prompting you to still go forward carrying with you that good and noble character.

We wish you and your wife and family all the comforts and enjoyments this world can give and in the World to come, Life Eternal.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors, Thomas McMullen, Fred Cann, Bert Middleton.

WATCH FOBS FOR Y.M.C.A. WORKERS

Membership Campaign Will be Continued to November 16

The Y.M.C.A. membership campaign which started on the 15th of October will be continued until the 16th of November. The effort so far has not been as successful as was first anticipated, although a good number of young men have been added to the Y.M.C.A. roll of members and $250 in fees collected.

Watch fobs have been awarded to Stanley Taylor for having secured the largest amount in membership fees and to Allen Sharpe for having enrolled the largest number of members.

The teams will meet for supper on Thursday evening of this week and prepare plans by which the campaign may be pushed to a successful finish, before the 16th of the month.

Mr. J. A. H. Harper, who acted as captain of one of the teams left with the soldiers of the second contingent so another captain will be appointed to fill his place. Mr. Harper will carry with him to the front a watch fob from the local Association in recognition of his efforts and the high esteem in which he is held by the Y.M.C.A. members.

Y.M.C.A. Intermediate and Senior members are requested to meet at the Association building this evening at 7.15 for the purpose of attending Dr. Gordon's men's meeting in a body.

Concert by the Kitchener League

Tomorrow evening a concert is to be given in the Collegiate Institute, under the auspices of the Kitchener Canadian Patriotic League for the benefit of our soldier boys who have gone to the front. A particularly appropriate programme has been prepared for the occasion, consisting of patriotic songs, music and tableaux, which has been in rehearsal by some of the best local talent in the city. The Kitchener Canadian Patriotic League is the same organization which has sent much warm clothing, etc., to the members of the first contingent, and the proceeds of this concert are for the benefit of the second contingent.

Cold baked beans dressed with the juice of a lemon and minced celery, served on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing, garnished with olives and sliced cold tomatoes.

Queen Mother Alexandra makes frequent visits to the London hospitals where the men wounded in battle are being cared for. She has a gracious smile and a kind word for many a poor Tommy who never in his wildest dreams expected to be called upon by a Queen.

Chimney Fires.

The fire department was given several runs to chimney fires this morning in East City. One was on 132 Sophia St. at 8.52, another at Mark St. at 9.12. A call yesterday afternoon was to 163 Antrim Street. This one was caused by spontaneous combustion in a cellar. No damage was caused by any of the fires.

Prices Advance.

Owing to the increased cost and the scarcity of supply of raw material, the Eddy Company have had to slightly advance the price of matches and some other lines.

The Eddy Company believe the public will appreciate this when they realise it is done so that the high standard of quality for which the Eddy goods are famed, may be maintained.

Pupils Give Recital At the Conservatory

The recitals at the Conservatory of Music, which are held every Saturday afternoon are proving a source of enjoyment for the parents and friends of the pupils. The piano pupils of Miss Gwendolyn Smith gave the recital last Saturday and they were assisted by Kenneth Laing, one of Mis Palmer's pupils.

This coming Saturday afternoon the pupils of Miss Palmer and Miss Logan will contribute the program. The following program was given last Saturday:

Piano solo—"Au Clair de Lune," "Over the Mountains"—Hilda Pemberton.

Piano solo — "Christmas Dance" (C. Krogmann)—Margery Lawrence.

Violin solo—"Columbine" — Gerald Patterson.

Violin solo—"The Little Drummer" — Kenneth Laing, (pupil of Miss Edwina Palmer.)

Piano solo—"Mary Pet Walse"—Dohma Roberts.

Piano solo—"Pittypat and Tippytoe" (H. S. Cramm)—Doris Pemberton.

Piano solo—"La Grace" (Bohn) —Harold Snelgrove.

Piano solo — "Apple Blossoms" (Leona Lacoste)—Donald Carmichael.

The recital next Saturday will be given by the pupils of Miss Palmer and Miss Logan.

COUNTY COUNCIL IS URGED TO TAKE ACTION

patriotic fervour in their remarks.

To Mr. Burnham's mind, the reason for Peterborough's fund not being very large is because the people do not realize the gravity of war. In other places the people have done much better. Victoria County Council have responded nobly, and the town of Lindsay has done five times as much as Peterborough, while Norwood has done thirty times as much, when one considers the difference in population.

Most of the recruits are Old Country men, and it would not be right to have it said that Peterborough County and city imported their defenders. If the citizens could but realize what this war is; if they could realize that Belgium, which on the first of August contained seven million people and all were happy, is now Belgium in ruins and over three million of her people are starving—if the citizens of Peterborough could realize this—then they would be prompted to do more than they have.

In conclusion, the Federal member urged the County Council to dwell on the cause, and the fact that this war has been thrust upon us, and then do their duty with true patriotism.

Mr. Gillespie followed with a few words, remarking how all should do their duty during the present crisis, so as to share in the victory in the end. He could not explain why the city of Peterborough has not responded as well as other municipalities, and, although he regretted it, he had to confess that the spirit of self-sacrifice is not present. As to the small number of recruits leaving the city, he thought that the cause might be placed on the strictness of the medical examination. In closing Mr. Gillespie stated that he was fully confident that the County of Peterborough would do its share, and he himself was willing to assist in any way possible.

Warden Shaw made a short reply to the two speakers, remarking how the matter was under consideration at the present time, and something will surely be done. At present the Council is endeavouring to ascertain the best possible manner in which to act.

OTONABEE PEOPLE ORGANIZE TO CARRY ON PATRIOTIC WORK

At a largely attended meeting at the village of Keene on Friday evening organization was made for active work in raising funds for patriotic purposes and for the relief of distress in Belgium.

The Reeve, W. A. Anderson, occupied the chair, and after addresses from Rev. Mr. Edmison, Rev. Mr. Goodwill, both of Keene, Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, Mrs. Travers, Miss Peck, Dr. Cameron and Mr. F. D. Kerr, from Peterborough, and Mr. Samuel Armstrong and Major Thomas Johnston, of Otonabee Township, it was decided to form an organization for the Township of Otonabee when the following officers were elected:—

Chairman — John Lang, ex-M.P., Keene.

Vice-Chairman—W. J. Porter, R. R. No. 7, Peterborough.

Treasurer—J. J. Moore, Keene.

Secretary—W. A. Anderson, R.R. No. 8, Peterborough.

Committee — T. E. Greystock, Zion; G. Howson, Mather's Corners; F. E. Eason, Keene; Geo. Robertson, Villiers; John Grady, Indian River; S. Armstrong, Lang; Major Thomas Johnston, Salem; Thos. Sargent, Salem; Melville Stewart, Stewart's Hall; and T. E. Deyell, Coldspring.

It is expected that in all local centres the ladies of the township will also organize local branches, and that in this way the Township of Otonabee will give a splendid account of itself. A meeting is called for this purpose at Stewart's Hall, Otonabee, for Friday evening, November 6th, at half past seven.

Already arrangements have been made for the delivery of potatoes at Keene Station for the purpose of Belgium relief, delivery to be made on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 10th and 11th, and it is expected that all who can do so will make special efforts in this direction. Residents near Peterborough can deliver to G.T.R. station, Peterborough, on Monday and Tuesday, November 9th and 10th, and arrangements for delivery at Indian River at a date to be announced on being made.

GREAT BRITAIN AND TURKEY IN A STATE OF WAR

SAYS GEN. VON KLUK IS DEAD

Correspondent Affirms He Died at Namur

ALLIES ADVANCE

PARIS, Nov. 5. — The correspondent at Havre of the Excelsior affirms that Gen. Von Kluk died ten days ago in a hospital at Namur, where he was being treated for a wound.

THE GERMAN RETREAT.

LONDON, Nov. 5—The Daily Mail correspondent at Rotterdam says he has received official confirmation of the advance of the Allies on all of the West Flanders front. German military bakeries have been removed in a southerly direction from Ostend, showing the intended retreat of the main German force.

REBELLION CRUSHED.

LONDON, Nov. 5. — A Reuter's despatch from Capetown says that the rebellion of Marits and Beyers appears to be completely crushed. The rebels are still collected at certain points in the northern part of the Free State, but are ill-equipped and without organization, and are observed by adequate loyal commandos.

ANOTHER BIG LIST OF QUESTIONS TO-NIGHT AS CAMPAIGN CLOSES

Dr. Gordon Gave a Stirring Patriotic Address to Large Gathering of Men.

Dr. Gordon closes his Peterboro Citizenship Campaign this evening in George Street Methodist Church. The exercises will begin promptly at 7.45 o'clock, and the special program for the evening will be the conducting of a question drawer. Many questions will be answered. Dr. Gordon has been in receipt of hundreds of epistles asking him various questions. This evening he will deal with the following:

1. What do you think of Christian Science?
2. Should we talk about labour questions in the pulpit?
3. Is it right for young women to drink wine in their own homes?
4. If Christ ascended in the body, is He now in the body?
5. Is a man morally weaker than a woman?
6. Should preachers receive such large salaries as they do?
7. Why does God permit people to be tempted?
8. Is it right to rent pews in the church?
9. Do you believe that the size of a man's head has anything to do with the strength of his mind?
10. Do you place any fear in astrologers or fortune-tellers?
11. Do you slander a person when you simply tell the truth about them?
12. What does Christ mean when He says, "I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven"?
13. Should a Protestant marry a Catholic?
14. Why is it that we cannot heal the sick as the Apostles did?
15. Is the world growing better or worse?
16. Should a Mason stand by a Mason when he is in the wrong?
17. Does a minister always tell the whole truth when he is preaching?
18. Were you the pastor of a church, and the board of management attempted to intimidate you in the matter of your public utterances, what would you do?
19. In a political campaign, should a preacher deliver a political sermon in his pulpit?
20. Is a soldier of a standing army a greater asset in time of war than the volunteer?
21. Why is it that so many professed religious people lack a sense of humor?
22. Is it right for cousins to marry?
23. How is a young lady who is a stranger in the city to become acquainted with the people in the average church?
24. What do you think of the use of slang words, such as "blooming," in ordinary conversation?
25. Can a man really make a million dollars honestly?

PETERBORO VOLUNTEERS IN CAMP AT KINGSTON

CONGRATULATED ON FINE SHOWING

Captain Hounsell, who was in charge of the Peterborough volunteers on their trip to Kingston, has returned to the city, and says the soldiers are comfortably housed in a large mill at Kingston, and have all the comforts which it is possible to give them. Their tier beds, straw mattresses and plenty of blankets give splendid sleeping accommodation. Baths will be provided in the near future.

A number of the local volunteers had been examined at the hospital before Captain Hounsell left Kingston, and so far as he knew none had been turned down.

The Peterborough volunteers are in E Company, which is commanded by Capt. Grey, Lieut. Sheppard and Lieut. Cunningham. Capt. Kennedy of Lindsay, who took the 45th volunteers to camp, is in charge of F Company. He is a brother of H. P. Kennedy, formerly of this city.

Lt.-Col. Wm. Hughes has command of the battalion which is assembling in Kingston, and Major Bennett is second in command. The Ottawa men followed the 57th and 45th into camp on Tuesday evening, and all the men were addressed in the Armouries by Col. Hughes, who expressed his pleasure at the splendid appearance of the soldiers, and urged them to conduct themselves in a manner becoming the true soldier. The men were informed that liquor and drunkenness would not be tolerated. Col. Hughes also congratulated Capt. Hounsell on the fine appearance of the volunteers from Peterborough.

He also said that he would see to it that gifts of fruit, wearing apparel and other articles for the men, as might be sent by the ladies, were distributed as intended.

RELIEF FOR BELGIANS.

Subscriptions for the relief of the Belgians are not coming in very fast. Lists have been placed in all the banks and with the Peter Hamilton Company, where the citizens may leave their donations.

It is a very worthy cause, and should receive the hearty support of the citizens.

FIRE DAMAGED SHOE FACTORY AND STOCK

Entire Quebec Fire Department Fought the Flames

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Quebec, Nov. 5.—Fire broke out shortly after ten this morning in Gales Shoe factory on Vatier Street. The entire department fought the fire and confined it to the building which with the stock was damaged to the extent of thirty thousand dollars.

Four hundred employes escaped and only one sustained injuries. The loss is covered by insurance.

ORDER IS MADE FOR TRIAL HERE

Before Mr. Justice Cameron at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, yesterday, E. C. Cattanach acting for the plaintiff in the case of Bank of Ottawa vs. W. G. Fergnson, F. Brownscombe and G. Hay of this city and H. Bell of Winnipeg to recover $6000 for payment on a bond of the Rapid Tool Co., now in liquidation, moved to postpone the trial till the sittings in Peterboro.

The order was made.

The date for the trial in this city is not as yet known but will very likely take place next spring.

SUGGESTS PURCHASE OF PROPERTY

At the last council meeting Ald. Dobbin brought up the proposition of purchasing the block bounded by Brock, Aylmer, Murray and Bethune Streets, and extend the work of channeling the creek which has been done further west and thus reclaim the land. Building lots could be sold on the Aylmer Street and Murray Street sides and the other section now occupied by Fitzgerald's coal and wood concern, could be utilized by the Utilities Commission for the place to build their store house, etc. The siding from the G.T.R. could then be brought in from the north.

The matter was referred to the Utilities Commission for consideration.

DROWNED IN THE TRENT.

George Thompson, a bachelor, 46 years of age, met death by drowning in the Trent River. It is thought the man slipped off a pier.

CARS LEFT THE RAILS.

One passenger coach and three box cars of the Haliburton train left the rails, but none of the passengers was injured. One lady passenger, with a baby, fainted through fright.

GERMANS FORCED TO FALL BACK AFTER ALL DAY FIGHTING

German Attitude Condemned by Rev. Isaac Couch

Rev. Mr. Isaac Couch, formerly pastor at George Street Methodist Church speaking in McLeod Street Church, Ottawa, on the ethics of war, condemned Germany's attitude towards international agreements.

"It is never right for a country to break international goodwill, or to hesitate in keeping her promises," he said. "Germany has broken treaty after treaty, and her whole attitude shows she had some selfish, ulterior purpose to serve."

Germany's purpose, according to Mr. Couch, was to obtain, in return for helping Austria, a seaport on the Mediterranean Sea. He believed the philosophic mind could easily trace the war to the teachings of Nietsche and Treitschke, in which the necessity for power and efficiency were emphasized. Germany's efficiency was in earthly things; what she needed was a higher efficiency. Germany was in need of baptism from on high, the inbreathing of divine life into the dry bones of German "culture."

"Sir Edward Grey has done all that human mortal could do to maintain peace," said Rev. Mr. Couch. "England accepts the situation as a duty, and will see it through to a successful finish. Brave Canada will play the game and do her part to see that the Union Jack shall never fall to the ground."

Mr. Couch said war appealed to the worst elements in humanity. The only justification war had was found in the duty of a nation to defend its people from foes.

Attacks Between Dixmude and the Lys Are Less Energetic and Infantry is Particularly Inactive—Allied Lines Hold.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 5. — The official afternoon bulletin says that German activity on the centre, particularly in artillery fire, was revived yesterday, but the enemy was everywhere repulsed after fighting which lasted in some cases all day long.

On the left, the Allies' lines have at no point given ground, and in several directions have made notable progress.

German attacks between Dixmude and the Lys, although renewed yesterday, were less energetic, their infantry being particularly inactive.

On the right there is nothing new.

LONDON, Nov. 5. — A Reuter despatch from Amsterdam says a message reaching there from Berlin declares the Saxon minister of war, General Von Carlowitz, who was stricken with heart disease in the French arena of the war, has been obliged to proceed to Nauheim, where he will be cared for.

STATE OF WAR BETWEEN BRITAIN AND TURKEY.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—11.35 a.m. — It was officially announced in London today that a state of war exists between Great Britain and Turkey.

SANTIAGO, CHILE, Nov. 5. — No further news has been received concerning Sunday's naval battle. So far as is known here, no British ship has entered any Chilean port nor has any wreckage come ashore.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Great Britain today formally annexed the Island of Cyprus, which, though nominally under the suzerainty of Turkey, has been occupied and administered by Britain since 1878.

ROYALTY AT CAMP TO SEE THE CANUCKS

King and Queen, Kitchener and Roberts Inspect Canadians

BUSTARD CAMP, Salisbury Plain, Nov. 5.—Accompanied by a number of staff officers and attendants, King George and Queen Mary yesterday inspected the Canadian expeditionary force at Bustard Camp, and delighted the Canadians with their expressions of admiration and the informal manner in which they conversed with various members of the contingent. Accompanying their Majesties was Field Marshal Lord Kitchener, who frequently remarked that the showing of the Canadians was "Splendid! Magnificent!"

Others who motored with the royal party from London were Field Marshal Lord Roberts, Hon. G. H. Perley, Acting High Commissioner for Canada, and several members of the War Office staff. The visitors first stopped at divisional headquarters at Bustard Camp, where their Majesties shook hands with all the staff officials.

Following his inspection of the Ontario section of the contingent, King George told Col. Mercer, of Toronto, that the men under his command were "as fine as any in the British army." Both King George and the Queen chatted for a long time with several members of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto. Their Majesties commented upon the splendid physique of the "Kilties," and King George expressed his pleasure at the sight of the sporrans worn by the men.

CHRISTMAS SEALS MAY BE PLACED ON LETTERS

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—The Post-Office Department has again consented to the use of Christmas seals in aid of charitable institutions, but only as stickers on the backs of letters. They must not resemble postage stamps or bear numerals or indications of [illegible]

STOCK YARDS ARE CLOSED

Epidemic of Foot and Mouth Disease in Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The Chicago Union Stock Yards, the largest cattle market in the world, which has been in continuous business since 1865, last night was ordered closed for several days because of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease among cattle.

The stock yards probably will remain closed ten days. The closing order will go into effect at the close of business Friday, Nov. 6, and continue until the opening of business on the second Monday thereafter, or Nov. 16. In ten days, it is planned the stock yards will be thoroughly rid of contagion.

The immediate effect of the suspension order will be to stop the shipment of cattle, sheep and hogs to the Chicago market, which amounts to almost 100,000 head daily. This alone, outside of the meat-packing industry, amounts to a daily business of $1,000,000 and affects 35,000 employes.

DIVORCES GRANTED.

Fredericton, Nov. 5. — No fewer than seven divorces were granted by Judge McKeown at the session of the Divorce Court. Three were St. John cases, while the others were from different parts of the Province. All were granted on statutory grounds.

CONSCRIPTION IN BELGIUM

Government Warns Those Who Have Not Joined Colors

LONDON, Nov. 5. — The Belgian Government has issued the following official proclamation: "Among many Belgian families there are still men capable of bearing arms. A large number have voluntarily come forward to join the army, but it is necessary that all do so without delay.

"We solemnly call upon all Belgians physically fit between the ages of 18 and 30 to enlist for the duration of the war. Every facility will be given these men by the Belgian consuls to enable them to join the centres of enlistment in England and France.

"Belgians between the ages of 18 and 30 who do not respond by Nov. 15 may be requisitioned for military service in accordance with the law."

No Winter Sailings For the Olympic

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Belfast, Nov. 5.—The winter sailings of the White Star line steamer Olympic have been cancelled and today members of her crew were paid off.

SIX DIE IN FIRE AT LODGING HOUSE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

New York, Nov. 5.—Of fifty men sleeping in a four-storey lodging house, number 252 Eighth Avenue, last night, six were burned to death in a fire which gutted the building.

Firemen made several thrilling rescues.

ARE CONTRACTS BEING FILLED IN CANADA?

TIME OF STRESS and strain as the present is, the manner in which Canada has risen to meet her obligations has been an inspiration to the Empire, and an example of a worthy integrity to principle. Taking our share of Empire defence has necessitated many exacting sacrifices, and, to enable the Canadian people to meet their responsibilities in the best fashion, nothing should be done to make their burden harder than it is. Conditions of trade, commerce and labour are bad enough, to improve which the public press of Canada has been crying out that we must take advantage of our opportunities, buy goods made in Canada or made in the Empire, in preference to foreign-made goods, that we must produce more, and that public works should not be postponed.

This propaganda is well intentioned and has already borne good fruit, but there are some ugly rumors to the contrary. Public bodies, like the Hydro-Electric Commission, Government Works Departments, Municipal Councils, that have the giving of large orders for supplies, would be well advised to see that these orders are filled in Canadian factories and by Canadian workmen, working in Canada. It is well known that many Canadian factories are but branch concerns of parent American corporations, and, while public bodies may award their contracts to pseudo-Canadian manufacturers, the actual filling of the contracts may be done outside of Canada for reasons of profit. Here is Peterborough, along with every Canadian city, struggling manfully to keep body and soul together in face of evil days on which they have fallen. Here are our factories closing down or barely running, in sore need of every order and contract that is available, their workmen looking for any kind of work, and, if any contracts for goods are being filled in American factories, drastic measures should be taken. We repeat, that public bodies, like the Hydro-Electric Commission, to which the people of Ontario are justly grateful for services already rendered, would be well advised to inquire into the manner in which the contracts they let are being filled.

WILL MAINTAIN PRESTIGE OF BRITISH ARMS.

THE ARRIVAL of the first Canadian contingent in England has given renewed confidence to Britain and aroused English pride in the fine body of men Canada has sent to the war. Referring to the Canadian troops, the Westminster Gazette says:

> "The first Canadian contingent has arrived at Plymouth—horse, foot, and artillery complete—and is now being disembarked and sent to its allotted training centres. The great fleet of transports brought the contingent without mishap—yet another illustration of the importance of effective sea-power—and it goes without saying that this country has the heartiest of welcomes for our gallant fellow-subjects who are here to demonstrate the solidity and loyalty of our far-flung Empire. Bit by bit we are working up our military strength, and when, in due course, the Canadians take their place in the fighting line, we are confident that they will maintain the prestige of British arms. We can pay them no higher compliment."

GOD SAVE THE KING, IN THE ARMOURIES.

AT THE PATRIOTIC MEETING in the Armouries some trouble arose after the singing of the National Anthem. It appears that one member of the audience did not remove his hat when the hymn was being sung, and another man proceeded to handle him roughly for this neglect. Englishmen as a rule are too hasty in this regard, because they have on many occasions failed to appreciate the difference between Canada and Britain. In Britain the custom is to give all respect to the King and the National Anthem. Hats are removed when it is sung, the audience stands quietly during the singing, and no movement is made until it is finished. That is as it should be, but in Canada it has been regarded, unfortunately, as a mere formality, and, while an audience was always supposed to stand at the singing of "God Save the King," it frequently busied itself with making its exit. Carelessness arose as to keeping hats on when the hymn was sung. While no disrespect is meant, we think this carelessness should be corrected. More than once we have felt disgust in a theatre to see the audience start climbing into coats and wraps almost before the last words of the players were finished, and giving little heed to the playing of the National Hymn. Canadians are as loyal to the King as any in the Empire, but sometimes they have been a little thoughtless. Englishmen should remember this, and, above all, they should not try to correct the carelessness offensively. It is a delicate matter, and, if handled roughly, will only antagonize a good many people. It is our opinion that the proper way to improve the situation is to print on all programmes for theatres, concerts, meetings, in the advertisements of these, and in the posters, instructions that the audience should stand quietly until the National Anthem is completed, or that hats should kindly be removed during the singing. This would serve as a reminder, and, in a very short time, there would be no indiscretion and no unpleasantness, such as occurred in the Armouries at the patriotic meeting.

AN ARGUMENT FOR GENERAL SAM HUGHES.

THE WESTMINSTER GAZETTE says that at Bedford Assizes recently Private John Fraser, nineteen, of the 4th Cameron Highlanders, was sentenced to fifteen months' hard labour for the manslaughter of Private Arthur Charker. The two men were billeted together at Bedford, and had been drinking. Fraser drew his bayonet from the scabbard, and Charker received a stab which terminated fatally. In a dying statement Charker said he had no quarrel with Fraser, and only remembered being stabbed.

This item is, at least one strong argument in favour of General the Hon. Sam Hughes' contention for a dry military camp. Military camps and barracks are never the most fruitful soil for morals, and booze does not usually facilitate their growth in camps. While liquors have important uses in war, it conduces to a better soldiery to keep the men sober and thereby prevent any shocking episodes caused by men having weapons on their persons when in an irresponsible condition.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE LATEST STYLE in ultimatums, which have become somewhat common lately, is a turkey design with steel ornaments, trimmed in the English fashion, and covered with an overlay of British and French shells. The resulting effect, while satisfying the most cultured taste, is, however, somewhat confusing.

A NEWS ITEM says twenty-one millionaires are indicted in the United States district court for violating the Sherman anti-trust law. In view of this fact, we may say that we can see no hard times ahead for New York lawyers, the war, real estate, and Calgary oil boom notwithstanding.

HENRI BOURASSA, who was invited by the Political Science Club of Queen's University to deliver an address, has been informed that the invitation has been withdrawn. It is well. But a pertinent question is: Why was he ever invited in the first place?

WHAT with the close association of colonels and shells, the war promises to be just nuts for the ribald paragrapher.—Toronto Mail and Empire. This paragraph is too nutty for further comment.

AMERICAN newspapermen will no doubt relish the compliments paid them by the German newspapers, especially such bouquets as "vile crew," "contemptible curs," "brood of vipers," and so on.

THE ALLIES have served an ultimatum on Turkey, says a despatch. These ultimatums are all the rage in Europe now.

On the Upward Turn.
(Christian Science Monitor.)

A comprehensive resume of the situation throughout the Dominion has been presented through our Ottawa correspondence to the readers of the Christian Science Monitor. From this it is seen that while the blow to business in all the provinces was severe, in some instances staggering, and while its effects are still felt by many branches of trade and in many localities, everything is now on the upward turn. There is, first and foremost a marked improvement in public confidence, and a close analysis of the cause of this improvement shows that it is not based on emergency orders from abroad, which are rather discounted, but on a clearer realization of national resources. It is seen in Canada as in the United States, to put it in another way, that notwithstanding the deplorable conditions in Europe, and, as a matter of fact, partly because of them, there should be plenty to do at home.

Canada is meeting her responsibilities and her obligations with courage, whether these call for men, money, manufactures or raw products, and the promptness with which she responds to every call indicates also a national alertness that will not permit her to overlook legitimate opportunities.

Lost His Remainder.
(Exchange.)

A newly made millionaire bought a certain Chicago daily paper. His first order was to put on the bulletin board a notice that under no circumstances should the word "balance" be used. "Use 'remainder' instead," he ordered. That afternoon a cleaner fell out of the tenth story window of the building; and the next morning the paper had the story: "John Jones, a window cleaner, lost his remainder, and was dashed to death by falling out of a tenth story window."

A Mystic Number.
(Westminster Gazette.)

In this time of crisis there are doubtless many worthy persons wrestling with that pretty tough theological conundrum, the Book of Revelations, and the mystic number 666. It is incontrovertible that Kaiser contains exactly six letters. So does Albert, so does George, not to speak of French, Joffre, or Canada. We may point out that the present number is the 666th issue of this journal. We leave it at that.

The Indian Troops in Winter.
(Manchester Guardian.)

How will the Indian troops stand the continental winter? The answer should not be in doubt. The martial races of India come mostly from regions which have a very cold winter, some from highlands where the prevailing temperature for four or five months of the year is much lower than the average winter temperature of France and Belgium.

Hard to Recognize.
(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

"Poverty is a blessing in disguise," quoted the Sage.

"Well," replied the Fool, "the disguise is certainly effective."

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS

Havelock, Nov. 5.—Mr. Jos. Knox of Peterboro was in town last week.

Mr. Chas. Williams of Trenton was the guest of Mr. J. W. MacMullen for a few days last week.

Mrs. J. W. Burns of Toronto who for the past two weeks has been visiting her sister Mrs. A. Rose, returned to Toronto on Monday.

Miss Ila Sawyer of Lakefield is the guest of Miss M. Curtis.

Mr. Charlie Kingan of Peterboro was in town on Sunday.

Mr. John Rose of Peterboro spent a couple of days of last week the guest of his nephew Mr. Alex. Rose.

Miss Fay McCleary of Trent River spent a couple of days in town the guest of Miss B. Bryans.

Mrs. H. F. McNichol held her first reception since her marriage on Thursday afternoon of last week, at her home on Mathison Street. The bride received her guests looking lovely in a mauve duchess satin with an overdress of brocaded tulle. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. A. Rose, wearing a black brocaded satin, and her aunts Mrs. Robt. Kennedy and Mrs. J. W. Burns, both of Toronto. The decorations were carried out in yellow and white, 'mums, roses, and carnations and a smart touch was added by the use of autumn leaves and small Union Jacks. Mrs. H. C. Kindred in blue brocaded satin dispensed refreshments, and the assistants were the bride's sister, Miss Olive Rose, in red satin with an overdress of yellow tulle, and Mrs. A. Gabriel of Toronto in grey silk. Little Miss Madeline Kindred also assisted.

Mr. Harold Darling of Warsaw was in town on Saturday.

Mrs. John Hunter of Lakefield visited her daughter, Mrs. Robt. Flynn last week.

Mrs. G. Browning and baby of Lakefield are the guests of Mrs. C. W. Holdsworth.

Mr. Bruce Craig of London, formerly of town, was renewing old acquaintances last week.

Mr. Chas. Rose has been engaged as junior clerk on the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto.

Messrs. Don Barnett, Reg. Barlow and Percy Innis of Toronto; Misses Ila Sawyer, M. Alford, and Mr. H. Blewett of Lakefield; Miss McNealy and Messrs. Puffer, Niebel, Richardson and Waters of Norwood; Mr. H. Nancarrow of Campbellford; Messrs. Allan, Edsol, Beatty and Quinn of Tweed; Misses Leahy, Gorman, and McDonald, and Messrs. D. and J. McDonald, Gordon, Kinghan, Carlyle, Tees, English, and V. Elliott of Peterboro, were the out of town guests that attended the Hallowe'en dance on Thursday night last.

The Hallowe'en dance in the town hall on Thursday night of last week proved a decided success in every way. The hall was appropriately decorated with Hallowe'en emblems such as lighted pumpkins, black cats, witches, corn stalks, and the committee, Misses A. Bennington, B. Bryans, O. Rose, M. Curtis, K. McNichol, L. Bohan, and L. McNichol, made charming and bewitching witches garbed in costumes of white dresses with gray caps, trimmed with bright red and the usual witche's hat. The hall was kept dim until dancing commenced making things exceedingly weird. Mr. Asa Huycke of Peterboro provided excellent music and was liberal with encores for which we thank him.

Friday of last week was Past Masters' night among the local Masons and was duly celebrated by the members and their ladies. A good musical program was given after which a dainty lunch was served by the ladies. All report an enjoyable time.

SERPENTINE STONE

Canada Has Large Quantities of it in Her Asbestos Mines

The gift of Sir Thomas Lipton of a model in serpentine stone of his new racing yacht has revived interest in the beautiful stone, which some years ago was much in vogue.

Serpentine is often found in conjunction with asbestos. Canada produces about nine-tenths of the world's production of asbestos, which is largely used for insulating purposes and also for weaving into fire-proof cloth.

In the Province of Quebec are to be found the largest asbestos mines in Canada. The production is large, and it is interesting to note that whereas in 1909 the exports of crude asbestos were valued at $1,758,057, in 1913 the figures had increased to $2,486,769.

And in the same province are also to be found some of the world's most beautiful deposits of serpentine.

It was in 1846 that Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort, when on a visit to Cornwall, Eng., were shown specimens of serpentine, which they admired so much that several large pedestals made of this stone were ordered for Osborne House.

The patronage thus secured brought serpentine into considerable fashion, and among others who at that time favored it were the Marquis of Westminster, who ordered a pair of Luxor obelisks 14 feet in height; the Hon. Pemberton Lee, who bought the first and finest chimney-piece ever made in this material; and the then Duke of Devonshire, who had several large pedestals and pilasters, unequalled for beauty and color, made for his sculpture gallery at Chatsworth.

During the rather short-lived boom in serpentine which followed, a manufactory on a large scale of a great variety of household and domestic ornaments, etc., was started at Penzance, which afterwards passed into the hands of a London company. Serpentine was exhibited at the exhibitions of 1851 and 1862, and was awarded medals on both occasions.

Serpentine, it may be mentioned, gets its name from the variety of the colors which it presents. These colors are of the most beautiful and variegated description imaginable, black and green, perhaps, predominating, with a frequent mixture of diallage; but the choicest sorts are generally considered to be those which show the greatest number of tints, and chromatic combinations are as various and many as the figures in a kaleidoscope.

Some when cut and polished shine with a metallic green lustre on a reddish base. Then there is a rich jet black, a purple, a brown, a red, crimson, and bronze, and a cream-colored, striped, dappled, or variously intermixed and blended with one or other tints. It well deserves the name of Rainbow Stone.

Several of the finest bank and other buildings in Canada are beautified by columns, pillars, panels, or facings of this beautiful and vari-colored stone, which takes a perfectly exquisite polish.

The Why of the Tip.

The reason why the tipping system will never be abolished is that the attitude of the average patron of the restaurant toward the high mighty waiter is that of Alice, who wept with delight when Ben Bolt gave her a smile and trembled with fear at his frown.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Marvellous Winnipeg.

There is probably no better example of continued civic prosperity in the world to-day than the city of Winnipeg. Not merely the assuring prospect of prosperity maintained, but prosperity that has doubled and quadrupled every record of advancement in the civic life during the past few years.

With approximately 200,000 people, Winnipeg builds more in a year and transacts annually business to an extent greater than most cities of twice the population. No city of 200,000 can beat the building and banking figures.

The remarkable increase in assessment values in Winnipeg is striking evidence of the rapid development of the city. Winnipeg's total realty has an estimated value this year of $269,419,530. Ten years ago the total assessment was $28,615,810.

The true index of the material progress and wealth of a city is the list of new buildings. Over $6,000,000 is the record for the first five months in 1914—last year the figures were $18,357,150—in 1912 over $20,500,000 went into new buildings and so on, the past five years' total exceeding $80,000,000. This does not take into account some $30,000,000 spent in new buildings in the immediate suburbs.

Winnipeg has five railroad systems and 16 main lines, 13,480 miles of railroad radiating from her midst. Already the world's greatest handler of grain and with an annual trade turn-over amounting to over $150,000,000, and only at the beginning of things.

Lake Superior Iron Ore.

Lake Superior iron ore generally averages between 50 per cent. and 55 per cent. in iron, and large quantities have run over 60 per cent. in iron with phosphorus below the Bessemer limit; however, the average grade is perceptibly lowering each year. The high grade ores are being depleted, but there are thousands of millions of tons of medium and low grade iron ores at Lake Superior, which must eventually come into use; indeed, a start on them is already being made, not only with the siliceous ores for mixing with the high grade varieties, but with ordinary 40 per cent. to 50 per cent. ore, some of which is being concentrated or experimented upon.

THE MINSTREL

A Medieval Story of the Rhine

By F. A. MITCHEL

Not far from Ehrenbreitstein, on the Rhine and on the same side of the river, is a castle, or, rather, the ruin of a castle, which looms up against the sky when seen from the stream below by the thousands of tourists who pass in the Rhine boat. Light clouds sail above it, winds circle about it, as when it was a fortress and the banner of its possessor floated above its highest tower. On looking up at it from the steamer's deck one may fancy its drawbridge let down to the distant rattle of chains, its portcullis raised and the baron himself at the head of a body of his retainers emerge and ride proudly down the declivity.

At any rate, such were my flights of fancy as I watched it while passing up the river and saw it appear faint as mist ahead, reveal itself as we steamed by, then recede and finally disappear in the distance behind.

I asked a gentleman who was gazing upon it as intently as I if he could tell me anything about it when it was in its prime. He proved to be a student of the history of the castles of the Rhine and gave me an incident pertaining to this particular one that I afterward wrote out as follows:

During the seventeenth century a family known by the name of Wrentheim occupied the castle, the last possessor of that name being Baron Caspar Wrentheim. This nobleman had no sons, his only child being a daughter, Bertha. Since this girl would inherit all her father's possessions at his death, besides being a very attractive woman, there were many suitors for her hand. Among them was Count Carl Kellerman, the possessor of an estate lying a few leagues from the river and not far from Wrentheim castle. He was a commoner who had grown rich in trade and had purchased his title. Very ambitious, he made up his mind that he would marry Bertha, thereby becoming the possessor of a castle and a feudal lord.

One morning when Bertha was walking on the battlements of her father's castle she saw a cavalcade approaching. Seeing that it would enter the inclosure, she went to a room overlooking the courtyard. There she saw Count Carl Kellerman dismount from his horse and enter the living apartments of the castle.

Kellerman was fifty years old and extremely ill favored. He was bent in the back and bald, and his face indicated a grasping disposition. Bertha took a great dislike to him even at seeing him. He had not been in the castle long before her father came to her and informed her that the count had come to propose for her hand. The baron had replied that he would refer the matter to his daughter. Bertha sent back a refusal. The count left the castle showing his spleen at being refused, and the baron knew that he would find some pretext for a quarrel. This he dreaded, for, though the count was not a fugerain—that is, a feudal lord—he was rich and could hire men to fight for him.

Not long after Kellerman's refusal some of the baron's retainers while crossing territory owned by the latter were attacked by him and his hirelings, who were far more numerous, overpowered and taken prisoners. Kellerman sent Wrentheim word that his men had been trespassing on his property. He would release them if the baron would give him his daughter to wife; if not he would put out their eyes and send them back to him. He gave the baron a week to consider his proposition.

Both father and daughter were much beloved by their retainers because of their kindness and affection for all who were in any way dependent on their bounty. This offer placed them in a desperate position. Either Bertha must marry the hated Kellerman or the captives, some of whom were the fathers of families, while others were dear either as brothers or lovers, would be blinded for the rest of their lives.

Bertha secretly resolved that she would save the prisoners, but before a marriage with the detestable man who had made such an inhuman proposition would take her own life.

One evening when the baron and his daughter were sitting together bemoaning the misfortune that had befallen them a servant announced that a minstrel was without who would, if permitted, afford entertainment. The baron was about to direct that the man be sent away when Bertha interposed, saying that the music might serve to draw their minds from their trouble. The baron assented, and the minstrel was admitted.

Wilhelm—the only name the young man gave himself—was tall and straight as an arrow. He unslung his harp as easily as if it had been a crossbow and was about to begin a song when the baron said to him:

"I wonder that one should devote himself to the harp whose arm seems far more fitted to wield the battleax."

"If you prefer military service to song I will give it," replied the minstrel.

"Would that you could serve us in that way, but it is impossible."

"Why so?"

The baron gave an account of the application of Count Kellerman for Bertha's hand and of the means he had taken to force the alliance. When he had finished the minstrel asked at what time the terms must be accepted or rejected and was informed that only three days remained for a decision.

"Since you require military service of me," said Wilhelm, "I will not waste time in song. Adieu. Perhaps I shall soon see you again." And the harpist took his departure.

He was not seen after that for some hours. Baron Wrentheim attached no importance to his coming and was not impressed by his going. Not so Bertha. She had listened with rapt attention to his music and when he had gone said to her father that something told her the young man would bring them deliverance. But the baron was despondent, and she failed to arouse hope in him.

The next day the minstrel returned and asked to see the baron. When the latter appeared Wilhelm said to him:

"I have been to the home of Count Kellerman, where I offered to sing for him. He listened to my song, in which I predicted that he would marry a beautiful woman and become a feudal lord. He was so pleased that he gave orders that I be well treated. I learned where the prisoners were kept and during the night made an inspection of the building. Give me a force of picked men, and tonight I will liberate them. They are guarded by a hundred hirelings, who, if surprised, may be put to flight by half their number of real men at arms."

The baron, inspired by hope, at once gave orders for the selection of the men required. He longed to head the expedition himself, but this would not be just to Wilhelm. Besides, the baron was too deeply interested to retain that coolness which was required. At nightfall fifty of the best men among the baron's retainers were gathered in the courtyard of the castle, and the minstrel, who now carried a sword instead of a harp, after telling them that they were to go to rescue their comrades and save the Countess Bertha from marriage with a villain, gave them their instructions. They were to go separately and by different routes to a wood near Count Kellerman's estate, where they would lie concealed till the minstrel appeared to lead them to the rescue. They would hear the castle clock strike the hour of midnight and must then be ready for what was to follow.

As soon as the men had received these instructions they began to leave the castle, some in groups of two or three, but most of them singly. It was an hour before the last man, the minstrel himself, left. Before going Bertha pressed his hand and bade him godspeed. Then he struck out by the shortest route to his destination, reaching the rendezvous just as the castle clock in the distance could be faintly heard striking the hour of midnight.

Kellerman's precautions against a rescue had been fairly well taken. He had put out a picket on the road by which a force might approach from the castle, but he had relied upon this and a guard of 200 men to protect the building containing the prisoners, dividing it into reliefs, so that half the guard would be always under arms. The rescuing party not having gone to the attack in a body and not in any case by the road, the count's guards were ignorant of the few but resolute men in the wood not half a league distant from them.

Wilhelm led his men crouching among the bushes toward their goal till but a few hundred yards remained to be traversed. Six men carried a log, with which they were to batter down the doors of the prison and release the prisoners. When a signal—two shots from an arquebus—was given the attacking party were to engage the guards while the six men used the battering ram.

Suddenly two shots rang out on the still air and were followed by terrific yells. The guards on duty sprang to arms, but had not time to form before a wedge shaped body of men split them in two parts, driving them from the building they were charged with protecting. Then commenced a series of loud thuds on the prison door. In a few minutes it yielded, and the prisoners poured forth, each man being handed arms as he appeared.

Meanwhile the hundred men of the guard who were sleeping were aroused. Those who were engaged were rallied, and an overwhelming force was ready to repel the enemy. Too late. A shrill whistle gave the signal for retreat, and Wilhelm, in command of a rear guard, engaged Kellerman's men, while the advance, in which were the released prisoners, made their way back in the direction of the castle. Shortly before dawn all passed over the drawbridge in no haste, for the count, having lost his prisoners, had withdrawn his men.

The courtyard was ablaze with torches; all the inmates were present to welcome their returned victorious comrades and the rescued prisoners. The old pile rang with acclamations. The baron, with Bertha, stepped forth to thank the minstrel, and, after doing so, the baron said:

"What can I bestow upon you for this great service?"

"Nothing, except what I came for. I am Wilhelm Ballenstein, the son and heir of Baron Ballenstein, whose castle stands near the confluence of the Rhine and the Moselle. Hearing of the Lady Bertha, I came in the guise of a minstrel to satisfy myself as to the truth of reports of her beauty and good qualities before asking to be honored with her hand. I am more than satisfied and beg to be entered on the list of her many suitors."

The victory was followed by a wedding, and in time the groom drove Count Kellerman out of the country.

WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th. 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

MRS. W. N. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

OUR SUN A VARIABLE STAR.

The More Spots It Has Upon It the More Heat We Get.

Accurate investigations carried on simultaneously in various parts of the world through a long series of years have demonstrated that the sun does not give out constantly the same amount of heat, but the variation is so great as to amount to 10 degrees on the earth's surface. In other words, our sun is a variable star. It has long been known that other stars vary in the amount of light they send forth, notably Mira in the constellation of Cetus, but it required the most refined investigation with the most elaborate checks to prove that this was the case with the sun. One of the instruments is so delicate that it can measure one-millionth part of a degree of heat.

It is found that the amount of heat is connected with the spots on the sun, and, curiously enough, more spots more heat. Thus we have one factor in the changes of terrestrial temperature, although it is only one. Our seasons are caused by the inclination of the earth's equator to the ecliptic, and the heat is greater in summer when the sun's rays fall most directly on the earth. But as the amount of heat varies and as the radiation, reflection, etc., also vary we have a very complex system of weather.

It is believed by the Smithsonian institution that eventually we shall be able, through knowledge on the subject, to make much more accurate weather predictions than at present and for a much longer time in advance.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ROLLING AN UMBRELLA.

This Expert Makes It a Rather Complicated Operation.

Few men can roll up an umbrella nicely. Here is the method I was taught. It is not very pretty, but it is effective. You begin by folding up a sheet of newspaper to form a little pad; otherwise you are apt to spoil your wall paper. Now for the rest.

Hold the umbrella horizontally. Hold the pad of paper against the wall, press the end of the umbrella against the paper and the handle of the umbrella against your own body. This leaves the hands free for the delicate task of rolling up the umbrella. Find the button. Bring the fold with the button on it to your left and let it hang down. Then pull out each fold and pass it over the first. Throw the let loosely around the umbrella without disturbing the creases of the folds. Grip the tops of the ribs with the right hand. Put your left hand around the other end and wind the umbrella through the left hand with a screwing motion.

Do not let go of the tops of the ribs of the umbrella. When you have to move the hand slide it around. If you let go you will find that the ribs get out of place, and then the folds of the umbrella will follow suit. When the umbrella is rolled up grip it tightly until you have fastened it. If you fail in that detail you will get an unsightly bulge in the center of the umbrella.—London Globe.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VI.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 8, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gal. vi, 1-10—Memory Verses, 1, 2—Golden Text, Gal. vi, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The Golden Text is awfully true, even for redeemed people, that "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." We have recently seen in our studies Judas Iscariot reaping something of the reward of iniquity. But we have also seen Jacob doing some bad sowing in the way of deceiving his father, and we have seen him suffering for over twenty years by reaping of the same kind through the deceit of his own sons.

The reaping is generally more than we sow, as it is written in Hos. viii, 7, "They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind." Again, in Hos. x, 13, "Ye have plowed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity; ye have eaten the fruit of lies, because thou didst trust in thy way." Again, in Prov. xxii, 8, we read, "He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity." But there is a sowing to the Spirit and a reaping to life everlasting (verse 8).

The two aspects are seen in Jer. xvii, 5, 7, "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man and maketh flesh his arm and whose heart departeth from the Lord." "Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord and whose hope the Lord is." From beginning to end of the Bible story it is God or the devil—God's way or man's way. The one is life; the other is death.

According to the epistle in which we find our lesson, the age is evil. The devil, who is the god of this age, has a gospel of his own and enough religion to satisfy most people. But all mere good works of men leave all under the curse, for the law requires absolute perfection in every detail and is intended to turn us from ourselves to Christ. Nothing that man can do avails anything. Men must become new creatures in Christ (chapters i, 4, 8, 9, 13, 14; iii, 10, 24; vi, 15). In the fullness of time God sent forth His Son to redeem them that were under the law, hopelessly trying to save themselves by doing the best they could, listening to the devil's gospel of good works and character and aiming to be like Christ without being born again (chapter iv, 4, 5).

Not until we see Christ crucified for us, made a curse for us, bearing our sins in His own body and, receiving Him, see ourselves as crucified with Him, are we new creatures (chapter ii, 20; iii, 13; John i, 12). Then we will gladly say, "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, whereby the world is crucified unto me and I unto the world" (vi, 14). Whatever form of sin may have been our specialty as listed in chapter v, 19-21, the sin that is greater than all others and greater than all put together, the sin that causes eternal loss is the rejection of Jesus Christ as the Son of God and the only Saviour of sinners (John iii, 18).

When we are made free from the curse and have become children of God by faith in Christ Jesus then it is our privilege to walk in the Spirit, be led of the Spirit, stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free and not do the things which the flesh that is still in us would have us do (chapter iii, 18, 26; v, 1, 16, 17, 18, 25). Those who are in the flesh live unto themselves; self is their center; they mind earthly things (Phil. iii, 19). The new creature in Christ lives no longer unto himself, but is able to say, "To me to live is Christ." "Not I, but Christ, who liveth in me" (II Cor. v, 15; Phil. i, 21; Gal. ii, 20).

When we see others overtaken in a fault, as all are apt to be at one time or another, it is not for us to condemn them, but meekly restore them, remembering that we might some day need similar kindness and restoration. Thus we would manifest the Spirit of Christ, who freely forgave and said: "Neither do I condemn thee. Go and sin no more" (lesson verses 1, 2). When Noah became drunken it was more Christlike to cover up his shame, as Shem and Japhet did, than to tell it, as Ham did. We have no right or reason to think anything of ourselves or to think that we know anything as we should (verse 3; I Cor. viii, 2). A proper attitude is that of Rom. vii, 18, "I know that in me (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing."

There is a sense in which we must bear our own burden (verse 5). "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. xiv, 12). If we have been redeemed from the curse of the law we are here to do good unto all as we have opportunity, having reference first to believers, the household of faith; never weary in well doing, knowing that the reaping time is sure and that our labor is never in vain in the Lord (verses 9, 10; I Cor. xv, 58). We may not see nor do the reaping, for we may sow for another to reap, or we may reap from another's sowing. But both sower and reaper shall rejoice together and gather fruit unto life eternal (John iv, 36-38). Whoever may plant or water, God alone can give the increase, but what an honor to be laborers together with God (I Cor. iii, 5-9). Another verse comes to mind on sowing and reaping. See II Cor. ix, 6, and lay it to heart. "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly, and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully."

Another Woman's Case.

Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had a displacement, bearing down, and backache, until I could hardly stand and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—MRS. ABBIE LAWSON, 126 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.

Danger Signals to Women are what one physician called backache, headache, nervousness, and the blues. In many cases they are symptoms of some female derangement or an inflammatory, ulcerative condition, which may be overcome by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of American women willingly testify to its virtue.

NOTHING IS SUDDEN.

Events Seem So Only Because We Do Not Foresee Them.

The mind is often said to be illuminated by a sudden idea or the will to come to a sudden resolution. The suddenness is not only apparent to the onlooker; it is felt by the subject himself, when light seems to flash into his mind or his will to determine itself on an instant. He may talk of inspiration, meaning the unrelated act of some power outside himself. Just so we talk of the suddenness of lightning, the suddenness of an earthquake. We imagine earthquakes and lightning flashes as unrelated, independent happenings, and forget that every earthquake and every flash of lightning is the manifestation of an immutable and slowly working law and could, had men but knowledge enough, have been foretold from the ages.

Things are sudden only because we do not foresee them, and their suddenness is no inherent quality in themselves; it is lent them by our ignorance. The striking of a match may be as sudden as a flash of lightning and the fall of a pin as sudden as a pistol shot, but in normal conditions they do not make us "jump," because the conditions are the state of our nerves and the relative force of the impact upon our senses. A camel falls suddenly under the last straw, but it is the previous slow piling of all the other straws that is the cause of his broken back. Nothing is, in reality, more sudden than anything else; it is from ourselves, from our lack of comprehension and preparation, that the lightning, the earthquake and the pistol shot borrow their suddenness.—London Times.

HONORS WITH ALLIES

THEY HOLD HARD WON POSITIONS ALL ALONG THE BELGIAN FRONT

Battle of the Sand Dunes is Now at an End With Notable Advantage of Position For the Franco-Anglo-Belgian Troops, But They Are Too Weary to Follow the Enemy.

PARIS, Nov. 5. — Alternate gain and losses by each side marked the great struggle between the allies and the Germans along the extended battlefront in France and Belgium Wednesday, according to officers who have returned here from the fighting zone. The French and English troops, these officers say, made considerable progress in the neighborhood of Dixmude and Lys. On the other hand the Germans are reported to have gained a small amount of territory in the region of Vailly and Chavonne.

The heaviest fighting of the day was in this region, where the Germans, heartened by Tuesday's appreciable advance, endeavored to continue their success. The allies, aided by reinforcements, are said to have blocked to a large extent the furious attacks of the Germans, and a small detachment of Frenchmen, although they met with heavy resistance at a bridge on the Aisne, succeeded in pushing on and gaining ground commanding the enemy's position.

From this point the French opened a raking fire on the Germans, but they were not sufficient in number to withstand the furious German onslaught that followed, and were compelled to retire to avoid being cut to pieces. The few cannon taken by the Germans, it is said, were put out of commission before the retreat.

That the battle of the sand dunes, as the contest along the channel coast is being generally named, has come to a definite end is proved by all reports from the front. As the French communique says, the Germans hold but one unimportant point on the allied side of the river, and have given up all efforts to resume the offensive. Their losses have run into many thousands. When the invader fell back along the Dixmude-Nieuport front, the Belgian-British-French forces were too exhausted to pursue their advantage and deliver a counter-attack. Instead, they have been content to hold their hardly-won ground and give the men a chance to recuperate. Some regiments of the British force, particularly the Black Watch and the Coldstream Guards, have suffered severely.

But beyond Dixmude the pictures in the changing war film are more cheerful. Here French and British brigades have beaten off the new German drive at the French coast with considerably less trouble than was the case further east. Not only have they held their own, but an advance movement is progressing satisfactorily, and the Germans are losing advantageous positions in the vicinity of Roulers. This town has been taken and retaken several times by the contending armies and lies a mass of ruins. Important roads converge on its four sides.

The French are holding tenaciously to their own positions along the centre and in the east, and have scored heavily around the Argonne forest.

Two unsubstantiated but highly important reports were received last night, one saying that the British forces in Belgium have succeeded in penetrating the German lines between the armies of Gen. Von Boehm and Duke Albrect. The other declares that 3,500 French and British troops were cut off in the vicinity of Roye and taken prisoners by the foe. Advices say that the men fought valiantly until their ammunition was exhausted, and that they were completely surrounded by overwhelming forces. Neither report is given much credence until further information becomes available.

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Amsterdam says: "According to the correspondent of The Telegraaf at Sluis, the fighting on the Yser was very severe yesterday. It is reported that the allies forced the Germans back to the Village of Jabbeke, between Ostend, passed through Bruges without stopping.

"The Germans at Bruges are expecting an attack from the allies. All the drawbridges are raised at nightfall."

A despatch to The Amsterdam Telegraaf from Sluis says: "Heavy gun firing is heard in the triangle of Dixmude, Roulers and Ypres, indicating that a severe battle is raging in that neighborhood.

"It is believed that the Germans now will attempt to break through the allies' lines there and force their way, by way of Ypres, to Dunkirk, but that they will find it very difficult to cross the morasses in the vicinity of the Upper Yser, caused by inundations."

Epidemic In Antwerp.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A despatch to The Exchange Telegraph Co. from Rotterdam says:

Separation Pay Of the Soldiers

(Montreal Star.)

The Star has been asked when the Government would pay the soldiers' separation allowance and that portion of their pay the soldiers signed over to their dependents.

Officials of the Patriotic Fund state they have been informed that all the separation allowances have been paid. Every soldier in camp at Valcartier was given a card bearing the address of wife or mother to whom his separation allowance was to be paid, and indicating how much of his pay was to be deducted. Many men did not fill in these cards and if the soldier did not give the needed information, the Government could not act.

Persons desiring further information, or to ask specifically about any soldier, can write direct to J. W. Borden, A. and P.M.G., Department of Militia and Defence, Ottawa.

CANADIAN NURSES AT RECEPTION

London, Nov. 5. — The reception given by Mrs. Donald Armour at her Harley Street residence yesterday, the occasion being the annual meeting of the Army and Navy Male Nurses' Association, was patriotic in tone throughout. Lord Howe attended, representing Queen Alexandra, the patroness, and among the company present were Sir Dyce Duckworth, Lady Tree and Dr. Armour, some Belgian officers and recent inmates of the Canadian Hospital at Shorncliffe, and a number of Canadian nurses now in London. The claims of the society were urged by all the speakers. As most of the men employed as nurses were reservists and called to the front, the funds thereby suffered. Lady Tree, in an effective speech, declared that male nurses were quieter on tiptoe than women and more tender to their patients. She followed her speech by reciting Kipling's "For All We Have."

Dr. Armour, who since taking charge of the Shorncliffe Hospital has been commisisoned a lieutenant-colonel, referred to the presence of Canadian nurses, saying that since the arrival of the Canadian contingent the land of promise of yesterday had become the laud of sure fulfilment.

GERMAN CRUISER REPORTED SUNK

Movement of German War Craft From Kiel Canal Into North Sea and Baltic Indicate That Test of Supremacy of the Sea is Imminent---Admiralty Does Not Accept Story of Naval Fight Off Chile.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—It is reported that the German cruiser Yorcke has struck a mine in Jade Bay and sunk.

Jade Bay is on the northeast coast of Germany a few miles west of the estuary of the Weser.

The mine in question may be one which the Germans have strewn so lavishly along the coast or it may be that the Yorcke is the first victim of the British policy of retaliation.

The supreme test of power on the sea seems imminent. Four battleships and a quartette of cruisers, supported by torpedo boats and destroyers, are known to have issued from the Kiel Canal and are at this moment in the North Sea. Another very considerable fleet is reported to be off the Aland Islands, at the entrance of the Gulf of Finland, in the Baltic Sea. This flotilla appears to be awaiting orders. Copenhagen despatches say that it is believed the first move of the latter fleet will be directed against the Russian coast.

Fishermen returning to Dover say that they sighted several German warships at various points in the channel. These are believed to be part of the flotilla of which the four cruisers and the four battleships are the main units.

The encounter in which the submarine D-5 was sunk and the Halcyon slightly damaged is taken to be the initial attempt in a raid on the English coast. That it was defeated by the narrowest of margins is indicated by the fact that the German craft were but ten miles from Yarmouth, when the Halcyon barred their path. Out of hundreds of British fighting craft in the North Sea, she was the only vessel to face the emergency. A hurried call for help brought several torpedo boats, but the wireless of the Halcyon was shot away in a few minutes, and there was only the one cruiser and the little craft to drive off the Germans.

Another factor in the probable German decision to risk a battle on the high seas is the fact that British ships have been busy strewing the entrance to the Kiel Canal and all of the waters around Heligoland with mines. The work is not yet complete, but even now constitutes a serious menace to the movement of vessels. If the mine field had been completed it would have become practically impossible for boats to leave the canal.

There is another report to the effect that the Germans do not contemplate a general action, but will endeavor to send through the British patrol some of their fastest cruisers to join the Karlsruhe and other single commands in other waters.

The Admiralty has issued a statement in which it says it has received from German sources details of a naval engagement off the Chilean coast in which the British cruiser Monmouth was sunk and the cruiser Good Hope severely damaged. The statement says that the Admiralty has no confirmation of the report.

The statement was issued through the official press bureau in the name of the Secretary of the Admiralty, and says:

"Rumors and reports have been received at the Admiralty from various sources of a naval battle having occurred off the Chilean coast. The Admiralty has no confirmation of this, and such accounts as they have received rest admittedly on German evidence.

"The Admiralty cannot accept these facts as accurate at present, for the battleship Canopus specially was sent to strengthen Rear-Admiral Cradock's squadron, and would have given him a decided superiority. Further, although five German ships concentrated in Chilean waters, only three entered Valparaiso harbor. It is possible, therefore, that when the full account of the action is received it may considerably modify the German versions. Effective measures have been taken to deal with the situation in any event."

IN THE TRENCHES AT ANTWERP

Below is published the substance of a diary kept by a petty officer who served with the naval brigade at Antwerp. The diary is as follows:

October 7. — Just a short note of my doings. Had no sleep, except in short dozes, since I left. Came over by trooper at night. Jiggered around the docks all day. Travelled by train all night. Last night we marched for about two and a half hours to the trenches. My hat, it was cold! Shells making things pleasant on top. Pushed off again about 2.30 a.m., and marched back again in the dark for about three hours. Improved some trenches with sandbags, barbed wire, on the back of the town, and wrote this huddled up in a bomb-shelter. Shrapnel up aloft. Went to a house close by and got a blanket and coffee. Tinned beef, biscuits and water seem wine given us by Belgian troops. What we are waiting for is artillery. The guns we have won't reach, so our people have to stay in the trenches and get shot. I haven't seen a German yet.

Simply loaded up with ammunition, etc. My shoulders absolutely ache. Haven't taken my clothes off yet. Seem to have been here weeks. The cold was horrible last night. Couldn't get to sleep, with a trench half full of water.

October 8. — What a night last night! Had an alarm; opened fire; but I think it was only a buzz. Two more surprise attacks during night. Extra sentries; sleep, nil. Writing this huddled up in a trench. Shells whistling overhead. Had two lots of dust on my head. Weather fine. Pity to spend it here. This spasm started during breakfast. We do look forward to the nights. No sleep, pitch dark, jolly cold; and, suddenly, "Stand by!" and we peer into the inky blackness for the Deutschers.

Later.—We seem to be in a pickle. Our baggage party have just got here. Report the town in flames and all our gear lost. Shells coming in like one o'clock. Man on my side got a bit in his leg, but says he can shoot just as well on one leg. Belgian artilleryman reports that he and two others are all that are left of our covering fort. We seem to have nothing to do but wait for the end. These trenches would be all right against savages, but against their huge artillery like so much dust. These shells come with a whizz like an express train and then —crash! The spirits of our troops are top hole. No one the slightest bit excited. Just smoking or yarning and dodging shells; but it's just rotten not coming alongside them. Here she comes — dip, crash! Saved again. Another non-stop for Antwerp. When they shorten the range for us — well, cheer oh! Officer just given us the bird for laughing. "Grin at each other, but don't speak, chapsies. In case I don't see you again, all my best love."

Next Day — About six last night we had a German attack on our left flank, and drove them off. As they had the range of our entrenchment, we had orders to clear out. So we did so. As I fell in outside a shell exploded alongside. One man was left on the deck. We had to march back to Antwerp. City in places in flames. Everybody gone. Dead animals in the streets. Shells screaming overhead. Right through the city, over a bridge of boats, which were afterwards exploded, and marched until six this morning. Only one hour's sleep on the pavement of a small town. Thousands of men on the march back, thousands of refugees, Belgians, horses, cattle, and artillery, just like pictures of the Retreat from Moscow, and such like. We got a train at once, and it's now 1 o'clock, and we are still in it, bound for the coast. Part of our entrenchment was blown up as we were retreating, so if we had not gone I don't supose any of us would have been alive. So, taking things all round, we had a pretty brisk time, and seem to have done nothing. Don't know how many miles we marched last night, but it is a picture which will always live in my memory. The conduct of our boys is simply marvellous — just as cool as seasoned veterans.

Saturday, Oct. 10. Blankenburg. —Arrived last night. Slept at a kind of town hall. Had a meal where the refugees are staying; breakfast at hotel. Girls wearing R. N. V. R. ribbons across their head.

Sunday, Oct. 11. — Came aboard collier yesterday afternoon, and still aboard now. There are about 2,000 men here. Accommodation for none, so I slept between the funnel and the engine room grating. Some even slept on the cylinders. Don't know when we shall shove off.

Everybody's Business

This business of keeping Canada prosperous is not the work of any association. It is not the province of the university professor except in so far as he is a good citizen. It has nothing to do with the politicians unless they are hand and glove with the plain people in a great national undertaking. It is above all parties and creeds and factions. It is bigger than all stump speeches and flag-wavings. It is as simple as picking an apple off a tree. To keep prosperity in Canada and the spectre of hard times out, just means that from now on, the people of Canada who consider their own business of first importance, will spend their money for the goods made in Canadian factories. It's the importance of maintaining Canadian payrolls that puts us all on the same level.

Saloons and Bars Out of Bounds.

Orders have been sent out by the officer commanding the third division, Kingston, in which he states that all saloons and bars in the city of Kingston and its environs are placed "out of bounds" for all ranks in the third division battalion, which assembles in Kingston, until six o'clock daily. Officers and non-commission officers will see that the order is strictly adhered to.

It is published for general information that the regimental canteen at Tete du Pont Barracks is placed "out of bounds" for all troops except the members of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and attached men of the permanent force stationed at Kingston.

People sending letters to the volunteers who will assemble at Kingston are instructed to adress them as follows:

GOLD RUSH IN B.C. LIKELY THIS WINTER

An official of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, who has just returned to Montreal, states that he expects to see a new gold rush into Northern British Columbia this winter.

"Fifty years ago," he said, "miners in search of placer gold struggled through the wilderness and negotiated rapid rivers to reach the Omineca region, which had been reported to be rich in both gold and silver. It was a long and hard trek to get into that remote part of the country, for Victoria, B.C., was then the nearest base of supplies. Prospectors took a small steamer up the Fraser, Nechako and Stuart Rivers and over mountain ranges in order to facilitate transportation of supplies and outfits, but the boat route presented had many hard difficulties and such hard and costly work that after a few years the field was abandoned and almost forgotten although recently some mining has been done with good results."

"With the opening of the Grand Trunk Pacific this region has been brought several hundred miles nearer a supply centre, and interest in this district is reviving to such an extent that there is likely to be a rush of prospectors during the coming winter. They will take in their supplies from Vancouver, B.C., so that they can begin work immediately spring opens and thus get in a full summer's work. Mining men declare that big strikes will be made when the region has been thoroughly explored and state that there are rich quartz deposits as well as placer gold and silver. It is common knowledge among Hudson's Bay men that the Indians hunting in that part of the country use silver nuggets for bullets, and also carried considerable quantities of gold and silver to Fort Simpson and Hazelton in exchange for goods."

Latest Fish Story

Back to Land Movement by Pike Near Bassano Alta.

The latest fish story that has been sprung on the public—a story which "out-whops" some of the most famous of the Whopper Club series—is that told by J. Jones, an inspector in the agricultural branch of the Canadian Pacific, whose activities are confined to the Rosemary colony, near Bassano.

There is nothing of the piking attitude about the story but the fish. The fish were pike. It appears that there has been started among the fish of the Bow River a "back to the land" movement, with the irrigated land preferred. Mr. Jones says that on the land, or on one particular farm, in the Rosemary colony, the water was turned into the ditches one morning for two hours and then turned off. When it had all seeped away into the ground there were enough pike found to feed thirteen men for one meal. Since that time a number of fish have been obtained. In fact, there seems to be a serious sort of mania among these fish to get out of the water at the earliest possible moment.

It appears that many of the irrigation ditches are full of fish and in some places one of the favorite recreations is to go out and "land" a flock of fish for breakfast.—From The Gazette, Montreal, Oct. 31, 1914.

GERMAN FORCES HAVE BEGUN SUDDENLY TO FALL BACK

CHANGE IN EAST PRUSSIA

Precipitate Retirement at Several Points is Cue For Vigorous Advance of Russians and Bakalarjevo Has Been Taken With the Enemy's Supplies---Army of Vistula Still in Retreat to Frontier.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—The following official communication from the Russian General Staff headquarters was given out here last night:

"A sudden change has been noted since Nov. 3 on the east Prussian front, where the enemy, which recently had been on the defensive almost everywhere, has begun to fall back at certain points. This retreat is precipitate on the left wing of the enemy, which was vigorously thrown back toward Biala and Lyck. Our troops took Bakalarjevo, capturing a large quantity of arms and ammunition and making prisoners of a German company.

"On the left bank of the Vistula the Germans continue their precipitate retreat towards the frontier. Their rear guards have been dislodged from Kolo and Praedbors. On the morning of Nov. 3 we drove back the Austrians beyond Kielce, which place our troops occupied, making 600 prisoners and taking machine guns. On the same day we won a decisive victory over the Austrians along the whole front from Kielce to Sandomir. The enemy fell back with all speed. Our troops took Sandomir, which is an important strategical point.

"In the region south of Kielce during the past week we have made prisoners of 200 officers and 10,000 soldiers and have taken a large number of cannon, as well as machine guns. During the night of Nov. 3 the Austrians made a series of attacks, which were fierce but futile, and they retreated. Our troops took a firm footing in the region of Nisko and Radnik.

"There is nothing to report from the rest of the front.

"The Turkish fleet is concentrated in the Black Sea, with a base in the Bosphorus. Apparently they are trying to avoid a fight with our forces."

Czar On Way To Front.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—(Via London.)—Emperor Nicholas stopped at Minsk, capital of the Government of Minsk, yesterday on his way to the battle front. He attended a service in the cathedral and visited the hospital, where he conferred medals of the order of St. George on many wounded soldiers.

Early yesterday afternoon the Emperor resumed his journey amid enthusiastic cheers from large crowds in the streets.

PATRIOTIC MEETING WAS NOT HELD TO BOOST THE PATRIOTIC FUND

Dr. Gordon Changed His Program by Consenting to Request for a Patriotic Address — No Mention Was Made of Collections Being Applied to the Patriotic Fund

It would appear from the statements made to The Review, that some misunderstanding exists in connection with the patriotic meeting held in George Street Methodist Church last night.

Enquirers wished to know, why the the collections from the service were not turned over to the Patriotic Fund.

The object of the meeting was not to raise money for the fund. It was simply a case of Dr. Gordon being asked to give a patriotic address to men and he consented. The suggestion came in the first place from the Mayor and the Business Men's Committee placed the request before Dr. Gordon.

It had been first intended to have Dr. Gordon give a short address at the patriotic meeting in the Armouries, Tuesday night, and have those in charge of this meeting join with Dr. Gordon the following night, the object being identical — to increase the interest in patriotic work. The doctor did not attend the meeting in the armouries because it was not advisable to leave the warm church and take the chance of catching a cold in the Armouries.

Mr. Geenlaw the singer accompanied Mr. E. O. Weber to the public meeting but did not sing, because no arrangements had been made for an instrument of any description. This was explained by Mr. Weber, when he was called upon to speak. When he invited the men to the meeting on the following evening, no reference was made to the Patriotic Fund and as Mr. Weber stated to The Review today, no mention was made at any time of a collection for the fund, when the arrangements for the meeting were being made.

"And I don't think the officials of the church would have consented," said Mr. Weber.

He said the collections of the evening amounted to $121 and that up to last night the committee under whose auspices the campaign had been held, had a deficit of $83. The expenses were high.

Mr. Weber further stated that the object of the campaign was not to make money. He himself did not receive any portion of the collections and Dr. Gordon received only the proceeds of the special envelopes and the last two meetings. Out of this he paid all his own personal expenses, including railway fare and hotel. Also thousands of copies of the doctor's addresses were given away free and Mr. Weber is minus about four hundred copies of hymnals which have been taken from the churches and not returned. All these cost money.

Mr. Greenlaw, the colored singer, is paid $50 per week and Edouard Hesselberg, the pianist received $75 for the first four nights of the campaign here.

Tonight's meeting will conclude the campaign. Dr. Gordon leaves for Ottawa tonight to give addresses in a similar campaign of three weeks. He will be accompanied by Mr. G. W. Mulligan, who will help Mr. Weber in the general work of the campaign.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Germans Now Hold Only Bridge Head To Left of Yser.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The French War Office yesterday evening made public the following official communication:

"There is no important modification in the situation to report.

"In the north we have made slight progress toward Messines.

"To the east artillery duels at several points of the front have taken place without any great results, notably at the west of Lens, between the Somme and the Ancre, in Argonne and in the Forest of Apremont."

The French War Office yesterday afternoon issued one of the most cheering statements that has been received in some time, saying:

"On our left wing, to the north, the situation shows no change as compared to yesterday. The enemy has drawn back on the right bank of the Yser. We have recaptured Lombaertzyde. The Germans occupy the left bank of the Yser, nothing more than the head of a bridge half way between Dixmude and Nieuport. They have abandoned, in addition to prisoners and wounded men, a considerable quantity of war material, including artillery, which was held immovable by the mud.

"Between Dixmude and the Lys the fighting has continued with alternate advances and withdrawals, but with the general result that the allied forces have made preceptible progress.

"Between the Lys and the region of Arras there has been cannonading and minor engagements.

"Between the region of Arras and the Oise we have made an advance to the east of Le Quesney-en-Santerre as far as the Heights of Parvillers.

"On the centre, the German attack, which developed on the right bank of the Aisne in the region of Vailley, and which resulted in our losing the first slopes to the north of Vailley and to the north of Craonne, was not continued yesterday. A counter attack by our forces brought again into our possession a portion of the lost ground.

"A violent cannonading and spirited German attacks were repulsed on the heights of the Highway des Dames and in the vicinity of Rheims. There has been no happenings of importance between Rheims and the Meuse, nor in the Weevre district."

ARAB TOWN IS SHELLED

Cruiser Minerva Bombards Red Sea Port

LONDON, Nov. 5. — The British cruiser Minerva has bombarded the Arabian town of Jeddah on the Red Sea.

Jeddah, a town of some 30,000 inhabitants, is the chief seaport of Arabia in the Province of Hejaz, 65 miles northwest of Mecca. In the northern part of the town is a tomb said to be that of Eve. Nearly half the population is Arab.

A Central News despatch from Berlin says that large Turkish forces, assembled on the Asiatic side of the Suez Canal, intend to blow up that waterway and form a dam with bags of sand as soon as the Turkish army advances on Egypt.

Diplomatic relations between Turkey and Great Britain, France, Russia and Servia have been definitely severed. Turkey's diplomatic representatives in the capitals of these countries, acting on orders from the Porte, yesterday demanded and received their passports. Some of them already have left their posts, while the others will depart to-day. Tewfik Pasha left London yesterday.

The powers which the Ottoman Government thus defied are already taking warlike action against Turkey. The British have destroyed Fort Akabah, in Arabia; the Russians have invaded Asia Minor, and an Anglo-French fleet is bombarding the forts of the Dardanelles.

An official communication from the staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus, given out in Petrograd yesterday, says that Russian troops have crossed the Turkish frontier, driving back the enemy's advance guards and taking several Armenian towns. The Turks in their retreat abandoned their wounded and dead.

LAST EFFORT TO COME SOON

Germans Will Make Supreme Effort Says Belgian Senator

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A Belgian Socialist Senator, who returned yesterday from an official visit to King Albert, said that the allies were now within ten miles of Ostend, but he did not believe that the Germans are preparing for a general retreat through Belgium, but rather for a final supreme assault, which would be made at a point southeast of Ypres.

The Senator estimates that the Germans have 500,000 men in the vicinity mentioned, but he said that it was the general impression of the allied staffs that the German effort would be a failure, because their troops not only were very weary, but to a great extent were made up of youthful and aged recruits.

When the German march down the coast began, the Senator declares, scarcely anyone on the ground expected that they would be kept out of Calais. Now opinion was completely changed and freely expressed that the Germans would never reach their objective.

OTTER TO MAKE TOUR.

Sir William Will Investigate Situation Regarding Aliens.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5. — Maj.-Gen. Sir William Otter, former inspector-general of Canadian militia, who has been appointed by the Federal Government to direct the work of carrying out the order-in-council respecting "alien enemies," with headquarters in Toronto, was in Montreal yesterday, and with Silas H. Carpenter, the registrar of alien enemies, in Montreal, visited militia headquarters in Union avenue.

Asked as to his plans, Gen. Otter said he was going to make a trip of inspection throughout the Dominion, and was commencing at Montreal. Until he had looked into matters he could give no outline of the plans to be adopted to carry into full effect the intention of the Government to safeguard the country and the Empire from the possible danger due to the presence of thousands of Germans and Austrians in the Dominion.

INDIAN TROOPS PRAISED.

Gen. French Congratulates Commander of Eastern Corps.

LONDON, Nov. 5. — The British official press bureau, in a statement issued yesterday, pays tribute to the bravery and adaptability of the Indian troops now serving in France and Belgium, saying that they are performing a great work notwithstanding the fact that the nature of the country in which they are fighting is entirely different from that to which they are accustomed.

Gen. French, commander-in-chief of the British forces in the field, has expressed himself as greatly pleased with the bearing of these troops, and has sent the following message to the Indian corps commander:

"Please congratulate your Indian troops on their gallant conduct, and express my gratitude to them."

COAST PROTECTION FOR PEOPLE OF CANADA

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—The naval battle in the southern Pacific has brought the war nearer to the Canadian people. The actual presence on the South American coast of a formidable fleet of hostile cruisers, which has shown itself capable of coping with British vessels, formerly thought to be sufficiently strong to protect the coast, has been impressed in a most unpleasant way. There is no attempt among the authorities at Ottawa to minimize either the importance of the conflict, or the possibilities which are presented by the now well-proven menace which exists on the Pacific. It had been thought that the most which was to be feared from the roving German cruisers was a sporadic attack from time to time upon British or Canadian shipping. It has now been demonstrated that the German flying fleet on the Pacific possesses possibilities greater than these, and may have to be reckoned with as a menace to Canadian coast cities.

The naval authorities here have been seriously considering the danger the still undamaged German fleet, the Scharnhorst and Gneisnau, with their powerful eight-inch guns, the Bremen, the Leipzig and the Nurnberg, constitute to Vancouver and Victoria and the British Columbia coast generally, and what protection is now left with the Monmouth sunk, the Glasgow interned and the Good Hope either disabled or gone to the bottom. No one here seems to be in a position to give any very positive assurances on these points. It is stated that the harbors at Vancouver and Victoria are effectively mined, and that there are guns mounted on the coast defences capable of keeping off any vessel now on the Pacific which may show itself on the horizon. Naturally, no particulars of these can be obtained here.

Germans Might Come Northward.

It is further contended that the German ships would not risk a trip northward, that the difficulties in coaling would be great, and that they would draw upon themselves the combined cruisers of Canada, Japan and probably Australia. However, it is admitted that such a strong fleet as the Germans' has shown itself to be will not be content with fitful raids in the south, but may venture northward, where the trade routes offer more opportunities for marauding exploits.

It is pointed out, on the other hand, that the distance from the Chilean coast to Vancouver is no less than that from Australia, and that that latter could have its battle-cruisers ready to meet them when they arrived. There is no doubt that the battle-cruiser Australia could deal with the whole fleet without giving it a chance either to fight or run, but the movements of the Germans will not be telegraphed ahead, and it is conceivable that the Australia may find it expedient to remain and protect her own shores.

Allies' Forces on Pacific.

In addition to the Rainbow and the two Canadian submarines attached to the base at Esquimalt, there are three Japanese cruisers, and at least one other British cruiser on the Pacific. The Rainbow is more than a match for either the Dresden, the Nurnberg or the Leipzig, with 6-inch as against 4.2- inch guns. The other British vessel is the Newcastle. She is one of the town class, built in 1909, with a tonnage of 4,800 tons and a speed of 25 knots. She has a complement of 376 men, and carries two 6-inch guns, ten 4-inch guns and 18-inch torpedo tubes. She is no match, it will be seen, for the Scharnherst or Gneisenau, with their 8-inch guns.

Japanese Cruises Formidable.

The Japanese cruisers are of a more formidable type. The Kongs, which is said to be in the vicinity of Honolulu, is a battle cruiser of 27,500 tons, carrying a complement of 1,100 men, and with a speed of 27 knots. She has eight 14-inch guns, each throwing a shell weighing 1,400 pounds, and sixteen 6-inch guns, each throwing a shell of 100 pounds. Her broadsides, therefore, total 158,000 pounds, as against 19,500 of the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau. She has, in addition, 21-inch torpedo tubes and 10-inch armor plate. There is, in fact, no match for her on the western Pacific.

A Chequered Career.

The Hizen, also reported near Honolulu, used to be called the Retvizan, and has had a chequered career. In the possession of the Russians she was torpedoed at Port Arthur by a Japanese boat in 1904. She was repaired, and again heavily damaged at the battle of Round Island. She was then scuttled at Port Arthur, raised, and reconstructed by the Japanese. She has a tonnage of 12,700, carries 750 men, has an armament of four 12-inch guns, each throwing an 850 pound shell, twelve 6-inch guns and torpedo tubes. She also is superior in everything but speed (18 knots) to any of the Germans.

The Idsuma, also in the Pacific, is of 9,800 tons, carries 4 8-inch guns and fourteen 6-inch guns. She has a speed of 20 knots.

It will be seen then that, so far as the cruisers known here to be on the Pacific are concerned, protection from the marauding fleet must be looked to from the Japanese ships, two at least of which are capable of [illegible]ng with the best of the German ships.

If the Australia decides to come, there will have been added to the protection of the coast a first-class battleship of the Indefatigable type, with a tonnage of 18,750, a complement of 800 men, an armament of eight 12-inch guns and twenty 4-inch guns, and a speed of 26 knots.

Assistance in running down the marauders may also be looked for from the British-China fleet or from the Japanese fleet in home waters.

No Sufficient Secrecy.

Japanese Consul General Yada, when asked today as to the likelihood of Japanese war vessels being in the eastern Pacific ready to cooperate with the British cruisers, said he had no information as to the naval plans of his government. Mr. Yada took occasion at the same time to tell his interviewers that he thought Canadian papers were not observing a sufficient degree of secrecy with regard to the movements of Canadian troops and ships. There was, he intimated, greater laxity in the press of Canada in regard to publishing information of possible use of the enemy than was the case in other belligerent countries. There was in Canada, he said, as elsewhere, a very complete system of German espionage, and every bit of information published herewith regard to defence plans or movements of war vessels was undoubtedly promptly transmitted to the enemy.

TOO HEAVY FOR BRITISH.

German Cruisers Won By Weight of Metal In Fight Off Chile.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Nov. 5.—Details of the naval fight, picked up from informal conversations with German officers who came ashore from the warships, show that the Germans, owing to the superior range of the guns on the armored cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, opened fire when six miles away. As the ships closed and the range came down to a distance of four miles, the British ships were able to reply, but by that time they were already seriously damaged.

The Germans declare that the British fought heroically, but that their artillery was ineffective against the superior weight of metal that the Germans were able to pour from the more modern guns of the armored cruisers.

Good Hope Afloat?

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—American Minister Fletcher at Santiago, Chili, reported yesterday the naval engagement off Coronel, Chili, and arrival of three German warships at Valparaiso. The damaged Good Hope is reported as having escaped with the Glasgow and Otranto.

DEMOCRATS HAVE EIGHTEEN.

Reduced Majority In House of Representatives Faces Wilson.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Latest returns from Tuesday's elections indicate that the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives for the sixty-fourth Congress will be reduced to eighteen. The probable Democratic majority in the Senate will be fourteen.

Three of the six states that voted Tuesday on the question of ousting saloons decided to retain bar rooms while the other three on latest returns last night apparently went dry.

Ohio, California, and Washington voted in favor of retaining saloons. Arizona, apparently voted dry, women voters contributing materially. Colorado and Oregon on incomplete and unofficial returns show slight leads in favor of ousting saloons.

Austrian Warship Sunk.

TOKIO, Nov. 5.—It was announced to-day by the Navy Department that it seems probable that the German defenders of Tsingtau have sunk the Kaiserin Elizabeth, the Austrian cruiser which took refuge in the Tsingtau harbor on the outbreak of war.

LOCAL MAN FOR HAVELOCK JOB

Inspector for Electric Wiring to be Appointed

POOR LIGHTING

Havelock, Nov. 4.—A by-law regulating the installation of electric wiring, fittings and machinery and providing regulations for an electrical inspector, was passed at the November meeting of the council.

It is also the intention of the council to appoint an inspector, and in all probability the appointment will go to a Peterboro man.

On motion of Councillors Curtis and Howe the Hydro Electric Commission will be requested to make the initial inspection of electric wiring in Havelock at the expense of the council.

The town lighting system met its doom at the hands of Couns. Howe and Scott who moved that it be discontinued at once owing to the poor service.

On account of Dr. Holdcroft's for $109 which was passed by Board of Health and which the council refused to pay, came up for discussion again upon the threat of the doctor to sue the town, and the Reeve was instructed to secure advice as to the municipality's liability.

Mr. Alex. Primrose addressed the council in reference to the town purchasing a new piano for the hall, but none of the members would shoulder the responsibility of investing in a new piano at this late hour of their aldermanic career.

Railway Magnate Visits Lindsay

(Lindsay Post.)

The "railway promoter" Graham, who was given a two years' sentence in the penitentiary about two years ago by Police Magistrate Jackson, was in town yesterday on a visit to friends.

It will be remembered that Graham hired a number of men and teams around Lindsay and started preliminary work on a "street railway" through this town and district. The enterprise proved to be a colossal fake and the arrest and imprisonment of the "promoter" followed.

Italy is taking a little while to make up her mind but once she starts up the map-makers can begin removing Austria from the scenery.

With Least Exertion

To do one's best work with comfort, body and brain must be in good condition. That requires proper food — food that contains all the elements that build brain and brawn.

Grape-Nuts

Is that kind of food!

Made of wheat and barley, it contains all the nutriment of these most nourishing grains, including those vital mineral salts—phosphate of potash, etc.—that are discarded in making white flour.

Long baking breaks down the starch cells of the grain and makes this food easily digestible by the most delicate stomach.

THE SUBMARINE MAKES ATTACKS IN SILENCE

Even the Periscope is Submerged as the Little Vessel Approaches the Victim Singled Out

So much has been written concerning what the submarine may achieve that most people are somewhat uncertain as to what the submarine actually is and does. To begin with, she is shaped like a cigar, and she carries a tower on her back. Inside the tubular steel hull, valves and tubes and pipes line the walls; aft, in a space so low that the engineers can hardly stand upright, are the internal combustion engines and the electric motors which drive the vessel when she is under water. Below the floor, or deck, of the inside of the hull are petrol and stores. Forward are the torpedo tubes. Amidships there projects downwards from the ceiling a thick brass column ending in a brass cross-piece. This is the base of the periscope. When the boat is submerged and the officer desires to see what is going on above, he sets a hand on each arm of the cross-piece, which is level with his face, and rotates the column, while he looks into the mirror. In the mirror he beholds an image, little and bright, of a section of the sea and horizon, and by swinging it round he can scan the whole circle, reflected in the periscope above, which is the eye of the steel fish. Alongside the periscope is the upright steel ladder leading through two hatches to the deck of the conning tower, which is raised five or six feet above the top of the hull. It is about four feet in diameter, and is protected by a breast-high rail lined with canvas. Here is the wheel, and here, when the vessel is running awash, stand the captain and the quartermaster. In fine weather those of the crew who are not required below are grouped on the little half-deck below the conning tower, just above the steel hull itself.

An Enemy Sighted

The submarine running awash forges sullenly onwards with a heavy grinding noise, the water lifting and dripping from the gills which project on either side of her snout. Below, the hull is filled with the crashing of the furious engines cramped into the narrow tube of steel. The engineers squat placidly among the racing rods and pistons, in the thick atmosphere tainted with fumes. Should the sea water enter the hull and mix with the petrol gas, the fatal chlorine gas is formed, and the crew are suffocated.

The method of the submarine is to cruise at economical speed, ten knots or less, on the surface, until she sights a hostile vessel. As she is so small she can see another vessel before the other vessel can see her. Then she sinks. The crew are lying along the sides, ready to turn valves on or off. The internal combustion engines are stopped and the propeller shaft is connected up to the electric motors. There is a sudden silence.

The process of submerging is a process in the brain of the captain. He has a mental picture of what each tank contains, and how much weight is driving out forward or aft at each order, and what will be the effect upon the vessel. He communicates this process to the vessel itself. He must first dip her bows slightly, then her stern, then bows again, and so on. If he makes a mistake the submarine may dive down, and then all is done. The only person besides the captain who knows what is going on is his lieutenant; but the consequences of a mistake would follow so quickly that the lieutenant could not rectify it. Nor is there any sensation of motion as the boat sinks. It seems to be as still as a drawing-room on shore.

Then the Attack

The periscope, which is about the size of a saucer, remains about eighteen inches above the surface, and, viewed from the deck of a ship, all that is seen is a flitting pennant of white spray, as it cuts the waves. It would be almost imperceptible at two or three hundred yards.

Upon approaching to attack the submarine sinks lower and submerges her periscope, so that her captain, looking in the mirror, sees his little and bright picture washed out in green—the green of the water. And from above nothing is visible at all. The submarine is now blind. She cannot see through water. But she can steer a course. Her captain has made his calculations before he submerged his periscope. The submarine can fire torpedoes, go about, presently rising until her periscope is above water, then herself continue beneath the surface until it is safe to rise, and like a whale, to breathe again.

When the odds are 5 to 3 Germany can sometimes get the referee's decision.

CHEERFUL COURAGE

Very opportunely, a League of Anti-Pessimists has been formed in England. The promoters announce that "We are not a league of optimists; we do not want to ignore danger, to neglect warnings, or to appear lighthearted in the face of death and disaster; but we do want to remember that 'behind the clouds is the sun still shining.' The league is non-political, non-denominational, and open to all—rich, poor, young, old, men or women. The only condition is that the promise, once made, must be kept."

The promise is to keep the rules, which are as follows:

1. To fight the spirit of pessimism, particularly in connection with the war, which is apt to detract from natural courage.
2. To cheer, by any means in your power, those around you, and to give help and sympathy to those who have very real cause for grief or anxiety.
3. To refrain from grumbling at any hardships, small or great, which you may be called upon to endure.
4. To disregard all unauthenticated reports, and do your best to prevent their spreading.
5. To keep up the courage and energy of those around you by your own example of calmness, hopeful and trust in our leaders.

WAR AND COMMERCE

Canada Will Feel Diminution of Trade More as a Readjustment

To what extent will the war affect the volume of international trade? The general fact is that Germany and Austria are cut off from the trade of the whole world. No small part of the goods which they normally sell to other nations must be sold by others. Great Britain, for instance, will cease to buy huge quantities of goods from them; some of these the other parts of the Empire can supply. We in Canada shall cease to buy great quantities of German and Austrian goods—we shall buy them from Great Britain. The total volume of trading in the world will diminish because so many men are withdrawn from industry and capital will be absorbed in financing the war; but an immense amount of trade will continue, and this will be rearranged. The United States, Japan, China and many other countries will be clamoring for goods which Germany has been supplying. So far as the British Empire is concerned there will be redistribution of trade rather than diminution. Agricultural produce plainly will command higher prices, and if Canada's basic industry is kept prosperous, the others will have an opportunity to steady themselves.

Who Caused the War?

On August 1st, Sir Edward Grey sent to Berlin a most significant telegram, indicating a sudden change in the views of Austria: "The Russian Government has communicated to me the readiness of Austria to discuss with Russia and the readiness of Austria to accept a basis of mediation which is not open to the objections raised in regard to the formula which Russia originally suggested. Things ought not to be hopeless as long as Austria and Russia are ready to converse and I hope the German Government may be able to make use of the Russian communication referred to above, in order to avoid tension."

No document is more important than this one in the task of deciding whether Austria or Germany most desired the war. It is accompanied by the Russian telegram, which declared the readiness of Austria to discuss with the Great Powers the substance of the ultimatum to Servia.

Another document shows that the Austrian Secretary of State had called in the Russian ambassador and urged him to explain in St. Petersburg that the door had not been closed on further negotiations.—Norman Hapgood in Harper's Weekly.

Britannia Rules the Waves

England, the England of war times, is finding herself. Controlling the ocean, she fears no interference of importance with her carrying trade. The Bank of England has been buying gold from every possible source, and is strong for any emergency. No one can figure on how long hostilities will go on but whatever happens, commercial England proposes to restore and preserve normal commercial conditions.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE RIGHT MAN IS WORTH WHILE WAITING FOR

The New Education Aims at Making Girls More Self-Supporting and Independent

The new education for girls has no quarrel with men, but it leaves them to make their own arrangements. It does not undertake to provide wives for them. It bothers with men very little. Its aim is to turn out girls so far developed mentally and so trained and instructed that they can make their own choices in the world, can earn their own living if they wish, or if they must, can take a man if one that suits them offers; can turn all men away for as long as they will and still contrive for themselves a life of activity and employment. The new education aims to give to girls such an equipment as will relieve them of the need to marry for a living. That is no more than to start them on the same level with the men, and that is no more than fair. A man that must marry for support is rated as rather a pitiable figure. A young woman who must marry for support is not in so much better a case as we have been used to think. For support that one buys with one's life is dear bought and should be a good article, and every one knows that famine prices are high and that who would make good bargains must see to it not to be pinched by need.

Moreover, in marrying it is often an advantage to be able to bide one's time. The best and safest man to marry, all things considered, seems to be one who works for his living, and such are seldom able to marry young. To wait for a man must be a hazardous venture, but there are men worth waiting for. And to be so little the mistress of one's fate as not to dare to wait for a man of one's heart is to be in a fix at least as hazardous as the other. Every marriage is more or less a woman's experiment with a man to see what she can make of him, and, of course, there are men whom women, trained in self-help and self-support and self-possession, may fairly take a chance on whom women more inured to the dependent life should hardly risk. To have in one a trained capacity for self-support is like having a fortune. A girl so qualified can marry more for company and less for maintenance than one completely dependent on a husband's efficiency as a money getter.

BASEL THE RICHEST CITY

In Proportion to Population Has Greater Wealth Than London

Which is the richest city in Europe? Neither London nor Paris nor Milan, but Basel, the great Swiss railway centre, Zurich, in a neighboring canton, coming second. This is proportionate to the number of inhabitants. Basel's richest citizen boasts a fortune of $3,000,000; another has $1,500,000, while no fewer than sixteen residents pay income tax on a round million dollars. Eighty-two are "French millionaires," possessing fortunes of a million francs. The average wage-earning capacities of the various professions form an interesting contrast. Basel's doctors—the place is flooded with medical men—are the worst paid, averaging only $1,200 a year; druggists are good for a hundred dollars a year more, and lawyers the same. Professors, on the other hand earn something like $2,500 a year and bank directors anywhere from $5,000 to $6,000.

Crime Against Civilization

Even if the cathedral at Rheims be not totally ruined, the destruction wrought upon it by German guns is a crime against civilization for which no atonement is possible. Not only France, but all the world, is aghast at such vandalism. The excuse of military necessity is too feeble to be considered. In all the wars that ancient city has seen, the venerable pile has been spared. It is left to Germany to emulate the worst atrocities of the Dark Ages, to desolate the country of the enemy for desolation's sake.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Weapon of God

If the Kaiser had not said he is the weapon of God, he has acted as if he believed it. Nor need either his sincerity or his piety be question ed. Such language is wholly in harmony with his character as it has been revealed from the beginning of his reign. Divine right, as he expounds it, is a theory which underlies German methods of government, a theory which has greatly influenced the German political character. There is something pathetic in the innocent astonishment of the Germans at the present general attitude toward them. They are apparently quite incapable of orientating themselves; of taking their mental bearings. They do not realize how, ever since the war of 1870, they have been preparing for just such a catastrophe as this. Morally, as well as politically, the great conflict now raging is the consequence of that earlier struggle.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

FALL IN

(By Harold Begbie in The London Daily Chronicle)

What will you lack, sonny, what will you lack
When the girls line up the street,
Shouting their love to the lads come back
From the foe they rushed to beat?
Will you send a strangled cheer to the sky
And grin till your cheeks are red?
But what will you lack when your mate goes back
With the girl that cuts you dead?

Where will you look, sonny, where will you look
When your children yet to be
Clamor to learn of the part you took
In the war that kept men free?
Will you say it was naught to you if France
Stood up to her foe or bunked?
But where will you look when they give the glance
That tells you they know you funked?

How will you fare, sonny, how will you fare,
In the far-off winter nights,
When you sit by the fire in an old chair
And your neighbors talk of the fight?
Will you slink away, as it were from a blow,
Your old head shamed and bent?
Or say—I was not with the first to go,
But I went, thank God, I went.

Why do they call, sonny, why do they call
For men who are brave and strong?
Is it naught to you if your country fall,
And right is smashed by wrong?
Is it football still and the picture show,
The pub and the betting odds,
When your brothers stand to the tyrant's blow,
And England's call is God's.

STOOD BY HER FLAG

Brave Canadian Lady Refused to Deny Her Nationality

British newspapers contain a description of the trying experiences of a Canadian lady who showed a noble and patriotic spirit in most trying circumstances. She and two other ladies were travelling together. After having succeeded with difficulty in getting from Innsbruck to Munich they got passports. "We then started out for Switzerland," she said, "but at Lindau, on the Lake of Constance, close to the Swiss frontier, we were ordered to get out and were detained in the railway station refreshment room. We were detained in the refreshment room for eight hours. Seven other British subjects were with us. There was plenty to eat for those who had the money to pay for it, and, on the whole, we were kindly treated, although we were much alarmed when a Bavarian colonel came in in a state of great excitement and informed us that the French and Russians were behaving to his countrymen like wild beasts. After we had been detained for eight hours we were told that the women could go but that the men of military age would have to remain in Lindau. I and my companions got away, but two English ladies who were with their husbands declined to leave them. The party were not imprisoned; they were simply told to go to a hotel and remain there. Our journey through Switzerland and France was a most unpleasant experience. We were six days on the journey, and all the time we had to stand in the gangways of the trains or sit on the luggage that was piled up in them. I lost all my luggage, but I am thankful to have got back alive. While I was in suspense at Munich I was strongly advised by friends to represent that I was a citizen of the United States, but I would die rather than deny my flag."

PARISIAN NEWSPAPERS

Authorities Restrict Size of Headings and Number of Editions

The French authorities have taken the question of the circulation of newspapers in hand. No paper may bring out more than one edition a day. The largest headings that may be used are across two columns. The headings in poster type across six columns are forbidden.

Last, but not least, it is forbidden to call out either the name of the journal or its contents. During the first stages of the war there was a paper appearing about every half-hour in Paris, and as the boulevards and other principal streets were inundated by crowds of hoarse-voiced "camelots" bowling the name of the paper at the top of their voices, the nerves of the public were kept continually on the strain.

Scores of "camelots" were arrested for shouting the name of their papers until they were convinced that the public intended the orders of the prefect to be rigorously carried out. Now, when they see a likely customer, they confidently whisper the name of the paper they are carrying.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4.—Liverpool cables were not so strong as was expected this morning, which caused a somewhat erratic opening. Buying of futures by export houses later caused a reaction, and an advance of ½c to ⅝c on the three months took place, November leading. The close was from ⅜c to ⅝c up for wheat, and ½c to 1⅛c for oats. Flax closed 2c to 2½c up.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—Manitoba wheat is in fair demand over the cable and sales of 75,000 bushels No. 3 northern were made at $1.14½ per bushel c.i.f. bay ports. A sale of 5000 bushels choice Ontario malting barley was made at 78½c and 10,000 bushels of a lower grade at 75c per bushel ex-track and 10,000 bushels of extra No. 1 feed oats at 60c per bushel c.i.f.

In sympathy with the continued strong upward tendency of prices for oats in the Winnipeg market prices on spot have scored a further advance of ½c to 1c per bushel. There is no change in flour, but the tone of the market is strong, with only a small volume of business doing. Demand for mill feed is better and the feeling is firmer. The tone of the market for butter is steady, but the demand is still somewhat limited.

Cheese continues quiet. Demand for eggs good and market is active and strong. Dressed hogs 25c to 50c per 100 pounds lower.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—At the C.P.R. live stock market there was no further change for cattle today, but owing to the continued liberal offerings the feeling is easy, and the prospects are that prices may go still lower in the near future owing to the mild weather. Demand was limited and trade on the whole was rather quiet, sales of choice steers at $7.50 to $7.75, good at $6.50 to $7.25, and the lowest grades at $4.75 to $7, while butchers' cows brought from $5 to $6.50 and bulls from $4.50 to $6.50 per cwt. The trade in canning stock was fairly active at $4.50 to $4.75 for bulls, and at $3.50 to $4.25 for cows per cwt.

The tone of the market for lambs was firm under a good demand, and small supplies and sales of Ontario stock were made at $7.50 to $7.75, and Quebec at $7 to $7.25 per cwt., while ewes sold at $4.75 to $5 and bucks and culls at $4.25 to $4.50 per 100 pounds. There was a good demand for calves, of which the supply was fair and sales were made at from $3 to $20 each as to size and quality.

There was no change in the market for hogs, for which the demand was fair, and sales of selected lots were made at $8 per cwt. weighed off cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Cattle—Receipts, 9,000; market, steady; beeves, $6.60 to $11. Texas steers, $5.60 to $9.20; stockers and feeders, $3.65 to $8.50; calves, $7 to $10.25.

TACT AND A PLUMBER.

Masterly Inactivity at a Banquet in High Society.

Not so very long ago there was a dinner given in exclusive Washington society at which the most tactful person was undoubtedly a plumber in overalls.

It was an elaborate dinner. The central feature of the table decorations was a playing fountain, but just before the dinner was to be served the fountain refused to play.

A plumber was hastily called. He crawled under the table and soon had the fountain sending a delicate spray into the air. He was busy tightening the couplings of the temporary pipes under the table when the head butler, his mind relieved of a load of care when he saw the fountain playing, announced in the drawing room:

"Dinner is served."

Before the plumber knew what was happening the guests had entered the dining room, chairs were drawn up, and he suddenly found himself hemmed in by a wall in which trousers alternated with skirts.

It was a big round table, so he was safe from discovery from any shifting foot. He scratched his head and wondered what he should do. He looked carefully around. Neither to the right nor to the left nor between any pair of feet was there sufficient space for him to wiggle through. The only way to get out would be to tap on some knee and—"Pardon me, please."

He didn't know much about the etiquette of formal dinner parties, but he had a hunch that that wouldn't make a hit. He decided that there was just one thing to do—stay where he was until the trousers and skirt wall departed. So there he sat while course after course was served, coffee sipped, cigarettes and cigars smoked, nothing to entertain him but a ground floor view of high society.

When the dinner was at last over and the guests had returned to the drawing room the plumber crawled forth.

The hostess had tarried for a moment to give a few directions to the head butler. She gasped with astonishment.

The plumber explained.

"Sir," said she, "you are a gentleman." Then to the head butler, "James, give this man $10 for himself." Then to the plumber, "And please say nothing."—New York Times.

The Myrtle Warbler.

The myrtle warbler breeds in the northern and eastern parts of the United States, but migrates through every woodland path and is so numerous that it is familiar to every observer. More than three-fourths of its food consists of insects, practically all of which are harmful. The bird is small, nimble and successfully attacks insects too minute to be prey for larger birds. These insects are its chief items of food.

Jupiter in Mythology.

In Roman mythology Jupiter was the supreme deity, the head and front of the whole system, god of the air and king of the celestials. He was primarily a divinity of the sky and the originator of all atmospheric changes and weather conditions. His weapon was the thunderbolt, and one of his titles was Jupiter Tonans, thundering Jupiter. Heavy or continuous rain was attributed to Jupiter Pluvius, rainy or rain sending Jupiter. When the earth became parched with heat and was in sore need of rain Romans invoked the great God as "Jupiter Pluvius."

A Famous Saying.

When the great Napoleon was about to reach Paris on the way back from the disastrous Russian campaign he exclaimed, "Du sublime au ridicule il n'y a qu'un pas" (from the sublime to the ridiculous there is but a step). Such is the generally received opinion as to the origin of the famous saying, although some authorities attribute the remark to the great historian, Longinus of the third century.—New York Journal.

TO-DAY'S MEETING MAY BRING BASEBALL PEACE

American League Magnates are Meeting Today in Chicago and Negotiations May Possibly be Brought About

The American League magnates will assemble in Chicago this afternoon for what is expected to prove one of the most momentous conferences since the baseball war broke out. President Ban Johnson sent out by telegraph, instructions to the various club presidents to be there today. The gathering, besides considering the special problems of the moment, will take the place of the regular annual meeting, which is usually held in December.

Peace in baseball is believed to be near as the result of Garry Herrmann's mission to Chicago Saturday and Sunday. Herrmann came there it is admitted generally by the knowing ones, to discuss peace between organized baseball and the Federal League and also as the agent of Charles P. Taft, and in both missions he is said to have been successful.

Under what terms the peace will be effected cannot be said. The problem is difficult and it will require many days to reach an understanding that will be satisfactory to both parties.

Charles Weeghman, president of the Federal League club, admitted he had held a conference with Herrmann and that the question of peace was discussed and considerable headway was made. Whether he represented the Federal League is not known, but as President Gilmore was not present at the gathering it is thought he did.

Herrmann before departing for Cincinnati acknowledged he had seen the Chicago Federal owner and that they had a long talk regarding a truce and that it looked to him as if all this wrangling in baseball would be stopped for all time. He is said to have departed feeling as if he had solved the problem that would settle the matter.

It is asserted that Washington probably will get the Chicago National League team, and that his purpose in talking to Herrmann Saturday was in one sense to see what could be done toward getting the Cubs. Weeghman did not deny that the Cincinnati magnate practically was Taft's agent and there was a possibility of his getting the West Side franchise. What the final result of that gathering was could not be learned.

Where They Are Now

Frank Fields, manager of Red Watson, and himself a former boxer, has compiled a list which may well be published under the heading of "What the Old-Timers When We Do Not Hear About Are Doing." The list is:—

Soll Smith, real estate, Los Angeles.

Dave Barry, police officer, Chicago.

Dan Long, police segeant, Los Angeles.

Aurelio Herrera, farmer and sheep shearer, Tifa, Cal.

Dutch Thurston, vaudeville boxing; last heard of in Montana.

Al Neil, sign painting business, San Francisco.

Mysterious Billy Smith, bartender, Vancouver.

Mose La Fontis, restaurant business, Butte, Mont.

Kid Williams (the original), politician, Los Angeles.

Billy de Coursey, farmer, near San Diego.

Morgan Williams, miner, Goldfield, Nev.

Kid Herman, haberdasher, Seattle.

Frank McConnell, detective, San Francisco.

Young Peter Jackson, poolroom owner, Salt Lake.

Fred Russell, floor manager, at Spider Kelly's, San Francisco.

Bob Thompson, porter, Los Angeles.

Mike McClure, liquor salesman, San Francisco.

Martin Denny, cafe, Portland.

Kid McFadden, deputy sheriff, San Francisco.

Tommy Tracy, boxing instructor, Seattle.

Jack Ortega, trying comeback stunt, Panama.

Rube Smith, cafe floor manager, Denver.

George Dawson, boxing instructor, Chicago.

Jack Stelzner, policeman, San Francisco.

Dan Creedon, cafe, Australia.

Jim Tremble, plastering contractor, Los Angeles.

Charley Goff, police sergeant, San Francisco.

Billy Woods, longshoreman, Vallejo.

Billy Snailham, structural iron worker, San Francisco.

KING EDWARDS WON ANOTHER

The King Edward School football team added another to their list of victories when they defeated the Queen Alexandra School team on the Nicholls' Oval yesterday afternoon, by the score of 1 goal to 0. The following were the teams:

King Edward.		Queen Alexandra.
Parkins	goal	Jordan
Blondon and Killingbeck	backs	Kearns and Mason
Hunt, Jackson Plunkett	half-backs	Wall, Armstrong, Dixon
Puffer	centre	Dunsford
Jubb and Cranfield	left wings	Doughty and Cameron
Fairbrass and Wise	right wings	Yelland and Graham

Connie Mack May Sell His Stock

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—A report was circulated here that Connie Mack is planning to sell his stock in the Athletics to Jack Dunn of Baltimore, that Dunn will become manager of the Athletics and that Mack will purchase some of the stock in the New York Americans and become manager of that team, taking along with him some of his Athletic players. Mack and other officials of the Athletics could not be located to confirm or deny the story.

INDOOR BASEBALL.

In the indoor baseball game, at the armouries last evening, No. 6 Co. defaulted to the Band. A scratch team played the Band a game and won by 14 to 10. Batteries: for Band, Swanson and Grange; scratch team, Butcher and Hall.

All the ball players of H. Co. are requested to be at the Armouries tonight at 7.30 sharp, for their game with D. Co.

"Tilly" Shafer May Return

Speedy Infielder May Again Enter McGraw's Fold

New York, Nov. 4.—It is not only possible, but all-fired probable, that Arthur J. Shafer, of that dear California, will be back third-basing in his inimitable way for our Giants next spring.

The rumor that was first heard several months ago has received much additional confirmation since. One of Artie's closest friends in this city fully expected Shafer to be in town incognito about world's series time. In fact, for a while he was suspected of being here.

However, Shafer is due to come to New York soon, and very soon at that. A letter from him was received in these parts not many months ago, in which he stated "don't be surprised if I walk in on you any day now." While he did not mention the fact that he contemplated seeing the Giant management while in town, it is certain that he will do so, as he intimated in other epistles to the same party of the third part that he is seriously considering returning to the diamond.

Why Shafer Quit.

It is said that Arthur Shafer's return will not be over-welcome news to some of his fellow players, who resent his desertion this year. We do not know what truth there is in his statement, but, on the other hand, who care what these malcontents think about it anyway? What New York fandom wants is a winning team, and if Shafer can make that of the Giants, he's as welcome as the proverbial flowers in May. We would like to hear some player pull some of that resenting his desertion business around McGraw!

Shafer has been more abused without reason than any man who ever played the game in this city. Even his leaving the pastime last year has been misconstrued.

He quit the game for no good reason, other than that he was sick and tired of the dear old national nuisance. He refused to play with the Giants primarily because of the poor health of a member of his family seemed to him to make his presence in California imperative.

Arthur's people have always been somewhat opposed to his playing ball. His mother was particularly against it, and Shafer was never the same after her death, which occurred while he was playing with the Giants in Brooklyn several years ago. The shadow of this catastrophe always hung about him. With illness at home, he feared that history might repeat itself if he went away.

Things are said to have righted themselves now and made it feasible for him to return to baseball. That is why it seems very probable at this writing that he will be in there third-basing for our Giants when young men's fancies lightly turn to thoughts of love again.

A gentleman in every case, a thorough sportsman and a wonderful player, Arthur J. Shafer, of California, is a big asset to the grand old game.

LEFTY ROGERS WANTS BERTH

Hamilton, Nov. 4.—A meeting of the directors of the Hamilton baseball club was held recently when arrangements were made for an early meeting of the shareholders of the club and also for the annual club meeting, when the election of officers for the coming season will take place. Several applications for the managerial berth were tabled, but were not discussed. It was learned today that Lefty Rogers, the Ottawa utility player, was a candidate for the job. Applications for the position are being received daily.

Turkey is disrupt, corrupt and bankrupt.

Veteran Umpire Dies Suddenly

San Jose, Cal., Nov. 5.—Jack Sheridan, dean of the umpiring staff of the American League, died here from a sudden attack of heart failure, following a three weeks' illness. He was 62 years old, and had been an umpire 30 years. His illness followed a sunstroke, suffered in the course of a game in August.

A TRIP INTO SPACE.

With a Peep at the Milky Way and Its Fiery Spiral Nebula.

If you could stand still and let the world glide from under you the most impressive characteristic of space would be its emptiness, its awful black silence, of which man knows about as much as the deep sea fish do of their ocean. As the sun went sailing away its planets would close in one by one until apparently consumed by the solar rays. Before you had passed through the orbit of Neptune the sun would look no larger than an arc light. Fainter and fainter, deprived bit by bit of its dominance, it would finally fade into a pitiful spark. In spite of your tensest efforts to keep that glinting point clear of its fellows, it would at last melt into the multitude of soft lights that make up the Milky way, and henceforth, seek as you might, you could never distinguish your sun again. Lost in the Milky way, it would be as futile to try to find it as to find a certain grain of dust which you had noticed settling on a country road.

Then drifting spritelike out into inky nothingness you would be surrounded by myriads of brilliant lights. Soon they would impress you with this startling fact: The universe of stars is arranged like a mighty world. The Milky way encircles the skies very much as the equator does this earth, and since life is most abundant in the south so the stars grow thickest about the Milky way. Let the eye travel away toward the imaginary north and south poles, and not only do the stars thin out, but entirely new forms of star life make their appearance.

Through the telescope they are nothing more than filmy patches of light; to the cameras and spectroscopes of observatories they become the most amazing and frightful spectacles of all nature. They show themselves then to be stupendous whirlpools of fire, inconceivable in magnitude, thousands of "light years" away (light traveling 185,000 miles a second), where whole systems of suns are being slowly evolved. We call them "spiral nebula," but to describe them we need the tongue of God himself. They seem to be measureless caldrons, where his hand stirs cosmic dust until new suns rise and float off in flaming bubbles. They are so unthinkably gigantic that there is no perceptible motion to them. Already the cameras have recorded several hundred thousand in every stage of condensation, presenting an undeniable challenge, perhaps an answer, to those who would solve the riddle of the universe.—Maxwell Parry in Chicago Herald.

Ships and Waves.

When the waves of the ocean are one-half the length of the ship and one-twentieth of the length in height the stress upon the ship itself is very little increased above that in smooth water. But when the waves are of the same length as the ship or one and one-half times its length the stresses are considerable higher than when the ship is in smooth water; hence, in view of the fact that waves are seldom over 500 feet long, the maximum bending moments which come upon a ship 900 feet long are much less than those which come upon one 500 feet long.—Chicago News.

Mozart's Delusion.

During the last months of his life Mozart imagined a man stood always by him to compel him to compose his own requiem. Mozart played the harpsichord when three years of age, at the age of five composed concertos and at six made a concert tour in Vienna. Extremely nervous, the musician was so weak that at times he would faint without any apparent cause.—New York Telegram.

Not Able to Sustain It.

"Why don't you marry?"

"Can't afford it."

"Why, it seems to me that your income is surely large enough to marry on."

"It probably is large enough to marry on, but"—

"But what?"

"I greatly fear it isn't equal to stay married on."

No More Passes.

"It always makes me sick to ride on the cars."

"Once it didn't affect me that way, but it does now."

"That so?"

"You bet. I just hate it."

"Getting old, eh?"

"Not much—have to pay fare."

Got Them Free.

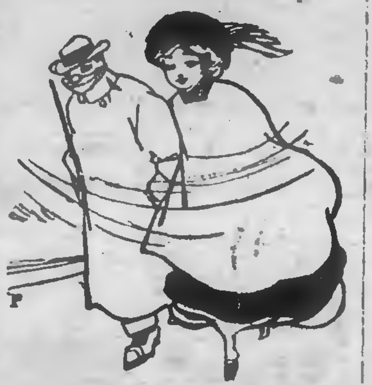
"Speaking of stealing a kiss," said the reckless youth.

"What is that?" asked the man from New England.

"I said stealing a kiss. I suppose you don't know what that is."

"No, I don't. To hum they are a drug on the market."

Not What He Married.



"He married a woman with money."

"Did he?"

"Yes."

"But why is he asking for divorce?"

"She no longer has money."

Brown's Troubles.

"Brown is such a pessimist."

"Is he?"

"Yes."

"Why, I thought he was very happy with his large family of children."

"That's the trouble. His children are all girls and his wife is a suffragette."

Giving Proper Credit.

Two Philadelphians were talking of the fortunes of a third denizen of that city when one said:

"His first lucky strike was in eggs. He bought 10,000 dozen at a low figure, put them in cold storage and sold them at a profit of more than 300 per cent. That was the cornerstone of his great fortune."

"Ah!" exclaimed the other. "Then the hens laid it!"—Harper's Magazine.

Both Together.

Little Mary had been sent to the store by her mother to get some fly paper. She was a long time in returning, and the mother began to get anxious. Going to the door, she spied the little girl coming up the street, and called to her, "Mary, have you got the flypaper?"

"No, mother," replied Mary; "it's got me; but we're coming together."—Lippincott's.

Mr. G. W. Mulligan will leave town this evening, with Mr. Weber, to assist Dr. Gordon in his meetings.

Mrs. George Lenton, 176 London street, will receive on Saturday afternoon, November seventh, from four to six o'clock.

Mrs. J. Pope, of Chemong Park, left yesterday for Providence, R.I., where she will be the guest of her brother, Mr. J. A. Scott, for a few months.

An exceedingly delightful "At Home" was held last evening in St. Alphonsus Lyceum under the auspices of the T. A. S. of the Church of the Sacred Heart. The proceeds were, as was previously announced, to be devoted to charity, and it was a great satisfaction to the committee in charge to find so many present. A handsome sum was realized.

Cards, refreshments and dancing were the order. The prizewinners at cards were Miss H. Laplante and Mr. John Laplante. The refreshments were very dainty, while the dancing was made most enjoyable through the excellent playing of Miss M. McDonald, pianist. Miss McDonald's rendition of popular music called forth many encores, while a burst of prolonged applause followed her closing selection, a medley of patriotic airs, introducing bars of "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," "The Maple Leaf," "O Canada," and "God Save the King."

WEDDING GUESTS AT CELEBRATION OF GOLDEN WEDDING

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Butcher, Beaverton, was the scene of a very pretty golden wedding on October 28th, when Mr. and Mrs. Butcher celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The dining-room was beautifully decorated with yellow chrysanthemums, while the table decorations were carried out in yellow and gold, the tables being tastefully draped with yellow satin ribbon and daffodils. Mr. and Mrs. Butcher were married in Peterboro in 1864, where they resided fourteen years. They went to Beaverton in 1878, and have made their home there from that time. Mr. Butcher is seventy-eight years of age, while Mrs. Butcher is three years younger. They are enjoying excellent health.

They, with their family and near friends, numbering about fifty, sat down to the wedding dinner, some coming from Peterboro, Toronto, New Ontario and Sunderland, three of whom, Messrs. Mark Curtis, Chas. and Jean Butcher, of Peterboro, were guests at Mr. and Mrs. Butcher's wedding fifty years ago. The honored couple received a number of handsome presents, their family's gift being a purse of gold.

ANOTHER BIG LIST OF QUESTIONS

26. What would you do with church members that always try to turn other members of the church against their pastor?

Last evening Dr. Gordon delivered an address on "The War, the Man, and the Hour," before a splendid audience, composed exclusively of men. No meeting of the campaign which has been held so far manifested more interest and enthusiasm than the meeting which he addressed last night.

With reference to the war, he said:

First: A man who fights for Great Britain fights for great principle. The principle of national honor. Christianity has not broken down so long as a strong nation protects a weak nation.

Second: The man who fights for Britain fights for a great sentiment. Our vast empire, composed of fifty-five colonies and more, is held together by a great sentiment of patriotism, and a Britisher three thousand miles away from home is more of a Britisher than when he lives in London.

Third: The man who fights for Great Britain fights for a noble King. We are not ashamed of George the Fifth. He has in his veins the blood of Victoria the Good, and that popular monarch, Edward the Seventh, and he has done nothing inconsistent with those splendid members of a great dynasty. Our Monarch is more than the Empire with the "mailed fist."

Fourth: The man who fights for Great Britain fights for a great flag. The flag of the British Empire is the finest piece of dry goods which ever enriched the atmosphere of the world, and it has been consecrated n history by the conflicts and victories of a thousand battlefields.

Fifth: The man who fights for Great Britain fights under a great leader. Kitchener is the man for the hour, a man without blot and without bluster, and a leader who appeals to the highest sentiments in the minds of the men over whom he is presiding.

Sixth: The man who fights for Great Britain fights for a great cause. Even the enthronement of democracy. Divine rights are going and human rights are coming. The common people are the coming people.

Seventh: The man who fights for Great Britain fights for a great race. The Anglo-Saxon race will one day rule and dominate the world. Great Britain is leading the Anglo-Saxon race, and before Great Britain is through with her work of leadership she will have organized the parliament of man and the federation of the world. Under her leadership we shall yet have the United States of the British Empire, the United States of Europe, the United States of America, and, finally, the United States of the World, with one world anthem and world flag.

Dr. Gordon offered seven distinct warnings:

I warn you not to hold God responsible for this war. Man is a free moral agent on this planet. War will cease when man is sick and tired of war.

I warn you against the national hate of the gallant foe. The Germans who are fighting in Europe are the same Germans who are residing in our own country. No man could wish for a better neighbor, or a better friend. In war, there is a great opportunity for misrepresentation.

I warn you against national conceit and international ambition. The Anglo-Saxon race is the most complacent race beneath the sun, and proud, too. He looks down on men of every other race and nationality, and he is apt to speak in words of contempt concerning the foreigner, the immigrant, and the stranger, when the future of his own land and country depends upon these very people.

I warn you against pernicious doctrine. The great armaments are a guarantee of peace. The Kaiser is not responsible for this war. We have delivered great armaments and laid the wires for great conflicts. The Kaiser is a figure head. He simply touched the button.

I warn you against the danger and curse of the standing army. A standing army is a standing invitation to fight. It does not take ten years to train a man for war. The untrained man fighting for liberty is stronger than a trained man fighting for military glory. What we need is not a standing army, but a walking, fighting, breathing army composed of men who, when necessary, will fight for God and home and native land.

I warn you that victory tends to enthrone the war spirit. If war is hell, then, in the name of God, to hell with the war.

Dr. Gordon closed his address by making an appeal for better manhood, inspired by the spirit of genuine loyalty and sincere patriotism.

NO DEFINITE ACTION YET BY COUNCIL

Finance Committee of County Has Matter Under Consideration

As yet the County Council have not decided as to how they will give financial assistance for patriotic purposes. The Committee of the Whole dealt with the matter and submitted their report to the finance committee, which body is dealing with it this afternoon. In the report it was suggested that $400 per month be paid from now until the January session, either to the Patriotic Fund or the Belgian Relief Fund. When the finance committee settle the question they will recommend to the Council the passing of a bylaw authorizing the assistance.

TOWNSHIP MEN ASK FOR WORK

Claim They Are Entitled to Work on Outfall Sewer

In an effort to divide the work on the outfall sewer as much as possible City Engineer Parsons is working gangs every other two weeks. This applies only to the common laborers as the mechanics and skilled laborers will be kept on permanently. Mr. Parsons informed the Review today that many residents of North Monaghan have applied for work, claiming they have a right to it, as the work is being done in their municipality. North Monaghan, however, is not sharing any of the cost.

HALL'S GLEN NEWS

Hall's Glen, Nov. 5.—As the Zion Sunday School at Hall's Glen closes during the winter, the Young People's Bible Class which was organized for the first time this summer, brought their season's work very nicely to a close, when they held a concert on Friday, October 30th. The success of the class has shown itself in the hearty support of all the young people in making the concert a decided success. The church was decorated with Chinese and jack-o-lanterns, flowers, and maple leaves. Mr. Hinton acted as chairman for the evening. The programme was as follows:

Opening chorus — Onward Christian Soldiers.

We often wonder how long the people of Germany are going to let the Crown Prince get away with the colossal bluff that he is a general.

Once again the Germans retire in Poland, but only to seek a much more advantageous position. Much like the hod-carrier who fell from the fourth story and observed that he had to come down for a hod o' brick anyhow.

HEAVY FIRING OFF DOVER -- RUSSIAN'S BIG VICTORY

GREATEST VICTORY SINCE WAR BEGAN

Won by the Russians in East Prussia---Naval Battle May be in Progress on Belgian Sea Border

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, Nov. 6.—Grand Duke Nicholas commander-in-chief of Russian forces has sent a telegram to General Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French forces saying Russians have gained in East Prussia the greatest victory since the beginning of the war.

FRENCH STATEMENT

PARIS, Nov. 6. — The afternoon official statements say there was no perceptible modification yesterday anywhere on the front. In Belgium and Northern France the Germans seem to be reinforcing very heavily from corps with the first line troops with the object of either undertaking a new offensive movement or of endeavoring to mitigate the blocks and checks they have been receiving. In the region of Nampoel a column of German waggons has been destroyed by French long range artillery fire.

All along the front the Germans have everywhere been repulsed.

Paris, Nov. 6.—A newspaper despatch from Boulogne tells of an attack on Arras by Germans in which a battalion of guards caught between Dragoons and quick fire guns threw down their arms, while their supports beat a hasty retreat.

French aviators dropped bombs destroying the track and fired the train which had followed the attacking column.

On the train was found a sixteen inch gun being transported in secret and several Krupp engineers were taken prisoners.

Tokio, Nov. 6.—The Japanese general staff announces that the assault on the main positions around Tsing Tau, the Iltis, Bismarck and Moltke forts must be deferred until after the capture of the five forts south of the Haipo river where behind strong defences, German artillery and infantry is making a determined stand.

Those five forts are 2,400 feet from the Japanese trenches.

JAROSLAU HAS BEEN RECAPTURED

PETROGRAD, Nov. 6. — Russians have recaptured the Galician town of Ja oslau and taken five hundred wounded prisoners, according to a telegram received here today from Lemberg.

Austrian attempts to cut off the Russian attackers' messages finally have broken down, and the Austrians now are in retreat along the River San.

CHILD FOUGHT BAD BURGLAR

Thirteen-year-old's Plucky Action Scared Thug Away

BRAMPTON, Nov. 6.—Burglary is rampant in Brampton, three residences having been entered this week. About midnight Wednesday the home of Charles Booth, Main street south, was invaded. Mr. Booth is only at home during the week-end, and the only occupants of the house were Mrs. Booth, her 13-year-old daughter Jessie, and Mrs. Booth's father, Henry Schooley. Mrs. Booth was awakened by a man standing by her bedside. When asked what he wanted a handkerchief was stuffed in her mouth, but her daughter Jessie, who was in another bed, grappled with the burglar and called for her grandfather. Managing to free one arm, the burglar struck the little girl in the face and broke away. Mr. Schooley rushed to telephone the police but found the wires cut and the burglar escaped. In his haste to get away the burglar left a 22-calibre revolver behind him.

NAVAL BATTLE

Dover, Nov. 6.—Heavy firing off here this morning may be from a naval battle on the Belgian sea border.

Green of the Mechanical Transport Army Service Corps, has returned to England, wounded. This family is certainly endeavoring to do its share in the Empire's war and instances such as this should have an effect in promoting enlistment.

ENEMY RETIRES FROM IMPORTANT POINTS

Efforts of Enemy to Smash Through the Allied Line for Channel Ports Have all Been Repulsed — Kaiser Himself Has Taken Command of Operations and German Disaster is Imminent Says Standard

LONDON, Nov. 6.— The renewed attempt of the heavily reinforced German forces in Belgium to smash through the Franco-British line for the French channel ports has been stoutly met by a vigorous counter offensive in the neighborhood of Ypres by the augmented army of the allies.

It is asserted in the French official report that the allies have made slight progress to the east of Nieuport, and that the German onslaughts from Dixmude to the Lys are decreasing in energy. Redoubled German activity, however, is reported in the centre, the French being there subjected to violent bombardment of many hours' duration, while on the allies' right the situation remains deadlocked.

A report from Havre says that the German troops were signally defeated in a night attack south of Dixmude, being driven into a retreat wherein they were compelled to surrender the important strategic position at the Village of Bixschoote. The Belgian War Office is authority for the statement.

According to The Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent, the inhabitants of Ostend have been ordered to take to their cellars with five days' provisions.

More than 3,000 Belgian conscripts belonging to the class of 1914 have escaped from the territory occupied by the Germans at the risk of being shot and joined the colors here. King Albert sent an equerry to compliment the youths.

The Standard has the following despatch from Berlin, dated Nov. 1: The Kaiser has addressed a fresh manifesto to his troops, telling them that he is now on the way to take over personal direction of the operations on the Lys, and assuring them that very little more effort is now required to carry them through victoriously to Calais.

Public opinion is not so sure of this, for, despite the rigors of the censorship, the news is trickling through of enormous losses sustained. Fears are expressed whether the German forces are strong enough to stand many more weeks of such frightful slaughter. The Frankfurter Zeitung publicly admits that the allies are proving a tough nut, but says that the splendid spirit of the Germons will pull them through in the end.

The Standard adds that whenever the Kaiser has taken over personal command of the troops a German disaster has invariably followed.

CITIZENS THRONG CHURCH FOR FAREWELL MEETING

Dr. Gordon Delivers His Final Address — Local Committee is Commended for Their Efforts

The farewell meeting of the Citizenship Campaign in Peterborough, was held in the George Street Methodist Church, last evening. A vast congregation thronged the edifice. Every seat was occupied, and a multitude stood in the aisles, doorways and wherever the entrance of the building afforded standing room.

Dr. Gordon presided, and there were on the platform the pastors of the city, and a number of representative citizens. Among the latter was Mr. H. G. Walker, Chairman of the Business Men's Committee in charge of the campaign, who has rendered such valuable and persistent service in connection with the present series of meetings. Perhaps to no other individual is so much due, for the success of the campaign, as to Mr. Walker.

Mr. E. O. Weber, the father of the Citizenship idea, was introduced, and in appropriate remarks, expressed the appreciation of Dr. Gordon and his colleagues, for the kind co-operation of the people of Peterborough, in the series of meetings which were being brought to a close. He made special reference to the generous manner in which the newspapers of the city had given lage space to the reports of the meetings, and had done all in their power to make the campaign a civic function and a community affair. He also mentioned in his expressions of thanks, Adjutant McElhiney of the Salvation Army, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Ministerial Association of Peterborough, and the Christian churches of the community, representing all denominations. His most feeling reference was to the committee composed of business men who had taken in hand, the details having to do with the success of the campaign. In no other community, had there rallied around the leaders of this movement, so many stalwart business men of first class standing, and to this fact, Mr. Weber credited the result of an enthusiastic and inspiring campaign.

Mr. Weber stated, that amongst the numerous letters, epistles and questions received by Dr. Gordon, there were many references to his books and printed pamphlets, information being desired as to where these could be secured, and he stated that an arrangement had been made with Trebilcock's Bookstore, whereby any of Dr. Gordon's books could be secured, and also the pamphlets printed in connection with the campaign. He also explained that all profits from the sale of these books, did not in any way revert to the doctor., but to the Treasurer of the General Campaign Fund.

Mr. Albert E. Greenlaw, the colored singer, was in great shape and in fine form last evening. Dr. Gordon humorously described him as "the husband of a lovely wife and the father of two beautiful children." This incidentally answered a question which had been sent in with reference to Mr. Greenlaw. The audience smiled as Dr. Gordon paid the gallant singer a splendid compliment for his great songs and inspiring melodies, and the appreciation of the audience for the services of Mr. Greenlaw was apparent and expressed upon every side. Last night he sang for the last time in Peterborough, the popular song, "His Majesty the King," also the plantation melody entitled, "Steal away to Jesus." In this the choir of the George Street Methodist Church, under the direction of J. H. Renwick, joined in the chorus. Mr. Greenlaw's closing selection was the great song entitled "The Crucifixion." The first verse of which begins with "Were you there when they crucified my Lord?" Special mention ought to be made in this connection, for the services rendered by the choirs of St. Paul's Church and the George Street Methodist Church, under the leadership of Professor Allan and Professor Renwick, respectively and this was done in fitting and appropriate lan-

MOUNTED RIFLES TO BE RAISED

Government Has Decided to Organize Four Regiments

OTTAWA, Nov. 6. — The Government has decided without further delay to mobilize four regiments of Canadian mounted rifles, one in Ontario, probably at Toronto; one in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, one in Alberta and one in British Columbia.

There has been much debate over the fact that when the suggestions of the War Office were received as to the composition of the second Canadian contingent, no mention was made of cavalry, but it has been observed that a curious development of the war in France is the suspension of the role normally assigned to mounted troops, who are now fighting as infantry.

Sooner or later the situation will change and mounted troops will resume the role which, temporarily, they have abandoned. The four regiments of Canadian mounted rifles which the Government has decided to organise will probably be of 600 men each, a total of about 2,400.

GERMANS THREATENED WITH FIRE IF THEY FELL BACK

Prisoner Says That he Was Wounded by German Bullet Losses Compelled Retirement

HIS OWN STORY

(Canadian Press, Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 6 — In Col. Swinton's report of November 1st issued by the official press bureau today, while he lauds the magnificent courage of the French and Allies and praises the gallantry of the Belgians in recent fighting, in which the British troops behaved splendidly in face of awful odds, he also comments on remarkable steadfastness, born of patriotism or iron discipline, with which the German masses advance to what must seem to them certain death.

He quotes a story of a wounded German prisoner, which suggests that they are sometimes forced to go on. "I was enlisted in October 1913. On mobilization, the weakly and backward in training, to the number of about 60 per cent. of my company, were withdrawn from the active regiment to form the nucleus of a reserve regiment, which was completed by men from Baden and Wurttemburg, belonging to the second section of Landwehr. After ten weeks hard training we travelled for three days and two nights from Thuringia up to Aix-la-Chappelle, where we remained in reserve. We were told that our nearest enemies were the English. On the 17th and 18th of October we performed such fatiguing forced marches that many fell out on the road. On October 19 we each received 285 rounds of ammunition and had our first taste of fire. From this day onward fighting was uninterrupted. On Oct. 20 my section received orders to go forward to attack, and our officers warned us that if we gave way fire would be opened upon us from behind.

Threat Was Carried Out.

This threat was carried into effect when losses we suffered compelled us to retire. Indeed, it was by a German bullet that I was wounded. Having fallen to the ground, I remained between the lines without food or care for two days at the end of which time I dragged myself to a ruined house. During all this time German shells, which were short, were falling about my shelter, located a few hundred paces from the French lines.

The French having advanced on Oct. 24, I myself moved forward and called out to a passing patrol and surrendered.

"We have received no distribution of food since our arrival in France. The commandant of my company was a reserve lieutenant of the 28th. The colonel also belonged to the reserve, as did all the other officers of the regiment. Officers told us that if we fell into the hands of the French we would be sent to a foreign legion and be massacred by the Moroccans.

Captain Fee For the Front

Captain Calvin P. Fee, of the 24th Battery C.F.A., Peterboro, left last night for Kingston, where he will be attached for duty in the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and later serve at the front.

Captain Fee is highly regarded as an officer with splendid qualifications. He has had fourteen years' experience, having served in the following corps: 46th Regiment; Royal Canadian Field Artillery; Canadian Scouts, Battery, and South African Field Force; Royal Canadian Horse Artillery; 24th Battery and the 10th Brigade, C.F.A.

TROUBLES OF A PROPHET

In a certain town the local forecaster of the weather was so often wrong that his predictions became a standing joke, to his no small annoyance, for he was very sensitive. At length, in despair, of living down his reputation, he asked headquarters to transfer him to another station.

A brief correspondence ensued.

"Why," asked headquarters, "do you wish to be transferred?"

"Because," the forecaster promptly replied, "the climate doesn't agree with me."

An old toothbrush is excellent for brushing the charred part off the lampwicks.

ONLY REMNANT OF GERMAN FORCE AT THE YSER IS LEFT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Daily Mail correspondent in the north of France says that the retreat of the Germans amounts to nothing less than a rout.

"There is now left no more than a remnant of the German force which met its fate at the Yser. Thirty thousand Germans, say the Belgians, have been put out of the fight on this line. Not a single gun remains on this side of the river, and the unburied dead, the drowned and the wounded, with trains of wounded that left the firing line in recent days, lead one to think that there is no exaggerating the enemy's loss. There must be many thousands of prisoners."

The London correspondent of the Times in Pas-de-Calais says: "I am credibly informed that German losses in the supreme attack on the British between Ypres and Lille are well over 50,000. Fighting is still proceeding, but its fury has spent itself. The Germans were repulsed, but it is rather early yet to emphasize the suggestion of German demoralization."

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1914

THE UNITED STATES AND THE WAR.

SHORTLY AFTER the outbreak of hostilities, the United States declared its neutrality. Owing to this fact, many citizens of the most populous republic in the world were inclined, no doubt, to regard the present conflict at a distance, that is, that they were happily out of the struggle, sufficiently removed from the war to be only remotely affected, and that they could pursue their usual occupations very much as they had done before the storm of war broke over the green hills and smiling plains of Europe. This attitude could be likened to that of the spectator in the theatre who may be moved or unmoved by the scene before him, or to that of the passer-by who gives an interested inspection to some show window display. Nay, more, it was confidently stated that the people of the United States would profit by the war, since they would receive war prices for one of the greatest harvests in their history. This assurance of profit, which will likely be realized to some extent, gave weight to their spectator attitude, which apparently did not realize the significance of the influence of the war, and the fact that a part of the continent, larger in area than their own vast domain, was an active participant in the war. There were, to be sure, sections relatively small that were deeply concerned in the struggle. Shippers, cotton producers, leading bankers, had a personal or monetary interest in the conflict. But the people were little concerned beyond a deep interest in world news. Prominent newspapers discussed the question of causes, and of placing responsibility for the war where they thought it belonged. They influenced public opinion either for or against the Allies, happily, in most cases, for them, and considered the relative strength of the opposing nations. Still, the United States was out of the contest. Wheat rose to unusually high levels, then fell many points when shippers found that they could not deliver for want of ships, and the war came a little nearer home, when Americans began to consider a remedy for their lack of an adequate merchant marine. The fact that disillusioned the American people came when President Wilson asked for a war tax of one hundred millions to recoup the national treasury for losses due to a shrinking revenue.

The conclusion is that the American people are more vitally concerned in the battles now raging than they at first believed. A declaration of neutrality has meant that the United States is not in a state of war with any of the nations involved, but, at the same time, the American Republic is not out of the state of war, if a paradoxical phrase may be used. Part of the struggle taking place in Europe is being waged within the boundaries of the United States, and, indeed, within the confines of every country having any important import or export trade. Thus, a country may declare its intention to take no part in the strife, but it cannot escape the consequences of the world-encircling influence of European war. The United States is deeply concerned in the strife, which will likely affect every wage-earner within its boundaries. Hard times of a very serious character may come, and what is much more likely to happen is a money stringency exceeding any in recent years. The United States, like most countries, is adopting whatever expedients are within its power to alleviate the effects of the war, and already has done much to improve the situation, but it cannot, however, totally escape the evils of the great war.

"GOOD-BYE, TORONTO! ADIEU, MONTREAL."

H. R. GORDON, of the Queen's Own, is now a mere gun-bearing unit of the Overseas Force. Before he left he was a most observant newspaper man, and this is how he sizes up the difference between Hans and Tommy, in the November Canada Monthly:

> "There are two kinds of soldiers in this war. The German brand is a carefully-polished bit of mechanism in a great steam roller. His thought is censored to the point of annihilation, his initiative is deliberately drilled out of him. Von Kluck and the Kaiser will think for him, just as they think for the Reichstag.
>
> "The British soldier — above all, the Overseas Empire-defender — is just plain Bob Robinson in khaki instead of blue serge, handling a gun in place of a plough or a pencil—same Bob as he used to be—same songs, same slang, same girl down home to write to. He's earning one-ten a day in place of two or three or five, not because a conscription officer rang his front door bell and wouldn't listen when his mother said he was ill, but because he stood in line for two hours, waiting for the chance to volunteer.
>
> "This war will see the last of one soldier-type or the other. If the Kaiser can swamp France with the unhuman grey-green waves of infantry, conscription and drill to automatisation will have triumphed. But if Bob Robinson, thinking of his home in Calgary, can shoot truer; and if the Tommy Atkins from God-knows-where in the London slum can hold his bayonet tighter while he sings Tipperary; then it's good-bye to the steam roller method in war, just as it's been a lengthened process allover Europe of good-bye to the autocrat in government, the censor in journalism, and the slave-driver in the construction gang."

IT WILL LIKELY BE A LONG WAR.

EVERY GREAT WAR brings out new facts, creates unforeseen contingencies, explodes old theories, and upsets many calculations. When the European war began, many thoughtful persons, taking into account the size of the armies engaged, the tremendous cost for shells, ammunition and food supplies for fleets and armies, besides the very great loss through the effect on credit and business, said that the war would be of short duration. Six months seemed to be the limit beyond which it would be impossible to carry on the war. Already the war has proceeded for three months, with no decisive result. On the contrary, the world is preparing for a war of long duration, a war to the death, in which every available resource, whatever the consequence, is being concentrated on the battle lines. Kitchener said he would serve for three years, first contingents have already gone from the Overseas Dominions, and others are being mobilized. Trade and business have recovered from their first shock and are settling down to a state of war of indefinite length. Canadian factories are busy on large orders for war stores, as if the war has no intention of stopping for a long time. Everything points to the fact that immense armies, tremendous cost, and terrible effects of war on trade and progress, do not eliminate wars or make a long war impossible.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ONE OFFICER and fifty-one men is the detachment sent from the Seventy-seventh Regiment to the second Overseas Contingent. Dundas, a town of less than five thousand, is the headquarters of this regiment, which is to be congratulated on sending so large a detachment. If the cities do as well, the third contingent will soon be under canvas.

HALLOWE'EN passed and no Zeppelins surprised English cities.

MADE-IN-CANADA is a good principle, if the people follow it.

The Original "Come-all-ye."

(New York Evening Sun.)

Come all ye O'Connells! Come hither, O'Shea,
Lafferty, Rafferty, Rogan and Flynn,
Hark ye! the bugles is startin' to play—
Hegarty, Grogarty, Kelly and Quinn.
Thim English has blundered in trouble agin;
They're helpless as children in matters of war—
Excipt for the Irish what wars would they win?
But England be damned—here's a fight to the fore!

Redheaded Ratigan! Burke! Come away
Here's the O'Toole, that is trouble's own twin!
Come all ye M'Cools, steppin' warlike an' gay!
Whelan and Phelan and Rooney and Glynn,
Nolan and Dolan, ye two-fisted min!—
Sure, it's a shame to be sheddin' our gore
For the Saxon bulcheens that have harried our kin,
But England be damned—here's a fight to the fore!

Come all ye O'Briens! Come hither O'Dea!
Here's the O'Dowd with his battlefield grin!
Romp along, Riley, the divil's to pay—
The cannons is makin' a hell-roarin' din!
An' it's no privut war—anny wan can get in!
Ould hypocrite England's in trouble once more,
And, faith, we're the fools to be savin' her skin—
But England be damned—here's a fight to the fore!

Terry, the trumpets called out for us thin!
Larry, me lad, we're the pride o' the corps!
(Us Irish! for England, and never Sinn Fein!)
But England be damned— here's a fight to the fore!

Our Duty.

(Toronto Star.)

There is nothing to be said about the reported disaster in the South Pacific except that we must be prepared to take bad news as well as good, and keep on doing our own duty cheerfully. Our duty is to strengthen our land forces by recruiting and drilling and by making preparations for the manufacture of arms. Our duty also is to see that the German navy gets no more Canadian nickel.

Our duty also is "Business as usual." Business enterprise, business courage is an important part of our strength, of the strength of Canada and of the British Empire. We may depend upon it that the British forces on land and sea are doing their duty. We must help them by doing the duty which lies nearest to us.

A Question.

(Brantford Expositor.)

According to yesterday's despatches Kitchener will have an army of half a million of the best fighting men at the front by December first, and by early spring that number will be doubled. A problem for the Kaiser to solve will be, if General French's "contemptible little army" can keep the German host from entering Paris what will an army four times its size be able to accomplish?

Militarism a Blight Upon Genius.

(London Mail.)

Away from the fatherland and breathing the spirited air of real democracy, German settlers quickly come to look back upon the Prussian system of militarism as the blight that in many ways it undoubtedly is upon the genius of the German people.

That Poker Party.

(Baltimore American.)

"Do you believe Jack told me the truth when he said my husband and he were merely sitting at a table holding hands?"

"I guess he was speaking by the card."

The End of Turkey.

(New York World.)

One thing is sure. No nation except Servia risks in the war so much as the Turk, and the Turk risks it without excuse. Whatever happens, there will still be a France, an England, a Germany, a Russia. It is not certain now that there will be a Turkey.

Rescued Battery From Tight Corner

A graphic story of the fighting around Soissons is told by Sergt. Meads, of the 1st Royal Berkshires in a letter written to his wife from the military hospital at Leeds:

"After the firing had lasted for two and a half hours," he says, "the order to retire was given, and we retired through a wood. Then General Davis came along, and said, "Turn about men—you must save the guns at all cost."

There were only about fifty of us. We made a series of short rushes under a heavy shrapnel fire until we were up to the guns. The Germans were not more than 800 yards away but we were getting a very few burst shells, while we could see the Germans going down in scores. Every shot of ours told, as it was impossible to miss the enemy, who had formed from six to ten deep. We could see our artillery shells simply mowing the Germans' down. Still they came on.

"Presently the order rang out to abandon the guns, but gallant young Lieut. Hibbert said, 'No, boys, we will never let a German take a British gun.' Then our chaps raised a cheer and resumed rapid firing. Presently we were reinforced by the South Staffords. The guns' crews stuck to their task most heroically, and amid cheering we rescued the whole of them.

"I saw the Scots Greys and the 12th Lancers make a grand charge. Some of the Germans dropped on their knees and held their hands up but as soon as our cavalry got through the Germans who had thrown their rifles to the ground picked them up and commenced firing again. They quickly paid the penalty as our cavalry turned about and then rightly showed the Germans no mercy."

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

The winter sailings of the White Star Line steamer Olympic have been cancelled, and yesterday the members of her crew were paid off.

Mrs. Catherine Reddy, aged 99, is dead at the County of Hastings House of Refuge, where she had been an inmate for over five years. She was born in Ireland in 1815.

The order closing the Chicago yards, on account of the widespread epidemic of foot and mouth disease was yesterday afternoon extended to cover all yards and pens in the state.

Jay Bennett, whose home is near Marlbank, in Hungerford Township was in the woods shooting with some companions, when he was shot through the heart, death being instantaneous.

James Sowards, aged 64, coal merchant, died suddenly of paralysis in his office yesterday in Kingston. He had lived in the Limestone City all his life. A wife, two sons and two daughters survive him.

The Panama Canal is again open to traffic. Col. Goethals cabled yesterday that shipping began passing Wednesday afternoon through a channel opened through the recent landslides north of Gold Hill.

Orders have been received by the military authorities at Kingston to organize a new battery for overseas duty with the second contingent. It will be composed of 145 men, 126 horses and four 18-pounder guns.

Luigi Rava, Minister of Finance who held office in the new Italian Cabinet, announced Wednesday, was replaced yesterday by Signor Daneo, until now Minister of Public Instruction. In the latter office Daneo is succeeded by Signor Grippo.

Gives Relic To Fund.

A British flag, 140 years old, has just been presented to the Canadian Patriotic Fund by A. McD. Young, a British subject resident in Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Young, who sent the flag to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, writes that the flag was captured from the British at Detroit in 1774. It was raffled for in Milwaukee in 1864 and Mr. Young, determined to own the flag, bought nearly all the tickets. He won it, and has now sent it to Canada to be disposed of in the best way for the fund.

It was decided by the Montreal patriotic fund committee not to auction the flag, but to send it to the Museum at Ottawa.

Will Grow Wheat.

Farmers of South Waterloo County, Ontario, have in many cases complied with the request circulated by the Department of Agriculture that much wheat be grown next season to provide for possible shortages of grain because of the war. Many fields that usually are not used until spring have already been seeded with fall wheat. Farmers say they intend growing more wheat than usual next season.

Villa's Troops in Battle.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 6.—An official report received yesterday by Villa officials in Juarez said that a battle was in progress between Villa and Carranza troops 20 miles south of Aguascalientes, where the convention of chiefs recently attempted to adjust their fractional difficulties. It is said Villa has sent a force of 10,000 men and more than 100 cannon to meet the advance of the Carranza troops, whose strength is not known.

Smallpox Epidemic In Zion City.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6. — With thirty-five cases of smallpox in their midst, the religious colony at Zion City, Ill., founded by the late John Alexander Dowie, with faith healing the most notable feature of belief, bowed yesterday to strict quarantine measures.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, present head of the sect, has fought the use of ordinary precautionary measures since the malady became epidemic.

Closing Chapter.

Delectable days of November,
With work on the farm at a halt,
Too dreamy to try to remember
To throw to the cattle their salt,
With summer a goner for certain
And winter not yet in the land
Or ready to draw back the curtain
And play at the time honored stand—

Days dreamily, drowsily drifting,
Without any strenuous goal
Nor calling for action or lifting
Of barrels or buckets of coal.
There may be a chill in the morning,
But noon puts a crimp in the frost,
Of days that are coming a warning
And thrown in without extra cost.

The harvest is choking the cellar,
The bin and the barn and the crib
As though a magician like Kellar
Had tapped Father Nature's off rib,
And ripening away in the cider
In barrels filled clear to the head,
While over the bunghole a spider
Is patiently weaving a thread.

The year to a finish is drawing
And soon will be dead as a nail,
While fingers and toes will need thawing
If carelessly left in the gale.
The calmness is double and triple.
The only thing joyous and glad
Is a horse trader leading a cripple
To try to trade horses with dad.

Couldn't See It.

"I am afraid I will have to increase the price of board, Mr. Goodfeeder."

"What is the reason for this assault on our liberties?"

"The price of necessities has advanced so much."

"Necessities of life?"

"Yes."

"How can that be? I was just reading that we had the biggest prune crop in our history."

Always Willing to Oblige.

"Have you no home, my poor man?"

"No'm."

"Are you hungry?"

"Hungry?"

"Yes. People who have no home always make me feel as if I would like to do something for them."

"No'm, I am not hungry, but if you have any ice cream and cake and black coffee I might manage to keep them from spoiling."

"Yes, I give my farewell tour next year."

"But I thought you hadn't started yet."

"But isn't that a good way to get advertised?"

"That man is a terror."

"Is he?"

"You bet."

"In what way?"

"He puts a notch on the crank of his automobile for every man he kills."

Changed Him.

But in his wife a man
Prefers her beauty unadorned.
It's cheaper on that plan.

Power of the Hug.

"I thought you were not going to marry him."

His Reason.

"Why are you so extremely honest?"

"Because it is the only way I can stay poor."

A Singular Test

By MARJOIRE CLOUGH

Miriam Wotherspoon had ideas of her own respecting love—that is, love between the sexes. She was at the proper age when women or men are apt to think a great deal of love and marriage.

Miss Wotherspoon had noticed the increasing number of divorces with concern and thought of a divorce in her own case with horror. Therefore when she became engaged to George Chandler she occupied herself thinking of the probabilities or possibilities of their separating after marriage till her mind got into a condition of semimonomania. Believing that the chief cause of divorces is a want of genuine love, she resolved upon testing both her lover and herself to discover whether the bond between them was or was not true love. Absence she considered the best test and resolved to live apart from her fiance for six months.

Chandler was a practical sort of fellow and was principally concerned in getting his affairs into shape to be married. When Miriam told him that she had resolved on a trip abroad to be absent a year he was astonished. When she gave her reasons he endeavored to dissuade her from her plan. Not succeeding, he finally gave his consent. When he saw her off on the steamer he said: "I know a better test than absence. Perhaps I shall apply it." Miriam begged him to tell her what it was, but he, knowing that she would not give over trying to get it out of him, refrained from mentioning it till just as the vessel was leaving the dock.

When Miriam had been gone six months Chandler wrote her that her absence had made no difference with his feelings toward her, and if she had experienced no diminution of her affection for him she would better return. She replied that she still felt the same toward him, but she had resolved at the time of her departure to remain away a year, and she thought their future happiness might be made more certain by her keeping her resolution.

It was about a month after this that a young American, Edward Treat, joined the party that Miss Wotherspoon traveled with. He seemed to take a desperate fancy to Miriam, and, since he was a very attractive fellow, she found his attentions agreeable. Love springs in the path of tourists of opposite sex like daisies in a clover field. When there is nothing to divert the mind of young persons from loving they are likely to love. Sightseeing—visiting ruins, works of art, gardens that have been cultivated for centuries—does not divert the mind from love. On the contrary, it encourages love.

Miriam, though she was somewhat troubled at a change she experienced within her, was confirmed in her opinion that she had been wise to apply her test. She began to doubt if her love for George Chandler was genuine, and one evening when floating in the moonlight on the bosom of Lake Como she was quite certain that it was not genuine. There are many degrees in the art of lovemaking, and Treat was an adept. Besides, any girl who would fail to be impressed by the devotion of an attractive man on a moonlight night on the most beautiful lake in the world must have a heart of adamant.

Treat did not get to a proposal. Miriam warded him off from that. Though she was convinced that there was nothing about her love for George Chandler that might not be broken through, she was not ready to throw off the old and take on the new. Nevertheless she wrote her fiance a letter which indicated that she had not the faith in the endurance of her love for him that she had supposed. Within another week she wrote him asking if it would be convenient for him to come over.

Chandler sailed for Genoa as soon as he could make his arrangements to be absent and joined his fiancee at Milan. He found her in a very muddled condition. She had confessed her engagement with George to Treat, and the latter had ceased his attentions until she had decided to break with her fiance. She told Treat that Chandler was coming over and suggested that he go to Switzerland.

When George Chandler arrived Miriam was so glad to see him that new doubts arose in her bosom. She regretted that instead of sending for him she had not gone home to him. Nevertheless she felt that she had not stood the test, that she had proved her affection for him was not true blue, and she told him the whole story.

"I see nothing for me to do," he said, "but release you from our engagement."

"But I am not sure that I wish to be released."

"Miriam," he said, looking with a kindly expression into her eyes, "do you remember saying that I had a better test than yours?"

"Yes; I do."

"Well, I have applied it. Ned Treat is an old friend of mine. Hearing that he was coming aboard, I secured his promise to seek you and try to win you from me."

She gave him a look of astonishment, reproach, self abasement, then collapsed on his breast.

"It's all right," Chandler added. "I'll see during our married life that you don't fall under the influence of a fascinating man. If that won't keep us from the divorce you dread it is at least all I can do."

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE SIMPLE LAYOUT.

WHAT'S the use of striving
After wealth and fame,
Wearing off your fingers
For illusive game?
You can be as happy,
Be assured of that,
In a humble cottage
Or a modest flat.

Vain are all the riches
And the vulgar show.
On the head exalted
Cares their mark bestow.
In the places lowly
You a spot may find
Where will dwell contentment,
Marked by peace of mind.

Though you win the bauble
That is known as fame,
You will find the candle
Has uncertain flame.
After all the schemings,
Workings in and out,
You will pause to wonder
What it's all about.

In your narrow quarters,
Modest though they be,
You can laugh at worry
And from care be free.
With a larger outlook
As you forge ahead
You will find that trouble
Is your daily bread.

His Good Points.

"What is his reputation for truth and veracity?"

"He has no veracity."

"What?"

"And no reputation."

"No?"

"And the truth isn't in him."

"Well, I declare! I thought I understood you to say he is a good man."

"He is—the best welterweight I ever saw."

Misunderstood.

"There is just this one thing the matter with you."

"What is it?"

"You are always getting into trouble."

"Oh, no—not always."

"No?"

"Not on your life! Nine-tenths of the time I'm engaged in getting out."

Of Course.

"The new preacher is determined to marry."

"Our new preacher?"

"Yes."

"I wonder why."

"For the fees."

Had Experience.

"You know the meek"—

"Oh, yes; I know all about it."

"Well, say it."

"The meek shall inherit good advice and all the leftovers."

Just Amusing Themselves.

When finished is the tariff bill
'Twill be, my fellow men,
A deal like marching up the hill
And marching down again.

Rejuvenated.

"When is a girl an old maid?"

"At thirty, they say."

"Pshaw! Girls are just getting young then."

"That's so. I know several of that age who are just twenty-three."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

People who would rather accuse an offender than excuse a penitent are comfortable people to keep away from.

The easier a man makes love the more a woman suspects him and the harder for him the more she ridicules him.

But we never for a moment imagine that we are barely tolerated by our neighbors.

It is hard to believe that other people really mean what they say when they speak in censure of us.

There are too many men in this world who know more about what ails the general government than they do about what ails themselves.

SOME HEALTHOGRAMS

Warn your child not to use the common drinking cup, the common towel or the common brush and comb. They are all means for carrying disease and dirt.

The habit-forming time is the child time of life. Start your child with the right habits by seeing that he is betimes to school each morning. The laggard to school is the laggard to work in after years too often.

Physical health has a strong influence on character. That is one of the very vital reasons why it should be guarded with such care in the school life and the home life of the growing child.

Anæmia will be found among persons of all ages, but should be especially guarded against among school children. A proteid diet is required to overcome it. Red meat once a day, also eggs, milk, butter and cream, should be given. Fish, poultry, cracked wheat, potatoes, beans and fresh vegetables are allowed.

Suggest to the teacher to whom your boy or girl will go to school that it is the part of wisdom to have a thermometer in the room. Teach your child how to read it.

Children should be taught the significance of the fact that they can do without food for weeks, water for days, but not even minutes without air.

Artist's Beautiful Wife

MRS. C. D. GIBSON

To be chosen as one of the eight most beautiful women in a great city like New York, all must admit, is a pretty large compliment. Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson is one of the eight whom the well known artist, Penhryn Stanslaws, named in this group.

Watch Baby's Breathing

A mother should begin to train the baby to breathe through its nose at once. This advice seems threadbare with repeating. But there are new babies and new mothers in the world every day.

The habit, once formed, is likely to continue through an individual's life. To try and train a good-sized child, or, worse still, a grown person to breathe through the nose is a problem.

The nose is a better filtering plant than man has been able to invent. It not only filters the air, but it also warms and moistens it, preparing it for contact with the lungs. Pure air is just as necessary to the lungs as pure water is to the stomach. Therefore breathe only through the nose.

If you find trouble in breathing this way, or the child seems unable to breathe through the nose while sleeping, adenoids or some other obstruction may be causing the trouble. Such a difficulty should always be a warning to the mother to have the child's nose and throat carefully examined at once.

The Milk Cure

The milk cure is frequently recommended for Bright's disease, gout, neurasthenia, intestinal putrefaction and a few other diseases. The treatment usually begins with four ounces of warm skimmed milk every two hours; after a few days, six to eight ounces every four hours. Sometimes it is given flavor with weak tea or coffee. After four to six weeks other food is gradually added to the dietary.

Do not throw away one drop of sour milk. Many things can be made with it if one knows how.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—The opening was strong on the Winnipeg market, caused by higher Liverpool cables and British millers buying heavily. Wheat prices were ⅝c to ⅞c higher, oats ⅛c to ⅜c higher, and flax 1¼c to 2½c higher. Following the opening there were further advances to the extent of ⅛c to ⅛c, which placed May wheat about noon at $1.25 with the undertone strong. The heavy primary receipts in the south and receipts from the Canadian west tended to hold prices steady. The export business continues decidedly active and overnight offers were accepted this morning.

Anticipations were that more transactions in this line would be carried thru today.

A late despatch claiming a big victory for the Russians over the Germans broke the prices sharply and values declined under the previous low points for the day. Closing figures were ⅝c to ⅞c lower for wheat and ½c to ⅝c lower for oats. Flax, on the other hand, closed higher, 1⅞c to 4⅛c.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat continues good and as cables were stronger at a further advance of 3d to 6d per quarter considerable business was done for December shipment from West St. John, from which port there was also a good demand for ocean grain room. One tramp vessel was engaged to sail from here this month with a full cargo at 5s per quarter which is the highest rate paid this year so far. There was also some demand on spot for wheat and sales of 50,000 of No. 3 northern were made at 1.20½ per bushel c.i.f. the bay.

The market for oats continues strong and prices show a further advance of ½ to ¾c per bushel, but the demand is still somewhat limited. There was an improved demand from foreign buyers for low grade spring wheat flour today and sales of some round lots were made but the bids for export patent were 9d per sack below what millers are disposed to accept. Mill feed in good demand and firmer with sales of carlots for December shipment at $25 for bran and $27 for shorts.

Butter continues quiet but steady. Demand for cheese improved and sales of 7,000 boxes were made between houses and several lots over the cable. Eggs active and strong.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 5.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.16⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.13 to $1.15⅝; No. 2 do., $1.10 to $1.13⅝; Dec., $1.13.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 66c to 69c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 45c to 45½c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $5.95; first clears, $4.80; second clears, $3.40.

Bran—Unchanged.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 609 cattle, 2018 hogs, 996 sheep and lambs and 55 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

There were no choice lots or loads on sale. Good steers and heifers sold at $7 to $7.50; medium butchers' steers and heifers at $6.50 to $6.75; common butchers' steers and heifers at $6 to $6.25; choice cows at $6.50 to $6.75; good cows at $5.75 to $6.25; canners and cutters at $3 to $4.50; bulls at $5 to $6.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

The stocker and feeder market was dull and prices easier. Choice feeders, 800 to 900 lbs., were quoted at $6 to $6.25; good, $5.75 to $6; medium, $5 to $5.50; stockers sold from $4 to $4.75.

Veal Calves.

Choice calves sold at $10 to $10.50; good calves, $8.50 to $9.50; medium, $7 to $8; common, $6 to $7; inferior eastern calves, $3.50 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, $5 to $5.75; culls and rams, $3.50 to $4; lambs, $7.50 to $7.75; medium lambs, $7 to $7.25; culls, $6 to $6.50.

Hogs.

The hog market was firm. Selects sold at $7.25 to $7.40; $7 f.o.b. cars; and $7.60 to $7.65 weighed off cars.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 5.—There was a strict embargo on cattle shipments out of East Buffalo today as a result of the state quarantine following discovery of suspected disease among cattle, traceable to the local yards.

Today's receipts of 4800 head of hogs, sheep and cattle from unaffected districts of the west, and from Canada, were disposed of to local packers for immediate slaughter. No stock is now permitted to go thru the state unless it has been approved by the federal and state inspectors.

Seeks Canadian Eden

Charles Camsell Looking for Headquarters of Thelon River

Far up in the Canadian North, at Fort Chipewyan on Lake Athabasca, Charles Camsell, geologist of the Canadian Department of Geology, mailed a card on June 15th to a friend in Toronto, and it reached here a few days ago.

In an endeavor to throw more light on a subject which Samuel Hearne only partially developed after his Canadian Arctic exploration trip of 1771, Camsell is probably encamped on some barren waste in that broad territory northwest of Fort Churchill, in his hunt for figures and facts for the Department of Geology of the Dominion Government. Figures and facts he must obtain of territory heretofore unexplored by the modern white man, excepting, of course, Hearne, who passed over it lightly in his book published in 1795 in London, England, in the account of his three inland trips from Fort Churchill, then the Hudson Bay Co. post, Fort Prince of Wales.

At the time of Hearne's journeys, which preceded the successful trips of Sir Alexander McKenzie by a few years, Northern and, in fact, Western Canada was to a great many a barren area of unpeopled and unfertile waste. One hundred and fifty years have almost rolled by and still a vast part of that land is undiscovered and mapped only in vague lines.

But the curiosity of Charles Camsell has been piqued by Hearne's reference to one piece of territory which he but faintly outlines. To use Hearne's own words from his book, "Great numbers of deer throng in these forests, where they thrive. Wild ducks, geese, swan, and a remarkable specie of partridge as large as an English fowl are said to abound in these domains. The Indians also told us of fine fish in the clear streams that net the territory. In fact," wrote Hearne, "I have not seen or heard of any part of this country which seems to possess half the advantages requisite for a residence that are ascribed to this little spot."

Hearne did not visit this place, as it was several hundreds of miles out of his course, and his statements are based on the assertions of various tribes of Indians met, which, the explorer states, he thoroughly believes. Mr. J. B. Tyrell, who edited Hearne's book, in a footnote states that it is his belief that the situation of this spot is on the banks of the Thelon river, a northern waterway emptying into Hudson Bay. The source of the Thelon river has never been mapped and the location of this spot which Hearne speaks so highly of will not be known until the return of Mr. Camsell, and when his report is made.

It is believed to be situated midway between the mouth of the Coppermine river at the Arctic ocean, Fort Chipewyan on Lake Athabasca, and Fort Churchill. That is a vast territory, but a fairly reliable idea is had of the course of the Thelon river, and somewhere on its banks lies the goal of Mr. Camsell's desire.

The explorer left Fort Chipewyan in the middle of June, "when the ice had left Lake Athabasca," and he believed his journey would take up the whole of an Ontario summer, and that he would cover about 1,000 miles in his search. Mr. Camsell may be back at his starting point with all the data of his trip by now, but it is exceedingly unlikely that he knows the first thing about the gigantic war waging in Europe.

A Scheme For Soundings.

Alexander Graham Bell, the Canadian inventor, told a class of young students the other day about putting his head under water and striking two stones together beneath the surface. "It sounded as if a man were hammering for all he was worth at my very ear."

Next he sent a boy a mile away to strike the stones and "the signals came perfectly clear and distinct."

In these little facts, and the other fact that sound goes over 5,000 feet a second through water to its 1,000 feet through air, lay for somebody the germ of the submarine bell signals used on ships.

Now, in exposing the earth's surface as it lies under deep waters, a great deal of time and labor is expended merely in ascertaining the depth.

"Why," asks Prof. Bell, "should we not send down a sound instead and listen for an echo from the bottom?"—thus accomplishing in four seconds a work now taking sometimes more than four hours.

And we should learn by the shorter method something of the nature of things below. "A flat bottom should yield a single sharp return, whereas an undulating bottom should yield a multiple echo, like that heard when you fire a pistol among hills."

The man who butts in never makes much headway.

TRUNK CHECKED TO PETERBORO BUT THE YOUNG GIRL CAME NOT

Close on the trail of the young girl who escaped from Mrs. E. E. Sharpe on Monday night last was a lady inspector from the Barnardo Home, Toronto, who arrived in town yesterday afternoon in search of the youthful wanderer.

On arriving here she convened with Chief of Police Short, who gave such information as he was conversant with: that the escaped girl had breakfast on Tuesday morning at Mr. Voicie's, east of Lindsay, and continued her way east towards Omemee.

The Barnardo inspecter informed the Chief that the girl wanted came from Klemburg, and was on her way via G.T.R. to Peterboro, where a position awaited her, but from reasons known only to herself stopped off in Lindsay. Her trunk was checked to Peterboro, and is there at the present time. It is understood that before leaving where she had previously been she appropriated a gold watch to her own use and purpose.—Lindsay Warder.

GUY FAWKES CELEBRATION

Large Gathering in Orange Hall at Downer's Corners

Oh! Don't you remember,
The fifth of November.

Last evening Guy Fawkes' Day was fittingly celebrated by the Orange Lodge at Downer's Corners. It was a night of real enjoyment and one long to be remembered by the people who were there.

Over 300 people attended and partook of the many good things that were offered to satisfy the craving of the inner man.

After the supper, the following delivered addresses which were of a very inspiring nature: Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., Mayor Buller, G. W. Green, W. J. Johnston, George Duncan, Chief Howard, Adjutant McElhiney, Grand Organizer McCartney, of Toronto; Deputy County Master Reid and the Rev. H. J. Keith. The various speakers' remarks drew great applause from the large gathering, as they touched upon the popular themes of the day.

During the evening several musical selections were given which were well received.

After the gathering broke up and as the crowds were leaving the effigy of Guy Fawkes was set on fire. The Brownton Fife and Drum band were in attendance.

TAKES ACTION AGAINST MILITIA DEPARTMENT

Sectionman Was Injured in Eye by Discharge of Blank Cartridge

Norwood, Nov. 6.—Richard Jones, a C.P.R. section man, of this village, who had his eye hurt on the morning of the 26th of June last, as the result of being struck by a discharge fom a blank cartridge fired at close range by one of a trainload of soldiers returning to Lindsay from Petewawa camp, has entered a claim against the Department of Militia and Defence for $3000.00 damages as compensation for injuries received. It will be remembered that Jones, in company with Mr. E. Kelly, a fellow sectionman, was working on the track some miles east of here, when the train of soldiers passed. Jones and Kelly stepped to one side of the track and while standing there were fired at, by what was supposed to be blank cartridges, by some of the occupants of the coaches. Jones from following his usual occupation for over three months and is still received a charge in the eye, which blinded him for the time. He was brought to Norwood and attended by Dr. N. F. Sutton. He claims to have suffered severely from nervous shock and has been incapacitated suffering from general impairment of health.

The claimant is a married man and the father of a family of four young girls.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

guage by the leader of the campaign, Dr. Gordon, in his remarks of general thanks at the meeting last evening.

Dr. Gordon occupied forty-five minutes in answering twenty-seven questions. These questions had reference to all phases of Christian Citizenship and to all sides of Christian life.

In brief, while he could not accept all the teachings of Christian Science, he was pleased with their emphasis upon the value of good cheer in life, and expressed his admiration of the people who belonged to the Christian Science Church.

He affirmed that the preacher of the gospel, ought to have the privilege of speaking in the pulpit upon the labor question or any other question which has to do with the improving of the conditions of the great masses of the people.

He affirmed that it was not safe for young people to indulge in liquor drinking, even in their own homes, and that the liquor traffic should be banished from the land.

Woman is morally stronger than man. She is the incarnation of God and the conscience for the race. Were it not for Christian womanhood of the world, the race would go to wreck and ruin. A Christian woman is the bright, consummate flower of the Christian civilisation.

Preachers are not an over-paid class. The skilled mechanic on the continent of North America receives a much higher compensation for his services than the average member of the great army of one hundred thousand Christian preachers who stand in the pulpits of the churches on this continent.

With reference to the renting of pews, the Doctor affirmed that the main question was not whether the pews had been rented or not, but the character of the man who sits at the end of the pew either to welcome the stranger or exclude the casual visitor. Everything depends upon the spirit of the occupant of the pew.

With reference to the question "Should a Protestant marry a Catholic," Dr. Gordon affirmed that the judgment of both the Roman Catholic priest and the Protestant clergyman was to the effect that while sometimes very happy relationships resulted from the marriage between representatives of the two great divisions of modern Christianity, yet it was not safe for people to marry when they differed on things as fundamental as that which divides the Roman Catholic and the Protestant Churches. Dr. Gordon felt that he had the backing of both priest and preacher when he ventured to advise young people not to violate the fundamental religious convictions which possessed them when they organized a home.

Dr. Gordon affirmed that the world is growing better and not worse. That no man can read history and come to any other conclusion than that the effect of Christianity in the world has been to improve and brighten. If one will simply stop for a moment and think of the Coliseum at Rome and five hundred years of bloodshed, not for war, but for pleasure, and remember how the pleasures of the world have been improved, purified and elevated, they can only come to one conclusion, namely, that humanity is gradually rising to higher standards and to higher conditions.

He expressed his faith and confidence in the character of the man who stands in the Christian pulpit on the North American continent. He believes they are honest and sincere. That they express the convictions which have taken hold of mind and conscience and souls. That the preachers as a class, are not dominated by the Board of Management and Ecclesiastical officials, but bravely and courageously utter the innermost convictions with reference to the fundamental facts and ideas of Christianity, in their application to every day affairs.

He thought that in a political campaign, a preacher should speak his mind, without partisanship or political bias. He rather thought that this should be done a month or so prior to that time when men loose their reason and common sense in the heat of a great political contest.

He did not believe in a standing army. A standing army is a standing invitation to fight. The untrained man who fights for his home and for his flag, is a better fighter than the trained man whose only ambition is a military promotion.

In answering the question, "Can a man make a million dollars honestly?" Dr. Gordon affirmed that in these days, a million dollars was not a large amount of money. That he believed that some men were naturally gifted for the accumulation of wealth. In his opinion, it was a crime for certain men not to be rich, and an indication that they have mis-used their talents and failed to avail themselves of their opportunities. The question with reference to a man's wealth, is not the size of it, but the use which he makes of it, and the only solution for our race, commercially and socially, inside my, the next fifty or seventy-five years, will be expressed in one sentence, "What does the man of large wealth do with his wealth?"

In conclusion, Dr. Gordon asked the people who attended the meetings of this campaign to be loyal to church and pastor. Whether Protestant or Catholic, a man owes it to the welfare of he community, his home and his nation, to be true to his own church. Young people beginning married life and establishing a home, could do nothing better than at the same time to identify themselves with the church of their choice, and if at any of these meetings of this campaign, man or woman have received an inspiration and passed over the line into the Kingdom of God, the doctor knew of no better or more dignified way to place their faith in Christ, than to unite with the church, and he hoped at an early communion, after the conclusion of this campaign, multitudes would see fit to inaugurate anew life and higher aspirations, by identifying themselves with the Church of God.

Reverend Mr. Pogue of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church concluded by expressing on behalf of the committee and those interested in this campaign, their deep appreciation for the manner in which this campaign had been conducted by Dr. Gordon and his colleagues.

Doctor and Mrs. Gordon who are stopping at the Oriental Hotel, will leave Peterborough on Saturday morning for Ottawa, where Dr. Gordon will conduct a Citizenship Campaign under the special auspices of the Presbyterian Churches of the Capital City. The first week's service will be held in the Chalmer's Presbyterian Church, and the plans for the Ottawa campaign are so comprehensive and well carried out, that Dr. Gordon is looking forward to a most enthusiastic reception and a delightful period of delivering his plain talks on Christian Citizenship.

Police Make Arrest for Chief at Cobourg

The Peterborough police force are establishing quite a record for gathering in men who are wanted by the chiefs of the surrounding districts.

Last evening Chief Thompson received a telegram from Chief Ruse of Cobourg that he held a warrant for the arrest of W. W. Friend, alias Ross and Bell, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. It was not very long until Detective Meagher had encircled the arm of the law around this man, and he will be taken back to Cobourg today.

After a while these culprits who are successful in evading arrest in other towns, will learn to give Peterborough the go-by.

SIGNAL BELL AT G.T.R. CROSSING

Where Jas. Cowie Met His Death on Dominion Day

The Grand Trunk Railway is installing an electric bell where the Monaghan road crosses their Port Hope line. It will be remembered that this is the crossing where James Cowie was killed on July 1 of this year. This bell will fill a long-felt want, as it was a very dangerous crossing. The bell will be in working order tomorrow.

LETTERS FROM THE PETERBORO SOLDIERS

Mrs. C. James, 505 Sherbrooke St., has received a letter from her grandson, Pte. Fred Board, who is with No. 5 Company in the 14th Battalion of the first Canadian force, now in training at Salisbury Plain. Pte. Board says:

We had a fine trip across the ocean. We have been on the boat 18 days, but I guess we will be able to get off tomorrow, as we docked yesterday, but could not leave the boat. There are many fine sights. The grass is as green as it could be, and the weather is warm as in summer. There are battleships around us all the time.

On the trip across we had all kinds of sport. We had boxing matches every day and a fine concert at night.

Pte. Thos. Parrington also writes to Mrs. James, describing the trip across the Atlantic. He was not bothered with seasickness, he says, "but the best of it was that the fellows who were telling us how it would finish us were the first to get it. We did not know our destination until we landed at Plymouth. We were 26 days on board, and when we landed you may be sure we were happy."

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH EAKINS.

After an illness of over two years during which time she was constantly under the care of two nurses, Mrs. Elisabeth Eakins, aged 62, died at the residence of her son-in-law, T. Urquhart Fairlie, 23 St. Andrew's Gardens, Toronto. Mrs. Eakins was born in Port Hope, and went to Toronto about fifteen years ago. Besides her husband, James Eakins, her loss is mourned by five children—Mrs. G. E. Oxley, H. O. Eakins, J. M. Eakins, R. C. Eakins and Miss Marjorie Eakins. The remains will be taken to Port Hope, and the funeral held from the homestead.

Mr. Jas. Eakins is a brother of Thos. Eakins, Gilmour street.

INVESTIGATE COMPLAINTS OF INMATE

At this afternoon's session of the County Council, F. McKee, chairman of the house of refuge committee, presented his report. At the close of his report Mr. McKee drew attention to certain stories circulated by an elderly man named Coughlin, who was an inmate of the House of Refuge for nine months, and then went to the House of Providence. According to Coughlin's story he wrote three letters to friends and they never reached their destination. Further, he claimed that a friend had sent him $5 and it had never reached him.

One of the other councillors remarked that it was the duty of the Council to investigate the matter, and it was decided to have the committee carry on an investigation and report to the next session.

At this morning's meeting, on motion of Councillors Garbutt and Squire, the clerk was authorised to write to J. H. Burnham, M. P., and convey to him the gratitude of the Council for the trophy he presented in the plowmen's competition. It was also decided to grant the usual $40 to the Poultry Association on condition that an exhibition be held.

Flying from the war, a famous Belgian pianist saved 28 trunks. Were he a German, he would get an Iron Cross for that.

RUSSIA'S PRIZE

Bear's Paw on Austria's Provinces of Galicia and Bukovina.

Up in the Carpathian mountains in eastern Austria, where rises the great Vistula to flow into the Baltic and the Dneister to flow into the Black sea, is the key to the situation so far as Russia is mainly concerned in this struggle of the nations of Europe.

For the region to the east of the Carpathians, the crown land provinces of Galicia and Bukovina, is the region that the Great Bear of the North has his eye on as his reward for the war, the region toward which his paw is even now reaching, which when it is once within his grasp, he will sweep into the realm of the Czar.

The veil of secrecy yet conceals the condition of Austria's army, but a dispatch from Rome emphasizes the statement that the forces of Francis Joseph are demoralised and that Russia met little resistance and found an openly friendly populace when it marched into Galicia.

And well might the people be friendly to Russia. It is a case again of blood being thicker than water, of consanguinity deciding the question of affiliation. The 8,000,000 inhabitants of Galicia are Poles and Ruthenians, both friendly to Russia. The 800,000 people in Bukovina are largely Ruthenians. In the two provinces the bulk of the population belongs to the Greek Orthodox church, a further bond of attachment to the Czar's land.

These are among the reasons why the Russians found such easy going when they invaded the country. These are the reasons why the humblest peasant was proud to lead the Russians, to point out the hidden trenches of the Austrians. These are the reasons why secret signals have been given to the Russians; why a man, bearing a banner in a religious procession, so moved the staff that the burnished brass of its tip, glistening in the sun, flashed a message to the watching Russians. This explains the boy, whom an Austrian found high up in a tree, heliographing a message to the invaders with a bit of bright tin.

They used to say the Carpathians were impregnable. By their invasion through the Ussok pass the Russians have disproved this tradition. Northward into Silesia their plans doubtless lead them, whence they hope to invade Germany and march on to Berlin by the most direct route.

But the prize in all this for Russia will be the two provinces of Austria east of the Carpathian mountains, lands that long have seemed a natural part of Russia by reason of the racial division of the people.

Swiss Guides.

No words can describe the patience, good humor and skill of the Swiss guides. Their quick eyes see every danger, their prompt actions avert it. When "on the rope" one has a feeling of perfect security, and on steep aretes and rotten ice, on crumbling rocks and abrupt precipices, one has implicit confidence in their strength, judgment and endurance. That these guides possess a sixth sense is indisputable. One might almost call it acute premonition, for it warns them in advance of all dangers incident to mountaineering and, combined with a marvelous dexterity and an intrepid courage, serves to avert calamity and insure success.

Patriotic Young Lady

Mr. Churchill's Sister in-Law Serving as Hospital Interpreter

Mrs. Winston Churchill, with responsibilities and a perambulator at home, has not gone to the front as a nurse, but her sister, Miss Nellie Hozier, would let nothing keep her in England while Belgium was full of wounded. With no special training in medicine, she was obliged to join a little expert band of doctors and nurses as interpreter. Not one of her companions knew French or German, and though a wounded man can make anybody understand when he wants a drink of water, his foreign friends are often left in the dark as to his more elaborate needs. Miss Nellie Hozier has a fund of the high courage that goes with high spirits. She was in the first flight of young women to loop the loop at Hendon.

LORD BRYCE ON WHAT HISTORY WILL ASK

(From Public Opinion.)

Viscount Bryce, till lately our ambassador to the United States, in a long article to the Daily Chronicle, controverts the poisoned teaching of General Bernhardi:

"It is only vulgar minds," he says, "that mistake bigness for greatness, for greatness is of the Soul, not of the Body.

"In the judgment which history will hereafter pass upon the forty centuries of recorded progress towards civilization that now lie behind us, what are the tests it will apply to determine the true greatness of a people?

"Not population, not territory, not wealth, not military power.

"Rather will history ask:

"What examples of lofty character and unselfish devotion to honor and duty has a people given?

"What has it done to increase the volume of knowledge?

"What thoughts and what ideals of permanent value and unexhausted fertility has it bequeathed to mankind?

"What works has it produced in poetry, music, and the other arts to be an unfailing source of enjoyment to posterity?

Advance by Thinking.

"The small peoples need not fear the application of such tests.

"The world advances not, as the Bernhardi school suppose, only or even mainly by fighting. It advances mainly by Thinking and by a process of reciprocal teaching and learning, by a continuous and unconscious co-operation of all its strongest and finest minds.

"Each race—Hellenic, Italic, Celtic, Teutonic, Iberian, Slavonic—has something to give, each something to learn: and when their blood is blent the mixed stock may combine the gifts of both.

"The most progressive races have been those who combined willingness to learn with a strength which enabled them to receive without loss to their own quality, retaining their primal vigor, but entering into the labors of others, as the Teutons who settled within the dominions of Rome, profited by the lessons of the old civilization.

The Teachings of History.

"What are the teachings of history — history to which General Bernhardi is fond of appealing?

"That war has been the constant handmaid of tyranny and the source of more than half the miseries of man.

"That although some wars have been necessary and have given occasion for the display of splendid heroism — wars of defence against aggression, or to succor the oppressed—most wars have been needless or unjust.

"That the mark of an advancing civilization has been the substitution of friendship for hatred and of peaceful for warlike ideals.

"That small peoples have done and can do as much for the common good of humanity as large peoples.

"That Treaties must be observed, for what are they but records of national faith solemnly pledged? and what could bring mankind more surely and swiftly back to that reign of violence and terror from which it has been slowly rising for the past ten centuries than the destruction of trust in the plighted faith of nations?

"No event has brought out that essential unity which now exists in the world so forcibly as this war has done, for no event has ever so affected every part of the world. Four continents are involved — the whole of the Old World — and the New World suffers grievously in its trade, industry and finance. Thus the whole world is interested in preventing the recurrence of such a calamity.

The Only Solid Foundation.

"We are told that armaments must be reduced, that the baleful spirit of militarism must be quenched, that the peoples must everywhere be admitted to a fuller share in the control of foreign policy, that efforts must be made to establish a sort of League of Concord—some system of international relations, and reciprocal peace alliances by which the weaker nations may be protected, and under which differences between nations may be adjusted by courts of arbitration and conciliation of wider scope than those that now exist.

"All these things are desirable. But no scheme for preventing future wars will have any chance of success unless it rests upon the assurance that the States which enter into it will loyally and steadfastly abide by it, and that each and all of them will join in coercing by their overwhelming united strength any State which may disregard the obligations it has undertaken.

"The faith of treaties is the only solid foundation on which a Temple of Peace can be built up."

The State or Humanity.

Lord Bryce vigorously combats the German idea that the State is greater than Humanity.

"The most startling of Bernhardi's doctrines," he says, "are (1) the denial that there are any duties owed by the State to Humanity, except that of imposing its own superior civilization upon as large a part of humanity as possible, and (2) the denial of the duty of observing treaties. Treaties are only so much paper.

"To modern German writers the State is a much more tremendous entity than it is to Englishmen or Americans. It is a supreme power with a sort of mystic sanctity, a power conceived of, as it were, self-created, a force altogether distinct from, and superior to, the persons who compose it.

"But a State is, after all, only so many individuals organized under a government. It is no wiser, no more righteous, than the human beings of whom it consists, and whom it sets up to govern it.

Has the State no Morality?

"Has the State, then, no morality, no responsibility?

"Is there no such thing as a common humanity? Are there no duties owed to it? Is there none of that 'decent respect to the opinion of mankind' which the framers of the Declaration of Independence recognised; no sense that even the greatest States are amenable to the sentiment of the civilized world?

"The small States, whose absorption is now threatened, have been potent and useful — perhaps the most potent and useful — factors in the advance of civilization. It is in them and by them that most of what is most precious in religion, in philosophy, in literature, in science, and in art has been produced.

"The first great thoughts that brough man into a true relation with God came from a tiny people inhabiting a country smaller than Denmark. The religions of mighty Babylon and populous Egypt have vanished: the religion of Israel remains in its earlier as well as in that later form which has overspread the world.

"The Greeks were small people not united in one great State, but scattered over coasts and among hills in petty city communities, each with its own life, slender in numbers, but eager, versatile, intense. They gave us the richest, the most varied, and the most stimulating of all literatures.

What We Owe to Small Peoples.

"In modern Europe what do we not owe to little Switzerland, lighting the torch of freedom 600 years ago, and keeping it alight through all the centuries when despotic monarchies held the rest of the European Continent? And what to free Holland, with her great men of learning and her painters surpassing those of all other countries save Italy?

"So the small Scandinavian nations have given to the world famous men of science, from Linnaeus downwards, poets like Tegner and Biornson, scholars like Madvig, dauntless explorers like Fridthiof Nansen. England had, in the age of Shakespeare, Bacon and Milton, a population little larger than that of Bulgaria today. The United States in the days of Washington and Franklin and Jefferson and Hamilton and Marshall, counted fewer inhabitants than Denmark or Greece."

Big Force In Waiting

Turks Have 90,000 Men to Meet The Advancing Russians.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 6.—A Turkish army, 90,000 strong, consisting of the 9th 10th and 11th army corps, is massed along the Caucasian frontier, according to The Novoe Vremya. Many villages have been occupied by the outposts of this army.

The Turkish army, The Novoe Vremya continues, would consist under normal conditions of eighty battalions of infantry, sixty batteries of artillery, containing 230 guns, and forty squadrons of regular cavalry, but to it has been added fifty regiments of Kurd cavalry, amounting to 20,000 men.

Russia's sudden and energetic advance into Turkey is believed in Petrograd to have been meant to disband and overawe the Kurd tribes, who are little interested in the success of Turkish arms, and are more concerned in the safety of their own villages. Among the towns occupied by the Russians is Akhty, an important junction of the highways to the upper Euphrates river.

It is rumored in Petrograd that Gen. Sanders Pasha will assume command of the Turkish troops on the Caucasian front.

The following communication of the General Staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus was made public here last night:

"Concerning the operations during the last twenty-four hours, there is nothing important to report.

"Our troops are vigorously clearing the enemy's territory, which is occupied by small bands, the remnant of the Turkish vanguards defeated during the last few days.

"One of our columns has defeated the Turks near Bazygan, routing them and capturing the town. The Turks, in their flight, threw away their arms and scattered to the villages in the neighborhood.

"Our cavalry attacked to the east of Dyaden three Kurd regiments supported by infantry, and threw them back."

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

PARIS, Nov. 6. — The following official communication was issued at the French War Office last night:

"There is no new information on the operations at the north of the Lys.

"In a violent offensive movement by the Germans north of Arras, we lost a few trenches which later were retaken.

"In the Argonne (region of St. Hubert) all the German attacks have been successfully repulsed.

"Concerning the remainder of the battle front there is nothing of importance to report."

Yesterday afternoon's War Office report from Paris says:

"On our left wing the allied forces have made slight progress to the east of Nieuport on the right bank of the Yser. From Dixmude to the Lys the German attacks were renewed yesterday, but at a number of points with lessened energy, particularly with regard to the actions of their infantry.

"The Franco-British lines have at no point drawn back and our troops, undertaking the offensive, have made notable progress in several directions. Between the region of La Bassee and the Somme the day was notable, particularly for an artillery contest.

"In the region of Roye we have maintained our occupation of Le Quesnoy-en-Santerre and advanced perceptibly in the direction of Andechy.

"On the centre, between the Oise and the Moselle, there has been a recrudescenc of the activity of the Germans, manifested especially by their artillery fire.

"Summing up it may be said that the attacks of the enemy at various points on our front have been repulsed, in some instances after an engagement which lasted all day long. On our right wing there is nothing new to report."

Army Aviator Killed.

ALDERSHOT, Eng., Nov. 6.—Aviator Busk of the aircraft staff was burned to death in midair yesterday when the biplane which he was testing caught fire.

While about 1,000 feet above the ground the biplane suddenly burst into flames. Busk tried to descend by gliding. He continued this for nearly a mile, the aircraft blazing furiously. The aviator was burned to death before the machine struck the ground.

More War Prisoners.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 6. — There is now a regular village at Fort Henry, 37 more prisoners of war having been brought to Kingston from Montreal, making the total enrollment 360. The men are putting in the most of their time at soccer football and have of late given their guards no trouble.

Lieut. Murray Killed.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Lieut. Murray lost his life in an aeroplane accident at the Avon Flying School yesterday morning. It is believed that he miscalculated the distance while landing, after making a flight over Rushall Down. His machine crashed to the earth and he was killed.

Admiral Lord Fisher, who is now First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, is the closest approach to Lord Kitchener in the British navy.

On a Pedestal

Those things we value most highly, as symbolizing the best in Art, in Science or in Literature, are fittingly placed upon a pedestal, where we can look up to them.

Figuratively speaking, we also place upon the pedestal of our imagination, those high ideals, those lofty aspirations, by which, in our more thoughtful moments, we would wish to guide our conduct.

Among those guiding principles, why not place upon a pedestal of its own, an ideal that may be better described as "Canada First," rather than "Made in Canada."

The "Made in Canada" movement stands for far more than mere commercial patriotism. Pride of country, pride of national resources, pride of national accomplishment in the realms of literature, art and science, pride of virile citizenship, and pride of national destiny, are all embraced within the broad sweep of this deep seated and soul stirring movement.

Future generations will look back to 1914 as an epoch marking year in Canada's history if you, in common with all her citizens, will only resolve, from this day forward, to be guided by the motto

"CANADA FIRST"

RUMORS OF BATTLE.

British Sweeper Sunk By Mine In North Sea.

LONDON, Nov. 6. — Despite unprecedented activity on the part of the chief of the Admiralty, censorship on all naval movements was absolutely ironclad yesterday. As a result, many rumors of impending fighting on the sea were widely circulated.

There is no disguising the alarm felt in some quarters over the report that a strong German squadron has slipped into the North Sea, cleared for action. Such a squadron, unless promptly located by the British fleet, might cause much damage by bombarding coast cities.

The Admiralty positively refuses to confirm or deny the report that this German squadron actually is at large.

The British mine sweeper Mary was sunk by a mine in the North Sea yesterday. Six of the crew of fourteen were rescued.

Survivors who were landed at Lowestoft reported heavy gun-firing off the Yorkshire coast yesterday afternoon.

A despatch from Lowestoft reports that heavy cannonading, supposedly between British and German warships, was heard in the North Sea yesterday morning.

A despatch to The Daily Telegraph from Odessa by way of Moscow says that twelve Turkish and German transports carrying coal have been sunk near Uzunguldak, on the coast of Anatolia.

A despatch from Bucharest, Roumania, says: "Turkish warships have sunk two Russian passenger steamships in the Black Sea after forcing the passengers and crew to take to the boats."

The Turkish fleet has taken refuge in the Bosphorus to avoid further pursuit by the Russian Black Sea squadron, according to an announcement from the Russian Admiralty yesterday.

Young ocra pods boiled tender, sliced cold with shredded green peppers, served on lettuce leaves, with a dressing of oil, vinegar, salt and pepper and a little horseradish.

Peas cooked with mint leaves, served with chipped chicken on lettuce leaves with French dressing. Minced lamb may be used instead of the chicken.

SWITZERLAND READY

A picture postcard which is popular in Switzerland bears the legend, "The Kaiser in the country of the best rifle-shots." It shows a conventional caricature of the German Emperor, helmeted, spurred, and high-booted, with a hand on the hilt of his big sword. He is looking at a simple Swiss soldier carrying a rifle. In the background is a musketry target, showing a hit full in the centre of the bull's-eye.

"And so, my son," says the Kaiser, "there are a hundred thousand shots like you in Switzerland. But suppose I come with two hundred thousand Prussians?"

"In that case, your Majesty," replies the Swiss, "we shall each of us fire two shots!"

When German official statements announce that there is no change in the situation in Poland it means that the Germans are merely breaking a few world's sprinting records.

THE SPORTING WORLD

ONE OF PETERBORO'S OLD LACROSSE PLAYERS TO SCORE AGAINST KAISER

Don Hogarth, M.L.A., for Port Arthur, a former member of the Peterboro lacrosse team, in the good old days of '97 and '98, when Orillia and Peterboro teams had real battles on the field, has volunteered to go to the front with Canada's Second Contingent. After leaving Peterboro, Don went to the Canadian Soo and then to Port Arthur, where he was very successful in the real estate business, associated with Mr. J. J. Carrick. Don was an excellent lacrossist as well as hockeyist and was the life of these organizations at both the Soo and Port Arthur. He was always a hard, determined player, who fought in every contest to a finish and never quit. These traits he will carry with him to the front. Ed. McKay's paper, the Port Arthur News, prints the following, and in all likelihood the newspaper man referred to is Blake himself:—

"Don Hogarth is going to the front!. One day about six weeks ago Mr. Hogarth and a newspaper man stood at C.P.R. depot watching the departure of a troop train to an accompaniment of cheers and 'Tipperary.' Said Mr. Hogarth: "It makes your blood tingle, doesn't it?" Mr. Hogarth is fit. He is going as lieutenant in the transport department with the second contingent. Holding, as he does, extra pronounced views on the value of British connection, he is inspired not with the job but with an inborn zeal to serve the empire. His position as a volunteer is unique. His rank as a citizen and in the councils of the province as a member of the Ontario legislature lends a special interest to the announcement of his intention to put on the King's uniform and take his chance in the world's war for justice, the Empire's defence, and the dethronement of the German war lords. He will be followed to the front by the hearty good wishes of all classes of citizens. As Mr. Hogarth said: 'It makes your blood tingle!'" — Orillia News Letter.

Ping Bodie Has Jumped to Feds.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Ping Bodie has jumped the White Sox, according to report. The publication of the news was credited to Federal League interests and was doubted by many Chicago fans who are loyal to Charlie Comiskey. Bodie has signed a one year contract with the Sox. He was not a sensation this year, even so Manager Callahan denies it was his intention to send him to the minors. Bodie is on the Pacific Coast. The Buffeds are said to have snared him.

PERCY LE SUEUR FOR THE COAST

Ottawa, Nov. 5. — The Ottawa Hockey Club will likely trade or sell Percy LeSueur to the Pacific Coast League this winter, LeSueur being wanted by the Patricks to manage the Portland team. The great hockey custodian has been wearing the Ottawa uniform regularly since 1906. He made his first appearance in this city that year when Smith's Falls challenged for the Stanley Cup. His work in the cage of the challengers was wonderful, and when Ottawa and Wanderers sawed-off for the championship of the Federal League he was brought on by the Senators to replace Billy Hague in goal in the return game in Ottawa. He has been with the team ever since. During some seasons, LeSueur's great work alone has kept the team up in the running.

LeSueur says he will not go to Portland.

JENNINGS WAS NOT TO BLAME

Connie Mack Had Little Ground for Attack

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 5.—"I do not understand Connie Mack's attitude," said Hugh Jennings, manager of Detroit, here, after being run down after hours of search by newspapermen for an interview on the article. "It is news to me that waivers are supposed to be kept secret. Indeed, the fact about these wonderful ball players must have leaked out long before the same was gotten from me, because of its importance."

"Gossip, of such supreme importance in the baseball world, would have eventually become public. Undoubtedly, I have spoken to friends interested in baseball of the waivers, and sought discussion and information as to what would probably happen," continued Jennings. This gave the direct insinuation that confidence had been violated by one of his friends.

"So far as the pitchers are concerned I am convinced that Plank and Bender are still considered among the champions in the box, and will rank above the average for several years. Let me state that if Connie Mack is under any conviction that I violated baseball ethics in talking about waivers being sent out, I desire to make an apology to him and all others, as it was farthest from my thoughts of giving the public information that should have been considered secret."

This year's Nobel Peace Prize has been awarded to Holland. Why not to Germany? To hear the Kaiser tell it there is no more peace loving land than his.

ROSS CRAIG WILL PLAY

Peterboro Boy Will Again Don Rugby Suit

Ross Craig, greatest of all line plungers, will don his rugby togs and get into action for the Hamilton Rowing Club against T.R. and A.A. on Saturday. Craig decided last evening that he could be of service to the Oarsmen and promised to attend practice this evening or tomorrow and to play at least part of the game on Saturday. If needed he will play the entire game. This naturally makes pleasant reading for the Rowing Club members, as it indicates a pretty strong point for T.R. and A.A. to stack up against in the crucial O.R.F.U. match of the season. Craig is badly needed, as the team's one weakness has been in the line plunging end of the game. With the ex-Tiger tearing gaps in the Toronto line on Saturday there will not be much need for further worry as to this end of the day's operations. — Hamilton Spectator.

Time Saver.

"Don't blow out the electric lights," admonished the facetious hotel clerk of the stranger from the west.

"I never do, partner. It is too much trouble."

"How do you do it, then?" asked the clerk, with a wink at a nearby drummer.

"I shoot them out."

Self Running.

"He can go away for weeks at a time and his business seems to run along just as well as though he were at home."

"Quite remarkable. What is his business?"

"Kicking on the weather."

Moderate Blow.

"Old Tightwad was out last night blowing his money."

"Well, I'll bet one thing."

"What's that?"

"Those in the vicinity didn't think it was a cyclone."

The Positive Limit.

"He insulted me."

"What did he do—ask you to go to work?"

"Worse than that."

"Forget it. There is nothing worse than that."

Looking For a Bargain.

"I am going to get married."

"Why don't you get a parrot instead?"

"Parrots cost money."

STILL NO NEWS OF WARSHIPS

British Admiralty Has Taken Steps to Destroy Foe's Fleet

MAY USE JAPANESE

LONDON, Nov. 6. — A despatch from Santiago, Chile, says that news was still lacking last night concerning the whereabouts of the five missing British and German vessels which were among those participating in the naval engagement off the Chilean coast last Sunday night. These ships are the British cruiser Good Hope, which the Germans believe was sent to the bottom; the British cruiser Glasgow, the British transport Otranto, and the German cruisers Leipzig and Bremen.

Although no detailed information is obtainable, it is known that steps already have been taken to destroy the fleet of Admiral Von Spee, which claims to have played such havoc with a British squadron off Chile. The Admiralty is especially anxious to locate the British battleship Canopus, from which no word has been heard since it started to aid the squadron commanded by Rear-Admiral Cradock, who was defeated by the German cruiser squadron last Sunday.

The Japanese have a large fleet in the Pacific, part of it in the vicinity of Easter Island, and, as yesterday's reports showed, these ships have been sighted, presumably pursuing Von Spee's ships. The other portion of the Japanese fleet is near Honolulu. The Japanese fleet is headed by the battle cruiser Kongo, the swiftest and heaviest of her type in the world.

The only stories of the disaster of Sunday are still from the officers of the German fleet.

A wireless call from the British cruiser Glasgow—intercepted by the German victors —was the last word received from Rear-Admiral Cradock's squadron following the engagement, say the Germans.

The Germans saw the Monmouth sink, and heard an explosion on board the Good Hope that they believe sent the crippled flagship to the bottom. All that night the German cruiser Nurnberg searched the seas for the Good Hope unsuccessfully. They picked up a radiogram directed to the flagship by the Glasgow. There was no reply.

There were about 650 men on the Monmouth when she disappeared beneath the waves. Admiral Cradock had 900 men with him on board the Good Hope.

Describing the battle the Germans say it occurred in a gale that was almost a hurricane.

The heavy weather militated against the larger ships, and the Good Hope found her guns almost useless because of the ship's roll.

Gradually the two lines came nearer to each other, and the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau simultaneously let go their twelve 8-inch guns, which they concentrated on the Good Hope. The firing continued for several minutes without damage. The German shots fell short, and the Good Hope had such a roll that she could not reply. The smaller cruisers were far out of range. Slowly the sea-fighters drew in nearer, and when the two units were but 6,000 yards apart the Good Hope fired her two 9-inch guns. She was still unable to use her eight 6-inch guns, which on the gun deck were so near the water-line that as the vessel rolled they were almost awash. A terrible broadside from the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau crippled the British flagship, and her engines stopped.

The Monmouth, recognizing the distress of her companion, made a dash to cover the Good Hope. All the Germans guns were now brought into play, and the Monmouth sank in a few minutes. Then an explosion occurred on the Good Hope and she drew off to the west, in flames. The Glasgow and Otranto escaped in the dark.

GENERAL KILLS HIMSELF.

Robert Kekewich, Who Held Kimberley, Is Dead In Devonshire.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Maj.-Gen. Robert George Kekewich, who defended Kimberley against the assaults of the Boers from Oct. 15, 1899, to Dec. 16, 1900, and who had just been recalled to the colors for a high position in Earl Kitchener's new army, died suddenly yesterday. It is stated that his death took place at his home in Devonshire, Eng.

Gen. Kekewich entered the army in 1874, and was one of England's noted officers, being frequently mentioned in despatches and having numerous decorations for valor.

It was later reported that General Kekewich had died by his own hand. He had recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

Australian Cable Repaired.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 6. — The Australian cable is up and now working again. In the opening days of the war a German cruiser landed a party and wrecked the installation at the small island in the Pacific where the cable landed between Vancouver and the Antipodes. Much inconvenience was caused thereby and the work of the allied fleets in sweeping the Pacific was hampered.

This German Ship Didn't Know.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 6. — The German sailing ship Melpomene, which sailed from Tocopilla, Chile, July 8, laden with nitrates, was towed into Queenstown yesterday by the British cruiser which had captured her.

Capt. Endelman said neither he nor his crew had heard that a war was in progress.

GERMANS VIRTUALLY FORCED FROM PROVINCE

Unless He Wishes to Leave the Road to Berlin Open to Victorious Russians, The Kaiser Will Have to Let Go His Own Kingdom and Capital

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Petrograd correspondent of The London Morning Post, referring to the retreat of the Germans from Russian Poland, says the obstinate resistance of the enemy has been finally broken.

"It seems to me," he adds, "the Germans have now the bitter choice between abandoning East Prussia to insure a strong defence of the direct route to Berlin or of endeavoring to hold everything at the risk of losing all. Their losses are appalling, both in men and guns and stores, while their strategy has hitherto lacked on this side both science and imagination. Of their tactics it is impossible to speak without much more information than reaches the outside world, but their men have fought with frenzied fury, alternating often with causeless panic.

"The German line of three hundred miles, which a couple of days ago was compelled to assume the defensive everywhere, has now begun to retreat. At most of the points the retreat was most marked exactly at the point where the highest vital interests of the Germans required continued defence—namely, their right flank — where alone was there any chance of assisting their armies beaten in Poland. The Russians here have carried their success farthest now and hold Bialla and Lyk once more in German territory, thereby cutting off all connection between the East Prussian front and the retreating armies now nearing the frontiers of Poland. The Russians have taken Bakalarzhevo, the point selected for tactical reasons by the Germans for their concentrated and stubborn attacks. A large quantity of arms and ammunition was captured here, many of the captured rifles being left by the enemy stacked in their racks. On the great Vistula front the retreat is progressing at an increasing rate, and the Germans now are approaching the political frontiers.

"The whole country covered by the German advance and the German retreat is laid waste. Villages have been burned, and the roads, except a few causeway roads which have been carefully preserved, are ruined. All the bridges are down, and in whole forests nothing is left but smoking stumps. The area of this iniquitous devastation is half the total of the territory of Poland.

"Austrian deserters who are coming in increasing numbers report serious differences between the Germanic allies, and especially emphasize the colossal losses of the Germans.

"During the next couple of days we shall anxiously await news whether the victorious Russians have succeeded in rushing the Germans, whose flight accelerates as they approach the frontiers, past the entrenched positions along the River Warthe."

Reports from Petrograd received here in London show that on the frontier in the east more wide-sweeping movements are being made by the opposing armies. The Russians, from all reports, have driven back the German centre to the River Warthe, in Russian Poland, have held back a German offensive movement from East Prussia, and now are straightening out the line for a more vigorous offensive against the Austrians, who have been trying to beat their left wing in Galicia.

It is to the battles in these regions that the British military men now are looking, for they declare that if the Russians can keep up their successful fighting against the Austrians and Germans, relief will come to the allied armies in the west because of the necessity for a withdrawal of German army corps from France and Belgium to protect Silesia and East Prussia.

MAY GO TO FRONT.

Prince of Wales Will Probably Join French's Staff.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Prince of Wales, who since he joined the army at the beginning of the war has been importuning his father and Lord Kitchener for permission to go to the front, will probably soon have his wish gratified. The prince may join Sir John French's staff. His regiment, the Grenadier Guards, is now in the thick of the fight.

HAD WIRELESS IN ROOM.

Employe of Dominion Government at Halifax Suspected of Being Spy.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Arthur Lauf, an employe of the Government at Halifax, has been arrested on suspicion as a German spy, and is being detained by the military authorities. Lauf was employed as an interpreter in the Immigration Department. He was arrested shortly after the war broke out, but was released on producing his naturalization papers. He was arrested again as a suspected spy, his rooms were searched and a complete wireless outfit was found. He will likely be interned as a prisoner until the war is over. He has been dismissed from the service.

The Government is working at the present time on plans for the best method of handling the Germans and Austrians who will be interned as a result of the registration which is now progressing. The proposal which has met with the most favor, and which will likely be adopted, is that of utilizing their labor in the Federal and Provincial parks, cutting wood and clearing brush.

Jiddah Not Bombarded.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The report sent from London Wednesday night that the British cruiser Minerva had bombarded the Arabian seaport of Jiddah, on the Red Sea, is devoid of foundation. The Minerva has not been within 500 miles of the place.

On issuing this denial yesterday the London official press bureau publishes the text of a proclamation circulated in India pledging the British Government not to molest holy places in Arabia.

REVIEW REPORT O.K.

Fred Blastorab, proprietor of the Palace Hotel, called at the Examiner office yesterday complaining of a report of a police court case, which appeared in the Examiner. Mr. Blastorab claimed the report did him an injustice.

The Examiner, in an endeavor to smooth things over, represented Mr. Blastorab as complaining of "the report in the evening papers," while the fact of the incident was that his complaint was solely against the report in the Examiner.

He had no fault whatever to find with the report of the case as given in the Review.

THE KITCHENER LEAGUE GAVE FINE CONCERT

Patriotic Program to Help Their Work for Soldiers

With Canadian men preparing to fight for the cause of Great Britain at the front and a second call being answered from the shores of Gaspe to the banks of the Yukon, the male population of England's most important colony is doing their share. Red Cross nurses from this side of the Atlantic have answered the summons but women of Canada have found other ways and means by which to assist without going to the front. Clubs have been organized in every town and city from Halifax to Vancouver and in this respect Peterboro it not found lacking. The first lot of Peterboro "Tommies" was hardly recruited before what was known as the Peterboro branch of the Canadian Kitchener Club was organized. While other organizations and associations were working for the interest of the families of the soldiers, the club had but one purpose that being to assist the soldiers.

From the first the infant club met with success. Their cause was a worthy one and soon won favor. The membership increased to a number far above anticipations and each member was kept busy knitting woollen goods. At different intervals during the period the Canadian Contingent was stationed at Valcartier, numerous bales of wearing apparel were forwarded. Now the second contingent is being equipped and the local branch of the Kitchener League as it is now called is again at work. They contemplate assisting the members of the contingent and in an endeavor to secure funds they presented a concert last evening in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute.

One glance at the hall revealed the fact that the concert was a patriotic one. The stage was decorated with large Union Jacks while bunting and pennants were artistically arranged along the walls. The decorations were kindly loaned by Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons. Mr. Duncan Walker, acting in the capacity of chairman for the evening presented the program as follows:—

Opening selection—George Street Methodist Church Orchestra.

Opening chorus—Members of Kitchener League.

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary"—Boy Scouts.

Piano duet—Misses M. McDonald and V. Carveth.

Solo—"The Boys of the King"—Mr. W. Allen.

Duet—"The Battle of the Eve"—Messrs. E. Bartley and W. Greenslade.

Solo—Mrs. Greenslade.

Solo—Master Sam Whitehouse.

Duet—"Are you going to Dance"—Miss M. Clancy and Mr. Lightheart.

Selection—the orchestra.

Piano solo—Mr. C. Devey.

Solo—"My Ain Folk"—Miss Stevens.

Recitation—Col. Miller.

Solo—Mrs. McColl.

Recitation—Miss Sherin.

Duet—"On the Road to Germany"—Misses J. Callender and G. Clancy.

Solo—"The Veteran's Song"—Mr. Lightheart.

Solo—"Angus McDonald"—Mrs. Rehill.

Solo—"British to the Core"—M. Downey.

Tableaux.

The duet by Misses Carveth and McDonald was particularly well rendered while Master Whitehouse's solo brought forth a great deal of applause. Col. Miller's recitations were always enjoyed but now that patriotism runs high, his selections meet with great favor. The Veteran's Song by Mr. Lightheart was much appreciated.

The closing tableaux in which Miss B. Galvin represented Russia; Miss E. Judge, Belgium; Mrs. Lane, Britain; and Miss M. Hickey, France; was presented under difficulty owing to the inefficient lighting system of the hall but nevertheless, it was an excellent number and was well received.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., was to give an address, but could not owing to absence from the city. That item was replaced by "After the battle drill," by a section of the 57th Regiment, commanded by Color Srgt. Dodds.

The committee in charge of the concert was composed of Mrs. Knox, Miss G. Mowat, Misses L. and M. Clancy.

LAYMEN'S BANQUET AT ALL SAINTS' PARISH HALL

Anglican churchmen of the city gathered at the parish hall of All Saints' Church last evening for a banquet under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the Anglican churches, and a very enjoyable time was spent by all. Mr. C. E. Sisson presided. Coleman Bros. provided the tables with choice edibles that appeased the appetites of hungry men, and the speakers, Rev. R. M. Millman, a missionary recently returned from Japan, and R. W. Allin, provided food for thought and reflection in the interest of the missionary movement as carried on by the laymen of the church.

All the details for the gathering were carried out by a joint committee of laymen.

THE GERMAN CREED

Here are two quotations from the writings of Nietzsche, the philosopher who inspired the political creed now current in Germany:

2. "The dream is dispelled which made the state begin with a contract. What has he to do with contracts who can command, who is master by nature, who comes on the scene with violence in deed and demeanor?"

2. "The essential thing in a good healthy aristocracy is that it should feel itself to be not a function but the end and justification, be it of royalty or of commonwealth—that it should therefore, with a good conscience, suffer the sacrifice of a countless number of men, who, for its sake, must be humbled and reduced to imperfect beings, to slaves, to instruments."

Such views have an interesting sound on this continent.

John D. Rockefeller, whose appearance in court is again desired, has contracted throat trouble again. Sympathy will be general for John D.

Goods Made In Canada

Buying goods made in Canada is a good deal like getting married. It takes some people a long while to make up their minds to start. Then after they're settled down housekeeping they wonder why they hadn't started long before. All it needs to start a man buying the goods made by his fellow-citizens is for a man to take himself in hand and decide to do it. There is no doubt about being able to get the goods. If they are not on the dealer's shelves they very soon will be when he finds out that people want to buy them. The only thing is to make a start; the rest will take care of itself. It may be only some small thing that a man buys without thinking to ask where it was made. That article having given satisfaction in itself as a piece of well-made merchandise, is also a double satisfaction in having become part of a man's new program. Next time an article of that kind is bought, the question naturally arises, "Was it made in Canada?" The act becomes a practice; the practice a habit; and the habit spreading to other people injects life and stimulus into industry. Why not get the habit?

WATER SERVICE IN EAST CITY

Will be Shut off for Three Hours Sunday Morning

The water service for East City will be shut off on Sunday from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m., as workmen will be inserting an 8-inch valve in the water main, at the corner of Queen and Hunter Streets.

At the present time there is no valve in the main on Hunter Street between George Street and the bridge. This valve will permit feeding from other mains in the event of a break.

Ketchecum Club Having Good Time

Mr. Fred Roy, returned last evening from the north country where he has been with the Ketchecum Club. He reports that the boys are meeting with the best of luck. They were successful in bagging a fine deer the second day of the hunt, and no doubt by now they have added a few more to the list.

The fishing is still good. Mr. Manson Comstock was successful in landing a 6½ pound trout, which was a very fine specimen of the fish back there. The partridge, Mr. Roy says, are plentiful. He returns to the wilds again next Wednesday to stay until the end of the hunt. He reports all the boys in the best of health.

WHAT FRANCE LOST IN RHEIMS CATHEDRAL

Whole Edifice Was Work of Art — Church Was the Westminster Abbey of the Nation

It is difficult to appreciate what the destruction of the cathedral at Rheims means to the people of France. They, with the rest of the world that admires the grandeur and majesty of great architecture, have suffered an irreparable loss. But they have lost, too, what the British nation would lose if Westminster Abbey were to be destroyed and all its memorials given to the flames. The heart of religious France, of historic France, was not in Paris. It was in Rheims and there can be not the slightest doubt that it was for this reason, and this reason alone, that the German vandals turned their guns on Rheims.

The City of Rheims is very ancient. It was flourishing when Gaul was being conquered by Cæsar, and early became a centre of Christianity. It received its name from the "Remi" tribe of Gauls who inhabited the surrounding country.

Saw Several Sieges

Its first experience of the conqueror was when it was razed by Attila, and in 508 it was captured by the Franks. In 720 it was captured by Charles Martel from Bishop Rigobert, and it was in Rheims in 816 that Pope Stephen had his historic interview with Pepin, and attended the crowning of Louis the Debonnaire, Rheims having been made an Archbishop's See in 744. Ever since it has been the ecclesiastical capital of France the Archbishop of Rheims being the Metropolitan Primate. With four exceptions all the Kings of France have been crowned at Rheims. Clovis, son of Childeric, King of the Franks, conquered the last Roman stronghold at Soissons, accepted Christianity, and was baptized at Rheims on Christmas Day, 496, and with few interruptions for thirteen hundred years the long and picturesque line of French kings received the crown at Rheims, the most notable spectacle of all being when Joan of Arc placed the crown on the head of Charles VII.

Cathedral Founded in A.D. 400

The first foundations of the Cathedral of Rheims were laid in the year 400 to commemorate the teachings of St. Remi. Four hundred and eighteen years later the foundations of a new church were laid on the same site, and the completed cathedral was consecrated in 862. This building was destroyed by fire in 1210, only the ancient crypt partly survived. Here was reared in the course of the next thirty years the famous cathedral upon which the German guns were turned. The architect was Robert de Coucy, and for this work alone he will be remembered as one of the great architects of all time. One of the most remarkable things about his work is that it was carried out exactly as planned. There were no alterations in the course of the thirty years it took in building, and when it was completed there was no intermixture of styles, no anachronism, no alleged improvements or additions.

Magnificent Workmanship

Rheims Cathedral was 485 feet long, 101 feet wide, and 124 feet high. Whether the building itself or the sculptured figures with which it was gorgeously peopled were the greater wonder is a question that art authorities have discussed, but while the cathedral was practically completed in thirty years, the right tower was not finished until 1430, and for more than two hundred years sculptors worked lovingly at its ornamentation. Probably its most priceless treasure was the famous rose window, which dated in part to the thirteenth century, when the glass-maker's art was at its zenith. It was nearly 40 feet across.

There were other treasures of Rheims, such as the tapestries, which hung all along the aisles. The church plate, too, was of inestimable value, and comprised such pieces as a chalice of St. Remi of the eleventh century, and the marble font in which Clovis was baptized.

Care of Flat Irons

If an iron is allowed to get red hot, it will never retain the heat as well again. The flat-iron is badly abused if allowed to stand on the range and in a dusty place. Irons should be put away to cool as soon as done with, and then kept in a cool place away from dust till wanted again.

A Wash-day Hint

When washing and rinsing colored materials add a teaspoonful of Epsom salts to each gallon of water, and even the most delicate shades will neither fade nor run. Serge or merino dresses, which have been dyed black, can be safely washed in this way without any risk of the dye running.

When Cooking Fish

If when frying fish of any kind a little salt is sprinkled on the bottom of the pan when it is hot and the fat boiling the fish can be easily turned without breaking in the least.

INDIAN SOLDIERS

Formidable Highly-Trained Army Over Quarter Million Strong

England, if necessary, can pour into France from India 238,000 trained men, of which 75,000 are British troops including some crack regiments of the Royal army, and the 16,000 remaining are the fighting native troops of the Indian army, fit comrades on the firing line of France's Turcos and Spahis.

According to the official figures the Indian army's strength in round numbers, is as follows: Infantry, 122,000; cavalry, 25,000; artillery, 10,000; engineers, etc., 6,000; total, 163,000 men. Of this number 3,000 are English officers and non-commissioned officers; the rest are natives.

Thirty-nine regiments of cavalry, fifteen of them lancer regiments, besides the bodyguard troops of the Governor-General and of the Governors, and several independent troops, make up the mounted arm.

Gallant 19th Hussars

A young Lancashire Fusilier who is in hospital at Aldershot said that the best thing he saw at the front was a charge by a squadron of the 19th Hussars, who went straight for some dismounted cyclists. "It seemed a mad thing to do," he added, "for the Germans, who had been peppering our infantry, should have been able to stop them with their rifles, but they didn't, and after the Hussars rode through there was not a German left alive."

In Belgium the peasant women provide gifts of bread and beer for the soldiers.

Napoleon levied $71,250,000 in three years from defeated Prussia.

BISMARCK'S REVENGE

The Iron Statesman Correctly Gauged the Kaiser's Conceit

History brings many dramatic revenges, but it is questionable whether there is any instance to equal the revenge with which the shade of Bismarck is now furnished in the deplorable plight the Kaiser now finds himself in. The great statesman who so unceremoniously dismissed by the German Emperor was under no delusion as to his character.

Before sending in his resignation he remarked: "I thought he would be thankful if I were to remain with him for a few years. But I find that, on the contrary, he is simply longing with his whole heart to be rid of me in order that he may govern alone, and be able to cover himself with glory."

Bismarck accurately gauged the Kaiser when he added: "He does not want the old mentor any longer, but only docile tools." The truth of this is shown by the number of Chancellors William II. has dismissed on one pretext or another. Bismarck, according to secret pages of German history, retired because, as he himself said: "I cannot tack on as a tail to my career the failures of arbitrary and inexperienced self-conceit for which I should be held responsible."

The Emperor Frederick shared Bismarck's opinion of his son, for amongst the Chancellor's papers was one from that monarch describing the present Kaiser as "inexperienced, extremely boastful and self-conceited." How conceited he really is may be gauged from the fact that when he was shown the famous Punch cartoon of Sir John Tenniel on Bismarck's resignation, entitled "Dropping the Pilot," he took it as a compliment to himself, arguing that it showed his strength in dismissing so powerful a statesman!

A Dead Man's Charge

Writing to a friend in England, Trooper S. Cargill said: "I saw one ghastly affair. A German cavalry division was pursuing our retiring infantry when we were let loose on them. When they saw us coming they turned and fled, at least all but one, who came rushing at us with his lance at the charge. I caught hold of his horse, which was half mad with terror, and my chum was just going to run the rider through when he noticed the awful glaze in his eyes and we saw that the poor devil was dead."

World's Rubber Production.

About one-half the world's supply of rubber comes from the Brazilian sections of Ceara, Manaos and Para. Their product sets the price for the raw material in the consuming markets. The trees grow wild. No systematic preparation of the ground has ever been necessary, and the entire care of the rubber gatherers has been given to obtaining only the juice from the rubber tree and getting it to market.

SMALLEST COUNTRY IN EUROPE'S WAR ZONE

Luxemberg Whose Neutrality Was Violated by Germany is Ruled by a Clever Young Woman

Wedged between France, Prussia, and Belgium, it was inevitable that the miniature State of Luxemburg, although neutral, should have been affected by the great European conflict. For several reasons Luxemburg is unique among the countries of the world. Its area is only 1,000 square miles—about the size of an average western Ontario county—while its population is fewer than a quarter of a million.

That the people of Luxemburg could have made no effort at all to resist any armed force is evident from the fact that the fighting force consists only of 145 gendarmes and 150 infantrymen, whose duties are purely ceremonial.

Luxemburg is one of the only two States in Europe now ruled by a female Sovereign, the other being Holland. Furthermore, its Sovereign, the Grand Duchess of Luxemburg, is the youngest in Europe. She succeeded to the throne in March, 1912, on the death of her father, William III., Grand Duke of Luxemburg, being then within two months of her eighteenth birthday.

Only a Tiny Army

Serious and grave beyond her years the Grand Duchess reminds one very much of the late Queen Victoria, who ascended the throne of England when she was eighteen, and who seemed to develop almost at once into a grave and thoughtful woman.

Like Queen Victoria, the Grand Duchess of Luxemberg takes her duties very seriously, and since she became ruler has made an extensive study of international politics and all that concerns the welfare of the miniature State over which she reigns. In spite of her youth, she has gone through a thorough course of political lectures under the guidance of Dr. Eysschen, the veteran State Minister, and those who have had occasion to discuss political matters with her have been amazed at her keen grasp of politics and international affairs.

Furthermore, she takes the keenest interest in everything that contributes to the welfare of the poorer classes of Luxemburg. Her charity is proverbial, and there is a saying in the Grand Duchy that "she would gladly ruin herself in making others comfortable."

Possesses Great Wealth

In addition to holding the reins of power in the government of her tiny kingdom, the Grand Duchess has control of her immense fortune, worth it is estimated, close upon ten million pounds, which makes her quite independent of the Civil List of $4[illegible]. This money, it might be mentioned, was amassed for the most part by the Dukes of Nassau when they were driven into Austrian exile, through the prosperity of Wiesbaden, once the gambler's paradise, and other places of a similar nature. This fortune is invested in securities in vast estates in Austria, Hungary, and Germany besides Luxemburg itself.

Luxemburg is virtually an autocratic sovereignty, as the Legislature only meets for four months in the year, and is almost, but not quite under the complete control of the girl Duchess.

No Military Inquests

Steps Taken to Avoid Distress and Inconvenience to Relatives

No inquests are held on those of the British wounded who die after being taken to English hospitals. The London chief coroner announced the procedure he proposed to adopt in relation to soldiers and sailors who unhappily might die from their wounds.

In his district there was a great deal of accommodation provided for the wounded, and a large number would probably die, he said. It had occurred to him and other coroners that inquests were quite unnecessary, as they would be subjecting the relatives to much distress and inconvenience, while the doctors so devotedly attending the wounded would have to be called from their work.

He had communicated with the Government and received authority to deal with the cases thus:

All the deaths should be reported to the coroner, who would send his officer to make inquiries, and, if he reported that the cases were those of combatants, inquests would not be held.

A Fisherman's Heroism

He Risked Lives to Save Lives and Succeeded in His Mission

A very fine act by the captain of a fishing steamer relieved the horror of one of the mine disasters caused by the German navy's warfare against non-combatants and neutrals. The steamer Runo, belonging to the Wilson Line, was on a voyage from Hull to Archangel, with some 280 passengers, chiefly Russians, though some were Americans. On the day she left port she struck a mine and sank, with some loss of life. Three steam trawlers, the Silanion, Prince Victor and Straton, steamed up and rescued a large number of those who were struggling in the water.

As skipper Wicks, of the Straton, was driving in among the wreckage, the look-out man forward sighted two mines ahead. "Look out, skipper, two mines ahead," he called. "Can't help it," shouted the skipper back. "It's risking lives to save lives." And he hazarded his ship to get alongside an overturned boat to which a dozen men and women were clinging. Even as they reached it a woman with an infant in her arms released her hold and fell back into the water, but the chief engineer, James Ranard, fully clad, dived overboard, caught the woman, and swimming on his back, supported her and the child until the crew could pass a line and pull them to safety. The work of rescue went on at a feverish rate, for more than two hundred people were saved before the Runo, which all along had been, as a seaman put it, standing on her head, gave a lurch and disappeared.

DOWN IN A SUBMARINE

Unpleasant Sensation of Being Below the Surface of the Sea

There are very few Canadians who can boast a trip in a submarine and the sensations experienced when one of these steel fishes is on one of its voyages of destruction, as told by a British naval officer, may be interesting.

The captain was peering through a port especially constructed so as to keep clear of spray. Suddenly he bent forward. He pulled one of the brass levers. There was a quick hissing roar as the water rushed into the ballast tanks. An indicator marked the quantity taken in, and then—and then we could feel a strange, heavy, waterlogged motion coming over the boat. Now the surface of the sea was on a level with our eyes. The boat gave a little lurch forward. The rushing noise ceased. There came absolute mysterious silence. Then there was a downward gliding sensation. The interior of the boat was plunged into darkness, a blackness to be felt. We could feel rather than hear the throbbing of the great steady electric motor.

"As the room was flooded with electric light, the captain said in a voice that echoed throughout the steel hull: 'I am now going to give you an idea of what submarine warfare would be like.'

"In a moment we could feel that the vessel was traveling at a slight upward angle. Then in a flash the whole surface came into view, the sun shining on the waves and in the distance the dark hull of a ship outlined against the sky.

"Down again to 15 feet, gradually creeping closer to the enemy. Looking over a small white table on which the picture of the surface was cast by the optic tube, the minutes seemed to pass like hours. Then the hand of the commander, which had been resting nervously on one of the indicators, was sharply drawn forward. An instant's suspense, and nothing but an ominous click as the torpedo sped forward from its tube.

"Then, at last, came the signal, the tilt and the quick rush upward once more, the changing color of the water as we gazed at it through the portholes, the flash of the surface line across our eyes. The manhole was thrown open and a wave of fresh air rushed in upon us."

THE ENTENTE CORDIALE

The French paper the Liberte tells a pleasant anecdote of the fighting in northern France. The story concerns a Scottish regiment which is not named. This regiment was occupying a trench, swept by violent rifle fire and artillery fire, when two privates noticed that a Frenchman attached to the battalion as interpreter occupied the most exposed spot in the trench. One private said: "The Frenchman is badly placed; let's widen his trench," and during a minute, paying no attention to the hail of bullets and shrapnel, the privates deepened the trench, and with the same calm resumed their places.

For the common cause, certain Welsh miners have agreed to work on Sundays.

The Eyes Neglected

Women Should Protect Their Faces When Motoring

The woman who motors should always wear a veil and for long rides a pair of motor eyeglasses should be added. Yes, a veil is more or less hot and oftimes a nuisance, but isn't it better to practice a little common sense and keep one's complexion passable and one's eyes intact? There is nothing about the human body that suffers more complete neglect than the eyes and there is no organ from which we ask more.

The eyes should be washed as religiously as the teeth and you cannot wash your eyes by rubbing them with a soapy cloth any more than you can cleanse your teeth by washing your lips and face.

Get an eye cup. Put it on the shelf with your tooth brush and every morning when you take your bath wash out your eyes with a 20 per cent. solution of boracic acid.

This can be made by putting a level teaspoonful of boracic acid, in a half pint of hot water and letting it stand until the acid crystals are dissolved. After this is cooled pour a tablespoon, of the liquid into the eye cup, apply it to your shut eye, throw your head back and open your eye so that the water reaches the ball.

Turn this water out and fill again for the other eye. You will be surprised how this will strengthen and brighten your eyes. If you are troubled with inflamed lids this will cure them, unless it is some very serious trouble.

When Eye-glasses Pinch

To cure the soreness which occurs at the sides of the nose where the glasses press, take some methylated spirit and dab on the affected parts once or twice a day, and then dust over with a little boracic powder or starch. This will harden the skin and keep it from getting sore.

Cleaning Currants

A quick way to clean currants when making cakes is to put the fruit into a colander with a sprinkling of flour, and rub it round a few times with your hand. It is surprising how quickly the stalks are separated and come through the small holes.

Cleaning White Flannel

Stains on white flannel can sometimes be removed by rubbing them with glycerine and yolk of egg mixed in equal quantities. Spread on the stain, leave for half an hour, then wash the garment as usual.

Care of the Mouth

Two drops of camphor on your toothbrush will give your mouth the freshest, cleanest feeling imaginable, and will make your gums rosy and absolutely prevent anything like cold sores or affections on your tongue.

THE RIVAL CRUISERS

Speedy British Warships Carrying Heavier Guns Have Advantage

The Heligoland fight having seen British and German cruisers exchanging broadsides, naval journals are discussing the relative merits of the two national types. For years Germany has been building what the German Admiral staff terms "small cruisers"; these vessels can be distinguished by their bearing the names of towns—Leipsic, Karlsruhe, Emden, Magdeburg, etc.—and are all of small or moderate size, great speed, and light armament.

British cruisers are not standardized in the same way; but of late years the Admiralty has been building a number of very fast ships, some larger, some smaller, than the German "small cruiser," but all more heavily armed.

The German ships are all armed with the 4.1-inch gun, a weapon which fires a 36-pound shell, and probably can be discharged with great rapidity. The British 4-inch gun is a lighter weapon; the earlier "marks" fire a 25-pound shell, and the projectile from the later patterns weighs 31 pounds. The British cruisers, however, usually mount 6-inch guns as well as the 4-inch weapons, and the 6-inch shell weighs 100 pounds. The Naval and Military Record said:

"Specific mention is made in the Admiralty communique of the excellent work performed by the Arethusa's six-inch guns. With these weapons she "seriously injured" one of the enemy's cruisers, with whom a running fight of 35 minutes' duration was maintained at a range of about 3,000 yards. The emphasis laid on the work of these guns proves them to have been much more effective than the 4-inch battery. Such a result has always been predicted by leading British authorities. Our light cruisers have a real advantage over enemy ships of equivalent type by virtue of their heavier metal."

GERMS ON BREAD

Much Disease May be Carried on New Moist Loaf

Bread is a practically universal article of diet! It is usually handled by several persons, often exposed to flies and street dust, and sometimes tossed about under very uncleanly conditions. This is particularly true of baker's bread, which is obviously liable to pick up dangerous bacteral contamination. Yet in his search for germ-carriers and disease-breeders, the bacteriologist has said little about this common food product.

However, it is well to know and remember that if bread is handled by a typhoid carrier, it is possible for typhoid bacilli to be smeared on the outside of the loaf. And since bread is usually eaten without heating, and very often soon after it reaches the consumer, it may readily be the means of conveying infection. In a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association appears a paper on the bacterial contamination of bread. The writer says that out of a hundred loaves of unwrapped bread purchased from as many different shops in the city of Chicago, 14 per cent. were each coated with more than 10,000 bacteria. As might be expected, loaves purchased at clean shops, where all the surroundings are favorable, have not nearly so many germs clinging to them as those kept under generally dirty conditions. While eleven wrapped loaves obtained from clean shops bore on the average only 371 bacteria each, more than half of the unwrapped loaves (62 per cent.) were coated with over 1,000 bacteria.

Still, it is said to be difficult to obtain a sale for wrapped loaves in certain city districts, where the prospective purchaser insists on testing the quality of the bread by pinching the loaf with thumb and finger.

The fact that bread is a germ-carrier should not act as a scarecrow to the housewife, nor cause her to attempt to lessen the bread supply. It should cause her to take more care in selecting the place from which she buys baker's bread and to look with more favor upon the wrapped loaf.

Oil Loosens Tight Screws

If screws, gas fittings, the sides of bedsteads, or anything else of the kind become tightly fixed and cannot be moved, the following method will generally be found to loosen them. Pour a little oil on the tight parts, and then hold a lighted candle underneath until it is warm. You will then find that it is easy to separate or unscrew the fixed parts.

Sovereign Cure for Rheumatism

Mrs. E. W. Hazlett, 163 Wyandotte Street, Windsor, Ont., says there is only one Kidney Remedy in the world for her—GIN PILLS.

"Gin Pills, I know from personal experience, are the sovereign remedy for Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble in any form. I was cured by them after months of suffering. I was helpless—had several doctors and many other remedies but all failed to cure me. Then I tried Gin Pills with the result that I am well to-day. I heartily recommend them to any person suffering from Kidney or Bladder Trouble".

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

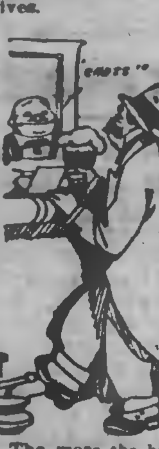
PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is easy to be popular if you know how and are willing.

The trouble with some people is that they take even their temperance too intemperately.

Probably the explanation is that sometimes it is easier to be a man than not to.

It may be that all things come around to him who waits, but the man who goes after them gets them while he yet lives.



It is hard to believe that a fat, baldheaded man was once a baby and still harder to realize that some one may be concealing the fact that he is one still.

If ladies were to refrain from talking foolishness to their husbands undoubtedly they would soon have the poor fellows badly scared.

The more the barkeep trusts a man the less his wife is apt to.

Ever notice how a man roars about the noise the children make when he has to stay home with them a day?

A new broom or any other kind doesn't sweep clean when it has a lax housemaid behind it.

MR. BOWSER AROUSED

This Time It's to the Need of Political Reform

By M. QUAD

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

THAT Mr. Bowser had something on his mind was plain enough to Mrs. Bowser the moment he entered the house, and all through the dinner hour she saw that he was anxious to communicate it, but she expressed no curiosity and held him off until they were seated for the evening. Then she carelessly inquired if he had discovered a new spring and summer tonic.

"I shall have callers this evening," he said as he smiled at her benignly, "and the result of the call may change our whole lives."

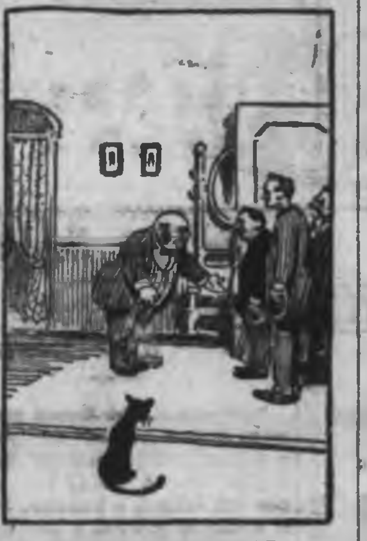
"What sort of callers?"

"Gentlemen, of course. There will be from three to five. Yes, this evening may be considered an epoch in our history."

"If there are any epochs going on I should like to know what they are. Hadn't you better explain matters?"

Mr. Bowser walked up and down for a few minutes with dignified tread, and the family cat, which had been sleeping on the lounge, opened her eyes in a lazy way and watched his movements. By and by he said:

"Mrs. Bowser, you are no politician, of course, but you may possibly understand that in this age the politics of this country is corrupt beyond comparison. What we want is a wave of reform."



RECEIVED THE COMMITTEE.

"And are you going to start to wave?" she sarcastically queried.

Mr. Bowser to Start Things in Motion.

"I—I am—that is, I probably am. The gentlemen are coming here this evening to talk about it. If in their judgment I am the proper person I shall have the honor of setting the wave in motion. I am for honest politics and a pure administration."

"I thought it was some such nonsense," she slowly replied. "On three or four occasions you have mixed in politics and made a donkey of yourself, but it seems you haven't got enough."

"There you are! That's you! If I had a plan to put clothing on the back of every savage on earth you'd oppose it. I was an ass to say anything to you about it!"

"Mr. Bowser, you have been voting for thirty years. Have you ever known honest reform in politics?"

"Of course I have!"

"Never! There is no such a thing. It's the same thing over and over again each year. If anybody has made you believe that you can bring about any change for the better they have taken you for a fool. Why, when they wanted you to run for alderman in this ward on a reform ticket they wanted a fund of $1,000 to buy up votes and pay saloon bills!"

"But this is different," he protested. "What is wanted is moral influence. Let twenty-five good men band together to purify politics and the movement will spread from state to state in a week. It isn't a question of money, but of character. I am simply to lend my influence to be one of the stepping stones, as it were."

"Well, you'll get stepped on fast enough! Your committee is ringing the doorbell, and I'll go upstairs. Don't get so excited over reform as to put a mortgage on the furniture."

The Committee Arrives.

Mr. Bowser received the committee. There were five of them. They were headed by an ex-alderman who had deliberately sacrificed a two dollar ticket to a boxing match in the interests of political reform. Even before all the gentlemen had taken their seats he whispered in Mr. Bowser's ear:

"Say, old man, if you want this movement to be a success you want to bring up decanter and glasses. The boys are expecting something at least seven years old."

Mr. Bowser turned pale, but said nothing in reply. Neither did he produce the antidote for dry cotton. When the committee were seated he looked them over and mentally rejoiced that Mrs. Bowser had not caught sight of them. Then he said:

"Gentlemen, as I was given to understand this thing this afternoon, the idea is reform in politics!"

"That's it!" chorused the five.

"We propose to start a wave of reform which shall roll from Maine to Texas!"

"We do."

"I am no politician, as I informed your delegate. I have never held a political office in my life. There have been years at a time when I have not even gone to the polls to vote."

"But you are an honest, respectable man and desire honest methods," said the ex-alderman.

"Yes; I can say that."

Facts and Figures.

"Then you are the man for us, and we'll figure a bit. You don't happen to have anything in the house to drink, eh?"

"I haven't."

"You ought to be prepared for the wave of reform, but we can all go out to a saloon after the business is done. I've got our ward ticket made out. You see, the boys want me for alderman again. I don't think any of 'em had reason to complain of me when I was in."

"Not much!" answered one of the group with great heartiness. "It was always a square divide."

"And what is my part in the campaign to be?" asked Mr. Bowser as he laid down the ticket.

"Speaking, sir," was the reply. "You can go about speaking and start the wave."

"And wave this crowd into office, I suppose?"

"That's it, and you'll find it a paying job too. Here are the figures."

"The figures about what?"

"The profits, sir. There are six of us, and I figure that there will be at least $20,000 to divide among us per year. You'll get your whack of that as straight as a string. Any campaign funds you advance are to be paid back out of the pot before it is divided. Is that plain?"

"I—I don't think so. We start in to reform?"

"We do."

"And we reform?"

"We do."

"And then—then what?"

"We divide the profits."

"But how do we make any profits?"

"Why, we crowd the other fellows out and get their places and their chances, don't we? A blind man can see that. Got your first speech ready?"

The Incident Is Closed.

Mr. Bowser had about twenty words to say in reply. They were words that lifted each member of the committee out of his chair and opened his eyes very wide. Then he headed the procession down the hall, and the cat brought up the rear. It was a solemn procession. There was a painful silence as each caller put on his hat. All were ready to go out when the ex-alderman said:

"Old man, you've thrown dis crowd down, but don't get giddy over it. We know how to get even!"

"Good night, sir—good night, sir!" stiffly replied Mr. Bowser as he closed the door with a bang.

He was standing in front of the mantel when Mrs. Bowser came downstairs and quietly asked:

"I thought I heard a roaring, booming sound down here, and I came down to see if the wave of reform had been set in motion."

Mr. Bowser glared at her, but made no reply.

"Or won't the wave start until you get your whack of aldermanic stealings?" she continued.

Mr. Bowser gasped and choked, but he could not get out a word, and as Mrs. Bowser returned to her room the cat followed her and left him to wonder how the bottom had dropped out.

Regrets.

Nobody loves a fat man.
That's a plaint we often hear.
It's true in every season,
Every day of every year.

Suppose the fat man's aching
With a most atrocious pain.
Does he get any sympathy?
He looks for it in vain.

Suppose the frosts of winter
Nip his carcass fore and aft.
They say he's well upholstered—
Keeping warm's an easy graft.

Or when he melts in summer
No one rushes to his aid
Unless it be to profit by
The coolness of his shade.

Or if he's on a sick bed
And they want to operate
Some wag will say they better blast
His works to penetrate.

True no one loves a fat man—
He's useless near and far—
But he makes a model anchor
In the game of tug-of-war.

Experience.

"We learn by experience," said the ready made philosopher.

"That's true," remarked Mr. Growcher. "We get a lot of information from experience, but it doesn't seem to help. What's the good of knowing what the weather was day before yesterday?"—Washington Star.

Land Measure.

One acre contains 160 square rods, 4,840 square yards, 43,560 square feet. The side of a square must measure as follows to contain: Ten acres, 660 feet, one acre, 208.71; half acre, 147.58; third acre, 120.50; fourth acre, 104.38; eighth acre, 73.79.

Gloves of Varnish.

Skin varnish completely covering the hands is used by some surgeons instead of rubber gloves during surgical operations. So cleverly is the varnish made that it cannot be washed off with water or any liquid likely to be met in the course of an operation; nor can it be scraped off except by scraping off the skin itself, and yet it is about as pliable as very thin rubber. The purpose in using it instead of rubber gloves is to preserve the sensitiveness of the touch and make it easier to handle materials such as catgut. The varnish looks like honey. It is rubbed on the hands after they have been washed as thoroughly as possible, and quickly dries. To remove it the hands are washed in another chemical solution.—Saturday Evening Post.

WHERE'S THAT 5

Some people are such deadbeats that they won't even pay attention.

If it were not for their vanity some people would have nothing to distinguish them from the stupid, unconsidered throng.

Ever notice how generous a man with a grouch is? He just won't keep it to himself.

The man who never thinks especially of pleasing seldom displeases.

It is noticeable that you can't tell till you try, and sometimes then you won't.

Persistency may get a great many ill natured remarks aimed at it, but it can be relied on to arrive at its destination.

Sometimes the difference between a boy and a lighted cigarette is largely in favor of the latter.

As between the devil and the deep blue sea it is to be observed that most people seem to prefer the less elemental.

Too Late.

"Speaking of vain regrets, did you hear about the lady who was locked out of her own house?"

"No."

"She had come away and forgot to take her key, and the lock was one of those spring catches that slam shut of their own accord. Of course she was very much annoyed, and as her husband began hunting around for a ladder and trying various windows, all of which were securely locked, she sat down on the steps, buried her face in her hands and said, with deep emotion, 'Oh, if I had only married a burglar!' "

Sure Sign.

"Do you think she is as young as she says she is?"

"Yes, or younger."

"Why so?"

"I heard her telling the things she would demand in a husband."

Ticklish Job.

"That horse ran like greased lightning."

"Is there such a thing as greased lightning, pa?"

"I guess so."

"The man has to wear rubber gloves when he greases it, doesn't he?"

Canada's Wheat Yield.

A bulletin issued by the Census and Statistics Office recently, gives the usual preliminary estimate of the yield of the principal cereal crops in Canada, according to reports of correspondents made at the end of August. Continued drought, especially in the Northwest provinces, has seriously affected the yield per acre, which is lower than that of any year since the season of 1910, and lower than the average of six years ended 1913. From the areas sown to wheat, oats, barley and flax in the Northwest provinces, it has been necessary, in estimating the yields, to deduct a considerable acreage which, owing to drought, is reported as failing to produce any grain. For the three Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the areas thus deducted amount to 728,100 acres of wheat, 753,000 acres of oats, 102,000 acres of barley, and 79,000 acres of flax, these areas representing percentages of the areas sown from 3 to 7 1-2 in Manitoba, 7 to 13 in Saskatchewan, and 7 to 15 1-2 in Alberta.

The Trysting Place

A Story of a Mexican Oil Well

By MAY C. ETHEREDGE

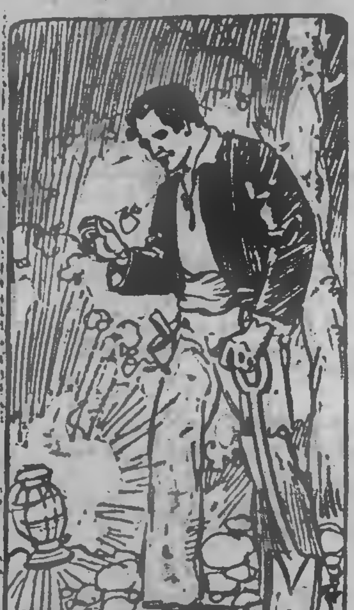
Manuel Perez was a Mexican peon. One day Manuel went to Jose Gonzales, who owned a hacienda on which he grew coffee, and asked for the loan of $30. Gonzales understood this request, for it is the common method in Mexico of taking on the yoke of slavery. He lent the young man the money, and Manuel signed a contract to work for him till it was returned.

Now, there was a special reason for Manuel thus entering Gonzales' service. The hacendado had a pretty daughter, Maria, sixteen years old, whom Manuel had met, and the two being of the mating age had fallen in love with each other. Manuel was an intelligent fellow, and instead of spending the most of what he earned for pulque, as many peons do, he saved it and had $100, which for safety he put in a bank. By working for Gonzales he would have many opportunities of meeting Maria. If his passion for her were discovered by her father, who was a very stingy man, he would not be likely to send Manuel away without his repaying the $30 loaned, and peons are not expected to have the money to return.

Maria was fond of horseback riding and went about over the hacienda on a pony. In her equestrian costume of short jacket bordered with gold lace and skirt covered with glittering ornaments she was very captivating. Many a young man of her own class would have been glad to marry her, but she had fallen in love with Manuel and would listen to none of them.

The lovers contrived to see each other occasionally, though it was difficult for Manuel to escape the notice of the overseer. Manuel, having an appointment with his sweetheart, would disappear and when he returned to work would be punished. But he could endure the punishment since he had received his reward in a meeting with Maria.

These absences were at last reported by the overseer to the hacendado, and he gave orders that the next time Manuel quit work without leave he be shadowed. One afternoon when Manuel was missing a message was sent to Gonzales apprising him of the fact, and he sent out persons in every direction to look for him.



HE SAW THE OIL WAS SLOWLY RISING.

Manuel had gone to meet his sweetheart at a spot near which a little stream boiled and bubbled down a declivity to a river below. The place of meeting was about a hundred yards from the stream and surrounded by thick tropical foliage. The location, including the stream, was difficult to penetrate for any one who did not know of an opening in the thicket which Manuel had made and concealed.

Manuel, having quit work, darted into some bushes and crawled into a wood, through which he made his way to the trysting place. There he threw himself on the ground to wait for Maria, who was to come from a different direction. But Maria did not come. She had seen the persons sent out to learn where Manuel had gone and prudently remained away.

Manuel, lying flat on the ground, smelled petroleum. It did not seem to him that the oil could have been spilled in such a wild place, and it occurred to him that perhaps he was on oil land. Taking out his knife, he dug a little hole in the ground. The deeper he dug the stronger the smell, and at last at the bottom of the hole there was a thimbleful of oil.

Manuel arose and stood on his feet. He saw in that little hole a lifelong happiness with Maria.

Half an hour after the time that he was to meet Maria having passed without her coming, he set out on his return. On nearing the edge of the thicket he heard voices and shrank back. Returning to the stream, he found an avenue under the trees, and by following its bed he came out some distance from where he had started. He was in agony lest Maria had been watched and captured entering the trysting place. But, seeing her on her pony riding about as though nothing disturbed her, he took courage.

Manuel went back to work and, after being cross examined as to where he had been, took his punishment, and, though it was more severe than usual, he bore it without flinching, sustained, as he was, by his secret.

Fortunately for the lovers, their love was not known, and they could communicate, though, of course, always at a great risk. Manuel contrived to let Maria know that they must not try to meet again for some time. Meanwhile he determined not to go to the trysting place again in the day. But one night when all were asleep, armed with a spade, a lantern and some matches, he stole out of the peon quarters to revisit his find. Had he not gone there often he would not have been able to find the entrance, for he dared not light his lantern until well screened by the thicket.

On reaching the trysting place he struck a match and, having found the hole he had dug with his knife, began to throw out the earth with his spade. He had gone down but a few feet when there stood on the bottom of the hole he had dug several inches of a fluid. Lighting his lantern, he saw that the oil was slowly rising. Dipping a dry twig into it, he held it over the flame in the lantern, and it burned brightly.

This was enough. He refilled the hole and smoothed the ground above it, then went back to his quarters.

The next day Manuel went to Gonzales and offered him the $30 he had borrowed, with interest. The hacendado accepted it, and Manuel went forth a free man. Before leaving the hacienda he made an appointment to meet Maria clandestinely, and when they came together he told her that there was a fortune at their trysting place. The location was wild land outside Gonzales' hacienda. Nevertheless Manuel had but $70, and this was too little to tempt the owner to sell any of his property. Maria was accorded liberal pin money by her father and could produce $100. But she owned a jewel which would bring a hundred more. In all the two raised $300. Then Manuel found the owner of the land, and, representing that he wished to erect a sawmill beside the stream, which could be used for power, he succeeded in buying twenty acres of ground at $10 an acre.

As soon as the deed had passed to him Manuel threw up his hat joyfully. He had $100 left with which to develop his oil well. He dug with his spade a sluiceway by which he turned a part of the stream into a new channel that ran within a few yards of his well. Then he made a mill wheel and bought a pump with gearing. Lastly, he dug his oil well to a depth of ten feet, at the bottom of which stood several feet of oil.

When Manuel set his machinery to work to pump out the oil he was anxious as to the flow continuing. He pumped for some time, looking into the well and was delighted to see that the flow continued as fast as he pumped. Then he knelt and thanked his patron saint for the blessing that had been bestowed upon him.

Manuel said nothing to any one about his oil property. He bought a few empty barrels and filled them with oil. With his ax he cleared a way so that a team could haul them away and with the money he got for the oil bought more barrels and very soon had money enough to build a shed over his machinery.

One day Gonzales, who was riding over his hacienda, saw a well dressed man, also mounted, coming toward him. When the stranger neared him Gonzales recognised his former peon, Manuel Perez.

"What are you doing here, and in those clothes?" asked the hacendado.

"I came to ask the hand of your daughter."

"My daughter!"

"Yes, senor. I have good blood in my veins, and I am rich."

"Rich? In what does your fortune consist—assurance?"

"If you will come with me I will show it to you."

Moved by curiosity, Gonzales rode with his former slave to the oil well. When he saw the crude machinery and, Manuel having turned on the power, a barrel of oil filled in a few minutes, he was astonished. He did not give Manuel his daughter, but he prospected for oil not only on his hacienda, but on contiguous property.

No other outlet for the petroleum was found, and the failure greatly enhanced the value of Manuel Pares's property. Americans, Englishmen, everybody, came to see the well, and large sums were offered the owner for his property. He would not sell, and with his profits he developed his means for getting out the oil, and since it continued to flow as fast as he took it out he soon had an enormous income.

When Gonzales had tested all his own and adjacent property without finding oil Manuel went to him again to ask for Maria, and this time the hacendado succumbed. The wedding festivities took place at the bride's home, but when they were over her husband took her to a handsome place of his own. He has never sold a foot of the ground he purchased for a song and has refused every offer for the whole property. Whenever he needs money he sets his machinery going, fills a few hundred barrels with oil and sells them.

This course certain Mexicans who have owned gold mines have pursued, but it has not been common with oil.

Flint and Tinder.

If tempted to grumble overmuch at the modern match, let us recall the elaborate ritual necessary to procuring a light until about a century ago. By striking a flint with a piece of steel a spark—if you were adept and lucky—was thrown upon a piece of tinder, which spark you blew into a flame. Strips of wood dipped in sulphur were held in the flame, and your match was lighted. The tinder, having fulfilled its function, was extinguished by a tin damper. The match sticks were either homemade or purchased in small bundles from gypsies. —London Express.

EATING PASTY POI.

A Painful Experience With the Popular Food of Hawaii.

The national food of Hawaii is "poi." It is to them what rice is to the Chinese, frijoles to the Mexicans, blubber to the Eskimos. The first day I was there some friends of mine—or I had thought they were friends—inveigled me into eating some of it.

"It's made out of taro root," they explained. "They take an iron that looks like a pestle, put the roots on a hollowed out board about the size of a table leaf and pound it up. It is their staff of life. Have some."

With that the person with whom I had been friendly passed me a dish of poi. It looked like billboard paste—the same color, the same consistency and, from as near as I could politely get my nose, the same smell.

"They eat it with their forefingers," he explained, "and it is known as one finger or two finger poi according to how thick it is. This is two finger poi, so you will have to dip two fingers in and quickly put them well back into your mouth. Just go ahead and help yourself."

I wanted to make a bit surer what I was eating and started to take a tiny taste, but he saw the motion and a line of pain ran across his face that I should doubt the food he had set out for me. "We have plenty of it," he said cordially, holding out the bowl.

With that I thrust my two fingers in, stirred them around until the poi was clinging to them and, bending over, thrust them into my mouth—well back. Immediately I knew that I had made a mistake; the ropy stuff got on to my tongue and wouldn't come off. The moment it touched my tongue I knew that it not only looked like billboard paste and smelled like it, but that it tasted like a pot that had been left over from yesterday. For an hour I tried to worry it off my tongue and all afternoon I could taste it lurking in my mouth.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

Improving the Milk's Quality.

A certain Glasgow milkman was suspected of using the pump handle rather too much before starting out with his milk delivery. The other day as he was standing serving customers in a busy side street a man passing nudged him and whispered, "Look out; the sanitary inspector is coming round the corner." Turning off the crank, he rushed for his cream barrel and, filling a huge can from it, opened the milk cask and emptied it in. The "sanitary" did not come, but the wife of the "tipster" got a splendid supply of rich creamy milk that morning.—London Tatler.

Realised His Nationality.

"At lunch time to-day," writes a Montreal newspaperman in a recent article, "a friend stepped up to my table in the restaurant and said, shaking hands, 'Good-bye, I am off with my brother to-night.' He is an accomplished engineer; he is over forty-five, and so beyond the age at which he might be called. He has an excellent position. His brother was born in Montreal, but it seems that the father's status is held to give France a claim upon the children, no matter where born. The elder brother thought he ought to go, the younger one thought the same. So they are off. Scores of offices in Montreal are being emptied by this return to France of professional men born in France.

There is, or was, a large colony of these French people in Montreal. They have a society in which they make it clear that fulfilment of French military duty is a first consideration in all that pertians to fellowship. There would be no social life with these people for any who failed to live up to expectations new. Although they are, ordinarily, indistinguishable from Canadians who speak French, in this one phase of their life they are as remote from Canada as if they had never seen it. And yet, as in the present instance, many of them have been here so long that the revelation of where their first interest lies comes with something of a sense of shock."

HER FATHER

By F. A. MITCHEL

A ring at the telephone, St. Luke's hospital.

"I would like to speak to Miss Manners."

"Who is it, please?"

"Her father."

"Hold the wire."

Then the person who had answered the call notified the nurse, who went to the telephone booth.

"Is it you, sweetheart?" asked a man's voice.

"Yes, dear."

"I couldn't get through the morning without calling you up and having a word with you."

"I hoped you would."

"I've made arrangements to go in with Dr. Clarke Emerson, the big surgeon, and he is to pay me $100 a month from the start. That will enable us to be married. You can leave that confounded hospital and stop ramming thermometers in persons' mouths and noting their heartbeats. All your own heartbeats will belong to me."

"I'm so glad."

Miss Manners' father kept her at the telephone some twenty minutes, when she resumed her duties. In the afternoon she was assisting at an important operation when there was another call for her. Mrs. Irwin, the matron, went to the phone.

"Who is it wishes to speak with Miss Manners?" she asked.

"Her father."

"Oh, Mr. Manners, your daughter is assisting at a critical operation. Is it anything important?"

"Oh, no. I'll call her up later. Good-by." There was a click, then silence. The matron thought the voice sounded familiar to her, but she did not remember to have seen Mr. Manners.

The next day Miss Manners was called up by her father twice, and both times Mrs. Irwin was aware of the fact. She wondered what the nurse's father had to say to her so often. At the second call the matron went to the telephone and asked:

"Well, what is it?"

Miss Manners' father recognized Mrs. Irwin's voice, though she did not recognize his.

"Will you kindly tell Miss Manners that her uncle is dead?" was the reply.

"I'll announce the fact to her immediately."

"Thank you very much." Click!

For a week Miss Manners' father kept calling her up twice a day or oftener. The matron, feeling that the nurse's time should be devoted to her patients instead of her father, found his address in the telephone book and called him up one evening after dinner.

"Is this Mr. Manners?"

"Yes."

"I'm the matron of St. Luke's hospital. I trust you won't take it amiss if I suggest that you refrain from calling up your daughter on the phone so often. It keeps her from her duties."

"I have never called my daughter on the phone in my life."

"You haven't?"

"No."

Mrs. Irwin was mystified. She was convinced that Mr. Manners was telling the truth. She said nothing, but when a few hours later there was a call for Miss Manners she went to the phone on an upper floor and listened.

"Is that you, Lucy, dear?"

"Yes, Phil."

The voice sounded more familiar to the matron than ever, and the name Phil gave her a clew. Dr. Philip Auchmuity, who upon graduating at a medical college had been house surgeon at the hospital and had recently resigned. Mrs. Irwin mentally put one and one together, and the result was two; the doctor and the nurse in a love affair. She listened to a conversation which made her aged heart envious, and when it was ended she called up Dr. Auchmuity and asked him to come to the hospital. She wished to see him about one of the nurses who had been ailing, but was getting better, and the doctor's opinion was wanted as to whether she had better be discharged. He called a little later, and the matron asked him into a private parlor.

"Doctor," she said, "the patient about whom I wish to consult you is Miss Manners. She's troubled with a mania of running to the telephone several times a day to chat with her father. This takes up so much of her time that I am thinking of discharging her."

The doctor winced, but kept a stiff upper lip. "If Miss Manners' father calls her up how can she help it?" he said.

"By refusing to go to the phone when he calls."

"What! Refuse to answer to her own father!"

"Come, come, doctor! I heard your last conversation on the phone with Miss Manners. Are you engaged to her or married to her?"

"Married," replied the doctor after some hesitation. "Being aware that you would not retain her as a married woman we concluded to keep our wedding secret till I got settled in my profession."

"Then you advise your wife's discharge?"

"I do. I am to be Dr. Clarke Emerson's assistant. I don't think I need trouble you to keep Mrs. Auchmuity any longer."

Mrs. Irwin went to the hall and cried out with a loud voice:

"Mrs. Auchmuity! Your husband is here!"

Red as a rose was the nurse as she obeyed the summons.

QUAINT CEREMONIES MARK THE FESTIVITIES AT ARAB WEDDINGS

Arab weddings begin on Monday—that is to say, the first preparation commences on that day, when the bridegroom sends to the house of the bride the canopy under which she will walk in state on the following Thursday to his home. Along with this, if he is rich, he sends her a sack full of leaves of the henna plant, so much in use among the Arab women for toilet purposes; also two or three lambs, much oil and grain—in fact, everything necessary for the marriage feast for the women, which takes place in the bride's house. Musicians playing the tomtom and the zummara (pipes) accompany the gifts.

Then a quaint ceremony takes place. The bride, covered with a rich silk barracan, and held by two women attendants, who grasp her firmly on either side of the waist, advances stiffly and solemnly, preceded by a third, who walks backward, holding a looking glass in front of the bride's face so that she must gaze into it as she walks. When she reaches the sack of henna, still with the utmost solemnity she sits down upon it seven times in succession to bring good fortune to her future home. This is a very ancient custom, never omitted on the Monday.

On Tuesday, the henna leaves having been crushed by the women, the paste is put on the head of the bride and a little on her hands. Then she remains seated while her women and girl friends gather round her. Each in turn places her hand on the bride's head, extolling her many virtues, saying how charitable she has been, how generous, that she has given oil and bread and clothes to the poor, etc. Whether true or not is of the least importance.

On Wednesday evening her hands are covered with henna, the whole of the palms and the back of the hand as far as the knuckles, so that they look almost black. The feet are treated in the same way, the whole of the soles, and the rest of the foot in the shape of a shoe.

Thursday is the great day. Now, after these ceremonies, after all sorts of preparations and much feasting with her friends, the actual marriage day arrives. In the morning the bride is perfumed with rich, strange oriental scents. At 6 o'clock in the evening she is taken in procession under the canopy to the house of the bridegroom.

Before entering the room where she will be attired for the marriage she stops outside the door to throw and break an egg against the top of the lintel. As soon as she gets inside the room she breaks a jar of water, both old customs, to bring good luck. The women dress her in fine silk clothes, with many gold ornaments and a rich silk barracan, all provided by the bridegroom. As a matter of fact, only two or three of the rich gold bracelets and so on are given, the rest being hired by the bridegroom for the occasion.

The bride is then left seated in the room covered with a great piece of silk or cloth all over her and hiding her entirely from view. By this time her women and girl friends have all arrived and are feasting and rejoicing in one of the rooms. Now the bridegroom, who in the meantime has been to prayer in the mosque, comes to his house, accompanied by all his friends, singing and making merry.

They all go into a separate room to feast, leaving the happy man to enter alone into the room where his shrouded wife awaits him. Each places a piece of sugar between the lips of the other as a symbol of the sweetness of the married life which lies before them, and the bridegroom offers his bride a gift of jewelry or gold coins. The guests remain till late in the night, very often till the next morning. Endless feasting and music entertain them, for the Arabs have an extraordinary capacity for enjoying both for hours and hours at a time.

For seven days afterward the bride, richly dressed, receives innumerable visits from her friends. Really this is the time of her life, and she makes the most of it. On the seventh day she offers them all yet once again a great feast. After another forty days they come once more to eat at her house. Then the wedding festivities are really at an end.

All these customs are in vogue also among the Bedouin Arabs, but they have others. For instance, the Bedouin bridegroom for seven days after the wedding enjoys himself, wandering through the gardens of the oasis, doing no work, always accompanied by a group of his friends. But on the seventh day he must keep a sharp lookout, for on that day his friends will try suddenly to play a trick on him if he escapes them well and good. Then he can run to his house and be safe. If not, they snatch his clothes from him and beat him, which seems a poor return for the feasting and entertainment. But it is the custom. These people will not omit the smallest ceremony handed down to them by their forefathers. — "The New Tripoli, and What I Saw in the Hinterland," by Ethel Braun.

Fanned Chicken.

Select chickens four or five months old. After dressing cut them through the middle of the back, wash thoroughly, wipe and rub inside with salt. Pour an inch of boiling water into a roasting pan with three heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, lay the chickens flat, with breasts uppermost. Cover tightly and watch carefully, basting and adding water when needed. In an ordinary oven an hour and a quarter is sufficient for cooking them. When ready for the table spread with hot butter. Make gravy as for any chicken dish.

SHOULD EAT APPLES.

Main Reliance Must Be Placed on the Home Market.

Under ordinary conditions, the British market takes each year about 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian apples. This season practically no early apples have been taken, and the prospects are that very few fall shipments can be made. Unless there is a marked change in the near future a large percentage of the crop will have to be held at home, and this in a year of abundant yield. Even if an export trade should become possible, it must be remembered that the purchasing power of the British public has been greatly reduced. The laboring classes, which, after all, are the great consumers, are not in a position to buy luxuries, and the demand for fruit will be consequently lessened.

In Canada, those who buy apples from the grower in the orchard have not been normally active. Hundreds of barrels of early apples have never left the orchard, and from present indications a similar fate is in store for much of the later fruit.

It is safe to presume that fruit which is at all inferior in quality will not be harvested, and that a large quantity of the better grades will be held in storage, pending a possible improvement in conditions, and an increased demand. If that demand fails to arise, the plight of the fruitgrower will be a sad one.

And who is to create the demand? The consumers in the towns and cities and in the prairie provinces. Apples were never so cheap as they will be this season, and if everyone will do his share to increase consumption, not only by purchasing fruit himself but by telling others to do so, much can be done to help the grower, and at the same time the man in the home will be getting fruit of better quality at a lower cost than ever before.

For several years a publicity campaign has been carried out by applegrowers in the United States to stimulate apple consumption. At the present time the growers of the northwestern states have colored poster in New York, and these will be changed each month to keep the public informed on the varieties that are offered. Canadian growers must adopt a similar scheme if they are to obtain full advantage of the home market.

Although not everywhere uniform in quality Canada's apple crop this year promises to be a record one. In former years it has been our habit to export about four million dollars' worth of the fruit to Great Britain and other countries. Owing to the shortage of ocean freights and the high cost of insurance, caused by the war, the export market just now, is practically closed to apples. This is more to be regretted as the crop is certain to be much larger than usual.

If there ever was a year when Canada needed to husband all her various resources, to make the most of her products, it is surely this one. The artificial value placed upon all food products by the war makes it to be incumbent upon us to see that nothing our country produces goes to waste, or is not used to fullest advantage. Something should be done and quickly to make a good and profitable use of our apples this year. Our own country is capable of consuming, to good advantage all round, vastly greater quantities than has been the rule in the past.

Canadian Timber Wanted.

Becoming anxious concerning the supply of timber props for coal mines, hitherto largely supplied from Baltic ports, from which the traffic has been interrupted by the war, the British colliery owners, in co-operation with the Board of Trade, are sending special commissioners to confer with Hamilton Wickes, British Trade Commissioner at Montreal, as to the possibility of securing a supply from Canada. The value of this trade is $20,000,000 annually, but Mr. Watson fears lest Canadian exporters should make their prices prohibitive.

She Thanks Canada.

The Canadian Government has received the following letter from a little English girl, Marjorie Robertson, of Wandsworth Common, London:

"It is with most grateful appreciation that I write to thank you on behalf of my country for the handsome gift of flour you have so generously sent us, which is most welcome. We most heartily thank you, not only for the gift, but for the kind thought and your action in the time of war. It is nice to feel that your Dominion remembers the Mother Country in such a nice way."

AN ATLANTIC EPISODE

By CHARLES LEWIS PHIPPS

I confess that in going about my chief pleasure is watching other persons.

Coming over the Atlantic ocean to America on a liner I picked out a mother and daughter as worthy of my attention. A young man had been introduced to the daughter, who seemed to be very well pleased with him. The mother was also well pleased that the daughter was well pleased. The young man was well pleased too. What struck my delicate perceptive faculties was that the mother's pleasure in the matter seemed to arise from a sense of relief. How or why I inferred this I can't explain. A woman would understand it without an explanation. As for a man, you couldn't stick it into him with a hatpin.

These two young things were getting on like two mating turtledoves when one day, the girl being on deck, I saw her go to the stern of the ship. The weather was bad, and I was the only other woman on deck. I scudded along after the girl on the other side of the smokestack and deckhouses till she reached the limit to the first class part of the ship and she stood looking out on to the second class part. A young man appeared. He saw the girl, but he didn't see me, for I was crouching under a lifeboat. He threw a kiss to the girl, who, after looking around to see that she was not observed, returned it in kind.

Now, wasn't that interesting?

Of course it wouldn't have been half so interesting if it hadn't been for the other young man the girl had met on the voyage. She was fooling her mother with him. The real lover, whom the mother condemned, was traveling second class so that it wouldn't be known to the girl's mamma that he was on the ship.

Now, what was the upshot of all this? In order to keep track of it I must be up and doing. I mustn't let the slightest incident escape me.

And I didn't.

A couple of days after this, when it was stormy, I, remembering that lovers chose just such weather to send kisses, went on deck early and stayed all day, having a steward bring up my lunch. About dusk the girl came up, and I knew by her looks that something was up. She didn't know it, but out of the corner of my eye I saw her scowl at me. I was the only woman on deck. She didn't care for the men. She could fool them, but she couldn't fool me.

That girl scudded along to the after part of he ship without any one seeing her except me, and just as the darkness was settling down she was lost to view.

In about an hour from that time there was the biggest racket aboard that ship you ever saw. The girl had disappeared, and her mother was wild about her. One or two of the men who were on deck when she came up reported having seen her, but none of them saw the last of her. But her mother abused them so frightfully for not keeping an eye on her, especially as the ship was rolling badly, that after awhile one of the sailors said:

"Missus, we didn't want to hurt yer feelin's. The truth is I saw the young lady skiddin' along till she struck the port rail about midship, and afore I could get my hands on her she toppled over."

This, if it had not been for the distress it gave the poor mother, would have been amusing. I was bound I wouldn't give the girl away, and yet I couldn't bear to see the mother suffer. We were to reach port the next morning, and somehow I doubted if the mother believed her daughter had gone overboard. The latter knew mighty well that she was trying to keep her from a young man, and I don't doubt that it was probable she was somewhere on the ship. She had a thorough search made of the first class portion and a perfunctory search made of the second class, but none of the steerage.

I didn't know and I don't know now how the lovers managed it, but I know what I would have done had I been one of them. I would have gone, at least temporarily, from the second class cabin to the steerage and remained there till the fuss blew over. They could easily have got some emigrant clothes and, besides, could have dodged any one looking for them.

The next day nothing was said about the girl who was seen to plunge into the ocean. The passengers were busy getting ready to go ashore, and perhaps they hadn't time to concern themselves about a person they didn't even know personally. Seeing a group of three persons standing together waiting to go down the gangplank I approached them. They were the mother and daughter and a young man who bore a strong resemblance to the second class passenger who had been throwing kisses during the voyage. The mother looked sour enough to bite off a nail. The daughter looked ill at ease, but the young man seemed to be quite proud of himself.

The only way I could find out about what had taken place was to remain aboard till after the passengers had gone ashore and interview some of the officers. This I did and learned that the girl having joined her lover in the second class part of the ship was married there and returned before midnight with her husband. It was agreed by all that since the ship would soon reach port the matter need not be explained.

Culinary Notes

Cooking Fresh Vegetables.

Some cooks use a little vinegar with green beans, spinach or cabbage to soften the cellulose. A small onion sliced and cooked with peas is the method employed by another cook. But it is very necessary that the water be soft, and therefore in case you must use hard water a very tiny bit of soda may be boiled in the water. When peas are cooked in the soda water, after fifteen or twenty minutes pour off this water and finish with fresh boiling water. A few green mint leaves added at this time will increase the palatableness of the peas.

Making Cabbage Digestible.

Cabbage that is crisped in cold water before it is cooked or served raw will agree with almost every one if you do not commit the error of overcooking it. Overcooked, water soaked cabbage is an unpardonable sin against the powers of digestion. If you find that the peas, green beans, cabbage, etc., have grown beyond their tender youth you may resort to the use of a little baking soda added to the water in which they are boiled. But use soda very judiciously. The slightest excess will injure their flavor.

Useful Kitchen Set.

Something just imported and useful for kitchen work is a set of imported wooden utensils. It consists of a bread board, two scoops, two smaller spoons, a meat pounder—useful also as a potato masher—two whirls, useful in baking, and a butter former. These carved of smooth white wood and bound carefully on the bread board, are only $1 a set.

Fought Tied to a Tree.

Capt. Wilhelm Muller, a wounded German officer, has told in Munich an interesting story of the fighting at Vosges.

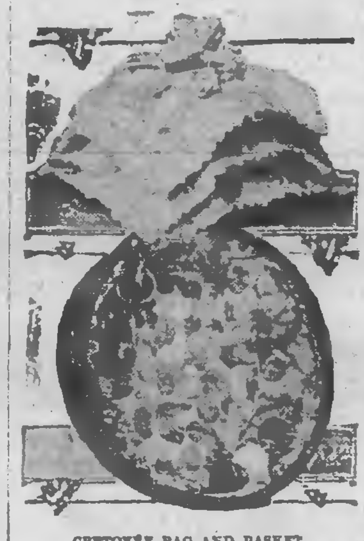
"The battles," he says, "owed much of their fierceness to the presence of the French chasseurs. These strong Alpine mountaineers concealed themselves in treetops and tied themselves to the branches so that if they were killed or wounded they would not fall and disclose their position to the enemy."

Britannia seems to be ruling the waves everywhere except around Chili.

CONVENIENT DARNING OUTFITS

Three Tiered Bag and Well Fitted Basket For the Mender or Fancy Worker.

It is not too early to begin planning for Christmas. The two useful little articles illustrated here would make splendid gifts for the thrifty housewife who has mending to do or for the maid or matron who loves fancy work. The bag shown above is fashioned of squares of cretonne. Two of the squares are lined with plain material and stitched together at the edges. Three of these sections are then fastened together by cutting out the centers, fastening them there and attaching a ribbon covered embroidery hoop to the top opening. Little pockets may be attached to the compartments inside the bag for the accommodation of sewing or fancy work materials. There is of course a ribbon hanger attached to the bag, by means of which it may be conveniently carried about.



CRETONNE BAG AND BASKET.

The little basket shown is an imported darning basket, which is lined with flowered cretonne and provided with all the implements required for darning successfully. These include a darning egg and emory pincushion, reels of darning silk and cotton and wool and a pocket for needles. The basket might be duplicated in raffia or by any one who has skill in basket making, or it may be purchased ready made and, after being lined with cretonne, fitted up with the required articles.

Restoring Colors In Carpets.

If a carpet is almost all wool the color may be brightened or wholly restored if washed with a pail of water containing three gills of ox gall. If necessary to use fresh ox gall procure it at the butcher's, cut it into small pieces, cover with warm water and allow it to soak for several hours. Dilute the liquid and wipe the carpet off with it. It makes a lather and should be rinsed off with clear water.

Many Italians Leaving.

Railways, ticket agents, and employers of foreign labor in Canada, report an unusually large migration to Europe lately of Italians, Spaniards and Bulgarians.

"There are always a large number of foreigners going home for the winter, but the number leaving this fall is greatly in excess of former years," said one ticket man recently.

Mr. Harry Corti, editor of the Italian Canadian Tribune, says that although there are a large number of his countrymen going home just now, he does not believe that it is their intentions to join the army. The foreign consuls have not yet been notified of mobilization orders.

"The scarcity of work in Toronto and in the province has caused the Italians migrating," said Mr. Corti. "I don't think the war is the primary cause of their returning. There are always a large number going back every autumn, but they are starting earlier this year on account of the condition of the labor market. The men who have gone are unmarried, and no doubt they will return in the spring if the labor market revives."

Dr. Harley Smith, the Italian Consul in Toronto, also ascribed the excessive migration of Italians to the labor market. He stated that more were going back this year than for any year during the past five. There had been no mobilization orders issued, he also stated.

THE VICTROLA AND THE FAMILY—No. 4

Mother

says she likes the Victrola because the children are so fond of it.

"I always play it for them evenings before bedtime, so now I never have any trouble in getting them home.

"Then the Victrola is such a splendid help to the children's education. Through its teaching they have become familiar with the best works of all the great composers, as interpreted by the best singers and musicians. One of their favorites is Dvorak's beautiful 'Humoresque,' played by Mischa Elman.

"Besides, I have a really selfish reason for liking it. Some of the ladies of my aquaintance used to delight in inviting me to teas and receptions where they played their fine Victor Records, but now that we have a Victrola, I can have just as good music as theirs."

Victrola IV $20

With 15 ten-inch, double-sided Victor Records $33.50

Other Victrolas from $32.50 to $300 (on easy payments, if desired), and ten-inch, double-sided Victor Records at 90c for the two selections at any "His Master's Voice" dealer in any town or city in Canada.

Bread From Tulip Bulbs

Holland, the land of tulips, is going to eat tulip bread owing to the scarcity of wheat and the difficulty of importing it. A baker in Breda had the ingenious idea of baking bread made from flour composed of two thirds wheat and one-third ground tulip-bulbs.

The bread tastes well, is very nourishing, and very cheap owing to the vast stock of tulip bulbs available everywhere in Holland. The association of Dutch bakers officially sanctioned tulip bread, and a loaf was presented to the Minister of War, who recommended it for army use.

FALL OF TSING TAU RELEASES WARSHIPS TO HUNT DOWN GERMAN SHIPS IN THE PACIFIC

BRITISH AND FRENCH RESUME OFFENSIVE WIN AROUND YPRES

Allied Forces Repulse Violent Attacks by Detachments From Fresh Corps of Germans and Retain Their Positions at Other Points

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 7. — The official announcement this afternoon says:

"On our left wing the situation is relatively quiet on the Yser down stream from Dixmude. Belgian troops who have advanced along the right bank of the Yser from Nieuport and had been counter-attacked by the Germans, were sustained in time. The situation has been entirely re-established in this locality.

"We have resumed the offensive around Ypres in combination with British troops operating in this region, and repulsed a particularly violent and pronounced attack by detachments belonging to the active army corps recently brought into this region by the Germans.

"Between Armentieres and the canal of La Bassee the British army repulsed a violent attack on Neuvechappelle between the canal of La Bassee and Arras, as well as between Arras and the Oise. Several counter-attacks delivered by night and by day have been checked.

"On the centre and right engagements have gone in our favor."

PARIS, Nov. 7. — Having been driven by gun fire and by flood from the road to Dunkirk, the Germans appear to be concentrating all their energies on the Ypres-Arras line with the object of reaching Boulogne through thee valley of the Canche River, in the Department of Pas-de-Calais.

Three recently formed army corps have been brought up to stiffen the Germans who are exhausted after nine days' ceaseless fighting. These troops are being massed around Arras behind strong positions established at Beauvais, Tilloy and St. Laurent-de-Blangy. Preparatory canonading has become intense in the last two days, according to a resident of the district just arrived in Paris, and infantry attacks have been made, apparently with the object of testing the strength of the French.

Lack Individual Initiative.

It was remarked that the enemy seemed to be abandoning methods of advancing in dense masses and had tried attacking in open order, making use of all available cover. The result [illegible] been no better, as the men seem to lack the individual initiative required. None of these attacks so far have made any impression on the French line.

The country between Arras and Boulogne is well wooded and hilly, lending itself admirably to offensive fighting, and every preparation has been made to utilize it, for it is realized that the Germans will make a greater effort, if possible, than before, in view of the critical situation on the Russian front.

PARIS, Nov. 7. — With renewed energy the Germans are clinging tenaciously to their positions in Flanders, especially the Ypres region, but the initiative so important to modern warfare is now passing to the Allies. Eyewitnesses from the front declare the fighting around Bixschoote is as furious as ever. Germans have attacked again and again, and positions have been won and lost many times, but the advantage has remained with the Allies.

No less violent was the struggle south of Ypres for the command of the high road leading from Ypres to Armentieres and Lille. This road is now in possession of the Allies.

Now or Never.

Now or never is the time for the Germans to bring up reserves to make a decisive effort to win through, in the opinion of military experts. According to prisoners taken recently, while there is no lack of men, there is great dearth of officers, large numbers having been sent to the Russian frontier, where the need of them is greater, to make up staffs for reserve corps opposing the ever-growing Russian army.

German efforts to pass Arras and break through to the coast by way of the hilly country of Artois continue, but with less success.

Purchase of Horses for War

Mr. Burnham is in receipt of a letter from the deputy minister of militia in reply to the Federal member's suggestion that Peterboro be made a centre for the purchase of horses for the second expeditionary force from Canada. The deputy minister says the suggestion will be considered, and followed out if it is found practicable.

The above is a group of a former Peterborough household, Major R. Max Dennistoun and his two sons of Winnipeg who are with the first Canadian Contingent in training at Salisbury Plain, England. In the centre, is Major R. Max Dennistoun, K.C., commander of "B" Squadron, Fort Garry Horse. On the right is Lieutenant John Romeyn Dennistoun, a member of King Edward's Horse, at Cambridge, England; on the left is Captain James A. Dennistoun, graduate of Royal Military College, Kingston, and a captain in "B" Squadron. Peterboro friends will follow the fortunes of the gallant father and his sons as they fight for the Empire.

NEW TYPE OF STREET LIGHTING LAMP TESTED

City May be Provided With Better System of Street Lighting

A joint meeting of the Fire, Water and Light and Power Committees, also representatives of the Utilities Commission, was held last evening to discuss ways and means of improving Peterboro's lighting system, bobth in regard to residences and streets. Those present were Ald. Green, R. Hicks, W. H. Moore, K.C., Manager Howse, Ald. Weir, Ald. Stratton, Ald, Duncan, Ald. Johnston, Ald. Langford, Ald. Saunders, Ald. Dobbin, Mayor Buller and Fire Chief Howard.

The first matter dealt with was the street lighting. Mr. Hicks stated that the system of lighting the streets of Peterboro is very ancient, in fact the globes have to be purchased from the scrap heap for factories have ceased to make them. The scarcity of money withholds the Comission from installing a new system just at present although Mr. Howse was making preparations for it.

Many Outages.

Chairman Ald. Green remarked that every one is more or less handicapped at present through the scarcity of money but he wished that some of the members of the Commission could recommend some scheme by which the worst trouble could be overcome. That worst trouble is the large number of lamps out during the month of October according to the report of Fire Chief Howard, who has been acting as light inspector. Manager Howse objected to the remark that the number of lights out was greater during the month of October than any preceding month. Ald. Green then read Chief Howard's report which was as follows:—

1910, last six months	365
1911	431
1912	383
1913	278
1914, ten months	638
October, 1914	348

Manager Howse claimed that statement to be both unfair and untrue.

Manager Hicks asked Fire Chief Howard if he could furnish the names of the informants, but the Chief has kept no record of these. He further admitted that since the Commission has taken over he lighting system, those reported out have not been investigated, while previous to that they were. Mr. Hicks submitted that it would not be right to take Fire Chief Howard's report as authentic as none of the reports had been investigated and the reports might easily be erroneous.

New Lamp Installed.

The discussion drifted to the light installed yesterday on the corner of McDonnel and George Streets. It was a tungsten and was giving a grand ray of light. Some figuring was done on the approximate cost of lighting the city with that style of lamp and it was finally decided to leave it with Manager Howse for a report. He will endeavor to fit the city with some style of lamp that will be utilized when the new system is installed.

Mayor Buller stated that the citizens must be given better light and if necessary the city would sell short term debentures to cover the cost. Manager Howse's report will give an estimate of the cost.

House Lighting.

Ald. Stratton asked how about house lighting for the coming winter. He claimed the light to be very bad in his residence. Mr. Moore remarked that he couldn't see any difference in it this year than during the fall of any other year. Manager Howse stated that the fault lay partially in the poor lighting system and partially in the low voltage. The latter is regulated by the water. "You'll never have a system until you have a new system, and if I build it for you, it will give no trouble," he concluded.

Wiring Inspector.

The last matter discussed was the appointing of an inspector of wiring but it was referred to the Utilities Commission for further consideration. That body will report to the Fire, Water and Light and Power Commitees before any action is taken.

NOW FOR THE SEA

Campaign in the Pacific is Looked for

Kiao Chow Blown up by the Germans

Ships Destroyed and Many Prisoners Taken

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. — Official despatches telling of the fall of Tsing Tau, received today at the Japanese Embassy, were interpreted as signalling the beginning of an offensive naval campaign in the Pacific.

Three squadrons occupied in blockading will now be released, it was said, to hunt down German ships in the Pacific.

TOKIO, Nov. 7. — It is reported unofficially that Germans at Kiao Chow blew up what was left of their forts before surrendering, and the town is practically in ruins.

Nearly all their ships also have been destroyed. Prisoners, it is believed, to the number of between 6,000 and 8,000 will be brought to Japan.

The minister of war says the siege demonstrated the destructiveness of Japan's new heavy guns.

EARLY TRIUMPH FOR ALLIES IS PREDICTED BY FRENCH EXPERT

Germans Are Hammering Away With Unheard of Recklessness, But Are Believed to Have Given up Attempts to Cross Yser River.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The British official press bureau has issued the following statement:

"The enemy's attack has decreased in vigor and the process of pressing them back is making slow but steady progress.

"The advance has been most marked to the south of Dixmude and toward Gheleweldt, but the weather has been misty and has tended to hamper operations."

"We are on the eve of a new victory, comparable to that of the Marne." So writes Gen. Bonnal, one of France's greatest military leaders and experts, to The Paris Matin.

From the region of Ypres to Rheims the Germans yesterday hammered persistently at the allied front, but with nothing that resembled success. French troops in the neighborhood of Roye won important positions commanding the road to Andechy.

Messages from widely-separated points tell of the allied drive into Belgium, and it now seems that the Germans have been cleared from the coastal plain right up to the outskirts of Ostend. The flooded area which completed the German disaster on the Yser is hindering the movement, it being very difficult to move men and guns in such number along the comparatively few highways not under water.

Great movements of troops around Ypres are reported by French aviators. That town was the centre of vicious fighting throughout the day, the Franco-British lines holding firmly under a terrific artillery fire. It is reported that the Kaiser himself directed the assault on Ypres.

"Around Arras there was sanguinary fighting.

At every point on the long front in Lorraine, France and Belgium the situation is favorable to the allies. The Germans are sacrificing men with an extravagant disregard of the "human element" that draws forth the greatest admiration from the opposing forces. But the result is everywhere futile.

A despatch from Sluis to The Telegraaf says: "It is now obvious that the Germans have abandoned their attempts to cross the Yser. Belgian troops occupy both banks of the river.

"German troops have retreated eastward in large numbers, and continued to arrive in Bruges throughout Thursday."

The Exchange Telegraph's correspondent at Amsterdam says the Germans have concentrated in Munster, 78 miles northeast of Cologne, 150,000 fresh troops, which will be sent into Belgium Sunday, when all railway traffic will stop for the present.

Reports come from the Dutch frontier that the Germans are making preparations for retirement, but military observers here say that from the fact that reinforcements are being brought up, it is certain they have not yet despaired of breaking through the allies' front and reaching either Calais or Boulogne.

Elsewhere along the great front there has been a repetition of isolated encounters which, in the French official communications, are referred to as minor affairs, but which in ordinary wars would be considered fair-sized battles.

The British fleet, according to unofficial accounts, again has taken action along the Belgian coast and has been bombarding Enocke and Zeebrugge, where the Germans are supposed to be organizing bases for their submarines.

Austria looks about as cheerful as a dark night in a cemetery.

G. W. HATTON APPOINTED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, Nov. 7. — George W. Hatton has been appointed Crown Attorney for Peterboro County.

County Council Session Ends

The County Council brought their session to a close this morning. The recommendation of the finance committee was, as previously stated, to make a monthly grant of $400 from now till the January session to either the Red Cross Fund, the Canadian Patriotic Fund, or the Belgian Relief Fund. A committee composed of Councillors Kindred, Anderson and Garbutt was appointed to decide which fund the money will be paid to.

County Treasurer E. Elliot was appointed honorary treasurer of the County Relief Fund. In each municipality relief fund associations have been formed, and the treasurers of these associations will send their donations to Mr. Elliot, who will see that they are sent to whichever fund the secretary of the association desires.

On motion of Councillors Kindred and Squire, the Council expressed its appreciation of the services rendered the county by Councillor Campbell of Chandos, who is contemplating retiring from public life. In replying Councillor Campbell thanked the members of the County Council for their kind feeling toward him, and remarked that he hoped he had always done his duty and lost no one's friendship. To this Warden Shaw stated that he had not done so, but on the contrary had won the respect of all members. On every stand he took his word was as good as his bond.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1914

THE SOLDIERS IN THE VALLEY.

A STRIKING PICTURE appeared in last week's issue of Toronto Saturday Night, showing a long column of French soldiers with motor transports, marching along one of the fine roads for which France is famous. This road winds through the Champagne Valley. On the left, the land, rising with a gentle slope, was thickly covered with grape vines, among which the numerous supporting stakes resembled the rifles of the passing army. Among these vineyards were busily engaged a number of pickers, mostly women, and a few of them were pictured as watching the soldiers pass by. Over to the right of the scene, peaceful farm lands, with here and there a picturesque tree, rolled away gently into the distance.

The contrast could hardly have been more pronounced. The beautiful valley was a picture of peace and abundance, and through it was passing a long line of fine, able-bodied men, marching forward on a mission of destruction and waste. All these soldiers, taken from their occupations, were not only non-producers, but destroyers. Some of them will never come back, others will return, wounded, or maimed for life, and will be either a temporary or a permanent burden on society. Fields and shops are neglected, looms are silent, business has gone to the dogs, that these men might march to war. The generations coming after will pay the cost of all this waste, so far as labour and money can pay it, but it can never replace the fine lives shot away, it cannot restore the crippled men, or dry the widows' tears, for most of war's losses are permanent.

There is another point to be observed. Very few of the people in this picture are workers. The fields in the distance are destitute of human life. The whole harvest is left to a very few, and it is not likely that it can all be garnered. How soon the green-grey columns of German infantry will bivouack in this valley, or how soon fire will destroy the vines, no one can say. This picture emphasizes what a state of war means to a country when battles are fought within it. It also illustrates the relatively secure position in which Canada is happily placed.

MORE RIFLE FACTORIES NEEDED.

IN TIME OF PEACE the Ross Rifle Factory at Quebec was sufficient for the needs of Canada. But the production of military weapons should always be adequate to the demands of war, and the Ross Factory is not. War always makes sudden and great demands on the country's resources, and the arming of troops is one of the most important details in the conduct of a war. To meet this necessity properly, Canada should not be dependent upon only one factory. Others should be built and equipped at strategical points, not necessarily for operation, but as auxiliary plants to the Quebec factory. Then, at a time like the present, when we are equipping some fifty or seventy-five thousand troops, we could do so without draining the country of military rifles. Should this country ever be attacked or invaded, we would not then be dependent on one city or one factory to produce our arms. There are numerous rifle associations and militia units throughout Canada which are unable to get rifle practice at this most critical time because there are no rifles with which to practise. The matter is one of great importance, and should be taken up at the very next session of the Dominion Parliament.

SCIENCE NOTES ON THE WAR.

THE EUROPEAN WAR has awakened interest in the scientific and historical side of the war. Take the matter of machine guns for an example. Every day in the newspapers there crop up incidents dealing with the effect of machine-gun fire, and an enormous number of these weapons are doing their deadly work today.

In the British army the machine gun is the Maxim; the French use the Hotchkiss, or Puteaux, Austrians employ the Schwarzlose, and Germans the Maxim. In all cases machine-guns are attached to the infantry forces, usually at the proportion of two guns per battalion, or 1,000 men.

These guns fire rifle cartridges at immense speed by mechanical means, and usually the kick, or record, of the gun is used for the purpose of reloading. It is interesting to note that in a test of forty-two British first-class shots engaged against a machine-gun, each firing at the same target for one minute, the gun discharged 228 rounds and made sixty-nine hits; the forty-two marksmen discharged 408 rounds and made sixty-two hits.

Concerning shrapnel shells, the Montreal Journal of Commerce says that shrapnel fire, which has caused the most damage during the war, is the invention of a Britisher. General John Shrapnel, an English officer, was born in 1761, served in the wars on the Continent in 1799, and through the Napoleonic struggle. He was so impressed with the terrific effect of round shot and the limited range of grape shot, that he invented the shell which is in use at the present time. His shell was filled with bullets and powder, and ignited by a time fuse. It was first used by the British in 1802 in the Peninsular War, and remained exclusively a British secret until 1824. It has been somewhat improved and made more effective since first used by John Shrapnel, but in the main it remains as invented by the doughty warrior of a century ago. With the usual carelessness of governments, John Shrapnel was never reimbursed for his experiments. All he received was £1,200 a year and the offer of a baronetcy, which he could not afford to accept. He died in 1842 greatly embittered because of his country's ingratitude.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

THE ACTION of the County Council in following the lead of the Dominion Government in the appointment of a supervising committee of County Councillors to handle the Council's appropriation for the Patriotic Fund in each township, is a good one. It will be remembered that the Dominion Government passed a Dominion Highways Bill and made arangements to spend the money. The Senate killed the bill on the ground that the money should have been paid to the Provinces for the Provinces to spend. The County Council has not followed the Senate's example. It has approved, however, the proposed action of Sir Robert Borden. The Examiner will have some difficulty in explaining this away.

WHAT DID BERNSTORFF MEAN?

WHAT did Count Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States, really mean by his recent speech in regard to the Monroe Doctrine? Was he merely saying something to get himself talked about? We think not. Was he saying something with a deep meaning hidden behind a few casual words? We think he was.

Canada has done what Germany did not expect her to do—come to the assistance of the Motherland in a magnificent manner. Canada is as truly an enemy of Germany as Britain is, and, be assured, if Britain falls in this great conflict, Canada will not escape the consequence of being an important part of the British Empire. Canada is just such a country as Germany wants, and Count Bernstorff was merely giving the United States a little tip that if Germany were victorious, the Monroe Doctrine could go to pot, so far as Germany was concerned. The safety of Canada as a self-governing Dominion is threatened by Germany in this war, just as surely as the nationality or independence of Britain is threatened. Bernstorff's little intimation was timely, but, far from shaking Canada's loyalty, will only increase our devotion to Britain's cause.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WITHOUT DESIRING to appear unduly curious or impolite, we gently ask if Mr. Moyes has been found.—Toronto News. Surely the Toronto paragrapher ought to know enough to apply to the provincial police. They can tell him where Mr. Moyes ain't.

A RESIDENT on our street showed us a rosebush yesterday in full bloom. The blooms are small and deep red, and are very pretty. Needless to say, he is much obliged to this little bush for producing a large family of flowers so late in the season.

STILL another way of beating the Germans is to hand them enough prisoners of war to eat them into bankruptcy.—Toronto Saturday Night. Following this advice, why not ship the Belgian refugees to Berlin?

THEY TELL us there is only one military Ross rifle in Peterborough. We could make a fine stand against a dozen or so Germans from the United States, couldn't we?

A LOT OF PAPERS have editorials on the United States elections that may be well reasoned and all that, but they can't change anything now.

THERE are plenty of people who can tell us how to run a paper, but doing it on a financial or paying basis is another matter.

No More Romance?

(Collier's.)

Belgium is an overpopulated little country, civilised beyond description and much occupied with manufactures, socialism and other modern activities. No region on earth is farther from the land of Deadwood Dick, and yet it was officially announced, not long ago, that Albert, King of the Belgians, had bestowed honours and a military commission upon an eighteen-year-old boy of Liege because of his "brilliant work in capturing eleven spies, all of whom have been shot, and killing one uhlan and capturing another, though suffering from a broken arm." This makes Medicine Bow, Wolfville, and Jackson's Hole seem very tame parochial little towns indeed. Did you ever read a dime-novel yarn that beat it?

Some German Geography Now, Please!

(Life.)

We have had sessions enough in the geography of Belgium and Northern France. A little German geography would be welcome now. For example: Where is Essen? Perhaps the kind Allies will presently locate that place, so that it will be as clear in the minds of the American geography class as Louvain, Rheims and Termonde.

That Emergency.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

The Deutsche Revue says: "This contest is actually for control of the sea, which is the life element of every state which believes it is called to be leader of mankind. England contests this call with us. Then we must either give up or fight for it." This is what made the emergency.

Furnishing a Waiting List.

DR. GORDON'S ANSWERS.

Editor, Review:

Dear Sir,—In the list of questions in your paper on Thursday evening which Dr. Gordon was going to answer, the 14th reads, "Why is it that we cannot heal the sick as the apostles did?" When the Rev. Doctor came to it he said, "I will leave thisf or the last," but he did not refer to it again. Perhaps the committee can tell us why this question went unanswered.

Very truly yours,
ENQUIRER.

TAKEN FOR GERMANS SAY THEY ARE FRENCH.

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly permit me a few lines in your valuable paper. Can anyone of the Peterboro's genealogists let me know to what nationality Mr. Knipper and myself belong. I would be very thankful for it. As far as I know we are French. Mostly all here take us for Germans and like all the Germans and Austrians in Canada, we have to report every week to the Chief of Police. But we can bring proof that we are not Germans. In the following I will give you a short outline of my nationality. According to the documents, which we have in our possession, one of our ancestors, who was an officer in the French troops under King Charles VII. of France (1422-1461) and who fought against the English at Castillon on July 17th, 1453, received for his bravery, a coat of arms from the king, which remains till today in our family with the right of wearing it. His descendants fought under Henri II. (1547-1559) in Lorraine. Afterwards they came under the Bourbons (1589-1789) into Alsace and from that date on our tree of genealogy is uninterrupted, from 1589 till today. In the Franco-Prussian war (1870-1871) my father, my wife's father, Mr. Knipper's father and all by uncles were fighting under the French army. After this war, they did not give their oath of allegiance to the German Government and so we were always treated as French minded and our names were put on the so-called blacklist. They could not expel us from Alsace-Lorraine. We behaved all right, so they had no reason for to do it. The Prussians wanted to Prussianize everything in Alsace, so all the names of the streets and of most of the towns got changed from French into German. Every man that did not take the oath of allegiance for the Germans, had to change his name in German. Our name used to be Beaumaire; the Prussians changed it in Baumer, my wife's name used to be Calcaire. Mr. Knipper's name was Niepres. The town of Laverne got Zabern, Châtemois got Kestonholz, Cernay got Sennheim and so on As long as the Germans are in possession of Alsace-Lorraine we can not change our names. I remember a few years ago, our cousins from France used to send us letters with the name Beaumaire on it. The postmaster of our city refused to deliver them, and so my cousins received their letters back again, and we never got them. Some people here say we are Germans, because our names are German. Of course they are, because we had to change them. If the name of a man will give his nationality, then the Ackermans, Hagermans, Burkes, Grubbes, Heidermans, Hoffmans, Metzlers, Scheibs, Wildmans, Wolffs, etc., all of this city, must be Germans. Some of those names are genuine Prussian. All the young men are compelled to serve in the army, but when we Alsatians leave it, we are more French-minded than before. Supposing the Germans take Canada and the boys have to serve in their army, are they afterwards Germans or Canadians? Supposing a Canadian family emigrates to China or to the Eskimos are their children afterwards Chinese or Eskimos or are they still Canadians? I would like some ethmologist of the city to explain that. Our language is Alemanic, Franconia and French and in the schools they each the high German. We hate the Prussians more than the British do, because we know how mean they treated us for the last 44 years. I would advise some people in this city to take up more study in geography and history, so they can distinguish the different nations. They do not know the difference between a German, a Dutchman and a Prussian. They call everyone that comes from Europe and does not speak the English, a Dutchman. They also call the contingent that left for Europe from Canada, "The Canadian Contingent" in reality it is "the British Contingent from Canada," intermingled with a few real Canadians. They even do not know that King George of England is of German descent. Did not the Elector of Hanover succeed Queen Anne as George I. Was not the mother of Queen Victoria a German Princess? Was not her consort Prince Albert of Saxony-Coburg-Gotha a German prince? Chancellor Sir John A. Boyd in his address to the jury in Halleybury, seeing that a lot of Germans and Austrians wanted to get the naturalizations papers, said that these papers should not be given to them, and indeed the applicants were refused, but all the Finlanders, Russians and Italians got them. What shall we Austrians do? They won't let us go to the States, they won't let us go back to fight in the French army against the Germans, even Mr. Knipper wanted to join the overseas contingent to fight the Germans and he was refused. Nobody will give him work. Apparently the Chancellor did not hear anything of the proclamation of King George V. referring to aliens. Such action throws a bad light on Canada. They send propagandists all over Europe for to win emigrants to Canada, and when they come here to show their loyalty and become good Canadian citizens, they refuse it to them. I repeat it again, we are no Germans, even if we had to serve in the German army, we are Franch and I hope that after this war, our province will be under French rule again. If there is a genealogist or an ethnogoist in this city, I would like him to explain to me whether we are German or French.

Yours very truly,
Emile Beaumaire, alias Emil Baumer.
Georges Niepres, alias George Knipper.

MORALE IS GIVING WAY

Tuetons are Weakening Under the Terrific Losses

NORTH FLANDERS, Nov. 7.—There are signs of the morale of the German troops, who for the last fortnight have been hurled against the British army around Ypres, is giving way. The army cannot attack day after day an enemy who resists successfully and only falls back when overwhelmingly outnumbered without losing heart.

A letter written by a German reserve officer to his wife fell into the hands of the British a few days ago. Its tone is absolutely hopeless. The writer described the sufferings and losses of his regiments. They had been eleven days continuously in the trenches, had all lost hope, and he feared they were doomed. On the strength of this evidence as to the morale of the Germans a counter-attack ordered by the Germans was repulsed from the positions they had just occupied.

SECRET WIRELESS STATIONS.

British Embassy Officials In Washington Investigate Rumors.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. — Out of the flood of letters which pours into the British Embassy, offering, for various considerations, information of German wireless stations on American territory, some which claim information of secret stations in Maine are being used as a basis for investigation.

Others tell of stations on the Pacific coast, in South America, and in the mountain country in Scotland, where the stations are said to communicate with German ships waiting to raid the English coast.

The remarkable recent mobilization of the German ships off the South American coast with such disastrous results to the smallest British squadron has strengthened the belief of British Embassy officials here that some secret means of communication extends into South America, and that the German ships operating in southern waters may have been receiving supplies from somewhere on the Pacific coast of the southern continent.

Berlin Issues Threat.

BERLIN, Nov. 7. — The following announcement is given to the press from official sources:

"Germany's warning of retaliation in case German subjects between the ages of 17 and 55, who are now detained in England, were not treated differently before Nov. 5, has been unanswered by the British Government. Therefore the German Government has ordered the detention of all British of similar ages who are residing in Germany.

"This measure is not only for English subjects, but soon will be extended to British colonials, unless Germans living in British colonies are left unmolested."

THORNEDALE

Or An Inglorious Flight

By EDITH V. ROSS

A young man fashionably dressed alighted from a train at a station in the country and called an auto cab.

"Drive me to the Thorndale House," he said, "but first"—handing the driver a baggage check—"get my trunk."

The gentleman seated himself in the cab while the cabman went for the trunk. The latter was new to the place and, not knowing any such hotel as the Thorndale House, made inquiries of the station agent.

"He must mean Thornedale, the residence of Mr. Edward Thorne. It is up the road about a mile. You'll know it when you come to it, for it is a fine place between the road and the river."

The cabman lugged the trunk to the auto, deposited it therein, then started for Thornedale. On reaching it he pulled up under a porte-cochere, near which on the veranda sat a young lady reading a novel. The gentleman stepped out of the auto. The cabman dumped the trunk on the veranda and drove away. The stranger walked past the young lady through the open front door into the house. Seeing no such place as a hotel office or any one to receive him, he went back on to the veranda, raised his hat deferentially to the young lady and said:

"Beg pardon. Can you tell me where I'll find the landlord?"

"The landlord?"

"Yes, or the clerk or anybody to receive me. This is the Thorndale hotel, is it not?"

"The Thornedale? Oh, yes, this is Thornedale."

"I was recommended to come here by a lady. She is here, is she not—Mrs. Overaker?"

"Mrs. Overaker is expected. She has not yet arrived. You are"—

"Mr. Wingate—John Wingate."

"Oh, Mr. Wingate. I've heard Mrs. Overaker speak of you. Be seated, Mr. Wingate. There's no one about just now but myself. I'll get some one to show you to your room and take up your trunk."

"Please don't incommode yourself. I am in no hurry."

The young lady, who had half risen, reseated herself.

"Quite likely," said the young man, fishing for the young lady's name, "I have heard of you through Mrs. Overaker."

"I am Luella Humphrey."

"Humphrey," meditatively. "I don't know that I have heard her mention any one of that name."

"Have you known Mrs. Overaker long?"

"Only a few months. She came east last spring and visited some friends of mine—the Grosvenors."

"I was quite surprised to hear that Mrs. Overaker was coming back this season. It's a long journey for her to take."

"It's an equally long journey from here to her home."

An imperceptible smile flitted across the young lady's lips. She knew why Mr. Wingate was there and why Mrs. Overaker was coming there. The former was a bachelor, the latter a widow. A courtship between them had been made easy by the lady, and an engagement was to be expected. But, since it was difficult for Mr. Wingate to go to the widow, the widow had made an excuse to go to Mr. Wingate. She had written him that she would be at Thornedale early in October. The lady wrote an illegible hand, and Mr. Wingate read "the Thorndale." Supposing the place to be a hotel, he had gone there to make her a proposal.

Mr. Wingate was a good catch. The widow was ten years older than he and had set her cap for him. Miss Humphrey was a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne and of an age when young ladies are usually on the lookout for husbands. Here was an opportunity—an opportunity that had been enhanced by the widow's bad handwriting in another way than in leading Mr. Wingate to think she was to stay at a hotel. She had written him and the Thornes as well that she would arrive on the 10th of October. He had read it the 1st. Miss Humphrey, if she played her cards well, might have ten days to get a matrimonial hook into Mr. Wingate's mouth.

After Mr. Wingate's remark that it was an equally long journey to the widow's home Miss Humphrey sat listening to what he said further, but intent on what immediate action she would take. Presently she excused herself, and a maid came and showed Mr. Wingate to his room. His trunk followed later. While he was making his toilet an automobile pulled up under the porte-cochere and a gentleman and lady alighted. They were Mr. and Mrs. Thorne. Miss Humphrey told them of the guest who had arrived and the mistake he had made, suggesting that it would be amusing to permit him to continue to be deceived. Thorne, who was ready for anything whereby to make his stay in the country endurable, fell in with the plan enthusiastically.

When the guest came down just before luncheon he was received by Mr. Thorne, who said to him cheerily:

"Sorry not to have been here to receive you, sir. Fact is, we have room for very few guests at any time, and now those who have been here are all returned to the city. So I don't trouble myself to stay about the place much. My niece tells me that she took care of you. Do you like your room?"

"Very much."

"Well, come in to luncheon. Since our guests are all gone it would be lonely for you to eat alone, so we will take you in with us."

"That's very kind of you."

The party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne, Miss Humphrey and Mr. Wingate, sat down to table in a dining room handsomely furnished and partook of a luncheon which the guest pronounced equal to any he had ever eaten in a private house. What puzzled him was that both the landlord and landlady seemed to be to the manner born, while their niece was evidently every inch a lady. True, the landlord talked a great deal about the fine season they had had and the money they had made out of their guests. This seemed to be mortifying to his wife and niece, for during these boasts they both concealed their features behind their napkins. When they had finished the meal and were rising from the table Mrs. Thorne said to her niece:

"Luella, I think you had better take Mr. Wingate out for an auto ride this afternoon. This is a dull place, Mr. Wingate, but we'll do the best we can to keep you from being lonely."

"I shall consider myself under deep obligations," replied the guest.

When an hour later a runabout was brought to the porte-cochere Miss Humphrey took the wheel, and she and Mr. Wingate sped away merrily. They returned only in time to dress for dinner.

"Please charge up all the extras," he said to the landlord privately, "the auto and any wine I order, and I'll pay when I settle my bill."

"You'll find everything charged," said Thorne, "even the cigars."

Mr. Wingate was so delightfully entertained that he didn't fret about the delay in the widow's coming. He played tennis with Miss Humphrey in the morning and rode in the auto with her in the afternoon. In the evening the four occupants of the house played cards, and the days sped by merrily. One day Miss Humphrey said to her companion:

"When do you expect Mrs. Overaker?"

"Mrs. Overaker? Why, I expected her on the 1st of the month. What's this—the 3d?"

"This is the 9th."

"You don't mean it. I wonder what is delaying her."

"Delaying her? You don't expect her at all now, do you?"

Mr. Wingate hoped in his heart that she would not come, but he said that something might have occurred to change her plans. That evening it was evident to all except Mr. Wingate that something of importance was at hand. A delicious dinner was served. Miss Humphrey was clad in a costume that the guest pronounced a "blue dream of heaven." After dinner the landlord and landlady excused themselves and left the place, leaving Mr. Wingate and their niece in the drawing room. A perfume of flowers came in from the conservatory adjoining. Mr. Wingate forgot all about the widow, and—well, when Mr. and Mrs. Thorne returned he was engaged to Miss Humphrey.

A supper was set in the dining room, to which the four persons adjourned. Mrs. Thorne and her niece hung back for a few whispered words. Then there was the popping of a champagne cork, and Mrs. Thorne, holding her glass high, proposed the health of the newly engaged couple. Mr. Thorne kissed his niece and, slapping his guest on the back, said vociferously:

"This is no hotel. This is the residence of your humble servant, Edward Thorne, banker. But you've been welcome, my boy, and we give you our little Lu gladly. We've heard lots about you from Mrs. Overaker, and all to your credit."

The expression on Wingate's face was a mingling of surprise, shame and happiness.

"When do you expect Mrs. Overaker?" he asked.

"Tomorrow afternoon."

"I regret that my limit of time to be absent has expired and I shall not have the pleasure of meeting her after all. I must go back to the city in the morning."

"So soon?" exclaimed the host and hostess in a breath.

"Don't detain a man from his business," said Luella. "I think Mr. Wingate is perfectly excusable in going, and if I don't complain no one should."

"We'll all go," said the host.

The next morning an automobile containing Mr. and Mrs. Thorne, Miss Humphrey and Mr. Wingate pulled out from under the porte-cochere destined for the city, Mr. Thorne at the wheel. They had been gone only a few minutes when a train passed on the railway track beside them.

"Supposing," said Mr. Thorne, "that Mrs. Overaker should be ahead of time and on that train."

Mr. Wingate shuddered.

"Such a thing is possible," said Mrs. Thorne. "If Mrs. Overaker is on the train we shall meet her coming from the station."

Mr. Wingate shuddered again.

"It will be embarrassing for me," continued the speaker, "since I agreed to keep her during her stay here."

"I'll turn off by this road," said Mr. Thorne.

He did turn off, and Mr. Wingate breathed a sigh of relief.

Mrs. Overaker did arrive by that train, and when she reached Thornedale she found it deserted. Mrs. Thorne made an excuse to the widow such as ladies of breeding know how to manufacture. Mr. Wingate needed no excuse. How could he meet the widow at the Thornes' when the Thornes were not at home?

Better Than That.

"Girls ought to be taught how to stand and hold themselves. I suppose, Mrs. Comeup, you want your daughter to have a good carriage?"

"Indeed, she don't need none. We can afford to buy her an automobile now."—Baltimore American.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Hundreds of People Have Found "Fruit-a-tives" Their Only Help

READ THIS LETTER

Superintendent of Sunday School in Toronto Tells How He Cured Himself of Chronic Rheumatism After Suffering for Years.

55 DOVERCOURT ROAD, Oct., 1st. 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered from Rheumatism, especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for 18 months now, and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months".

R. A. WAUGH

Rheumatism is no longer the dreaded disease it once was. Rheumatism is no longer one of the "incurable diseases". "Fruit-a-tives" has proved its marvellous powers over Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago—in fact, over all such diseases which arise from some derangement of stomach, bowels, kidneys or skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE CZARINA OF RUSSIA

Like Queen Mary, the consort of the Czar is greatly interested in the welfare of the soldiers of her country, and spends much of her time preparing comforts for the men at the front, and providing relief for their dependants at home.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE BABY

Baby's Own Tablets are the very best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds, promote healthful sleep — in fact they cure all the minor ills of little ones. The mother may feel absolutely safe in giving them to her children for they are guaranteed by a government analyst to be strictly free from all injurious drugs. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Massenet's Manuscripts.

By his will Massenet left his manuscript music to the Opera, but it will not be placed in the archives of the National Academy of Music until after the death of Mme. Massenet. The deceased composer expressed the wish that his wife should remain in charge of the manuscripts because their careful arrangement, classification and preservation had been wholly her work. France has a jealous eye upon Massenet relics, for the memory of her composer is very dear to her.

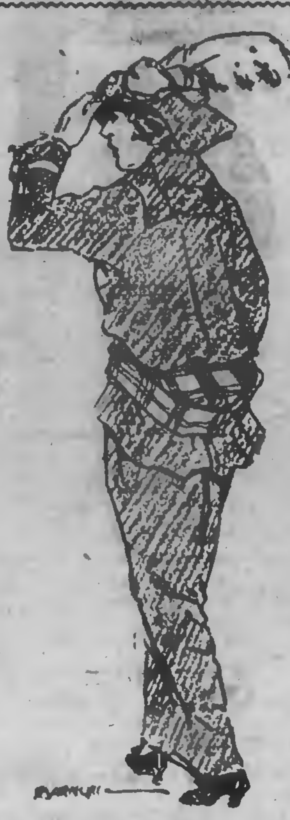
Every day some anecdote of the musician appears in the newspapers, of which the following, taken from the Figaro, is typical. A critic was indulging in extravagant praise of Massenet to his face, and wound up his flattery: "Wagner? What was he? His talent is most absurdly exaggerated. I have to pick and choose among a lot of rubbish in Wagner." "Is that so?" came the composer's suave reply. "I should be quite happy with what you leave."

Obstructed Order.

Owens—How do you do, Mr. Shears. What can you show me in the way of a new suit today?

His Tailor—Your bill, sir—that is decidedly in the way of a new suit.

In Fashion's Realm



Bustle Idea For Coat

In this costume one gets the bustle idea. The skirt is of dark bluish-purple duvetine made in peg top shape and the coat is of a blouse effect with a box pleat coming from the neck in the back. The skirt of the coat is of blue and purple plaid charmeuse with a ruffle of the duvetine and an upstanding bias piece of the plaid making a loose belt dropping very low at the back. The front of the coat is a belted blouse and the collar is of the duvetine.

KITCHEN WRINKLES

Kettles may be thoroughly cleansed by boiling a few potato peelings in them.

When cooking apples put a pinch of salt with them. They will always be most beautifully tender.

Never put parsley into water, where it quickly decays. It will keep much fresher if placed in an air-tight tin or canister.

To clear beetles out of cupboards and larders sprinkle a little benzine over the boards, and it will kill the eggs as well as the insects.

To remove iron rust from linen or cotton goods, boil a small quantity of rhubarb and dip in that portion of the material which is spotted.

To serve up cauliflower whole and unbroken boil in a cloth, as it may then be lifted out of the saucepan without any detriment to its appearance.

The lives of gloves may be prolonged by placing a small piece of cotton wool in the tip of each finger and thumb. This will prevent the nails rubbing them into holes.

Before cleaning out a fireplace sprinkle a good handful of tea leaves among the ashes. This makes the ashes lift more easily, and prevents the dust from flying about the room.

To clean lamp glasses hold them over a jug of boiling water until well steamed, then polish with a dry duster. It is far less trouble than washing, and the glasses very rarely break.

There is often trouble in getting cream to whip up properly, but if a few drops of lemon juice are added it will soon become thick. Care must be taken not to add too much, as that would make it curdle.

A Touch of Vanity

It's a curious thing the way vanity works. It is seldom that anyone is vain of the things of which he might have a right to be vain. The successful and learned physician regards himself as a mere student in his profession, but displays an inordinate pride in his skill at card tricks. The woman who shows real ability in financing her household and making home delightful for her family is quite modest about her gifts and rejoices only in her No. 3 slippers. But, after all, a touch of vanity is an excellent thing in a woman. It makes her very amiable. The diplomatic wife, however, will never squelch her husband's pet vanity, but will make it a key to his management.

Eggs will not crack when boiling if the shells are first dipped in cold water.

AFTER SUFFERING TWO LONG YEARS

Mrs. Aselin Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"After my little one was born I was sick with pains in my sides which the doctors said were caused by inflammation. I suffered a great deal every month and grew very thin. I was under the doctor's care for two long years without any benefit. Finally after repeated suggestions to try it we got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking the third bottle of the Compound I was able to do my housework and today I am strong and healthy again. I will answer letters if anyone wishes to know about my case."—Mrs. JOSEPH ASELIN, 628 Monroe St., N.E., Minneapolis, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy we know for woman's ills. If you need such a medicine why don't you try it?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The Hohenzollerns.

The house of Hohenzollern, of which is the present emperor of Germany, had its origin in Thassilo, who built the castle of Hohenzollern about the year 800. In 1417 Frederick of Nuremberg, his descendant was made Elector of Brandenburg. The Prince of Hohenzollern abdicated in favor of the King of Prussia in 1849. Charles, son of Charles Anthony, was elected Prince of Roumania in 1866. His brother, Leopold, was nominated for the throne of Spain in 1870, but withdrew on account of the excitement of the time, brought on by the Franco-Prussian difficulty.

Tolerably Well.

The last pig-tail has disappeared from the Chinese embassy in London. It belonged to the majordomo of the Chinese ambassador, and it is now on its way to China as a present to that functionary's wife. A story is going the rounds that at an official reception recently a member of the Chinese embassy was presented to a well-known lady.

"We no talkee Chinee velly well," she said.

"Never mind, your ladyship," was the smooth reply. "I can converse tolerably well in English!"

Even when a man is tickled to death he doesn't die of it.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Notes by Official Scribe.

"Modern civilization" is now passing through the most terrible crisis in the world's history, and the eyes of everyone are centred on the battlefields of Europe, where a stupendous effort is being made to crush the spirit of "militarism" for ever. Although patriotic meetings and war bulletins are claiming first place in the minds of our citizens at the present time, there was a good attendance of delegates at the last regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, ready to do "business as usual" in the interests of the labor men of Peterboro, who have responded nobly to the "call to arms." President J. J. Hartley occupied the chair.

The action of the Independent Labor party of Hamilton in nominating W. R. Rollo, secretary of Hamilton Trades and Labor Council, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the Hon. John S. Hendrie, member of the Ontario Legislature for West Hamilton, received the hearty approval of the delegates, and the secretary was instructed to forward a donation for the campaign fund.

Labor Bureau.

The following letter was received from the Minister of Labor in reply to a request for the establishment of a government labor bureau.

Ottawa, Oct. 26th, 1914.

Dear Sir,—

In reply to your letter of the 16th instant suggesting that a government labour bureau be established in your city, I may say that at the present time the government has no authority from parliament to establish such bureaus, and if it were determined to do something in that direction I don't feel that in the beginning we should establish them in the smaller places, such as Peterborough.

Many seem to think that the existence of labour bureaus would create employment for the unemployed; that is a great mistake. A few such bureaus have been established by the governments, both of Quebec and Ontario, but they cannot be said to be a success; certain municipalities have also established such bureaus, with no more satisfactory results.

The experience in Canada is that employers prefer to deal with private agencies. However, I have given considerable thought to this matter, and it has not been definitely decided, we may do something toward the establishment of such bureaus in the larger cities of the country, but it is not our intention at the present time to establish them in the smaller places.

Faithfully,

T. W. CROTHERS.

J. J. Hartley, Esq.,
President, Peterborough Trades and Labour Council,
Peterborough, Ont.

Assessment Criticized.

It was claimed that the present system of assessment was unfair to small property ownes, who were assessed to the limit, while every consideration was shown to those who were fortunate enough to possess a more substantial share of this world's goods.

The Light Brigade.

Some dissatisfaction was expressed regarding the way in which citizens of Peterboro, men of proved experience, had been ignored when important positions in connection with the Hydro-Electric system were to be filled. Without wishing to reflect in any way upon the men chosen by the "powers that be," it was the opinion of the delegates that "home" talent" should have been considered.

Independent Labor Party.

Plans for the formation of an independent labor party were again discussed. Representaion on the City Council is urgently needer, and the delegates decided to choose a candidate to represent "labor" in the Mayoralty contest.

Next regular meeting, November 18th, when it is important that every delegate be present.

SEVERE PAINS AROUND THE HEART

Are Nearly Always Caused by Stomach Trouble

Don't let a pain in the region of the heart frighten you into thinking you have heart disease. Just as a pain in the back seldom indicates kidney trouble, so a pain near the heart is scarcely ever present in organic heart disease. The pain is nearly always caused by stomach trouble for the stomach and heart are connected by many nerves, and gas on the stomach causes pressure on the heart.

The alarming pains will disappear if you tone up the stomach, eat the right things and don't worry. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best stomach tonic. One or two pills after each meal soon produces a healthy appetite, the food does not distress you, you are no longer troubled with gas, sour risings in the throat and those misleading pains around the heart. Strength and energy return, and the rich, red blood carries renewed vitality to every part of the body. Mrs. Henry Connolly, Brookvale, P. E. I., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from indigestion which, despite all the treatment I took, was gradually growing worse. I would sometimes feel as though I was smothering, and when the trouble came on I would suffer from violent palpitation and pains around the heart, which greatly alarmed me. I was under doctor's treatment for a long time, but with no benefit. A friend suggested Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to try them. In about a month I felt much better, and by the time I had taken another four boxes I was in the best of health and able to eat all kinds of nourishing food. It is now several years since I was cured, and I have never felt a symptom of indigestion since. I take every opportunity of recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to friends who are ailing."

If your dealer does not keep these Pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ESSENTIALS FOR MARKMANSHIP

Now comes the critical moment, the "let off," no matter how good the aim should you lose your self control or nerve your shot will be wasted, do not hesitate, but with your finger firmly on the trigger, slowly close your hand, your hand, eye and brain working in perfect harmony, and you may have perfect assurance of a good shot whatever happens.

Holding the Rifle to Aim and Fire.

The position of the butt should always be the same in the shoulder, otherwise owing to the point of support changing, the shots will vary; i.e., if placed too high, high shots will result and vice versa.

The butt will be held more firmly in the shoulder if the hand is placed well to the front of the magazine. Both hands must be used to press the butt into the shoulder, the firmer the butt is held the less will the recoil be felt.

Whilst aiming the following methods for focussing the vision should be employed.

1st. Look at the backsight and see that it is upright.

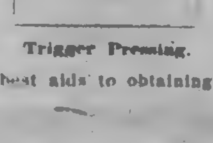
2nd. Look at the foresight, get it central, and take the correct amount in the V. or U.

3rd. Direct the eyes to the mark.

Aiming off, for Wind.

The windguage is invaluable for elementary shooting when firing at stationary targets, with the wind guage steady, but for quickly changing objectives and unsteady winds, the most practical method is to aim off the mark.

To keep elevation when aiming off without difficulty, keep the o'clock line thus:—



Trigger Pressing.

The best aids to obtaining a perfectly smooth let off are:—

Declaration of point of aim at instant of pressing.

Retaining aim on the mark after pressing.

Constant snapping practices, to train the eye, brain and forefinger to work in harmony.

To restrain in the breathing.

Trigger pressing should be regarded as the most important part of firing instruction the following points should be noted:—

That the forefinger can be moved independently of remainder of hand.

To prevent jerking and pulling, a firm grip of the remaining fingers and thumb on the small of the butt are necessary.

To discharge the rifle correctly the pull must be done gently and steadily, any sudden jerk will cause the rifle to waiver and the result will be a poor shot, in order to accomplish this it is necessary to take a firm grip of the stock and then place a squeezing pressure on the trigger.

A rifleman should know when his rifle is going to discharge, yet he must know it unconsciously, his whole attention must be centred in having his sights in the correct place and his rifle, so that when he has them where he wants he will find the trigger go of its own accord. This of course can only be obtained by constant practice.

The following should be noted:—

The forefinger is used in preference to the second because, it is nearest the guard, has a quicker action and is more readily placed on the trigger.

The first joint is used because it is more sensitive than higher up the finger, being hooked around the lower part of the trigger to obtain great leverage.

Faces As Fair As A Summer's Day

Are Possible if Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Used for a Short Time After Each Meal.

Many people have been heard to say that they used creams and lotions for years without effect, yet after five or six days of Stuart's Calcium Wafers their complexions were perfectly clear.

"I Got Rid of Blackheads in a Jiffy by Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers."

It's easy to understand why. Creams and lotions only get at the surface, while Stuart's Calcium Wafers go right into the blood and instead of a sluggish deposit in the skin and impurities that cause skin diseases are destroyed in the perspiration that is exhaled through the pores in the form of invisible vapor. You'll never have a good complexion without pure blood, but you positively will have a fine, beautiful complexion if you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

They contain no poisonous drug of any kind, are perfectly harmless and can be taken with absolute freedom, and they work almost like magic. Calcium Sulphide, their principal ingredient, is the greatest blood-cleanser known to science.

No matter how bad your skin may be, Stuart's Calcium Wafers will quickly work wonders with it. It's goodby to blackheads, pimples, acne, boils, rash, eczema and a dirty "filled-up complexion. You can get a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store at 50 cents a box, and you will be positively delighted with their wonderful effect. A small sample package mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Judgment was reserved in the case of R. Smith vs. George H. Duncan for $21.01.

LOSES LAST FOOTHOLD OUTSIDE THE FATHERLAND

Anglo-Japanese Force Occupies the Middle Fort at Heavy Cost in Casualties, Taking Two Hundred Prisoners---Governor Then Capitulates---Siege Has Been a Hard Task For Land and Sea Forces.

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—It is officially announced that the German fortress of Tsingtau has surrendered to the Japanese and British forces.

The first step in bringing about the surrender of the fortress occurred at midnight, when the infantry charged and occupied the middle fort of the first line of defence. In this operation they took 200 prisoners.

The capture of Tsingtau loses to Germany her last foot of possessions on the Asiatic mainland as well as her last strategic position outside of the German empire in Europe. For nearly three months the German garrison, amounting to about 7,000 men, has held out against the land and sea attacks of the Japanese and certain British detachments of both white and Indian troops that found themselves in China at the outbreak of the war. What the losses of the garrison have been are not known, but the official Japanese and British reports have indicated that Tsingtau has been taken at heavy cost of men on the part of the allies.

The operations in this isolated far eastern theatre of the war have been reduced to a scale of some 200 square miles, as compared with the whole continent of Europe, but on that account they have been none the less interesting. Aeroplanes and all other accompaniments of modern warfare have figured in both the Japanese and the German operations.

The number of the expeditionary forces has never been officially divulged, but it is said to have been upwards of 3,000 men. A British detachment, consisting of some 800 men of South Wales Borderers and 400 Indian Sikhs, under command of Brig.-Gen. Nathaniel W. Bonardiston, commander of the north China forces, was at their head, and is said to have formed a part of the centre of the Japanese line in the investment of Tsingtau. Fighting continued from the middle of September intermittently until the fall of the fortress yesterday. During this period both the German and the Japanese warships and aeroplanes engaged in the bombardment of each other's positions. In one of the most severe of these engagements on Oct. 1 it was announced that the Japanese loss was 1,700 killed and 800 wounded. It was then reported that the general would await the arrival of the siege guns before continuing hostilities. The German casualties were said to be very small. On Oct. 17 the cruiser Takachiho was blown up by the German torpedo boat S-90. The Germans had five forts exclusively for shore defences.

OBITUARY

MRS. IRWIN.

The death took place in Toronto yesterday of Mrs. Walter Irwin.

She is survived by her husband, and four daughters, Isina, Madge, Jessie and Jean.

Her maiden name was Maude Montgomery.

The remains will arrive from Toronto this evening, and the funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. J. H. Gray, 198 Charlotte St., on Monday afternoon at 2.30.

ADAM HAVERY.

The death of Adam Havery this morning removes an old and highly respected resident of this community. He had suffered from a lingering illness for over two years.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, and three daughters, Mrs. William Nickel, Maxbass, North Dakota, Jessie and Christina, at home.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 471 Albert street, on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. H. J. Keith will conduct service at the house at 2 p.m.

GEORGE SINGLETON.

Mr. George Singleton passed away today at noon in his seventy-sixth year.

He was born in Ireland, and came to this country when very young, and settled in Douro, but had resided in this city for about ten or fifteen years.

His death is mourned by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. A. Carmichael, Toronto, Mrs. R. Little, Lakefield, and Mrs. Wilson, Warsaw.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 181 Stewart street, on Monday afternoon, at 2.30 p.m., to Little Lake Cemetery.

ALLIED FLEETS IN BATTLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7. — Private advices yesterday to prominent British shipping agents here from their correspondents in Valparaiso report that an engagement is taking place of Yauyos, between British, German and Japanese warships. Press despatches telling of a previous German-British naval engagement are confirmed in the messages.

No details of the engagement were given. Closer reading of the cable message seemed to indicate that Yauyos was not the name of a town off which the engagement was in progress but a code word which had been left blank of meaning in the firm's code book. An enquiry to the firm's home office at London for a translation of Yauyos had brought no answer late yesterday.

The firm believed the battle was taking place somewhere off the coast of Chile.

Sale of Remedies for Headache!

There are more ZUTOO tablets for headache sold in this country than all other remedies combined. Think how good these tablets must be to have such an immense sale.

Dealers could not sell them nor would people buy ZUTOO tablets in such large quantities, were they not what all users say they are, that is, a perfectly harmless and reliable cure for headache.

Do YOU use these tablets which so many people have chosen as best? If you do not, it is your next move. 25c at dealers

WILD TIME AT LINDSAY

Battle of the Fair Grounds is Staged

CROWBAR AS WEAPON

(Lindsay Post.)

A nasty row took place at the fair grounds this morning shortly after 11 o'clock in which Chas. Stone sustained serious injuries to his head from a crowbar alleged to have been used on him by Noble Robinson, the 15-yearold son of Alfred Robinson, Colborne street.

A gang of men have started work removing the sod from the baseball diamond at the agricultural grounds. Chas. Stone, who was among them, was being annoyed, it is claimed, by young Robinson, and cuffed his ears. The young fellow got his father, who, it is said, drove up on a wagon and, jumping on to Stone, succeeded in getting him to the ground. Young Robinson endeavored to help his father, and, grabbing a spade, made a "swipe" with it at Stone, but missed, and by mistake hit Fred Brooks, a bystander, on top of the head, making a cut an inch and a half long right to the bone.

He then picked up a crowbar and, it is alleged, hit Stone, who was on the ground, four times in sucession. The left eye is completely closed, there is a large cut just over the ear, and a bad bruise on the back of the head, as well as bruised shoulder blades where the crowbar caught him on the back. Blood flowed copiously for a few minutes, and Stone was knocked insensible. After a few minutes he revived sufficiently to be helped home, where Dr. McAlpine attended him.

He is in a serious condition, but will progress favorably unless something unexpected happens.

$600 FOR DR. GORDON

Business Men's Committee Express Appreciation of His Work

The committee of business and professional men who were in charge of Dr. Gordon's campaign in Peterboro, held a meeting in the Oriental parlors yesterday afternoon and waited upon Dr. Gordon.

The object of this meeting was to express to Dr. Gordon in some tangible way their appreciation of his services while he conducted his meetings here. They presented Dr. Gordon with $600. Dr. Gordon thanked the committee for their many acts of kindness toward him.

A large number of the prominent citizens signed lists yesterday acknowledging the value of his work while in Peterboro.

The total expenses of the campaign was in the neighborhood of $1100.

The following were the officers of this committee:

ESSENTIALS FOR MARKMANSHIP

The Following Interesting Article Contributed by Sgt. Instructor Dunkerly, of the 57th, Will be Read With Interest by all Marksmen.

Military marksmanship is the highest form of shooting and naturally claims first place in the many phases of training in which the soldier is expected to excel, and no amount of perfection he may have attained in the other parts of his training can upon service remedy any want of proficiency in military marksmanship.

Skill in good shooting is acquired by personal effort, all the instructors in the army can never make a good shot out of you if you do not apply yourself with all your might.

It is in the power of every soldier or civilian to become a good shot; when the first principles of aiming and trigger pressing are mastered. Determination and will power to succeed will pave the way after these principles are mastered.

The following qualities are possessed by every soldier and civilian in more or less degree, must be developed by daily practice.

1. Determination to hold rifle steadily on the mark.
2. To obtain perfect control of trigger finger.
3. To aim correctly.

To a great extent marksmen are made at home and not on the ranges as a good many people think, and it is with the purpose of directing the personal efforts of those who desire to become good shots, into proper channels, that the essential points necessary are enumerated below.

Daily Practice.

This is the first essential, and constant practice only, will give the muscles complete mastery of the rifle.

The eye, brain and forefinger also need constant taining to work in harmony.

Every time the rifle is taken out of the rack, or any position in which it is kept, a correct firing position should be assumed and a few snaps taken with muscles and mind braced up to determination point, observing the following rules:—

1. Always open the breech of rifle to see that it is not loaded. (It is always a "supposed" empty rifle that shoots someone.)
2. Select some small indistinct mark to aim at and put imaginary distances on the sights.
3. Assume a correct firing position—no fancy tricks.
4. Don't dwell on the aim—10 seconds should be the extreme limit.
5. Declare the point of aim at the instant of pressing the trigger.
6. Retain the aim on the mark after pressing.
7. Finish off with a few minutes of snap shooting and rapid fire practice.

Firing Positions.

The most essential points for all positions are:—

1. A good firm grip with both hands.
2. The eye and cheek well back on the butt.
3. The butt pressed firmly into the hollow of the shoulder and not on the muscle of the arm.
4. Comfort, ease and entire absence of constraint are absolutely essential whilst firing.
5. After firing always bring the rifle to a convenient position for reloading.

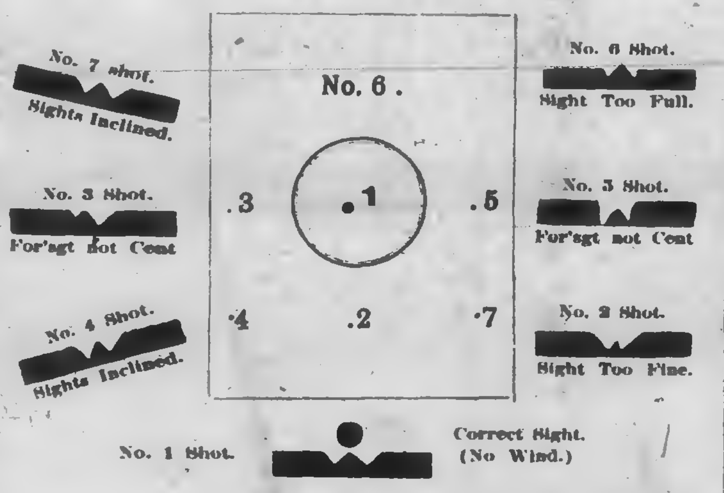
Aiming.

The essential points are:—

(a) Sights upright.
(b) Foresight central in the V. or U.
(c) Full sight for each shot.

Prolonged aiming is useless, the eye tires after a few seconds. The most common faults made, and their results, are illustrated below:—

RESULTS ON TARGET.



Trigger Pressing.

Particular attention should be given to the following pointe.

1. Hook the first joint of the forefinger round the lowest part of the trigger.
2. Grip the small with the remaining fingers and thumb.
3. Squeeze the thumb and forefinger toward each other.
4. Take off the first pull immediately the butt touches the shoulder.
5. Restrain the breathing whilst pressing.
6. Frequently test your own "let off" by balancing a coin on the foresight or outer band and don't be satisfied until it remains undisturbed by the pressure of the trigger.

The firer should strive to know the exact instant the trigger should be pressed, and then apply the final pressure in the fraction of time that the sights are on the mark, this perfect trigger control is only acquired by constant daily snapping practice, during which thought must be concentrated on the trigger pressure, and the firer must be detemined not to snatch off pull.

Care of the Rifle.

The accuracy of the rifle depends entirely upon the care bestowed upon it. Every bang the butt of a rifle has on the ground, and every time it is roughly forced in the arm rack, or dropped, may be said to take a day off its effective life.

Too much care cannot be devoted to the cleaning and general use of the rifle.

Every person who is entrusted with a rifle should keep a constant eye on the barrel, sights, pull-off and magazine.

1. The barrel and chamber must be perfectly clean and free from oil before firing. (An oily barrel throws shots high, low, right and left, at different times.
2. The sights should be black and clean—avoid using flannelette on them as this makes the sights woolly.
3. To preserve a smooth pull, keep the nose of the sear and bent of cocking piece slightly oiled.
4. Wipe the magazine out with a dry rag thoroughly, nothing is more irritating than constant jams when firing rapid or snap shooting practices.

Mental and Physical Condition.

Clearness of vision, steadiness of muscles, delicacy of touch on the trigger, are not found in the man who smokes fifty cigarettes a day. Moderation is the key word to a good sound mental and physical condition.

To suddenly cease smoking the day before the shoot begins, will as certainly spoil a score as too much smoking, the same may be said of drink.

Men who are inclined to be a little nervous should try and concentrate all their energies of mind and bodies on the shot about to be fired, being determined to hit the object. Confidence and self reliance will come to the firer as he becomes intimately familiar with the handling of his rifle. A heavy meal preceding shooting, tight equipment, tight braces and collars, are all detrimental to the would-be marksman and should be avoided. He should above all endeavor to cultivate determination and will power, coolness of mind and hand, for these are the foundation qualities of shooting.

Atmospheric Influences.

Once the principles of aiming and firing positions are mastered, careful attention should be given to the atmospheric conditions at the time of shooting, more bullets miss their mark owing to misjudgment of these influences than from any other cause except judging distance.

Light.

In a dull light the foresight is less distinctly seen than in a good light and more of it is unconsciously taken when aiming, therefore slightly less elevation is required on a dull day than on a bright day. (Light up, sight up. Light down, sight down.) In the case of quickly changing light, such as sunshine and cloud, a more careful aim to accustom the eye to the changed conditions is all that is needed to make a good shot.

Temperature.

Before commencing to shoot any practice it should be borne in mind that the bullet meets with more resistance in cold weather than in hot weather. A high temperature acts upon the cordite in addition to lessening the resistance of air to the bullet, therefore less elevation will be required on not days. The following table which is easily memorized will be found useful.

Elevation Table.

More.	Less.
Bright Day	Dull Light.
Dry Day	Wet Day.
Cold Day	Hot Day.
Head Wind	Rear Wind

What to Do on the Firing Point.

Select as level a place as possible and lie down obliquely but with the face square to the target, select a place for your elbows and take a sight at the target over your rifle, if the position is satisfactory lower your rifle and mark the spots where your elbows rest so that you may select the same place for every shot. Having satisfied yourself that your sights are set correctly proceed to aim.

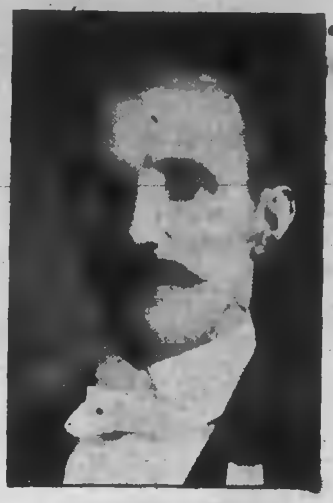
WALTER STOCKER IS PRESIDENT

Horticultural Society Holds It's Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Horticultural Society, held last evening, President Beal in his address outlined the work that had been accomplished in the past year. He referred to the improvement that had been accomplished in Victoria Park by the curbing that had been placed across the park on the walk that runs diagonally from Brock to Murray Streets, also the fine state in which the parks were at the present time. He stated that there was not enough time at his disposal for him to act in the capacity of president.

Mr. Hay, in moving a resolution of thanks, expressed his appreciation of the late president's untiring efforts in behalf of the society. Mr. P. Campbell seconded this motion.



WALTER STOCKER
The new president of the Peterboro Horticultural Society.

The officers for 1915 are as follows:

President—W. Stocker.
First Vice-President—Mrs. Hazen Ritchie.
Second Vice-President—F. Wise.
Board of Directors:—Messrs. P. Campbell, O. Fiske, D. W. Dumble, H. B. Cowan, Kennedy, John Riddell, Young, R. Denne, Jordan, H. Beal, Fire Chief Howard.
Park Board—F. Wise (chairman), P. Campbell, Kennedy, W. Lyttle and R. Denne.
Auditors:—T. A. S. Hay and R. M. Glover.

Messrs. Beal, Wise and Young form a committee to consider the advisability of holding an exhibition here.

It was moved and seconded that the president attend the convention to be held in Toronto on November 11 and 12.

The appointment of a park commissioner was discussed, but no action was taken.

Several plans for the beautifying of the parks were discussed, but no action was taken.

sidious influence, which has coiled about his very heart, an enemy sly and serpentine. He dare not look within any more, and forces his attention outwards, straining, ear and eye, to pierce the gathering gloom. By this time the whole man is shuddering with superstitious dread, and his heated imagination distorts the view; at each step he is looking for sorcery, and he finds it—everywhere. The stream he espies can be no ordinary stream; it has come there by magic; it suggests wrath and spite and fiendishness. As the knight fords it he undergoes an agony of fear, expecting to set his foot or his lance on a dead man's face; the cry of some creature scotched by the spear rings through his brain with the awfulness of a human shriek. A confused trample of footprints suggests a hideous melee of people fighting—shut up in a narrow space like toads writhing in a poisoned tank or cats in a red-hot cage; and he recalls stories of what the Turks do for sport when they capture a convoy of pilgrims to Palestine. Further on a rusty, toothed implement of strange design revives these images of hellish torture. Then once more for a space he can see only the waste and blasted heath, good for nothing; then a solitary tree, distorted and cleft at the top into the ghastly semblance of a human mouth gaping at death. He has been looking for some weird thing to emerge from the gloom and direct him to the awful Tower, some creature of the darkness, an owl or a bat; and presently, silent as death, sails by a great raven; and as the knight looks up, he finds himself no longer in the midst of a plain, but hemmed closely in on all sides by dark, menacing mountains. He can't explain to his audience how they got there; at the time it seemed sheer sorcery, but his hearers, with their cooler judgment, may find some natural explanation. Then there comes over him that weird, uncanny sense—so often found with mental fatigue—of having been in this same place before, a sense as vague as a memory from some pre-existence, and it persists long enough for him to test it by several successive objects of vision—the scene to right and to left, all strangely familiar—; and, in the midst looms up—the Tower: round, low, with never a window, made of brown stone, like nothing else in the world.

From time to time, as he tells his story, a look, a protest, or a question, warns him that he is not carrying his audience with him, and he tries to explain. How could he see it so clearly? Why, a belated gleam of sunlight revealed the mountains bending over him like giants watching the quarry they had brought to bay; next moment all was dark, and a yell of triumph, like the mort blown on a huntsman's bugle, blared out of the blackness. A confused babel of voices rang in his ears, shouting the names and virtues of the lost members of his brotherhood. A flare of light seemed to flash round the circle of hills, and in it he saw the lost ones' faces, every one distinct, staring out at him.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The story of an exciting incident that took place near an important bridge over the Oise, not far from Sempigny, has been received here.

The French were ordered to hold the bridge at any cost. They placed quick-firers, which played havoc for twenty minutes in the German ranks and prevented the German advance. Suddenly the bugle sounded for a French retreat and the Germans quickly pursued them over the bridge. A moment later a French aviator, who had been hovering overhead, dropped a bomb, which completely destroyed the bridge.

The French then delivered a bayonet charge, forcing the enemy into the river. A pontoon bridge was quickly constructed and the French crossed. They succeeded not only in gaining the lost position, but in establishing themselves in an advanced position at Tracy.

In his futile efforts to turn the Allies' flank, the Kaiser seems to have found that long lane that has no turning.

Why Smith Succeeded

He was on the job—alert and energetic. Mental ability and physical activity made him shine in his old job and brought promotion.

Smith took care of himself.

Right there is the keynote of success—one must be mentally and physically fit.

A good start is to avoid the heavy, greasy foods that cause indigestion and kindred ills, and use a wholesome, building food such as

Grape-Nuts

This healthful, appetizing food is made of selected wheat and malted barley. It contains those vital mineral salts so necessary to health, that are often lacking in the every-day diet.

The partial malting of the barley, with the long baking (about 20 hours), makes Grape-Nuts a food that digests easily and quickly.

The Spoils of Victory

A Snory of Intrigue and Love in the Frozen North

(By Clarice Anton Westicott.)

"Will you remember me when I am gone, Leona? Tell me!" The tone was masterful.

"Perhaps."

The man gave a sharp exclamation, and catching the girl by the wrist he said sternly:

"Don't speak that way. When you do it cuts like a knife," and his other hand fell half-unconsciously upon the hilt of the hunting knife in his belt.

"How dare you? You know, Jean Lemare, I have never told any man that I love him."

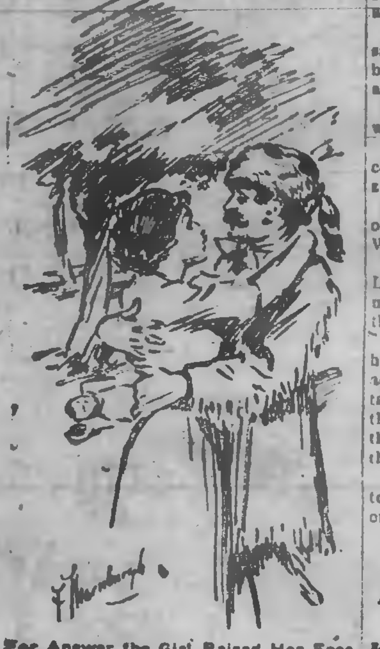
"Actions speak louder than words," the man returned coldly. "Those glorious eyes of yours say yes, when your lips form no. You have listened to my words of love and never turned away."

"They interested me as long as they were different," the girl returned, maddeningly.

"When you have something new to say, expect me to remember you; but until then I do not care to even listen," and the trapper was left alone with his rage and love. Until his departure on the following day the spoiled beauty kept out of his way, and once he had disappeared, she drew a deep sigh of relief.

Smiling a little to herself, and yet wondering if he would study something new to say to her when he emerged from the dangers of the unbroken path into the wilderness, she hummed a song he favored, and was so wrapped up in her own thoughts she did not hear the stealthy step of a man who stole upon her. Small wonder that she did not, for he was skilled in tracking down the wildest kind of game, and hiding his presence from the keen-scented wild things of the unexplored north. The first that she realised that she was not alone was when Leona felt a man's arms about her, and a man's mouth pressed to hers; and frightened almost to death she looked up into Jean's dark, flashing eyes.

"You told me to make love differently," he said, after he had kissed her breathless, "and so I have. I knew no other man has ever held you in his arms or taken kisses from your lips. Now I have put my stamp on you. I know you well enough to know that the man who kisses you will be your husband, or you will go unwed to your grave. I've staked my life on your love for me. Kill me if you wish," and he handed her the heavy revolver that kept his knife company in his belt.



For Answer the Girl Raised Her Face to His.

The girl's face quivered, her eyes filled with tears, then waving away the proffered weapon, once more she fled, but this time threw back no laughing challenge over her shoulder.

With a heavy sigh, and yet with the light of hopeful love in his face, Jean retraced his steps, and this time fairly began his long journey. For weeks afterwards, Leona felt her cheeks burn crimson at the very thought of Jean's kisses, and yet in her heart she was not angry, for she did love him, though her untamed girlish nature rebelled at restraint. As the days crept on, she took pleasure in the thought that she belonged to this mighty hunter, and she began to plan her future as his wife. Suddenly her happiness was crushed as the tender verdure beneath the branches of the felled forest tree. After a day that had seemed unusually long to her impatience, although one of the shortest of the year, she was sitting in the chimney corner idly listening to her father, when some of his words recalled her to attention.

"I didn't think that of Jean. He ought to be ashamed of such a thing."

"What?" Leona asked.

"Marrying an Indian girl," was the careless answer.

"He never did!" she said fiercely, her eyes blazing in the firelight.

The factor nodded his head. "Yes Long John says so. Father Acton married them at St. Pierre mission, of which she was a convert. I'm sorry, for I never have held to these mixed marriages," and then he caught his daughter as she fell forward.

For a week she lay ill, and when she finally crawled forth into the open air she loved so well she was like one smitten. All her proud young courage was gone. She shunned the trappers who flocked to her father's store, and spent her time out in the woods where Jean had kissed her maiden lips and held her in his strong arms. Into this retreat no one dared penetrate, not even Long John Hathers. He would not give up the secret hope in his heart, and tried to court her, although he said but little. His eyes glowed a red fire that nothing extinguished. Leona at first scarcely noticed him, then hated him for the love she saw he bore her, and prevented him from speaking of it until one day when the sun was beginning to feel warm, and she was once more in the woods. Believing herself entirely alone, she began to live over once more the love scene of the fall before, when suddenly Long John stood before her, speaking madly of his love, and pleading madly with her to return it.

The girl fought like a young tiger. She knew now that he had been a witness to her last scene with Jean, and it drove her mad with rage. Finally, seeing the hateful, bearded face coming nearer and nearer, she cried aloud for help, and in providential answer to her cry it came, for suddenly Long John measured his length on the grass, and she saw Jean like one in a dream.

"Come, Leona, sweetheart," Jean said tenderly, "give me the welcome back I deserve," and he held out his arms.

"How dare you?" she gasped. "What will your wife think when I tell her?

"What about the Indian girl?" she continued, for the man looked puzzled.

"Indian girl? Oh, you mean the one I found and took to the mission. Why, dear, she is only eleven."

Leona gave a gasp of happiness, and Long John, crawling to his feet, once more saw Leona in Jean's arms, but this time she went of her own accord.

"Let him go," said Jean merrily, as he watched the tall figure of his late adversary disappearing in the distance. "He has lost, Leona, despite the lying reports he circulated, and the spoils of victory are mine, aren't they, dear?"

For answer the girl raised her face to his, and their lips met for the second time.

Prisoners in Germany

Kaiser's Men Thought Kilted Highlanders Looked Like Women.

A recent number of the Vossiche Zeitung gave an account of the English prisoners of war at Doberitz. Six hundred and eighty arrived at first and were followed next day by 2,000 more, all being privates and non commissioned officers, the officers themselves being at Stendal, at least for the time being.

"At the end of the camp, near the so-called Paradeplatz, are five huge canvas tents, surrounded by barbed wire, in which the English are harbored. About five and twenty yards away our youngsters lie on the turf as guards to prevent the prisoners from approaching. But one can come nearer to the Tommy Atkin's in the regimental doctor's hut. It is true they do not create an especially good impression; unshaven, their uniforms often in rags, they all look much the same, but nevertheless the material of their uniforms and their boots are excellent. After a fierce fight and a three-day journey without a bath their appearance is not precisely what one would call fit for parade. Odd is their headgear, military caps alternating with slouch hats, woollen caps, and even straw hats. Most of the wounded were hit on the head. A few Highlanders were among them, their colored kilts being hidden by khaki. One rifleman said that they looked like women!"

Saved by an Inch

A Tooting cavalryman now in a hospital at Shorncliffe, had an amazing escape, which he describes in a letter home. He and his comrades were suddenly attacked by 2,000 Uhlans, who outnumbered them by about 30 to 1. "While the few of us that were left were galloping like mad around their flank," he writes, "they shot my horse down underneath me, and as he fell I was flung into a tree with great force. I managed to get up and crawl a little way away, and they shot me through the thigh. But still I crawled on among the trees. They shot at me again and then left me—with two holes clean through my hat."

SERIES OF SUCCESSES OF RUSSIA

Defeat of Germans Along Three Hundred Mile Front is Complete

LONDON, Nov. 7. — The Grand Duke Nicholas has wired Gen. Joffre that the Russians have won the greatest victory of the war.

Advices from other sources convey the same information. The Town of Jaroslav, 17 miles from Przemysl, the Galicia fortress which has been besieged for many weeks, has fallen, the Russians taking 5,000 prisoners. Jaroslav was taken in the early days of the war by the Czar's forces and then evacuated for strategic reasons.

Wirballen is now declared to be the only strong fortress which bars the advance of the Russians in East Prussia. A strong flanking movement is now in progress in the zone protected by Wirballen, and there is some likelihood of the German forces there being completely enveloped.

The Austrian army which came up to the relief of the corps disputing the western bank of the River San had a terrible experience in penetrating the passes of the Carpathians, which are filled with snow.

On the centre the Czar's cohorts are massing for a drive against the main German forces on the Silesian frontier.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS.

The correspondent of The Times has sent a long message to his paper, covering operations in the east. He says, in part:

"Victory all along the line is today's news from the commander-in-chief and from his staff and line. Not only on the battlefront on the Vistula itself, some 300 miles long, but likewise on the front designated as East Prussia, over a whole expanse exceeding 400 miles in a straight line, the German hordes are broken, defeated and despairing.

"The retreat is most marked as a point where the highest and most vital interests of the Germans required continued defence, namely on their right flank, where alone there was any chance of assisting their armies beaten in Poland.

"Once more in German territory, thereby cutting off all connection between the East Prussian front and the retreating armies, now nearing the frontiers of Poland, the Russians have taken Bakalarshevo, selected for practical reasons by the Germans for stubborn attacks.

"The Germans are now approaching the Polish frontiers. Their rear guard has been beaten out of Kola, still further east by south. The Russians have thrown the Germanic armies past Kielce, capturing 600 men and all their maxims.

"It seems that the Germans now have the bitter choice between abandoning East Prussia to insure a strong defence of the direct route to Berlin and endeavoring to hold everything at the risk of losing all."

According to information from Petrograd, Wirballen is the only obstacle to a general advance of the whole Russian front into East Prussia. The Germans, it is declared, soon will be forced to evacuate, being threatened by a flanking movement of the Russians.

The backward movement of the remainder of the German line left this point without sufficient support.

Austrian troops are pushing through the passes of the Carpathians to support the Austrians who are falling back before the Russian advance in the region west of the San river. A correspondent of Lemberg states that these troops have been exhausted by the struggle through the snow-filled mountain passes and are incapable of a serious resistance.

The Russian War Office yesterday claimed that the Germans are retreating precipitately into East Prussia with the Russian armies harassing them at every point. The cold weather has apparently demoralized the Germans and many of them are reported surrendering without a fight. At several points the Russians have already penetrated the Prussian border, and some of the reports indicate that the German left wing has been isolated from the main body of the troops.

Dinner Under False Pretences.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(Via London.)—A newspaper of Ansbach, Bavaria, prints a letter from a post in the field, dated Oct. 28, in which the writer mentions attending a dinner on the previous evening to celebrate the return of two aviators from the vicinity of London who had dropped bombs near Dover.

Having been driven across the Yser, no doubt the Kaiser is wiser.

RAIN SPOILED MARKET FEW POTATOES OFFERED

The attendance at the market this morning was only fair, the inclemency of the weather no doubt being the cause of it. Very few potatoes were offered for sale this morning. It's hard to say if it was on account of the weather or whether the farmers are holding back their "murphies" in expectation of a raise in prices.

Eggs were a trifle dearer this morning, but all other produce was about the same as last week. The offering of pork and lamb, also fowl was very heavy.

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Notwithstanding that a sharp advance in ocean freight rates checked demand from exporters, wheat prices today showed considerable strength, the result largely of fear that the Argentine crop had suffered serious damage. There was a firm close at 1-2c to 3-4c net advance. Other leading staples, too, all finished higher compared with last night—corn 5-8c to 3-4c, oats 3-8c to 3-4c and provisions 25c to 67½c.

ALL HAVE SURPLUSES.

Hydro-Electric Makes Splendid Showing For Nine Months.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—In spite of a period of trade depression that has later been aggravated by war disturbances, the Hydro-electric municipalities are heading towards the close of a prosperous year. From figures compiled of the operations of the various municipalities, particularly those on the Niagara transmission system, up to the end of September last, a substantial surplus is shown in each case, in some instances amounting to many thousands of dollars. The list given out is not complete. Toronto will show a handsome surplus, but some slight adjustments have to be made before the exact ratio of surplus is determined. In all cases provision has been made for deducting interest and depreciation charges, and after that has been done London leads the list with a net surplus of $27,067, St. Tohmas $14,025, Hamilton $12,212, Guelph $11,468.

Other Cattle Centres Profit.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—A large part of the cattle receiving and meat packing industries of the country, long centered here was shifted temporarily to Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph, Mo.; and other western cities, last night, and the Chicago Union Stock Yards, for the first time since its organization in 1864, was closed down for nine days in consequence of the prevalence of hoof and mouth disease among cattle.

The quarantine against the stock yards and all other cattle pens within the state went into effect at midnight. The state's action supplements the federal quarantine against illness.

German Steamer Blown Up.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 7.—A large German steamer has been blown up south of the Danish Island of Langeland, in the great belt by a mine said to have been placed by the Germans. A number of her crew were lost.

During the past fortnight two German trawlers and one German steamer have been destroyed in this region. There are no Danish mines in the waters where the disasters have occurred, as they were gathered up by a Danish steamer some time ago.

No French in Cathedral.

ROME, Nov. 7.—The Pope has received from Cardinal Lucon, Archbishop of Rheims, an emphatic denial of the reports that the Cathedral of Rheims has been used by French troops for military purposes.

The cardinal says he has personally ascertained that the cathedral has not been used as an observation post. He states that no guns have been placed near it and no soldiers have been employed in its vicinity.

Six hundred English newspapermen have enlisted. Evidently they believe the sword is mightier than the pen.

GOOD HOPE AT BOTTOM

Monmouth Believed to be Beached on Chilean Shore

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The following official statement was issued last night:

"The Admiralty now has received trustworthy information about the action on the Chilean coast.

"During Sunday, Nov. 1, the Good Hope, Monmouth and Glasgow came up with the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Leipzig and Dresden. Both squadrons were steaming in a strong wind and a considerable sea.

"The German squadron declined action until sunset, when the light gave it an important advantage. The action lasted an hour.

"Early in the action both the Good Hope and the Monmouth took fire, but fought until nearly dark, when a serious explosion occurred on the Good Hope and she foundered.

"The Monmouth hauled off at dark, making water badly and appeared unable to steam away. She was accompanied by the Glasgow, which had, during the whole action, fought the Leipzig and Dresden.

"On the enemy again approaching the wounded Monmouth, the Glasgow, which also was under fire from one of the armored cruisers, drew off.

"The enemy then attacked the Monmouth again, but with what result is not known. The Glasgow is not extensively damaged and has very few casualties.

"Neither the Otranto nor the Canopus was engaged.

"Reports received by the Foreign Office from Valparaiso state that a belligerent warship is ashore on the Chilean coast and it is possible that this may prove to be the Monmouth. Energetic measures are being taken on this assumption to rescue the survivors.

"The action appears to the Admiralty to have been most gallantly contested, but in the absence of the Canopus the enemy's preponderance in force was considerable."

Ottoman Officers Freebooting.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7. — Merchandise of every conceivable value is being seized by officers of the Ottoman Government in cities of Syria under the general orders of mobilisation of troops, according to reports from missionaries made public yesterday by the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church.

"Under the order of mobilization," the board states, "unwilling conscripts are being gathered, each soldier being required to bring with him from his home eight days' rations, with a certain amount of money. The local officials have turned the orders to commandeer horses, mules, food and fodder into a most wicked and unbridled system of plunder."

RECRUIT SLATED TO SUCCEED FRED MERKLE AT FIRST

McGraw Has a Grist of Recruits to be Used in Patching His Team

New York, Nov. 7.—Mr. John J. McGraw is due to return to active duty any day now, and untrade most of his players who have been disposed of during his absence by ye winter league David Harums. So far as we know Mr. McGraw will not have to trade himself back to the Giants, as we have yet to see the humorist with the unmitigated gall to trade the Little Nap to Cincinnati or other parts unknown.

That considerable work of rejuvenation lies before the Giant chieftain, is self evident. His three time champions cracked unmistakebly in several places, and man is not the man to let cracks remain. There will be something very much doing around the New York club of the National league the moment that Mr. McGraw gets back on the job.

In the first place, the Giant scouts have corralled the largest crop of recruits ever gathered under one tent. There will be nearly fifty in the squad that the Giant manager will lead Marlinward in February. From this motley crew Mac hopes to reconstruct his club.

Two rookies whose chances are causing much speculation among ye scribes are Herr Holke, a very left-handed young person of German origin, and Handsome Harold Smith, a youthful backstop who showed much promise in the closing days of the late lamented season. Herr Holke is ambitious to relieve Mr. Merkle, our gifted first sacker, of his first basing duties. Mr. Smith would usurp the role of receiver of the flingings of Christopher Mathewson, Jeff Tesreau, and company, now held jointly by Chief Meyers and Lawrence McLean. (McLean is (called Lawrence because his name is Joan.)

Holke, the renowned Uhlan, is as left-handed as Rube Marquard, but nevertheless comes up with quite a reputation garnered in the Northwestern league. Richard Kinsella, the greatest scout who ever sold varnish, recommends Holke very highly. According to Richard and the records, the uhlan is a consistent .300 batsman and a corking good fielder. From our observations of his work in practice we are prone to agree with both, as to the fielding part. A record of having hit .331 will have to suffice for a smiting reputation, as we were not suffered to witness the Herr at bat.

We have only one criticism to make of Holke's form. He is terribly flat-footed. But then, so is John Arthur Johnson.

Whether the uhlan is destined to succeed Mr. Merkle or not we do not know. In fact, we are very ignorant as to whether any one is to succeed Mr. Merkle. But by common consent, Mr. Merkle seems to have been doomed to be succeeded, and in that event, it seems very likely that Herr Holke will do the succeeding.

Harry Smith, the catcher, is also a discovery of Richard Kinsella's. He comes into our mids even more highly recommended than Holke, and bedecked with medals, batting averages and everything. Smith is up agains just the same proposition as the uhlan. The men he must onst are apparently slipping. Whether they have slipped far enough to be succeeded by a youngster will be decided some months hence by John J. McGraw, who draws a salary from the New York club of the National league for deciding just such things. We have no desire to aid Mr. McGraw in the matter. Nor have we heard him let loose a cry for help.

The Giant leader, as we stated in the beginning, will be on the job directly. We have herewith simply ried to outline two of the numerous problems relating to the welfare of his club that he returns to face.

CENTRALS TIED KING EDWARDS

A very interesting game of football was played yesterday afternoon at the Central School grounds between the King Edward and Central teams.

In the first half the King Edward took one goal scored by Taylor, while in the second half Central evened the score on a goal made by Frost. The game thus ended a tie, 1-1. Mr. Kerr refereed satisfactorily.

On Thursday the King Edwards defeated the Centrals by 2-1. Jackson and Taylor scored for King Edwards, and Cherrett scored for Centrals. Mr. Rossel refereed.

Germany's Napoleon.

A writer in World's Work, who was a spectator at some important military manoeuvres in Germany a year ago, states that the Crown Prince's army was badly beaten in a sham battle and that the Prince was severely censured by the military judges. The writer adds that while he was being censured the Crown Prince was snapshotting the judges with a camera. All of which goes to affirm our previous opinion that the Crown Prince is the greatest military genius of all time.

Hank Gowdy has already proved his heroism — now he'll prove his foolhardiness by refereeing a semi-pro football game in Akron, Ohio.

Queer how habit holds one. Col. Dreyfus insists upon regarding Marty O'Toole as an asset rather than a liability.

PARIS OPTIMISTIC.

A Few More Weeks Will See Enemy Forced Back, They Say.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Paris appears to be more optimistic. The hope is freely expressed that a few more weeks of patient effort on the part of the allies will result in forcing the Germans right back into the interior of Belgium and so compelling the withdrawal of the whole line from Lille to Moselle toward the frontier.

This hopefulness is based to a considerable extent on the progress of the allies east of the Yser, which is accepted as establishing that the Germans have fallen back some distance from the river. The lack of the former energy in the German offensive between Dixmude and the Lys, whether it indicates a general retirement or the temporary exhaustion of their troops, is held to be all the more remarkable since there are no less than eight army corps massed on that front.

High Treason Charged.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—James Rowans, a Russian, was committed for trial by a jury in the Assize Court by Magistrate Denison in the Police Court yesterday on a charge of high treason. Crown Attorney Corley alleged that Rowens tried to get thirty Austrians into the United States. T. H. Lennox, counsel for defence, agreed to allow the case to go to a jury without the preliminary hearing in the Police Court.

President Gilmore says that the Federal League is about to invade New York. We notice that he says absolutely nothing about invading Boston.

COMMENT

As You Like it

Now that Hank O'Day has ruthlessly snatched the glory of the "Merkle play" from Evers and handed it to Hofman, we should like to have him decide who gets the credit for the Goliath incident, David or the sling?

The baseball experts awarded Eddie Collins an automobile, but if they had seen Ping Bodie trying to get around the bases they would have given it to him.

The path of baseball glory leads only to the stage. In the old days the ball player passes the winter in obscurity. Now he passes it at a literary frenzy or in a banquet hall.

Ananias was reading some winter league dope. "Curses!" he said. "I am only a bush league!"

The Austrians retiring before the Russians in Poland are believed to be cut off. But we have great confidence in the running ability of the Austrian army.

A Louvain professor has been asked to join the staff at Harvard. He should be given the chair of Teutonic "culture."

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

PARIS, Nov. 7. — The following bulletin was issued by the French War Office last night:

"To the north the fighting continues to be severe. According to the latest reports our offensive was proceeding to the region to the south and east of Ypres.

"In the region of Arras and from Arras to the Oise several German attacks have been repulsed.

"In the region of the Aisne we have retaken, to the east of Vailly, the Village of Soupir, which was lost the other day.

"In the Argonne the enemy keeps attacking violently, but without result.

"On the heights of the Meuse and to the east of Verdun we have captured some trenches."

The afternoon statement says, in part:

"There was no perceptible modification during the day of yesterday (Thursday) anywhere on the front. The fighting continued between Dixmude and the Lys with the same characteristics as previously and without any marked advance or retirement at any point. There was violent cannonading to the north of Arras, and also directed upon Arras, without result for the enemy.

"The German effort in Belgium and in the north of France continues. The Germans seem to have undertaken changes in the composition of their forces, which are operating in this region, and are reinforcing their reserve corps, composed of new organisations which have been very severely tested with active troops, with the idea of undertaking a new offensive moment, or at least to mitigate the bloody checks which have been inflicted upon them.

"Between the Somme and the Oise and between the Oise and the Meuse there have been minor actions. We have consolidated our advance on the Village of Andechy, to the west of Roye.

"Near Berry-au-Bac we have retaken the Village of Sapgneul, which had been captured by the Germans. There has been a furious fight in the Argonne, where, as a result of fighting with the bayonet, our troops drove the Germans back."

A BOY'S BIG GAME

By M. QUAD

I had the ill luck to get a thorn in my foot while hunting in the lion district of the Transvaal and was laid up at the house of a burgher named Kloopenfeldt for a full week. The burgher had but one child, and he was a boy fourteen years old and named Carl.

I thought myself something of a hunter for big game, but I soon discovered that the boy, young as he was, knew a thing or two in that line.

I am going to tell you what he did on two occasions. The farmer had 100 head of cattle, which were turned out during the day on the rich grass and at night were herded in a strong pen. These cattle were exposed to one enemy by day and another by night. If a wandering rhinoceros came near the herd by day he would select an animal and charge him. Once in awhile one would be overtaken and killed, but in most circumstances, being more agile than the rhinoceros, the cattle made good their escape. The boy, Carl, had watched these performances for some time, and on the second day of my arrival he was to put a plan into execution. There was a big white ox among the cattle who had been chased several times, and he always ran for the pen when charged. He did not run in a straight line, but zigzagged, while the rhinoceros in pursuit never deviated from a straight course. At a particular spot the boy dug a pit. It was long and wide and deep, and it took him a week to complete it. Half a mile to the east of this pit was a thicket from which the rhinoceros had always charged. Just after noon on the second day the boy caught the white ox, and, tying a rope aroung his horns for bridle, he mounted him and rode away to the thicket. He was going to "draw" for a rhinoceros.

"If a rhinoceros charges the boy he may be overtaken and killed," I said to the parents.

"I have no fear for Carl," replied the father.

For half an hour the lad rode the ox along the edge of the thicket, and then a rhinoceros suddenly broke cover with a fierce snort. He was after the ox like a wild locomotive, and for the first two minutes my heart was in my mouth. Then the ox got his speed up and held his own, while the boy kept laughing and shouting. By means of the ropes young Carl held his "steed" straight for the pit, but just before reaching it he swerved to the left and passed it in safety. Not so with the "rhino," however. The big beast ran in a straight line with his head down. Instead of following the swerve of the ox he kept straight on, and in five seconds he had landed at the bottom of the pit.

The old gun was brought out, and the bullets were fired into the rhinoceros until he was dead, and he was then covered in. I tried to pet the boy on the back and magnify his deed, but I couldn't make him believe that he was a hero.

Each night as soon as the sun went down there was a great howling on all sides from hyenas and jackals, and an hour or two later the lions would begin to roar. On the second night of my stay I wounded one by firing from a kitchen window, and on the third I killed one that was prowling within thirty feet of the back door. The Boer was glad enough to have them disposed of, but yet he had an eye to business. A dead lion was worth only his skin, while a live one could be sold for $150 cash to the men supplying zoological gardens and menageries. I was asked not to do any more shooting, and on the afternoon of the fourth day the boy set about preparing a trap. The cattle pen was twelve feet high, constructed of stones, logs and thorn bushes. At one spot it was pulled down until about five feet high. On the inside was constructed a stout pen of stakes, having a length of ten feet and a breadth of five or six. The idea was that if a lion leaped the wall he would land in this pen. It was open at the top, however, and I pointed out to the boy that the lion would be no sooner in than out again.

"But you shall see how I will keep him in," he replied, and it was true that I soon did see and was amazed over it.

He constructed a sort of net of stakes and old telegraph wire, and this net was to be drawn over the top of the pen after the lion was caged. To draw it one must be inside the cattle pen.

Just at nightfall the boy took up his position in the pen among the cattle. An hour or so later we heard five different lions roaring at once. By and by I caught sight of two skulking around, and but for the remonstrances of the Boer I should have fired upon them. He wouldn't hear of it, and we had a big male lion full under our eye when the animal approached the opening and leaped the wall. The frightened cattle bellowed and rushed about in their terror, and it was fully ten minutes before we heard from Carl. Then he came out of the pen by the big gate and calmly informed us that the lion had been safely trapped. I tried again before I left to make the boy understand that he had exhibited the greatest bravery in doing what he did, but he modestly replied:

"But I had to be there to draw the net or the lion would have escaped."

And the father quietly added as he puffed away at his big pipe:

"He had to be, of course. You can't catch lions if you are in bed."

CANADIANS HAVE TOO MUCH MONEY

Arrangements May be Made to Defer Full Pay

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Some development is likely over the difference in the pay of the Canadian soldier and his brother in England. The Canadian gets pretty well three times as much as the British and obviously has so much more to spend. Many in authority are doubtful whether this altogether is an unmixed blessing, especially as leave has been granted so far very generously. It may be that arrangements will be made whereby payment of the full pay will be deferred the soldiers, instead being paid only a proportion of the amount due.

HUNTING PARTIES

The Lakefield News gives the following personal for a number of Lindsay parties, which have gone to the wilds, as follows:—

Mr. Robt. Knox is hunting with the Tucker party at Serpentine Lake, north of Apsley.

Messrs. W. J. Charlton and J. H. Cummings left on Thursday for a hunt at Jack's Lake. The farmers in that district have put their cattle in safe quarters, and do not intend running any risks.

Messrs. S. J. Charlton, D. H. Charlton, Phil. Pattrick, W. Bickel and B. Q. Dench will hunt at Jack's Lake and vicinity his year. The party left on Friday morning and look forward to a successful hunt.

The Gull Lake hunting party left early Monday morning for the scene of operations. The party consists of Messrs. J. Perry, captain; P. Taylor, P. Tyndall, G. R. Browning and Sherman Hill. A supply of vinegar was taken in case of emergency.

The Mortimer Lake hunting party left on Saturday for their annual hunt at Pencil Creek. Following are the members of the party: Messrs. A. J. Kidd, W. Present, W. Adams, C. S. Tanner, and H. Wannamaker, of Lakefield, Harold Kidd and Gordon Ridpath of Toronto.

It has been learned from a reliable source that the supposed aeroplane which has been seen flying over various parts of the surrounding country was in reality a belated witch, who had been participating "not wisely but too well" in the Hallowe'en festivities, and who missed her conection for the return trip to Witchland.

The women of Peterborough are to be most highly commended for the work which they have been doing both for those who are in need at home and those who have been rendered homeless and destitute in Europe. A very large bale has been packed this week and sent off to Ottawa to be forwarded to the Belgians, and another wil shortly be packed. The local merchants have aided very materially in the work by their kind donations of warm clothing and other articles.

The monthly meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association was held on Friday, when a luncheon was given at the Oriental Hotel. The chair was taken by Mr. T. W. Robinson, president of the association. Amongst the out-of-town guests were Mr. Gordon A. Ramsay, travelling superintendent of the Canada Life, and Mr. Widdis, of Lindsay. Other members present were Messrs. D. H. Moore, W. A. Haslam, Thos. Mark, W. R. Scadding and A. N. Allison. Mr. Scadding gave a very able address on the subject of "The Life Agent's Contribution to Society." Mr. Moore, of the Sun Life, made a very neat and witty speech.

"AFTER THE BALL"

the Photo Drama Company's big six-reel feature, with Kelcey and Shannon in the leading parts, will be seen at the Grand Opera House beginning Monday, Nov. 9th, and Tuesday, the 10th.

Who has not heard the beautiful pathetic ballad written by Chas. K. Harris, which has been sung in the parlors of the rich and the garrets of the poor the world over?

Who has seen winsome Effie Shannon and not loved her? Who has seen the handsome and stately Herbert Kelcey and not admired him for his excellent, artistic work on the stage? In "After the Ball" the co-stars have shown the true worth of the artist at every angle, and "After the Ball" has been pronounced by the critics the best American subject ever made.

There will be four performances each day, namely, Matinees at 2.30 and 4. Night, 7.30 and 9. Prices, 10, 15 and 25c. Seats on sale at the box office.

— THE BROWNING CLUB —

The Browning Club met, as arranged, on Friday night at the Y. W. C. A. at 8 p.m. A further discussion of "Childe Roland" took place, and the leader then read a paper on the poem and its interpretation. Next week's meeting will also be on Friday, at the same hour. The poems for discussion are "Home Thoughts from Abroad" and "Prospice." After next week the meetings will revert to their regular day, Thursday. Those who wish to be reading ahead will be glad to know that "An Epistle of Karshish" follows the two shorter poems abovementioned.

"Childe Roland."

The poem suggested itself to Browning as he read the verses sung by Edgar in his role of a Tom o' Bedlam:

"Childe Roland to the Dark Tower came;
His word was still, "Fee, Foh and Fum,
I smell the blood of a British man."

Browning implies that it was the first of these three lines that called up the picture in his mind; and whether the lines are consecutive or not in the original ballad, or whether even they are all taken from one and the same ballad, we do not know. Anyway, they are consecutive in Edgar's thought and cannot but have helped to create the impression that the Tower to which Childe Roland came was dark with magic as well as mystery. Antiquaries tell us that Roland was the youngest brother of one Ellen, enchanted in fairyland; that he attempted her rescue, and was successful. The ballad from which this fragment is quoted in Shakespeare has never been recovered, and the doubt attaching to the form the story took in the original romance would be reason enough (if there were not others) for Browning not attempting to carry the knight farther than his arrival at the Dark Tower. Browning's artistic sense would forbid him to interfere with the facts of a ballad that might turn up at any time to give him the lie. Instead, he paints in the scene just before the hero reaches his goal, a picture that no other artist could paint half so well, and that would assuredly not contradict any 15th century balladist—the picture of a human soul, a soul in the Dark Ages, the thoughts and emotions of a brave, but simple, unlettered knight, after he has entered the domain of a mysterious foe, dread, malignant, and of a diabolical power.

Browning told Dr. Furnivall, the President of the Browning Society, that the poem flashed into his mind as a vivid picture, and it has many of the qualities of a dream-vision: the images that in a dream succeed one another in mere order of time, when once cast into language are inevitably forced into a logical sequence of cause and effect—post hoc ergo propter hoc. But the continuity of the poem is largely on the surface, and when one goes deeper—at a thoughtful re-reading—all sorts of difficulties and inconsistencies begin to arise—ghosts that, unlike the problems in studied compositions, will not be laid by mere hard thinking. To Stopford Brooke, the poem is "a scamper over the moorlands of imagination," and reads from stanza to stanza as though the Poet did not know what was coming next; nearly all of us will agree with this; it even reads from line to line as though the thread of thought were floating loose "for rhymes to catch at and let go."

In view of Browning's own disclaimer of any moral purpose in "Childe Roland," we have no right to interpret the poem down to its minutest details as an allegory, or to insist on any very definite purpose, in the Poet's conscious intention. Dr. Furnivall tells us that Browning on three several occasions gave him an emphatic denial to the question of allegory, and the opinion of other great artists working in the same field is surely significant. The Hon. Roden Noel, one time chairman of the Browning Society, said he had never thought of the poem as having a hidden meaning, nor would he care so to regard it. And Stopford Brooke declares us altogether too bold and bad if we read allegory into Browning. Doubtless the poem—quite apart from any purpose intended—does, like any other work of art, serve some good purpose, perhaps more than one. Dowden suggests that the question occurred to Browning, "What would be the hardest task to set a mediaeval knight?" and in that case, "true courage" or "constancy to an ideal" might represent the central thought. But other questions, too, may well have been in Browning's mind, even if he was not aware of them: e.g. "Need a man be a coward when the whole animal in him is reduced to a shuddering mass of superstitious dread?" or "Given the right conditions, the psychological moment, and how much of the supernatural will a man read into Nature?" or even, "Cannot a natural origin be found for the belief, so prevalent among primitive races and even throughout the middle ages, in giants and warlocks, sorcery and magic?"

Questions like these may well underlie the poem, but they are all subordinate to the one constant purpose of all Browning's art, the purpose which runs through all his poetry and which dictated its form—the dramatic monologue—as well as its matter. Browning's interest did not lie in Fairyland or in scenes of glamour, hardly any of his poems are really romantic. His absorbing interest is psychological: the human mind, its moods, motives and character; on all occasions, amid the most diverse circumstances of time and space, of rank, calling, and race, he strove to see the thoughts and emotions of his dramatis personae in actual working. He spent "a lifetime training for the sight," and he was certainly no fool to go "a-dozing at the very nonce." He tries to show us a mediaeval mind at work, and in the effort he actually becomes Childe Roland. And surely he sets his hero a harder task of knight errantry than any mediaeval romance ever conceived. "Take a knight in the Dark Ages," he seems to have said to himself, "in the hour of his greatest weakness, when mind and body are exhausted and dejected after years of disappointment; when he feels that he has outstayed life's welcome; set him, at the weary close of a dreary day, on a path that is gloomy and of appalling ugliness; pit him against an unseen, mysterious foe of superhuman power and malignant nature; make everything in the scene without add to the despondency within; reduce the animal in him to a shuddering mass of superstitious horror; and, when he has reached the last degree of 'creeps'—both body and mind—see if his soul be craven, too."

Synopsis of "Childe Roland."

To the primitive savage, the woods and wilds, especially after sundown, were peopled with giants, wizards, warlocks, and elves; mediaeval man believed just as strongly in witchcraft, but Christianity had translated the pagan folklore into a new language; enchantment was spoken of as the Black Art and supposed to emanate from Satan. Men knew nothing of Natural Laws in these Dark Ages and became as little children, facing the night side of Nature. Even the bravest of mediaeval warriors feared to go in the dark and peopled the night, if they had any imagination, with fearsome forms of life and dread powers of darkness.

Childe Roland is brave, but superstitious; the thing he has sworn to destroy has a most malignant nature and powers far beyond human. Its deadly influence has blighted and deformed (even demoralized) all Nature round about, and the tract surrounding the Dark Tower is reputed full of peril. None of those before him whose search for the magic castle was rewarded, has ever lived to tell the tale.

As usual in Browning the poem takes the form of a dramatic monologue; the hero is narrating to some unseen but actual audience his experiences in approaching the Dark Tower, and we are enabled to read his thoughts and emotions from the moment when he entered the ominous tract. As in a short story, we are plunged at the first words into the middle of the subject, and for several stanzas our wits are on the stretch, trying to fill in the antecedent conditions that have led up to the situation of the opening lines.

The speaker is evidently back from a most perilous quest; his foe, no mortal man, but one of the powers of darkness, against whom ordinary weapons—physical prowess, coat of mail and trusty steel—would be useless. Until the day he is telling of, he has followed his quest vainly, far and wide, through many a long year; all his brother knights-errant have failed; more than one of his friendship's idols have fallen, shattered; the hey-day of youth is long gone; he feels as though he had had more than his share of life's disappointments, as though he had outstayed his welcome. On this particular day, he seems to have touched the lowest depth of despondency. Extreme mental dejection and physical exhaustion combine to make him wish the thing were ended. With the courage of despair, he turns out of the highway into a lonely path leading towards the unseen foe. In his mind he is aware that the power he has sworn to meet is supernatural, malignant, and of devilish subtlety; the way is strange to him and the light uncertain; the long grey day is settling slowly down into gloom; it is the hour when magic and the spirits of darkness are abroad; the tract he is crossing is reputed part of the domain of the Dark Tower hidden somewhere in its midst. A sense of eeriness assails him, and he is gradually overcome, mind and body, with superstitious dread. He loses the balanced judgment of broad daylight, and every object that meets his senses takes on a weird and unnatural shape. The beggar who directed him becomes a malicious agent in the interests of the Dark Tower, and his every action is interpreted anew in the light of this idea. Even Nature is in league against him; a red gleam in the west seems a grin of cruel joy at the capture of one more victim by the ominous tract. The sudden swallowing of the road in the waste of the blasted heath seems sinister and the work of sorcery. The very ground and what grows on it is cursed, and, as it were, envenomed by the baneful influence of some malignant being. The only living object in sight; a starveling old horse, gaunt, blind, and misshapen, appears of such appalling ugliness that, in a sudden revulsion of feeling, he fairly hates the brute, and gets savage satisfaction out of an article of his mediaeval creed that pain is a judgment for sin. By this time his senses are so tortured that he can endure no more, and, closing his eyes, he attempts to refresh his spirit at the springs of memory. But, horrors of horrors, he finds them poisoned by the same in-

MADE PROGRESS ALONG MAJOR PART OF THE FRONT

ALLIES FACE STRONG ORGANIZATION, WHICH THE GERMANS HAVE HAD TIME TO EFFECT, AT POINTS OF SUPPORT

CANADIANS MAY BE SENT TO FRONT AT ANY MOMENT

No Unrest Among Canadian Soldiers Says Major General Hughes

New York, Nov. 9. — Major-Gen. Sam Hughes, Canadian minister of militia, returned on Saturday night from England and the continent upon the steamship St. Paul, which arrived from Liverpool.

Active service at the front will be seen by the Canadian expeditionary force that recently arrived in England from Quebec, according to Major-General Hughes. The force may be sent to the continent at any minute, he said.

The stories printed in this country to the effect that the Canadian contingent will be used to strengthen the coast defences of Great Britain were repudiated by Major-General Hughes as being without foundation. Neither will the Canadians be sent to Egypt, as has also been reported.

"There were 33,000 men in the first contingent which Canada forwarded to the help of the Mother Country," he continued. "They comprise the finest body of men that I have ever seen, and are enthusiastic over the prospect of getting into the active part of the fray. Weeks of training have made them seasoned regulars, and I feel that their presence on the field will prove of great advantage to the allied forces.

"More than one thousand men among the first contingent are Americans, and a large proportion of these were former members of the American National Guard. From the far west we obtained a particularly fine body of men, well trained in the handling of arms and inured to hardships equal to any they may face on the European battlefields."

The report that there is a feeling of unrest among the Canadian troops now in England or that their commissary department has been a source of complaint met with a vigorous denial by Major-Gen. Hughes. The Canadians received a welcome when they arrived in England that for its enthusiasm has seldom been equaled, he said, and their commissariat is of the highest order. The contingent is now encamped on Salisbury Plains, and may be sent to the continent at any minute.

MILITARY NURSES FOR BATTLE-LINE

From advices received from the Minister of Education, it would appear that young ladies going to the front and serving as military nurses will receive adequate consideration in the matter of their studies.

Large numbers of nurses have been invalided and supply on the battle-line, according to press reports, is running short.

Any of our young ladies who desire to go to the front as military nurses can take a short course and do so without penalising themselves, in study.

This will be gratifying intelligence and is a hint worth taking up.

Must Not Give Order to Strike

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

St. Louis, Nov. 9. — The Circuit Court today issued an injunction restraining the Orders of conductors, railway trainmen, firemen and engineers from ordering a strike on the St. Louis South Western Railway.

The injunction does not prevent unions taking a strike vote. The point at issue is the discharge of a conductor charged unjustly it is claimed with intoxication. The case is now under mediation.

APPOINTMENT OF WILLIAM PARKER IS CONFIRMED

Ottawa, Nov. 9. — The following appointments have been made in the Inland Revenue Department: George W. Taylor of Ottawa to be assistant deputy minister and secretary of the department; William F. Miller of Hamilton to be district inspector of inland revenue for Toronto inspection district; William Parker of Norwood to be deputy collector of inland revenue at Peterboro.

BRILLIANT DISPLAY ABSENT FROM LORD MAYOR'S PARADE

CANADIANS ARE POPULAR

Unique and Historical Features to Mark Banquet To-night

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 9. — Shorn of its picturesque pageantry but with its imperial and military features unprecedented in a century, the Lord Mayor's parade made its way through the streets today in the first part of the ceremonial inaugurating Sir Charles Johnson as Lord Mayor. With the exception of the gaily decorated state coaches of the Lord Mayor and other civic dignitaries, the parade today showed little color. The men were clad soberly in khaki and there was none of the brilliant display which usually distinguishes the procession.

One of the most popular organisations in the parade consisted of several battalions of Canadian troops, now waiting in England their opportunity to go to the front. Many of the London city regiments were represented by squads of men, and when the battalion of the London Scottish, who recently distinguished themselves in France, swung along to the skirl of the pipes, the crowd hailed them with great enthusiasm.

The Lord Mayor's banquet tonight will provide unique and historical features. The attendance of members of the cabinet promises to be greater than ever before in the history of this function, and the Opposition also will be well represented. Ordinarily there are not more than two or three foreign diplomats present, but tonight nineteen ambassadors and ministers will be about the tables.

JAPAN TO SEND ARMY TO EUROPE ?

Idea Meets With Favor in Military Circles of Mikado

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Tokio, Nov. 9.—Since the fall of the German position at Tsing Tau, the question of Japan sending an army to Europe has begun to attract increasing attention. The idea finds considerable support in military circles where it is believed such a move would be welcomed by France.

SOLDIER BOYS ARE GRATEFUL

The Mayor Receives an Acknowledgment From Volunteers

Mayor Buller is in receipt of a letter from the Peterboro boys who form a part of the 21st Battalion, now at Kingston, expressing their sincere thanks and deep gratitude for the send-off which they received from the citizens here, and the kindness shown them by the officers of the 57th Regiment.

It also expresses their appreciation to the ladies of the War Fund Committee, who so kindly presented them with wristlets and caps. They speak very highly of the many favors shown them.

TO CONTINUE RECRUITING

Two Hundred More Men Wanted From This Division

FOR ACTIVE SERVICE

Recruiting Will Proceed at the Armouries Commencing This Evening

Another 200 men are needed from this division, for the second overseas contingent. That is the substance of orders just received by Major Duncan Walker, Adjutant of the 57th regiment.

Recruiting therefore will proceed nightly in the armories, commencing this evening. Applicants can be examined any time after eight o'clock from now on, until the requisition is completed.

These additional volunteers are wanted to complete the strength of the 21st battalion now being mobilised at Kingston, Ont. It is expected that if former recruiting is a criterion of the despatch with which calls are responded to locally, no difficulty will be met in raising the desired complement of soldiers.

FEDERATION OF LABOR CONVENES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9. — The thirty-fourth anual convention of the American Federation of Labor opened here today to continue for two weeks. Prior to the assembling of the delegates there was a short street parade, in which nearly all the delegates participated.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor presented its annual report. The voluminous document covers every question that has affected labor during the year, including the European war.

Referring to the war, the report says: "The war has shown that war cannot be stopped by resolutions and that war cannot put an end to itself. War will cease only when society is convinced that human life is really sacred and when society establishes agencies for the protection of life."

Whether he has been reported in command, the Kaiser has met with reverses. Perhaps the Russians figured on this when they "nearly" captured him.

TERRIBLE SERIES OF ATTACKS ON YPRES RESISTED BY THE ALLIES

PARIS WAR OFFICE STATEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 9. — The official announcement given out by the war office this afternoon says

"The German offensive has been renewed at Dixmude and in the region of Ypres. To the southeast of Ypres all German attacks have been repulsed.

"Referring to the entire front between Dixmude and Lys, we have made progress along the major part of the line. Our advance is slow on account of the offensive movements undertaken by the enemy and because of the strong organization the enemy already has had time to effect around his points of support. Furthermore, this has made operations difficult, particularly between the Lys and the Oise.

"On the centre, along the Aisne, the progress set forth in the official communications of yesterday has been maintained.

"On the right wing, in Lorraine, there is nothing to report."

Infected Cars Sent Into Canada Must not be Returned

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Washington, Nov. 9. — All shipments of live stock from Canada to the United States will be barred by a quarantine order prepared today at the department of agriculture. There is no evidence of foot and mouth disease in the Dominion but infected cars have been sent over the border and the order is to prevent their return.

RUSSIAN ADVANCES SWEPT GERMANS OUT OF STRONG POSITIONS

Slav Army in East Prussia Has Rolled up German Defences as Far as Stalluponen and is Pressing on Rear Guard of Enemy.

Cavalry Penetrates German Territory at Pleschen, Near Kalisz.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 9. — The following official communication was issued from general headquarters yesterday:

"On the East Prussian front our troops have dislodged the Germans from the region of Wirballen, which was strongly fortified, and have progressed as far as Stalluponen, 16 miles east-northeast of Gambinnen. In the region of Rominten forest and Lyck our troops continue to press on the heels of the rear guards of the enemy.

"On the left bank of the Vistula our cavalry has penetrated German territory, damaging the railway near Pleschen station, to the northeast of Kalisz.

"On the roads to Cracow on Nov. 6 we attacked the Austrian rear guards along the Nida river and the next day were operating on the River Nidzica.

"In Galicia our troops are continuing their offensive movement. In the latest engagements on the San river we captured 125 officers and 12,000 soldiers, as well as rapid firers and munitions of war. South of Przemysl, on Nov. 6 we took more than 1,000 prisoners."

French minister of war. He is quoted in an interview as having declared that the deadly turpinite shell is a myth; that the mysterious compound was made up into shells and a special gun manufactured to fire them; but its only noticeable effect was to create an odor of methylated spirits and menthol. We do not vouch for the truths of the story; it may have a German origin.

After a Week of Supreme Effort to Break Through the Kaiser's Assault on Allied Position at Ypres Ends in Complete Failure, and Now He is Trying Again at Arras.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A despatch to The Times from Dunkirk, France, filed Saturday night, says:

After a desperate attack, lasting the whole week, the German attempt to break the allied line at Ypres has failed.

It may be admitted that the position at Ypres two days ago was serious. The town itself was bombarded by the Germans with extraordinary violence and under the fierce cannonading the allies had to withdraw from the town which became a "no-man's land," across which the shells from both sides burst.

"The Germans made a superhuman and fatal effort under cover of a fierce bombardment of the allied positions. They had prepared a desperate onslaught. Masses of men were launched in succession at chosen points on our front. The assault was met in a supreme way. Two regiments, and Scottish and one of the Guards, went down with bayonets to stem the advance. It was the most terrible bayonet charge of the whole war. It succeeded, the break in the line was repaired and the German attack was once more driven back.

"That was their last effort. To-day the Germans are dropping an occasional desultory spell into Ypres, but their attacks have ceased. They are now assailing the allied lines at Arras, forty miles further to the south, but not with the same fury as they exhibited in the onslaught of the past week.

"So fierce has been the fighting around Ypres that the casualties of the Germans are believed to have reached the enormous figure of 100,000, though these figures may prove to have been exaggerated."

Notwithstanding that fresh onslaughts have been made by the Germans against the allied forces all along the other great line of battle, the Kaiser's forces either have been repulsed, or else held back well in hand. The Germans evidently have been unable to discover the desired weak spot in the line of the allies.

The notably stout and effective resistance on the part of the British army at Ypres seems to have prevented the German forces from launching their new attack against the Franco-British troops southeast of Ypres, as at first planned and attempted.

The left wing of the German army was yesterday the new objective point of the French, the campaign starting in aggressively between Rheims and the frontier of Lorraine. After desperate encounters, the French succeeded in capturing important strategic positions along the River Meuse and to the north of Nancy. The losses on both sides are reported as extremely heavy. Reinforcements have been sent to the French and British armies, which are holding the line of battle between Ypres, Belgium, and Roye, France, in the expectation that the German troops soon will advance the new army of 250,000 men now being organized in Belgium for a final onslaught in the attempt to reach the French sea coast.

At only one point on the two battlefronts do the Germans claim success. That is to the west of the Argonne region, there the German Emperor's forces have succeeded in taking from the French an important height near Vienne-le-Chateau region. Elsewhere the French troops have made progress and retaken the positions which they had lost during the course of the week. This is notably so in the Aisne valley around Soissons, where they have regained the ground which the Germans by fierce assaults had taken from them.

The Belgians, who are holding the line reaching to the coast, have also made progress, and it would thus seem that the Germans are still waiting for additional reinforcements before renewing their attempt to smash through to the French seaport.

The fighting yesterday was carried on in a fog, which interfered with the work of the airmen, and likewise with the artillery.

While the reports of the allies' offensive in the west have given hope in London that the Germans will fall back to a line further removed from the sea, all uneasiness has not passed, for they have previously shown wonderful recuperative powers. The presence of the Russians in East Prussia and Silesia, however, although the latter are only cavalry, it is believed here, will prevent the Germans from sending any more troops to the west if it does not compel them to withdraw some of their troops from that region.

Engineers from the Krupp gun works are mounting heavy guns at the Belgian seaport of Ostend and facing them seawards, according to a despatch from Rotterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

British patrols have reached a point three miles from Bruges.

The Telegraaf's correspondent at San Vangeant states that the Germans are persistently reported as retreating toward Antwerp, and that the troops stationed at Salzaete have been transferred by transport to the left bank of the Terneuzenghent Canal.

The Telegraaf's correspondent quotes a German officer as declaring: "We must go back, but nevertheless we shall conquer."

To Tie Up Belgium Railways.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 9.—(Via London.)—According to the newspaper Vaterland, all the employes of the Belgian railways plan to go on strike, thereby adding to the difficulties of the Germans.

NEW BAND MASTER FOR LOCAL TEMPLE BAND

Comes to Peterboro From Calgary With Splendid Reputation as Band Leader and Player

Mr. F. W. Beer, who is coming to take charge of the Salvation Army band arrives in the city tonight from Calgary. He is a bandmaster with a world-wide reputation, he having led different army bands for the past 25 years. He played in the International staff band in London, Eng., and was bandmaster of one of the largest and best bands in London. He is also a teacher of some repute, and an instrumentalist of the first order. His work on the cornet has been commented on by some of the leading musical authorities of the world, and has been pronounced by them to be of an A1 quality.

He has been in Calgary for the past eighteen months, as leader of the Corps Band, and his services there were highly spoken of.

He will be given a reception at the Temple this evening. The local corps band has been very fortunate in securing such an able leader as Mr. Beer.

PURCHASE OF OLD CHEMONG LINE

G.T.R. Representative Will Meet Manufacturers Committee

On Thursday morning Mr. Donald, of the G. T. R., is meeting the manufacturers' committee regarding the purchase of the old Chemong line.

The C. G. E. are going to manufacture electric engines, and they want to buy this line so that they could test them here. The city has entered into negotiations with the G. T. R. on behalf of the C. G. E. to help them secure this line. If the deal goes through, it will mean a big boost to this city, as it will greatly facilitate the C. G. E. in the manufacture of the cars.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1914

CLOSES HIS PASTORATE.

REV. H. J. KEITH, M. A., preached his farewell sermons yesterday to the congregations of Knox Presbyterian Church. For over seven years he has had charge of that congregation, and his sermons partook of the nature of a review of his incumbency. Those years have been marked by progress and uplift, for which the people are truly grateful. Mr. Keith came from the missionary field of India to an Ontario city, and put in practice here the methods by which Christianity is extended in that far-away country. Evidence of that progressive policy he inaugurated and maintained is found in the splendid church building and organ and the steady growth and progress of his congregation. Mr. Keith's record of work accomplished is substantial, and, while it must always be the real cause for kindly memories by the citizens of Peterborough, and by the adherents of Knox Church in particular, it also constitutes his best recommendation to the new charge to which he is about to go. The Canadian West is a great country in transition, needing the steadying influence of vigorous and cautious men. The field is worthy of the new worker, whom we feel will amply justify his call to the rolling prairies.

THE RESPONSIBILITY IS ON GERMANY.

THE MONTREAL NEWS, in fixing the responsibility for this great war on the Kaiser, says:

> "To argue that the Kaiser of Germany is not largely responsible for the actions of his nation is on a par with arguing that the leader of a band of robbers is not responsible for the depredations the band commits."

This metaphor is strong and illuminating, but we would hardly compare Germany to a band of robbers. What we maintain is that the present German Emperor, while facilitating the immediate causes of the war, was but one part of a great fighting machine bent on war, and that he could hardly have stopped the war, trained, as he had been, along with millions of others, to drink to "The Day." The Kaiser might have delayed the war, but it had to come, in spite of him.

Assuredly, the sovereign of Germany could not wage a great war without the people's assistance. Mark how the people of Berlin threw up their caps when war was declared, and how other German city populations cheered the coming of the war. "The Day" had arrived.

Many have been pleased to make a distinction of caste in Germany, to speak of the German military caste and of the German people. A difference in rank, wealth or status does exist, but not in purpose. There was a time when there were two distinct divisions, but, thanks to German culture, the differences, so far as purpose was concered, have been broken down. It is Germany in totum that the Allies are fighting in this war. The mass of the German people may have entered the war blindly, but that does not alter the fact that they are fighting. Besides, the military system prevailing in Germany involves the whole nation. By the use of compulsory military service, every able-bodied man in Germany gives three entire years of his life to military training. Every man is thus pigeon-holed. If he does not continue as a regular, he is placed on the reserve list, subject to a call to arms at any time. All Germans, so to speak, are soldiers, whether they belong to the military party or not. That party, large and influential as it is, and decidedly not a clique, controls German politics, and has the support of united Germany behind its policy. How deeply the ideals of war and militarism, of Nietzsche and Bernhardi, have sunk their roots in the German people may be understood by the testimony of a New York banker, Mr. Henry Belmont, who recently returned from Europe. While he expects Germany to be defeated, he says:

> "The success of republicanism in France has remained a constant threat, not to the German people, but to the military autocracy to which they have surrendered their liberty. After graduation from Harvard in 1872, I spent a year in the University of Berlin. At that time the professors were men of independent thought and information. Today they are absolutely dependent on the favour of the military autocracy which exercises its perverting influence throughout every phase of German life."

LOCAL MILK dealers have raised the price of cream—because of the war, of course—yet there has been no war tax on their product and none of the things entering into the production of cream has increased in price. The cost is the same as a year ago, and the price was not raised last winter. That's patriotism.

OVER IN EUROPE several newspapers have been closed up because they disobeyed the censor. There are some local dictators that would dearly like to exercise a similarly extensive power.

PROFESSOR GRANT ON THE WAR.

BY ALL ODDS, the best article of the many we have read about the European War that has spread beyond the bounds of that continent, is by Professor W. L. Grant, in the Queen's Quarterly. It is difficult to make an adequate quotation from this short article without quoting the whole of it, so well composed and reasoned is it in every sentence.

> "The war gives the lie to the believer in the upward march of humanity. We asked for righteousness, and behold oppression, for judgment, and behold—the cry from butchered Louvain."

The balance of power, which peace-loving nations insisted on maintaining, was responsible for much of the militarism that kept war in the European atmosphere.

A striking section is that dealing with the failure of secret diplomacy, in which Prof. Grant shows that Sir Edward Grey had tied England to engage Germany if France were attacked. Belgium's neutrality did not matter, the violation of which merely furnished a justifiable casus belli when war had already become inevitable.

Two paragraphs serve to show, first, that Professor Grant places the responsibility for the war on Germany, and, second, that Canada must take no small share in the great conflict.

> "Even had we been false to our plighted word, and looked on while Louvain flamed and France was over-run, and a German fleet, within sight of England, bombarded Calais and Boulogne, England must have gone into the fight to strike a blow for freedom and for democratic civilization. We fight, for ordered freedom against ordered slavery, for Runnymede against Zabern. Much nonsense may have been talked about the Rights of Man, but after all they exist, and it is for them that we fight.
>
> "Canada has been worthy of her traditions. With somewhat more of noise and open enthusiasm, as befits a younger and more expansive people, but with equal resolution, we are sending our men and our resources. From under the shadow of the monument to Wolfe and to Montcalm, they go forth. This must continue. By Christmas we must have 100,000 men in training; by April, should the war still rage, that 100,000 must be on their way to the front; for we are fighting, not merely for Great Britain; not merely for the Empire; we are fighting in the liberation war of humanity."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

TORONTO is in the throes of a terrific municipal and newspaper war as to whether the new Bloor Street bridge over the Don will be of concrete or steel. In our judgment, this exciting discussion is irrelevant. It will be a steal bridge, no matter how it is built.

WOULD IT NOT be advisable to get up a petition to the Kaiser protesting against the scurrilous attacks on the British in the German press and asking him to order it stopped?

Encouraging Home Industries.

(Stratford Beacon.)

A co-operative factory has been started in Toronto for making toys for the Christmas trade. Officials of the trades unions, with the assistance of the municipal authorities, have fitted up a factory where idle carpenters, tinsmiths and metal workers may be engaged making toys to be sold at Christmas in place of German toys. Machinery for the purpose has been obtained and the men employed in making toys will be paid twenty-five cents an hour until the success of the venture is assured, when the rate may be raised. The city is providing a building for the purpose, and no difficulty is being experienced in finding capital for the purpose of equipment. This experiment serves a double purpose: It provides work for many unemployed, and it keeps the money of Toronto in Canada, instead of being sent to foreign countries for the purchase of toys. The idea seems worthy of extension.

The Attitude of Italy.

(La Patrie.)

It is not impossible that a secret understanding exists between England, France and Italy, by virtue of which the latter's intervention will come at a decisive moment. It is quite possible that the intervention of Italy in the European war may come at any time now.

TOMMY ATKINS' SONG.

Editor Review,

Sir,—Will you please allow me a small place in your valuable paper in regard to the numerous criticisms of that song entitled, It's a Long Way to Tipperary, which a lot of people say has nothing to do with the war, but which myself and thousands of others must agree that it has a lot to do with the war. Take, for instance, Tipperary itself in Ireland where there are 500 widows whose poor husbands gave their lives for their King and country. Surely those poor fellows are a long, long way from Tipperary, never to return again, and surely it must be a long way from the fighting line to Tipperary in the hearts of the men who are serving at the front.

Yours truly,

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The following official communication was issued by the French War Office last night:

"To the north the enemy appears to have concentrated his activity in the region of Ypres, without result. On the remainder of the line we are holding our ground everywhere.

"On the River Aisne we have reached to the northeast of Soissons, the Plateau of Vregny, on which we had not previously gained a foothold.

"Elsewhere there is nothing to report."

Yesterday afternoon's French War Office report says:

"Yesterday, between the North Sea and the Lys the fighting was less violent. Some attacks, not general, of the enemy, were repulsed in the direction of Dixmude and to the northeast of Ypres. On almost all of this front we, in turn, took the offensive and advanced, notably in the region to the north of Messines.

"In the neighborhood of Armentieres the British troops progressed slightly. Between La Bassee and Arras the attacks of the enemy were repulsed.

"From Arras to Soissons nothing worthy of note took place.

"Around Soissons our forces made a marked advance. In the region of Vailly, and equally on the right bank of the Aisne, we strengthened our progress to the North of Chavonne and Soupir. A German attack on Caronelle and Heurtebize was repulsed.

"In the neighborhood of Verdun to the northwest and to the southeast of that place, we are establishing the supporting positions recently gained.

"A dense fog prevailed all day in the north, as well as in Champagne and Lorrain, hampering the action of the artillery and the aviation corps."

Both Were Misjudged

How Husband and Wife were Separated by Baseless Disagreement

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

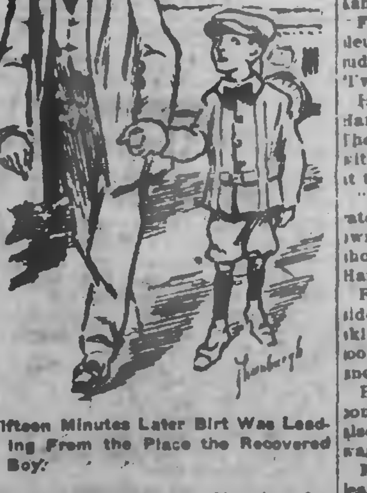
"This is detective work, pure and simple, Ashley, but I am not even an amateur. Just plain John Birt, once a town marshal, now a second rate lawyer. I am your friend, though, and your wife's friend. And the friend of poor little lost Harry. Let me show you, out of gratitude for the start you gave me in life years ago, what real, genuine friendship is."

There was nothing heroic in the speech. There was no false note of bombast. Richard Ashley, sick, disheartened, all at sea, had come up against the dead blank wall of "No clew" in a case where mystery and misery were pretty well commingled, and no visible thoroughfare back to happiness and peace.

Ashley had befriended Birt fifteen years previous, and the loyal fellow had never forgotten it. Ashley had married Lucia Ward. A child was born to them, and when Harry was five years of age, a baseless disagreement had come about. They had separated, Ashley taking the child in his keeping. The abyss broadened. They did not meet again.

Ashley went west with Harry and acquired a small fortune in Idaho lands. His wife he seldom heard from. She was heiress to a large estate, he learned. Too proud to meet her half way in a reconciliation, she seemed to have completely shut him and the child out of her memory. She led a hard, lonely life at the secluded country home of a stepbrother. All that kept Ashley in touch with his old life were occasional letters from the loyal Birt. The latter knew that the estranged wife was a sore subject to his friend, and rarely alluded to her. At length, however, a letter came that brought Ashley east post haste with his son.

"I have learned," Birt wrote, "that you have misjudged your wife, just as she has misjudged you. She pines for you and the child. I find, too, that Dunbar, her stepbrother, spread all the lies that separated you. He will do all he can to keep you apart, for by doing so he hopes finally to control the estate to which she is heiress."



Fifteen Minutes Later Birt Was Leading From the Place the Recovered Boy.

Ashley had come to Rockton at once. A slow fever had set in. Before Birt could carry out his plans to bring the separated wife and husband together, the boy Harry mysteriously disappeared.

Harry slept in the room adjoining that of his father at the hotel. In the morning he was found missing. He had apparently been carried down the fire escape of an inner court. The only clew was the discovery that a covered wagon had left the town, headed south, at midnight. All that showed the visit to the room was the disturbed bed, a taint of chloroform in the air and a lot of gilt spangles covering the rug.

"I am going to find your boy for you," declared Birt.

"I can never go to Lucia unless he is with me," said Ashley.

Four hours later Birt was resting under a tree near the beach of a little lake about ten miles from Rockton. He had followed the clew of the midnight wagon and had lost the trail. As he now sat thinking over the affair, he confessed to himself that the "intuition" that most detectives talked about was slow in coming to him.

"Only one thing am I certain of," he told himself. "Dunbar is behind this kidnaping."

The speaker just then noticed a little red toy balloon sailing out over the lake. A second followed, a third, and then as many more in succession.

Then boyish cries attracted his attention. A group of lads came into view, chasing another of the red spheres. One venturesome urchin ran into the water, grabbed it, exploded it, and waded to the shore holding the wreck of his trophy.

Birt watched the crowd gather curiously around the object. Then another balloon was espied, and they put off for it.

Birt arose and strolled aimlessly down the beach. As he passed the flattened out balloon he noticed that a string ran from it to which a card was attached. He picked it up.

"Why, hello!" he exclaimed.

Water had obliterated some pencilled words on the blank side of the card. The front bore his own name.

"One of my business cards," he soliloquized in a wondering way. "That's queer."

"Shoot—shoot!" he heard a boyish voice call just then, and came upon a second group of lads chasing another of the toy balloons.

One of the boys had a bow and arrow. He aimed aloft. The shaft sped from the bow, pierced the balloon, and the deflated globe came to the ground. There was a scramble over it.

"Here, I'll pay you for that," he said, extending a coin to the boy who had rescued the object. Then eagerly he inspected the card. It was another of his own. It had, however, got trampled in the mud. He made out these words: "In a lion's cage—send word—Ashley—hotel—Rockton."

For fully five minutes the amateur sleuth stood studying the card. Then suddenly he exclaimed triumphantly: "I've got it!"

He remembered that he had given Harry some of the cards to draw on. The words "lion's cage" in connection with the spangles found in the room at the hotel suggested—a circus!

"And say!" ejaculated the second-rate man, "I recall now that Dunbar owns a half interest in a traveling show. Why, find a circus, and I find Harry!"

Four hours later Birt stood by the side of one of a dozen tents at the outskirts of a county seat town. He looked around him and swiftly bolted under the canvas.

Birt had just heard a circus peddler complain of losing his balloons. He also learned that there was a cage wagon inside the tent.

Fifteen minutes after that Birt was leading from the place the recovered boy. He had found him locked in the cage wagon and had opened a way to freedom.

Harry told of two men kidnaping him. He had overheard them say that a man named Dunbar had ordered them to lose him in some distant part of the country.

A circus peddler had tied his string of toy balloons to the wagon. A bright idea came to Harry. He reached out, drew the balloons towards the bars, attached what cards he had to them, and let them go up. There was an opening at the top of the tent, and they sailed away.

It was after restoring Harry to his father and hiring a man to guard against a new abduction, that the lawyer took a train direct for the home of the mother and wife.

He had sure evidence that Dunbar was a wicked villain, and of this he convinced the amazed stepsister.

Mrs. Ashley met her husband and son for the first time in ten years. There were explanations, forgiveness, awakened love, and the modest lawyer blushed when the reunited pair tried to tell him how much they owed him.

"Oh, I just did my duty," declared Birt, "like the second rate man I am."

"You insist upon that, do you?" cried the Happy Ashley. "All right, but one thing, sure—you are a first-class friend."

Killed by Madman.

Romanshorn, in the canton of Thurgan, Switzerland, has been the scene of a terrible tragedy, no fewer than seven men being killed by a madman, a soldier and seven others being wounded. The madman, Hermann Schwars, had been recently discharged from the army owing to mental trouble. Provided with a rifle and a supply of cartridges, Schwars barricaded himself in his room, and from six o'clock in the evening until past eleven kept up a continuous fire upon passers-by and upon people who attempted to break down the door and deprive him of the rifle. In all four men were killed and eight others were wounded. Bugles were blown to summon the fire brigade, and a large crowd assembled in response to the ringing of bells. Shortly after midnight a number of courageous individuals rushed the house, but found that Schwars had disappeared. It was believed that he had taken to the forest, and the next morning a large party, comprising firemen, police and citizens, with dogs, started to search for him. After the pursuit had been in progress for some time, a policeman came upon the madman, who immediately fired, mortally wounding his pursuer. Schwars then disappeared again. The hunt was continued, and after an exciting pursuit, in which more than 100 people were engaged, Schwarz, who was seriously wounded by shots, was at length arrested in the neighborhood of Romanshorn, but not before he had killed another of his pursuers.

TESTED RECIPES

Baked Beans

Soak 4 cups beans over night in cold water. In the morning add fresh cold water and cook slowly until the skins begin to burst. Pour off water, and turn beans in bean pot or jar. Bury in the beans ¾ pound of fat salt pork. To 1 cup boiling water add 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon molasses, 3 tablespoons sugar, and pour over beans. Add enough boiling water to cover beans, and more if needed during cooking. Cover the bean jar and bake slowly from 6 to 8 hours. Mustard may be added if the flavor is preferred. This quantity should serve eight persons.

Lentil Croquettes

Use split peas if desired. Soak ½ cup lentils or split peas over night. Cook with one stalk of celery until soft, or about two hours. Drain and press through a sieve. Add 1 cup stale breadcrumbs, 1 egg, ¾ tablespoon melted butter, a few drops onion juice, and salt and pepper. Cool and shape into croquettes. Roll in crumbs, then in egg, then in crumbs again, and fry in deep fat.

Pork Left-overs

Cold roast pork, in the estimation of many persons, is far better than when served hot. Cut in small thin slices and serve with apple sauce.

The tender white meat of a roast of pork may be made into a salad which many cannot tell from chicken salad. Combine with celery and a few olives and use any cooked dressing and cream.

One cup of diced cold pork added to the gravy that was left over (after carefully removing fat) may be heated and turned over toast and served for breakfast.

Pork Croquettes

Pork croquettes are most delicious if made with a cup of mashed potatoes to each cup of diced pork. Mix together and add one or two drops of onion juice, a little minced pepper or pimento, and salt to taste. Use one-half cup of very thick sauce or pork gravy. Mix all together, form into shape and set in cold place for three or four hours. Slice and dip in eggs and roll in fine bread crumbs an hour before ready to fry. Drop in wire basket and fry in deep fat until golden brown. Serve with baked apples.

Burying San Francisco.

He was a wealthy youth, blessed with plenty of money, and a great number of people were ready to take it away from him. He lived in San Francisco, which city, according to reliable report, is as full of speed and action after dark as Ty Cobb is when he steals home with the winning run.

One night the young man, full of check books and ideas, hired a string of 40 cabs and hacks, and, forming them in single file, led the procession down Market street, the principal thoroughfare of San Francisco. His walk was slow, grand and impressive, and the vehicles followed him at a snail's pace. It looked like the funeral of a pet dog or a Mohammedan.

Suddenly a policeman ran out and put about his neck strong but uncaressing fingers.

"What are you trying to do?" asked the officer of the law.

"Why," said the leader of the procession solemnly, "this town is dead, and I'm burying it."—The Popular Magazine.

EXERCISE YOUR LUNGS DAILY

Millions of people live on "half breaths" all their lives. There are trusts on food, and trusts on drink and trusts on clothes. But there is no trust yet on air. There is enough and to spare of this one great health-giving, life-prolonging commodity to go around. It's free and it's fresh all the time. Hardly a day passes in which some individual does not proudly say: "I never did try deep-breathing, though I understand it is a very good thing to do."

In plain words "deep breathing" is an ordinary washing of the lungs. It is as important, or more important to cleanse the inside of the body than the outside. It is more injurious to breathe worn-out air than to forget or neglect to bathe. The person who cultivates the habit of taking long breaths will be as hungry for them as he is for food. If you haven't yet formed the habit—which is not in any sense a fad, begin now.

Take at least one real breath a day and see how it goes. Multiply this by ten, giving ten inhalations and ten exhalations at each time. The result will be 100 real breaths during the day. Breathe these long breaths from the open window or better still out of doors. Follow the general rule taking the breath in through the nose and exhaling it through the mouth.

It is so simple that most people forget to do it. It is so efficacious as an aid to health that it is a wonder anyone neglects it. Try taking one real breath.

OLD FRIENDS ARE THE BEST FRIENDS

When middle age creeps along, and one is forced to realise the fact that the best of youth and its ambitions have passed for ever, one of the greatest comforts—especially to a woman—is the recollection that, during the course of her life, she has gathered around her some real friends.

I suppose you will be moving further afield, now, was asked of a woman, whose husband has just retired from business life.

"Well, my dear," she answered, "we've decided to keep where we are, and I'll tell you why. All our married life we have lived here, and we don't like the thought of parting with the friends we have gathered round us. They know my children, I know theirs; we have spent many happy hours together, and have sympathised with each other in the little ups and downs that have occurred at different times. If we went away I've no doubt we should make new acquaintances, but they could never compensate us for the loss of such tried and true old friends."

It is a wise woman who realises and values so fully the happiness that such friendships brought into her life.

The fair-weather friends fade quickly away in times of trouble and need but it is then that the light of real friendship shines truest and strongest.

It is not always material aid that can soothe a breaking heart, or ease a worried mind. It is the word of genuine sympathy, and the honest grip of a friend's hand, that can act as a balm and give one courage to go forward.

Woman Outwits Man

"Men carry on their love affairs in strange ways," declared a woman who knows. "They make such a mistake by carrying their warfare into the field of subtle manoeuvres, for the average woman can readily outwit the average man in that game, and, for the sake of the game and the proving of her wit, she'll do it. Whereas, if a man would mass his forces and make a perfectly direct charge—(How do you like my military metaphor?)—in nine cases out of ten he'd win the day."

West Indian Plantation Worker's Idea of British Fighting Powers

"A laborer in one of the plantations," says the Barbados W.I., Standard, "went up to one of the men of overseas contingent and in a serious manner, which evidently showed that he was really seeking enlightenment, said in his local vernacular, which we cannot attempt to reproduce: 'Massa, is it true that before the war the Kaiser sent a bag of rice to King George and told him, 'King George, I got as many soldiers as they is rice in the bag,' and that King George sent the Kaiser a bottle of nigger peppers and tell him: 'I only got as many soldiers as is in this pepper bottle, but you just bite one, and then you'll see if your soldiers like these.'"

This occurrence is a very apt illustration of the Barbado negro's opinion of the fighting capacity of the British soldier.

Owing to the war, the world's supply of snuff has been greatly reduced. And just when a sneeze is so handy for disposing of those Russian and Turkish names.

An Old Hero's Story

By F. A. MITCHEL

An old Frenchman, a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war, who had been in America long enough to speak English as he would if it were French, told me this story over a glass of French wine raised in California:

Eet was in ze beginning of ze war when ze Prussian haf not yet conquer ze French people and we do not think zey will overrun ze country and dictate terms of peace in Paris. I was with General le Fevre, who commanded a brigade near ze frontier. We have ze railroad and ze locomotif and ze cars, but when ze Prussians cross ze border all ze employees of ze road run away.

In ze evening just before sunset an officer ride up to ze camp of ze Ninety-eighth regiment of ze line and say:

"Any of you men locomotif engineer?"

I have been locomotif engineer before I enlist in ze army, so I shake my hand in ze air. Ze officer he took notice and he call for me to come to him. I go with him to General le Fevre's headquarters, and ze general ask me how much I know about locomotif, and after I tell him he say to me:

"I send a thousand men to ze other terminal of zis railroad at once. Zere is one company zere and ze captain telegraph zat ze Prussians are coming to occupy ze high ground zere, but eef he have a thousand men he can hold eet till General Bazaine send a large force. Eet is sixty miles to go, and you must tak ze train zere in leetle more than an hour. Eef you git zere before ze Prussians you may save France. Zey are six or seven miles from ze place and march on foot.

I say, "Yes, general, I tak ze men zere in one hour if ze locomotif will pull it so fast as zat."

It was ver' dark when we start. Ze moon only leetle crescent, nearly gone down. We run from north to south, ze same way as ze border line between France and Prussia. We do not know if ze Prussians haf advanced so far as ze railroad. Eef they haf zey fire into ze train, zey try to throw it off the track, zey do all zey can to keep us from going on.

My engine ver' good engine, one of ze best of eets kind. I run sixty miles an hour, sometimes more, sometimes less. When I come to ze curves I slow down leetle bit, but make eet up when I have a straight road before me. A few Prussian cavalrymen, ze advance of ze Prussians, have come so far as ze railroad, and zey put obstructions on ze track. Suddenly I look ahead and see a tree felled on the rails. I reverse, zen shut my eyes to wait for ze smash. Eet does not come, only a leetle bump.

When an engineer runs into ze dark night he feels like Columbus when he sail into ze dark ocean. I nevaire know when I round a curve, but I run into a big rock or some othaire obstruction zat kill me and wreck ze train behind me. I see specter all ze time. Suddenly a great black somet'ing seem to spring up on ze track right before me. I reverse, but before I come to a full stop I see zat it ees nothing but a leetle bug which haf fly on ze glass before ze headlight.

All at once I hear a cracking above ze noise of ze train, and bullets whistle through ze cab. Some Prussian horsemen fire zere carbines at us. But zey do leetle damage, nothing but break my right arm. So I cannot hold ze throttle with zat arm. But what for I want two arms when one will do as well, except for sudden reverse, and by zat time I come within about ten miles of ze end of ze journey? Nevairezeless I call ze fireman, who come and look ovaire my shoulder.

Ze Prussians were by zat time ver' near ze point we wish to reach, and we both approach at an acute angle. Zey hear ze rattle of our train, and we hear zere huzzas. By gar, we have to stop to take away ties zem scouts put on ze track, and while we make no sound we hear zere tramp at double quick. Zen we hear a gun, and I think we too late. Ze Prussians must be attacking ze post. But I go on, and pretty soon I come to a leetle earthwork our men haf thrown up beside the railroad and see that they have a gun there and have dropped a shell into ze Prussian advance.

In a few minutes we reach our point. I whistle down ze brakes, ze train stop, and our men jump out and run up to ze top of ze hill, where ze French have work two, t'ree days on ze fortifications.

Zat was ze end of my work. I get surgeon to fix my arm and am ready with my musket to receive the Prussians when zey come. Zey have twice as many men as we, but we have very strong position and no trouble to hold out till Marshal Bazaine send large force.

When I get back to my command my general he throw his arms about me and hug me like a bear. He say to me: "You have done great service. You shall be a captain; you shall have a medal. I will report what you have done to the empereur."

Pouf! What was it all worth? Ze Prussians march right on to Paris, and after the capitulation our people pay big ransom to get zem out, besides giving our beautiful provinces Alsace and Lorraine. Some day when we get strong we tak zem back. But what good zat do me? I'm too old now to fight, and by zat time I sleep under ze sod.

When a chronic kicker does gain his point it is apt to be blunt.

A MIDSHIPMAN'S PITY

Sorry For the Poor Folks at Home—Tells of Life in the Fleet

Here is a cheery letter from a midshipman in one of the British battleships in the North Sea: "We are all itching for a scrap. We go to night defence stations for three-and-half hours every night, and sleep in our clothes during our watch off and after daylight. We go into harbor to coal every four or five days. In the daytime at sea we have nothing to do except to rig night defence gear (searchlights are stowed below at daylight), do physical drill, running round the ship, etc., to keep ourselves fit, and occasionally going to action stations. Of course there have been various alarms, when we have had to rush to our stations. But they are generally caused by some ham-handed horse marine firing a gun by mistake, or by some swivel-eyed lookout seeing one of our own ships and thinking it the enemy, or mistaking a treacle-tin for the periscope of a submarine. Anyhow, they tend to relieve the monotony, although at the expense of sleep which is a rare luxury, especially at night. We have to sleep in the signal house so as to be near our searchlights, and are waked up every two or three minutes by signalmen coming in and falling over our feet. It is the only place where they can switch on a light to read signals. I am very sorry for everybody left at home; the war must affect them much more than it does us."

AUSTRIANS IN DESPERATE FIGHT

ROME, Nov. 9.—A special despatch to the Tribune from Petrograd says: Russians have cut off the Austrian army from the Germans. The Russians, with a swift movement, occupied all the ways of retreat toward Cracow, and the Austrian army was pushed towards the Carpathian Mountains. Their only line of retreat lies across the Carpathians into Hungary, which, at this time of the year, owing to the recent snowfalls, are almost impassable.

CASUALTY LIST AMONG OFFICERS

LONDON, Nov. 9. — A tabulated list of casualties among commissioned officers of the various regiments of the British expeditionary force in France between October 20th and the 27th raises the total of the officers killed, wounded and missing to 1,598.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. — The German warship Geier, which has been undergoing repairs at Honolulu for several weeks, today was either interned or left port, according to an official here. The limit of stay was midnight last night.

WAS MAN OF MANY PARTS

Carl Hans Lody Recently Tried for Espionage Had Preference for Taking Pictures

Winnipeg, Nov. 9. — Carl Hans Lody, the alleged German spy, whose trial has been in progress in London was well known to a Winnipeg man, William McBride, M.A., managing director of the Metropolis Securities Limited. He expected to meet the German again in Winnipeg. In speaking of the man Mr. McBride said:

"In regard to Carl Hans Loyd, alias Charles A. Inglis, whose trial in London as a German spy was concluded yesterday I may state that in 1910 I was some seven months in his company during a trip around the world on a German boat, the Cleveland, of the Hamburg-American line. From San Francisco to Honolulu he sat at another table but as he seemed to have taken kindly to my wife and myself he got a transfer at Honolulu and sat beside us all the rest of the trip. He was a graduate of a German university and an officer in the German army, and spoke fluently German, French, Spanish, Italian and English as well, with hardly any accent.

Expert Photographer.

"He had a magnificent stateroom, and his own darkroom for developing photos. He was an expert photographer, and I spent many happy hours with him in his darkroom, watching him develop his pictures. When I saw his trend was fortifications in Japan, Hong Kong, India and British possessions and Egypt, I asked him why he made a specialty of such, to which he replied that as an officer and an engineer, his mind ran in that direction and he did it purely for amusement as a German gentleman. I thought him a man of affluence and cultured refinement seeking innocent delectation in his photographic fads.

Knew His Death.

"In talking one day of the death of a fellow passenger, he said, 'My death shall be short and sweet as I know I shall be shot.' When I asked him why he had this premonition, he said, 'Because I am such a daredevil.' He said 'You know I was nearly shot at Tokio when I was caught getting those photos of the fortifications and I escaped by the skin of my teeth at Bombay.'

"He was continually asking me about military matters in Canada, about our canal system, about whether the colonies were really loyal to the mother country, etc., but I never for a moment suspected his having any ulterior object other than a personal desire for general information. He was a splendid musician, had a beautifully trained voice, and was a general favorite on board. When I left him at Hamburg he informed me that he would be visiting Canada in a few years, and I was looking forward to a pleasant reunion in Winnipeg. I have no doubt now that he was then a paid spy of the German government and that this system of espionage had its ramification in almost every quarter of the globe."

Hudson Bay Strike Ends.

THE PAS, Man., Nov. 9.—It was announced that a telegram had been received from Assistant Chief Engineer Gordon, now in Winnipeg, to the effect that the striking engineers and firemen on the Hudson Bay Railway were to report for duty Monday morning.

Mr. Gordon left The Pas early last week for the purpose of endeavoring to adjust the differences existing between the contractors and the men interested.

BRITISH TROOPS HAVE FULFILLED THEIR TASK

German Bodies Are Piled High Around the Trenches Between Ypres and La Bassee Says Correspondent of Le Temps and Carnage Has Been Frightful—Thin Line of British Checked Rushes.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The war correspondent of Le Temps says:

"The British troops are fighting with magnificent heroism. Their vitally important mission is to hold the German hordes between Ypres and La Bassee. They have been in the trenches for several weeks, facing an enemy of overwhelmingly superior numbers, who attacks with savage fury.

"The carnage around the British trenches is frightful. Night and day the thin British line steadily faces the desperate German rushes, piling the German dead upon their breastworks.

"After one night attack a single British battalion accounted for 700 Germans, whose bodies were strewn a few yards from their trenches.

"The British losses also were terrible. I saw one Guards' battalion with a subaltern the sole remaining officer. Some of the cavalry regiments have lost 50 per cent. of their effectives during the last week's fighting. One regiment of Lancers sat calmly upon their horses near Messines beneath a withering shrapnel fire. The order to advance was not given until the stationary regiment was decimated. Then the remainder charged into Messines afoot, completely clearing the village.

"Three days ago a British battery surprised a German brigade in close formation and within a few minutes massacred 4,000 of them.

"Despite their frightful losses, it is not true that the German army is demoralized. The youths being brought into Belgium to reinforce the Germans fire badly, but go to their death bravely, and so long as the Kaiser is able to send such young soldiers against us the German attacks will continue violent."

Victory in The Congo

HAVRE, Nov. 9.—A report of the operations of the Belgians in the Congo, as published in The Courrier L'Armee Belge, says:

"Our troops have conducted themselves bravely in the colony of the Congo. A flying column has just taken Kissegnie, a fortified point on the bank of Lake Kivu. The troops in their assault on the fort inflicted heavy losses on the enemy.

"A German attempt to take Albertville, on the west shore of Lake Tanganyika, failed.

"A Belgian column from Katanga has entered British Rhodesia to aid the British forces from Abercorn in an operation directed against German East Africa."

REBELS ROUTED

Another Four Hundred in South Africa Captured

LONDON, Nov. 9.—In South Africa the rebels in the northern part of Cape Province, who have been a worry to the Government, have been completely routed, while those in the Transvaal, where another four hundred have been captured, are scattering.

In Orange Free State, however, several small commandos are showing activity, and have been looting towns and damaging railways.

TO PROTECT CABLE.

Anglo-Indian Force Occupies Port in Asiatic Turkey.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Admiralty announces the occupation of Fao, a port of Asiatic Turkey, at the mouth of the River Shat-el-Arab, in the Persian Gulf.

A military force from India, covered by the sloop Odin, landed with a naval detachment after the Turkish guns had been silenced, according to the announcement. Fao was seized in order to protect the cable to India. It is the terminus of the submarine cable.

There were no British casualties.

Saxony's Crown Prince Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 9. — Owing to a serious wound in the leg, received in action on the battlefield in France, Crown Prince George of Saxony has arrived at the royal castle at Dresden and will take no further part in the campaign, says a despatch from The Hague to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

CANADIANS IN LONDON

Members of Contingent See Metropolis From Taxicabs

LONDON, Nov. 9.—One of the unusual signs of the town just now is the large number of Canadian troops who have been brought to the city from their camp on Salisbury Plains, and shown the big city from the vantage point of taxicabs. The men seem to be plentifully supplied with money and have enjoyed their vacation hugely. New batches have been brought in every second day and London has more than welcomed the brothers from across the water.

This change in the regimen of camp life have proved a great boon to the men.

There is a prospect of a big parade through the streets of London when Britons will get a chance to size up their stalwart compatriots. Everybody is demanding this honor for the men and the Canadian colony is especially anxious to see it accomplished.

GORDONS' COLONEL KILLED.

Frederick Walter Kerr Is Among the List of British Dead.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A British casualty list dated Nov. 1 and issued here Saturday night, gives the names of 15 officers killed and 60 wounded.

Among the killed are Col. Frederick Walter Kerr, of the Gordon Highlanders, third son of the late Admiral Lord Frederick H. Kerr, and Sir Gilchrist Nevil Ogilvy, of the Scots Guards, who married a daughter of the Earl of Elgin.

In the wounded list occur the names of Lieut. Lord John Wodehouse, well-known as an international polo player; Capt. Sir Victor Audley Falconer Mackenzie, of the Scots' Guards, son-in-law of Viscount Knollys, private secretary to King George; Lieut. the Hon. H. E. H. Macdonald, of the Scots' Guards, son of Baron Macdonald; Lieut. the Hon. D. S. P. Howard, of the Third Hussars.

Deported Labor Men Return.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Durban, Natal, correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Co. says that the labor leaders who were deported to England after the Rand riots last January have returned in conformity with an amnesty decree, recently issued.

Dr. H. J. Poutsma, one of the deported, stated in behalf of his companions that all had come back unconditionally, but had promised not to embarrass the Government during the war. Their landing was not accompanied by any demonstration.

Germany can hardly run short of tin as it can easily smash up its army's into frying pans.

Russian Advances Swept Germans Out Of Strong Positions

tion has been received from the Russian general staff in Caucasia:

"Our troops on Nov. 6, after a fierce battle, seized the Turkish position at Koprukeui, in Turkish Armenia, 30 miles east of Erzerum, a naturally strong position and well fortified. The position covers the route to Erzerum.

"Our troops continue to pursue the defeated enemy."

Late advices from the front state that the Russians are assaulting the German forces at Sieradz, on the Warthe river, southeast of Kalisz and about 15 miles from the German border. This is the only fortified position in Russian Poland still in the hands of the Kaiser's armies.

Between Oct. 25 and Nov. 4, the Russians captured on their centre 274 officers, 18,500 troops, 3 howitzers, 40 guns, 28 rapid-firers and a vast quantity of ammunition and stores.

The roads in Russia are hardening with frost and armies can now be moved more quickly, although the Russians do not possess the strategic railways that the Germans do. Silesia, too, with better going for the horses, offers an excellent field for the use of cavalry, in which Russia has proven herself to be superior, both in numbers and efficiency, to the enemy. The Cossacks are regaining the reputation which they lost in Manchuria, and the raid they have already made in Silesia, it is expected, will be repeated many times.

Retreat Cut Off.

ROME, Nov. 9.—(Via London.)—The Tribuna's Petrograd correspondent telegraphs that the Russians have completely separated the German and Austrian armies, and the Austrian retreat on Cracow has been cut off. The forces of the dual monarchy are making for the Carpathians, short of food and ammunition.

The Vienna correspondent of The Giornale d'Italia says that Vienna newspapers admit a grave defeat on the San. One hundred thousand wounded have been brought back from the front in the last ten days.

TWO FORTS DESTROYED

British Ships Ruin Strongholds in the Dardanelles

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. at Athens says:

"Two British destroyers bombarded the telegraph stations at Sarmousak and Ayasmat. The Turks sank a Greek steamer that was flying the British flag at Aivali.

"The Greek inhabitants of Smyrna are fleeing panic-stricken. A British destroyer went to Aivali to embark the British consul, but the Turks refused to permit this.

"It is stated that Forts Sedie Bahr and Kum Kaleh, in the Dardanelles, have been completely destroyed by the bombardment. The Turks, under the direction of German officers, are hastily fortifying Aivali."

Aivali is midway between Smyrna and the Dardanelles.

Bombarded Concealed Troops.

ATHENS, Nov. 9. — A British squadron cruising along the littoral of Asia Minor bombarded concealed Turkish troops on the east.

A telegraph station near Smyrna was destroyed.

A British battleship has gone to Aivali to seek the Brirtish consul, in consequence of the attitude of Turkish authorities toward British subjects.

Turks have mined the waters outside of Port of Skiro, with a view to isolating the town.

A German Headquarters?

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Lord Northcliffe's Evening News says:

"We are receiving complaints from Englishmen in New York as to the attitude of the Ritz Carlton Hotel there as the centre of anti-British propaganda in the United States. We shall be glad to receive in confidence information as to the financing and personnel of the Ritz Carlton group, both in Great Britain and the United States. We already have much information in our possession."

Fall of Tsingtau Rouses Berlin Paper Against Japan.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 9.—(Via London.)—The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, commenting on the German defeat at Tsingtau, says:

"Germans will never forget the heroic fighting at Kiaochau and those who defended the colony. Never shall we forget the brutal violence of the yellow robbers nor England who instigated them. We know that we cannot settle our account with Japan at present; for years she will enjoy her booty. Our mills will grind slowly, but even if years should pass before the right moment comes at last, then a shout of joy will respond through Germany, 'Woe to you, Nippon!'"

DISTRIBUTION OF GRAINS AND POTATOES FREE

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3-lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter, only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the superintendent of the nearest branch experimental farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE,
Director Dom. Exp. Farms.

If the cheering crowds in Berlin think they have the British Navy licked, we will, as a special favor, give them one more guess.

Here's a Way to Save Doctor Bills

Physicians Give Free Advice by Which Parents May Profit

It was an association of gentlemen, professionally physicians and chemists, all of whom were born in the drug trade, so to speak, and who have been connected with it all their lives, who first gave to the world Castoria, which as every one knows is a pleasant and effective remedy for the ailments of infants and children. It has always been recognized as a meritorious preparation, and its reward has been the greatest popularity ever enjoyed by any remedy ever put upon the market; attained, not by flambuoyant advertising appeals to ignorance or vulgar prejudice, and by inherent merit. All physicians recommend it, and many very many, prescribe it.

Many parents call in the family physician. Many other parents take advantage of what the physician told them when he was first called in consultation. All good family physicians say: "Give the children Castoria." Healthy parents know this remedy of old, for they took it themselves as children. It was more than thirty years ago that Castoria made a place for itself in the household. It bore the signature of Charles H. Fletcher then, as it does today. The signature is its guarantee, which is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., is the father of one of these much-read-about families. Here is what he says:

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost evey home."

Charles H. Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians who have the same esteem for Castoria that Dr. McCrann has. Not only do these physicians say they use Castoria in their own families, but they prescribe it for their patients. First of all it is a vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and regulates the stomach and bowels. After eating comes sleeping, and Castoria looks out for that too. It allays feverishness and prevents loss of sleep, and this absolutely without the use of opium, morphine or other baneful narcotic.

Medical Journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines. Hall's Journal of Health, however, says "Our duty is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health by regulating the system, not by stupefying it, and our readers are entitled to the information."

A HANDSOME ENTRANCE TO CRESSMAN'S

Arcade Leads to the Gents Furnishing and the Main Store

Isn't this magnificent? A big improvement. Makes a world of difference to the appearance of the block. Getting more big-city-like every day. These are but a few of the commendations uttered by Saturday night shoppers when viewing the new arcade entrance to Cressman's store. It was the first opportunity given the citizens to see the new entrance with the advantage of excellent illumination, and after standing in the vicinity and suffering the joltings of the crowd for three or four minutes a Review scribe came to the conclusion that if the Cressman Co. had made the extensive alterations with the aim of giving their store a more attractive appearance, the expenditure incurred was fully justified.

When it was made known that the Cressman Co. had taken over the store formerly occupied by Schneider Bros., it was also announced that the gent's furnishing department would be transferred to those quarters and the former gent's furnishing department built into an arcade. The work is now completed and is a credit to the Cressman Co. and to R. Jones and his efficient staff of men who executed the work.

On each side of the entrance are display windows running the full length of the arcade. The background of the windows is of crotch veneer which had to be secured from New York, while the flooring and the material used in the dome is quarter cut oak. In all fifty tungsten lamps are utilized in lighting the windows. At the rear of the arcade there are two entrances, one to the gent's furnishing department and the other to the main store. Between these entrances is a large show case, made of similar material as the windows along the sides of the arcade.

On Saturday evening the manner in which these windows were dressed spoke very highly for the efficiency of Mr. Newton, the window dresser. The goods presented were silks, dresses, children's wear and millinery accessories.

The total window space of the Cressman Co.'s store is now 180 feet. The largest window is immediately south of the new entrance and is 34 feet long. Since embracing the store of Schneider Bros. the size of Cressman's store is seventy-five feet by one hundred feet. It includes four floors and a basement. This makes it the largest store in Eastern Ontario. No other store in Ontario of its size has so much window space.

FRENCH STATEMENT FOR SUNDAY

PARIS, Nov. 9. — Sunday afternoon's official statement says:

"Yesterday between the North Sea and the Lys the fighting was less violent. Some attacks of the enemy were repulsed in the direction of Dixmude and northeast of Ypres. On almost all the front we took the offensive, and advanced in the region north of Messines. In the neighborhood of Armentieres British troops progressed slightly. Between La Bassee and Arras the attacks of the enemy were repulsed. From Arras to Soissons nothing worthy of note took place.

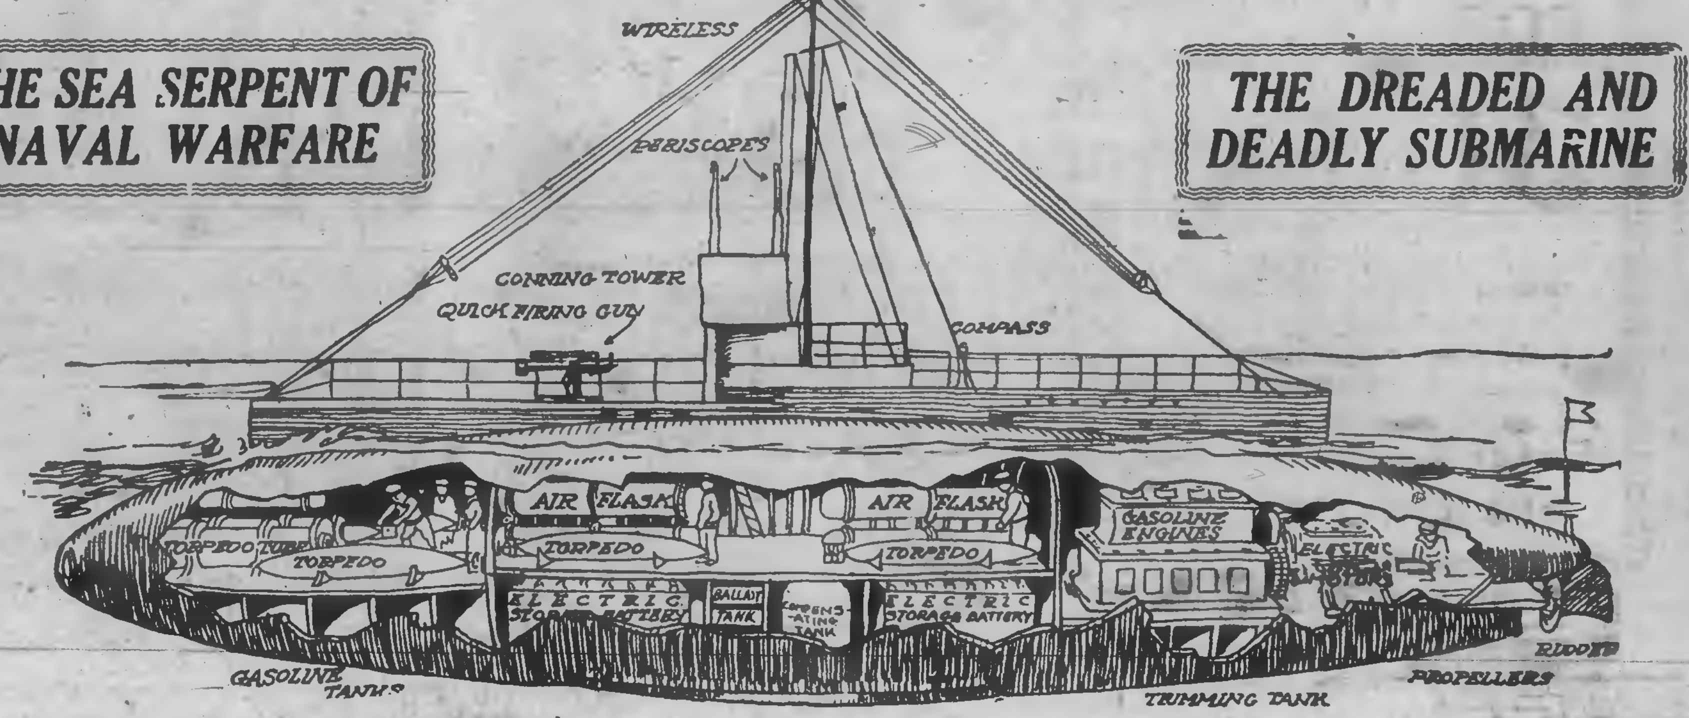
THE SEA SERPENT OF NAVAL WARFARE

THE DREADED AND DEADLY SUBMARINE



A side elevation and interior view of the modern submarine, equipped with everything except conveniences for the crew. The submarine, which has accomplished most of the naval destruction of the present war, is distinctly a war machine, and no crew's quarters are provided. The officers and men sleep wherever they can find the space, and privacy is denied all, no matter of what rank. Naturally the most modern portion of the equipment is the wireless, which permits the craft to communicate with other warships, and, discovering the position of the enemy, proceed deep below the surface under the hulls of the foeman's ship, there to discharge a torpedo and send the craft and crew to doom. The submarines are driven by gasoline engines, which give them a cruising radius of 2,000 miles, permitting a trip of 4,000 miles. The larger British craft each carry a crew of 30 men, and have from four to six torpedo tubes. A quick-firing and disappearing gun mounted forward protects the boat from other submarines or like small craft until it can vanish beneath the surface. The twin periscopes, shown above the conning tower, enable the officers to scan the surface for hostile ships when proceding partially submerged and indistinguishable to the enemy.

REFUSED TO PAY AMOUNT OF PHYSICIAN'S FEE

Father of Patient With Appendicitis Thought Bill of $158 Excessive

WOULD PAY $100

The case of Dr. McNulty vs. John O'Leary, for the sum of $58.00 alleged to be due on an account, came before His Honour Judge Huycke at the jury sitting of the Division Court today. The jury was composed of Geoffrey O'Brien, Robt. Morrison, Stanley Rightmyer, R. S. Parks, and Chas. Thorpe. D. O'Connell appeared for the plaintiff and V. J. McElderry for the defendant.

Mr. O'Connell, when acquainting the bench and jury with the facts of the case, stated that in June last a daughter of John O'Leary, the defendant, took ill. Dr. McNulty, when summoned, found the child to be suffering from appendicitis. He told the parents of the child that prompt attention was necessary, and then sent for the ambulance. The child was removed to the hospital, where the operation was performed. Following the operation he attended the child for twenty-five days.

Mr. O'Leary asked for Dr. McNulty's bill, and when be was informde that the cost would be $158, the defendant exclaimed that "he'd rather allow the child to die than pay that much." A short time following the conversation, O'Leary sent a cheque for $100 to Dr. McNulty, and said that was all he intended to pay. Dr. McNulty was therefore suing for the rest of the account, amounting to $58.

Dr. McNulty, when called to the stated that he had had considerable experience both as a physician and surgeon. He remembered being called to O'Leary's home, and he found the child of Mr. O'Leary very ill with appendicitis.

Condition Was Critical.

The illness had been suffered to continue for six or seven days before he was called, hence the child's condition was very critical. He assured the parents that an operation only could save her life. When he performed the operation he found the case to be what is known as a septic case, that is, when puss has formed around the appendix. It was necessary to insert a tube after the operation and drain off the puss. This drainage process calls for considerable attention, which he gave to the O'Leary child.

His usual charge for operating for appendicitis is $150. The extra $8 in this case was for the trip to the country. Mr. O'Leary called at his office and raised an objection to being charged $158, and a short time afterwards sent him a letter enclosing a cheque for $100. The letter stated that that was all he intended to pay.

On being questioned by Mr. McElderry, Dr. McNulty wouldn't admit calling O'Leary a "Jew" when the latter disputed the amount of the bill. He denied asserting that he could charge $1000 if he desired.

Evidence by Dr. McNulty as to his qualifications led to the question by Counsel McElderry: "Do you swear on your oath that graduates of Toronto University are more efficient than graduates of McGill?" The question remained unanswered, and His Honour Judge Huycke remarked that it was treading on dangerous ground. His Honour is a graduate from the Montreal institution.

A Fair Fee.

Dr. Halliday, when called to the stand, gave testimony of Dr. McNulty's ability. He also stated that in his opinion Dr. McNulty's fee in the O'Leary case was a fair one.

Dr. Cameron gave evidence to the effect that he had been practising in Peterboro since 1908, and knows Dr. McNulty as an efficient surgeon. To his mind, Dr. McNulty's fee was of the usual amount.

John O'Leary, defendant in the case, swore that Dr. McNulty called him a "Jew" during the discussion of the bill in the doctor's office.

To Mr. O'Connell he stated that the child in question was 11 years of age, and was the first one of his family to be ill with appendicitis.

Before he went to the doctor's office he made up his mind not to pay more than $100. The bill for $158 shocked him, and in the heat of his anger he exclaimed that he would have permitted the child to die in preference to paying the account. It was after he had made use of that exclamation that Dr. McNulty had called him a "Jew."

PLENTY OF DEER IN HALIBURTON

Do not Confine Themselves so Much to the Runways

Mr. Wm. Robertson, who resides northwest of town, returned home today from the north country after a week spent in the wilds of Haliburton county, chasing the deer and other game common to that district.

Mr. Robertson was one of a party of thirteen hunters who go north each year to the same territory to pursue their usual fall sport. Their camp was situated fourteen miles northwest of Haliburton, and the party is known as the Crooked Lake Hunting Club, with Mr. W. Roberts holding the office of captain.

Mr. Robertson reports the deer as being numerous, fat, and of good size, but have changed their tactics this year, and do not confine themselves so much to the runways as they previously did. He reports moose, deer, bears and wolves as being plentiful. His party succeeded in shooting seven deer and three large bears. The weather was favorable and the outing was enjoyed by all. The balance of the men will return next week. The hunters used bounds to chase up the deer. The camp was seventy miles north of Lindsay. — Lindsay Warder.

BRITAIN DOMINATES SEA

German Cruisers Must Needs be Wary to Escape Capture

The German cruiser which tries to do commerce destroying to-day has a difficult task. The seas swarm with British cruisers; many of them are slower than the very fast German ships but most of them are larger and carry heavier guns. They are carefully placed so that wherever, on the Atlantic at least, the German cruiser goes, she is likely to find waiting for her a ship too heavy to fight. Meanwhile, she is burning her coal. Hanging over her is the menace of the wireless, that the ship long before she is taken, for the chase will take time, will have given notice to every British cruiser within a thousand miles of the German's whereabouts, and a ring of enemies will be converging upon the corsair before she has clutched her prey.

DUST FROM FLOOR RUGS

It Carries Germs Far and Wide—Some Common Sense Suggestions

When a woman beats her rugs on her porch, the filth and disease goes right into the house.

She has no intention of spattering germs around promiscuously, and she might be offended if her neighbor suggested that there were any in her rugs. It is for each person to spare a thought for others without the unpleasantness of being told to do it which will add to the world's health and happiness. Rug dust, injurious, disease-breeding rug dust, carrying consumption and colds, a woman will throw into her own and her neighbor's home without a second thought. In some cities there are ordinances providing that "no mat, carpet or cloth shall be shaken or beaten in any street or public place."

This may seem absurd to many, and unnecessary to others. It is neither. But several hundred inspectors and a dozen laws cannot successfully curb nuisance-makers who only work a few minutes a day, and then on the porches of their own homes. The only remedy is public sentiment and reasonable thought for others. It is a well known fact that janitors have more than their share of consumption. There is every reason to believe men making rug-beating their business fall a prey to disease. Watch one in a vacant lot. See the swirl of dust in which his head is enveloped.

All the more reasn, then, why the everyday woman in the everyday home take the time and trouble to beat her rugs in some place where the dust will not have a chance to float into her neighbor's rooms or her own rooms, and endanger the health of all the inmates. There are many pneumatic cleaners on the market now which may be purchased at reasonable cost.

PROSPECTOR IS HOME TO ENLIST

War Was Nine Weeks Old Before News Reached Him

Belleville, Nov. 9. — Among the volunteers recruited here since the departure of those from the 15th Regiment for Kingston with the second contingent is Frank Eber Egan, son of Rev. J. Egan, of this city. Mr. Egan is a telegrapher by profession and has been latterly prospecting in the Peace River country. He was several hundred miles north of Peace River when the war broke out, and it was five weeks after its declaration that news of the European conflict reached that out-of-the-way section of Canada. Mr. Egan's trip home occupied weeks, eight days of which were spent in a boat on the river. He is in the city awaiting orders to go to Kingston to drill with the second contingent. He has a brother-in-law, Mr. Elmer Luck, M. A., a graduate of the University of Toronto, who has been studying at Leipzig, Germany, and is now there unable to make his way out of the country. With Mr. Luck are his two little daughters.

OBITUARY

MRS. WALTER PATERSON.

Sunday afternoon a telegram was received by relatives in the city announcing the death of Mrs. Euphemia Paterson, widow of the late Walter Paterson. The deceased passed away at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. R. B. Williamson, of Milwaukee, in the presence of her two daughters and near relatives.

The late Mrs. Paterson, after the death of her husband, had made her home with her son-in-law, Mr. R. B. Williamson, first in Cincinnati, and later in Milwaukee, where she enjoyed the companionship of her two remaining daughters, Mrs. William I. Lane and Mrs. Robert B. Williamson. Here she lived a quiet and happy life, sharing her leisure moments in acts of beneficence and church work.

Mrs. Paterson was a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church. Her friends in St. Paul's Church here will remember her as one who was always identified in the various schemes of the church. Her home was a hospitable one, and no needy seeker ever called at her door in vain.

Besides her two daughters, she is survived by her son, James Paterson, of Toronto, and four brothers and two sisters: Robert Menzies, of Detroit, James Menzies, of Montreal, and Donald and William Menzies, and Catherine and Jean Menzies, of this city.

She was in the 72nd year of her age.

The remains will arrive in Peterboro for interment in the Little Lake Cemetery on Tuesday, and the funeral will take place from the residence of W. Menzies, 391 Rabidge street, at 3 o'clock p.m.

Dr. Cleaver at George Street

Big congregations greeted Rev. Dr. Cleaver, of Toronto, in George Street Methodist Church yesterday.

His morning address was of a missionary character and contained a strong appeal for the dissemination of the Gospel to those parts where it has not yet reached. His evening discourse was a masterly comparison of the river of Life, spoken of in Ezekiel's prophecy, with the river of Christianity, that is broadening and swelling with each of the thousand years of the four mentioned by Ezekiel. Two thousand years had rolled by, said Dr. Cleaver, and the world was now but knee-deep in Christianity. Before the allotted four, predicted by Ezekiel, had passed, the speaker was confident that the news of salvation would have reached all ends of the earth.

Dr. Cleaver is to deliver a lecture on Tuesday on "Jean Valjean," Hugo's masterpiece.

Serious Charge In Police Court

Magistrate Dumble was greeted with a large calendar this moring.

Wm. Lavery who became unruly in the Grand Hotel and broke a window in the melee, paid $5.25 for his fun.

George Scott was charged with seducing a girl, under 14 years of age. He was remanded until Wednesday. He was allowed out on bail of $4,000.

Joseph Fallon and Everett Cassels were remanded until tomorrow on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Wm. McMaster, who was called three times, and failed to make an appearance, will pay $5.75 for his jollification.

Jas. Robertson's case was enlarged till tomorrow. He failed to appear.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS AT ST. ANDREW'S

At St. Andrew's Church yesterday afternoon a men's Bible class was organized, with Mr. G. W. Gilman as leader. The men were served with refreshments, and quite a number remained for the evening service.

It is the intention to hold a similar meeting every two weeks. The regular session will be held on Sunday afternoons.

Moonshiners in the Kentucky-Tennessee Mountains

(By HAROLD CARTER.)

John Vincent, federal revenue officer acting in Kentucky, pulled in his mare and coolly surveyed the heights in front of him. On every side arose precipitous mountains, clothed with their perennial garb of spruce and pine. The trail, which wound sluggishly through the defile, disappeared into the heart of the forest, to reappear, a sinuous, winding ribbon, along the flank of the crest. There was no sign of human habitation in that rugged and abandoned land.

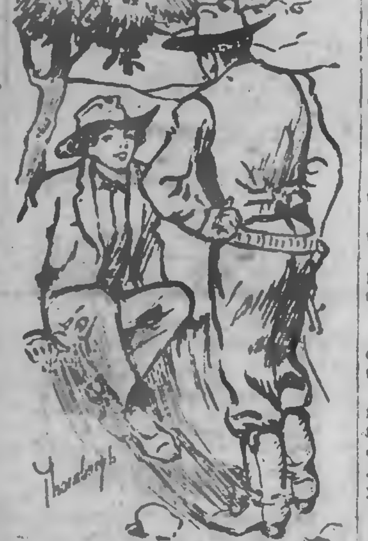
Yet somewhere on Bear mountain was the cabin of the Norman men, "moonshiners" and outlaws. And for the arrest of Jim Norman, the youngest, Vincent held a warrant. He had set forth to bring him into Kempville. Others had held warrants too; but Vincent, newly appointed to his post, was more reckless than they, and he had dared to ride alone into the heart of the Norman stronghold.

He reined in suddenly, for his quick eyes had caught a glimmering flash from the peak in front of him. It might have been the sun glancing on some hidden pool. But it looked more like light reflected from a rifle barrel.

After a moment's hesitation he urged his mare into a canter and plunged into the undergrowth. For the next half mile he was safe, until he emerged upon the mountain slopes. And when at last he came into the sunlight again he tethered his beast to a sapling and, drawing his revolver, began to ascend the peak cautiously, keeping out of the range of the hidden marksman of whose existence he was tolerably sure.

He crouched beside the trail, plunged into the scrub pine, emerging, lost again, until at length he saw the bare acclivity of Bear mountain in front of him. And near the summit was a small log cabin, set in the midst of a tiny patch of garden ground. This was the place of which he was in search.

His weapon in his hand, Vincent leaped forward, scaled the boulders on the summit, and appeared before the door. Upon the threshold, a rifle in his hands, stood a young man. His back was turned and he was attempting to eject a stuck cartridge.



"I Reckon It's Jim You're After."

"Hands up!" yelled Vincent.

The man started, stared at him for an instant, and then, with a sudden dash, leaped across the cabin, gained the rear entrance, and was away and running like a deer. Vincent followed him. He was certain that this was Jim Norman, whose appearance had been particularly impressed upon him by his superior officer when he started on his mission.

"Looks like his sister," he said. "You've seen that Norman girl down at the store? Her image! Don't go arresting the girl instead of him," he laughed.

Jim Norman had only recently returned from parts unknown, to resume his "moonshining" operations, which had been broken up by the authorities two years before. The rest of the gang was hiding somewhere across the Tennessee boundary; Jim alone had ventured back to the cabin on Bear mountain.

His revolver in his hand, the young officer followed the fugitive. But, though in the pink of condition, he could not lessen the distance between himself and the young mountaineer. His hope, however, was in his superior staying powers.

But just where the crest dipped down into the valley below the fugitive flung himself panting upon the ground, and, as Vincent ran forward, held up a hand and called:

"Stop! You can't come nearer!"

Vincent did stop, from sheer surprise. For this voice was a distinct and clear woman's voice and, as he looked he saw a strand of long, silken dark hair floating freely from below the old slouch hat.

"Miss Lily!" he gasped.

The girl sat up and laughed. "Yes, I'm Miss Lily," she said. "I reckon it's Jim you're after."

"Where is Jim?" he demanded savagely, standing over her. He had often seen her in Kempville, this dark-haired and blue-eyed mountain girl, of that perfection of type which flourishes, as in its native soil, in the Kentucky hills. The sight of her, flushed with her race, her eyes alight with triumph, set his heart furiously beating, and, mingled with this new emotion, was one of anger and shame at having been outwitted.

"Jim?" she drawled. "Oh, Jim was in the woodshed when you came up. I reckon you won't find him now, though. Jim's a swift runner. I reckon Jim's swifter than me, and you couldn't catch me," she mocked.

"Then—then—" he stammered.

"Now, Mr. Vincent," said the girl soothingly, "if it hadn't been for me you'd never have reached Bear mountain. Jim had a bead on you all along the trail. You've got me to thank for saving your life by this here change of parts."

"Well, I've got you, anyway," said Vincent sullenly.

"I reckon not," she drawled.

"Why not?"

"Because," she answered, "this is Tennessee, and I reckon your territory's Kentucky."

Vincent was dumbfounded. He had forgotten the warning, carefully conveyed, that the Norman cabin was designedly perched upon the border line, and that therefore he must take his captive within the cabin itself.

"You stop right where you are," said Lily. "If you lay a finger on me I'll tell the governor of Tennessee."

A light of amusement flickered in Vincent's eyes. Deliberately he stretched out his hand, found the cool, slender fingers of the girl, and held them.

"I guess the law doesn't say anything against amicable visiting between the states, does it?" he asked.

"Well," she admitted, "if you come that way, I—I guess it doesn't."

Vincent stepped forward and planted both feet firmly upon Tennessee soil.

"Nor about—this?" he asked.

And, placing his arm round her, he drew her to him and kissed her upon the lips.

"Lily," he said, "this isn't love at first sight, for I've loved you since I first saw you in Kempville. But it comes mighty near, and if I can't get Jim—why, I reckon I'm going to get you some day."

CHRONICLE OF THE SINNER

Being the Story of a Man Mean Enough to Deceive Even His Trusting Wife.

At two o'clock in the morning William Wilberforce succeeded after many efforts in getting his key to serve the purpose for which it had been made. Then he stumbled into the hall and fell over an upturned corner of a rug. This awakened Mrs. Wilberforce, who switched on the electric light.

When she got downstairs her husband was sitting up and staring vacantly at a beautiful picture of Queen Louise of Prussia.

"Why, William!" exclaimed his wife, "what has happened? Where are your glasses? How did you get that cut on your nose? Why are your clothes all covered with mud?"

Mr. Wilberforce put his hands up to his face and sobbed.

"Dearest," Mrs. Wilberforce cried, kneeling beside him, "tell me what is the matter."

"I can't 'm dear," he replied, "it was awful! Horrible!"

"O, William! Is it possible that you have been—"

"No, no, it ain't posshible," he interrupted. "Wash asshaulted by robbersh. Tha'sh wha' happened."

"Darling! Are you badly hurt? Did they rob you of everything?"

"No, 'm only stunned, that's all—only stunned. I licked 'm both. They didn't get my watch, 'n' they didn' get my money. I'm all ri'—jush stunned, thash all.

"Shan't I phone for the doctor, dear?"

"No, 'm a'l ri'. Jush a little stunned—tha'sh all."

Then, believing him, she helped him upstairs and assisted him to get into bed.

Yet there are those who refuse to admit that simple faith is better than Norman blood.—Chicago Record Herald.

If the greatly annoyed Kaiser pronounces Potsdam with the accent on the last syllable it would only be consistent for him to pronounce Heligoland with the accent on the first.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Predictions that domestic receipts of wheat next week would show a decided falling off, helped today to give quotations a lift. As a result the market closed steady at 1-4c to 5-8c above last night. Corn wound up with a net gain of 1-8c to 1-4c, and oats of ¼c to 5-8c. In provisions, the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 37½c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—The wheat market opened ¼c to ⅝c higher, oats ⅛c to ⅜c up and flax made a sharp advance of 2¼c to 3⅛c. One prominent firm in the export trade stated that all that they had on offer for export over night was accepted, which indicates the demand is still unsatisfied. Trading in futures was fair, and despite fairly heavy selling operations prices were strong generally. November takes the lead in strength, being 1⅝c higher. The advance which occurred at the close was due to frosts in the Argentine, wheat closing 1⅛c to 5⅛c higher, oats ⅜c to ½c, and flax ⅝c to ⅞c higher.

The cash situation was vastly improved today, offerings of all grains were good and trading active in all lines. Exporters and millers were buying fairly heavily of cash wheat.

The total number of cars inspected Friday were 378, as against 1497 last year, and in sight were 360.

Deliveries thru the clearing houses were: Wheat, 16,000 bushels; oats, 2000 bushels, and flax, 7000 bushels.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—The demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today was good, but with the limited quantity of ocean grain room available from here and other ports the volume of business was steady, and sales of a few loads were made. The spot demand for coarse grains continues rather quiet owing to the fact that buyers seem to be fairly well supplied for the present, but the tone of the market is firm. Demand for flour for both export and local account was quiet. Trade in millfeed is more active and the undertone to the market is firmer. Butter unchanged. Receipts for the week 4278 packages, as compared with 5160 for the same week last year. Cheese steady. Receipts 31,706 boxes, as against 34,962 for the same week a year ago. Eggs 1c per dozen higher. Receipts for the week 1318 cases, against 3179 for the same week last year.

Stocks: Wheat, 4,449,214; corn, 26,828; oats, 1,189,302; barley, 99,300; flax, 83,496; flour, 88,073 sacks.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.18⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.14⅝ to $1.17⅝; No. 2 do., $1.11⅝ to $1.15⅝; December, $1.14⅝.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 69c to 70c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 46c to 46½c.

Bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Nov. 7.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.19⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.18⅝; No. 2 do., $1.14⅝; December, $1.16⅝ to $1.13⅝.

CHEESE MARKETS.

VICTORIAVILLE, Que., Nov. 7.—On the cheese board here today, 1000 boxes were sold at 14c.

COWANSVILLE, Nov. 8.—On the dairy board here Saturday eight factories offered 291 packages of butter. All were sold at 29¾c.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Seven factories offered 1220 boxes of cheese, and 120 boxes sold at 14 13-16c. Bidding ranged from 14c to 14 13-16c.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 8.—The offerings Saturday were 1150 boxes white cheese, and sales 300 at 14¾c. Balance was refused at 14 11-16c.

Big Earthquake at Messina.

MESSINA, Nov. 9.—(Via Rome.)—A strong earthquake shock, which was felt in this vicinity on Saturday, has caused considerable alarm among the populace, especially as following so closely the fresh activity of Mount Vesuvius. Fears are entertained that the new shock is but the forerunner of another period of earthquakes. According to the registrations at the observatory, the centre of the earthquake was about 77 miles distant from Messina.

JAPANESE ARE WELL PLEASED

Fall of Tsing Tau is Occasion for Great Celebrations

TOKIO, Nov. 9. — Emperor Yoshihito and Empress Sadako have sent messages of appreciation to the forces of the allies that participated in the operations resulting in the fall of Tsingtau, the seat of government of Kiaochau, the German-leased possession in China.

To the Japanese his Majesty expressed gratitude for the faithful discharge of their duties by the officers and men of the army and navy.

The following was sent by the Emperor to the British forces:

"The Emperor deeply appreciates the brilliant deeds of the British army and navy which, co-operating with the Japanese, fought bravely and achieved the object of the war."

The Empress expressed similar sentiments in two messages.

The formalities of the surrender of Tsingtau are described in an official statement issued yesterday, and in which it is announced that the Germans have capitulated unconditionally.

Japan is still celebrating the fall of Tsingtau. Extraordinary enthusiasm is manifested throughout the empire. In every city there are lantern processions and merriment nightly. Every house supports a flag. In Tokio, cheering crowds surrounded the high officers of the army and navy and the diplomatic representatives of the allies. The popularity of the Anglo-Japanese alliance is shown by the recognition everywhere of Great Britain's share in the victory. Imperial edicts congratulate the British as well as the Japanese warriors.

Among the rumors such as are always set afloat at a time like this is one that Governor Meyer Waldeck of Kiaochau, was mortally wounded and committed suicide. This gained some credence despite the fact that it was officially announced that the German governor conducted the negotiations for the surrender of the town.

It is also reported that the garrisons of the coast forts fought up to the last minute and then tried to escape by a train, firing their small arms as they fled. Many, it is said, did escape across the bay in junks and are now being pursued.

PROFESSOR LOSES LIFE

Dr. Mines of McGill is Victim of Experiment on Himself

MONTREAL, Nov. 9—G. R. Mines, professor of physiology at McGill University, met death mysteriously and tragically Saturday evening in his laboratory at McGill University. Just what caused his death is not known, but Principal Peterson believes Prof. Mines, in the course of experiments, upon himself in his chosen branch of physiology, dealing chiefly with the phenomena of the heart action and respiration, probably lost his life through the apparatus which was attached to his body getting out of order in some unknown manner.

Prof. Mines had been in the laboratory all afternoon, working on his experiments, and his prostrate body was discovered by the janitor shortly after six o'clock. The broken mechanism was still attached over the professor's heart. He left a widow and two children.

Dr. D. D. McTaggart has issued a certificate of accidental death.

Prof. Mines was 29 years of age. He was a Cambridge University professor, and came to Montreal from Toronto University, where he was a colleague of Prof. Birdie.

Suicide of Soldier.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 9.—While despondent, John Donnaghue, of Ottawa, a volunteer for overseas service, jumped into the St. Lawrence river Saturday afternoon and was drowned. He enlisted with the Governor-General's Foot Guards and arrived in the city on Tuesday last. The body was recovered shortly afterwards. He has a brother serving with the United States army.

Kaiser Is Worried.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Rome says:—

"German advices received here say that Emperor William, much affected by the Russian victories, has held a council of war, which was attended by Gen. Von Hindenburg, the Duke of Wurtemberg and the Austrian Chief of Staff, Field Marshal Baron Conrad Von Hoetzendorff, to decide on a further plan of campaign."

Treasury of Turkey Empty.

LONDON, Nov. 9. — According to private information received here from Constantinople, says The Morning Post's Berne correspondent, "the Turkish treasury is empty and an economic crisis threatens the country. The Turkish customs receipts for August were only $40,000, against $350,000 last year during the same period. The Government employes have received no salaries for several months. The money advanced by Germany already has been exhausted."

RECLAIMING LAND NEAR VANCOUVER

One of the most systematic and probably the largest reclamation scheme ever carried out in British Columbia is now nearing completion at Pitt Meadows in the Fraser Valley. Six thousand acres of rich alluvial land, formerly of little value for agriculture, are affected. The improvements inaugurated, occupying a large force of men for many months, have entailed the expenditure of approximately $200,000. With the Vancouver market only twenty miles away and accessible over good roads, the reclaimed land has a splendid situation. It will be give over principally to market gardening and dairying.

Fronting on the Pitt river just below the point where it leaves Pitt Lake, the reclaimed area was waste land until men, practical but visionary, saw the feasibility of improving it. Mr. W. A. Rannie was the moving spirit of the syndicate of capitalists (among whom were some of the best known men in Vancouver) which secured the tract from the Dominion Government. One of the clauses of the agreement was that a certain amount of reclamation work must be carried out within a given time. The syndicate employed Mr. W. H. Burwell, of Vancouver, as engineer.

Mr. Burwell's plans included both dyking and drainage the former necessitated by the tides, which flowed over the land during several months of the year, and the latter by the fact of the almost perfect level of the land. A syke twelve miles in length was constructed. This was ten feet in height and about six feet wide at the top. The cost of this, with flood gates, key ditch and pumping station, was over $100,000.

Believing that the large initial outlay would be justified, the contractors for the drainage work brought into the province a large ditching machine costing $15,000, the first of its kind to be used in the Pacific Northwest. It digs a ditch nine feet wide at top and five feet deep, at the rate of six lineal feet per minute.

There was forty miles of ditch for this modern giant to excavate. Along east and west lines the canals were placed every quarter mile, and on north and south lines, every mile. In addition, ditches were dug along all the road allowances, the material thrown up being used for the road embankment. The establishment of good roads, consequently, will only entail rolling and the application of surfacing gravel.

The reclaimed tract has a clay subsoil with a covering of from eighteen inches to two feet of rich alluvial deposit. In production it is expected to equal other bottom lands in the Fraser Valley.

The era of systematic dyking and draining is beginning in British Columbia. Down in Richmond municipality at the mouth of the Fraser they are considering a scheme for dyking and draining several thousand acres, now non-productive, at the east end of Lulu Island near New Westminster. The area is within eight miles of Vancouver, and if the plan is successful the land affected will rise enormously in value. The lands already dyked in the Fraser are among the most productive in British Columbia. Delta municipality alone produces annually foodstuffs worth over $1,000,000.

Pulp Men Prosper.

A review of conditions existing since the outbreak of war, made by a prominent New York banker, contains a statement that Canada has been affected very largely in the same degree as has the United States as far as a halting of various industries is concerned, but that the Dominion has suffered more in proportion than has the United States in financial affairs because of its actual participation in the war. The opinion is expressed in this article that Canada will derive nearly as great ultimate advantages as those gained by this country after the end of the war.

The news print paper industry of Canada is in thriving condition as a result of inordinate demand and high prices for this product. Next to sugar and tin, the first great effect of the war was on news paper. The supply in Europe is far below the needs of users and so great demand for paper falls on the North American continent. The United States cannot supply its own needs, and is furthermore cut off from certain supplies which formerly came from Europe, so that to Canada, the world's paper users are now turning for supplies of certain grades, mostly for news print, and bidders for new lots are constantly working the price higher. The high price of paper has already seriously affected newspapers and magazines in the United States.

It costs $6,000 to fire one of the big German seige guns. The Kaiser has the price to fire them, but is too poor to feed the starving Belgians.

WAS PROUD OF HIS NEW CLOTHES

A town in Rhodesia is not generally a town, declares Mrs. M. L. Woods in "Pastels Under the Southern Cross." A few scattered shops, a broad road deep in red dust, down which a sudden miscellaneous herd of blacks occasionally pours, constitute a town. Of these natives, Mrs. Woods gives the following description:

They are collected from all parts of Rhodesia, from Portuguese territory, even from Nyasaland. Dressed in anything and everything, they come pell-mell, grinning and chattering, some like young colts bounding into the air as they go. These happy fellows are probably rejoicing because they are being sent to some mine where certain of their friends and relations are already working.

This is the native as he appears entering on his term of service at the mines. I once saw a group of black men who had completed their term of service and were on their way home. They were serious, dignified, conscious of clean and complete costumes, consisting of shirt and trousers and a hard straw hat. Each had his neat bundle and his gaily painted wooden box.

We were once appreciative witnesses of the home-coming of such a miner at a wayside station. A party of relatives and friends had come from the kraal to meet the returning one, all innocent in their nakedness and rags. The plutocrat surveyed them with a scandalized eye; coldly he waved their salutations and endearments, obviously too shocked and pained to appreciate them. Then he withdrew from the platform to the foot of a neighboring tree, and beckoned his bewildered friends to approach. In a few minutes, before the eyes of the passengers in the train, he had clothed his whole party with decency, and surely, in their eyes with splendor. Then, and only then, did he condescend to return their greetings; and, exceedingly joyful, all marched off together in the direction of their kraal.

Nine Men-o'-War Taken.

LONDON, Nov. 9. — According to The Westminster Gazette there are in the port of Tsingtau nine men-o'-war, including a German cruiser, four German gunboats, three German destroyers and an Austro-Hungarian cruiser, in addition to five German merchantmen, two of which were naval transports.

There are also one or two prizes, including the Russian volunteer steamer, which was captured by the Emden on Aug. 4, directly after the declaration of war, and taken to Tsingtau.

THE SPORTING WORLD

PORTLAND'S RINK WILL BE BIG SHEET OF ICE

Portland, Nov. 9. — When Portland's new artificial ice rink is completed and opened to the public within the next three weeks this city will be able to boast of the largest rink of its kind in the world. It is at Twentieth and Marshall Streets. Its dimensions are 360 feet long and 136 feet wide, and nearly 16 miles of 1¼ inch pipe was used in networking the floor-space for the ice-cold brine that will be used to freeze the water.

Around the surface seating space has been provided for nearly 5,000 persons, and great hockey contests are expected before the winter is over.

Fourteen trusses, each weighing 24 tons, are placed in the roof, and 12 troughs, each 40 feet long and containing five 250-watt lamps, light the hippodrome. In this way the light will be reflected from the ceiling to prevent the lamps from casting direct rays on the ice.

It required 132¼ yards of sand to fill in between the pipes to make them solid, and everything available has been done to make this the greatest ice hippodrome in the world.

Although the building is 360 feet by 175 feet, the extra 40 feet of space at one side of the ice rink is taken up with the ladies' rest room, smoking room, skate room, restaurant and engine room.

The rink is owned by Portland capital, and will likely be run for eight months in the year. A commercial ice company will occupy an underground portion of the establishment, thus dividing the operating expenses with the rink company and cutting down the capital needed in both investments.

QUEEN'S MEET Shag's team in Montreal next Saturday. Harold Hill, the hard-plunging Queen's man, was in the city over the week-end, and informed us that Queen's will give McGill a hard run. If the team from Kingston succeeds in conquering over the champions, the Intercollegiate honors go to Varsity. If McGill wins, they and Varsity meet on neutral ground a week from next Saturday. Owing to the poor accommodations at Queen's field, it is not possible that the crucial game will be staged there. Ottawa looks to be the most likely selection.

ARGOS SHOULD WIN over Montreal in Toronto next Saturday, and the Tigers should have no trouble in vanquishing the Ottawas, thus the tie between Argos and Tigers for the Interprovincial honors will not be broken. The critics pick Argos to win a week from Saturday, when they combat with the Jungle Kings.

PETERBORO FANS are pulling for Varsity to win the Intercollegiate championship, not solely because Peterboro men play for the Blue and White, but for the fact that Captain Gage will put his men into the battle for the Dominion championship. McGill has already decided not to play off should they win the Union.

THE VICTORY of T. R. and A. A. over Hamilton R. C. on Saturday was a big surprise to the Rugby fans. The Hams meet St. Pats next Saturday, and will undoubtedly secure a victory, thus a tie will be caused between them and T. R. and A. A.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE secured a strangle hold on the intermediate Intercollegiate championship when they defeated McGill II. in Montreal Saturday by 8-6. Kevin Corkery and Cecil Feeney, two Peterboro boys, are playing for St. Mike's.

CHRISTOPHER MATHEWSON made his first political speech the other evening in Elisabeth, N. J., when he stumped for Frank H. Smith, Republican candidate for Union County registrar of deeds.

COLLEGIATES WON AND LOST SATURDAY

The P.C.I. Second and Thirds journeyed to Lakefield on Saturday and while the former were being vanquished by Grove School by 23-22, the latter scored a victory over the High School aggregation by 19-9. The victory for the seconds was largely due to the work of Simpson and O'Brien, the latter's punting being a big help.

VARSITY DEFEATED McGILL; T. R. AND A. A. SPRUNG SURPRISE IN HAMILTON; ARGOS WON

Stratton and Sheehy Shine for Varsity While "Heff" Had Big Day at Hamilton — Ross Craig Played in Vain

Toronto, Nov. 9.—There was never any serious doubt as to the superiority of University of Toronto to McGill in the game Saturday afternoon. The 12 to 7 victory of the Blue and White places the latter one game ahead of the Montreal team in the Intercollegiate race, but McGill will have a game at home with Queen's University next Saturday and ought to win easily. In such an event a tie will be brought about.

The Montrealers led at the quarter by 7 to 0 and at the half by 7 to 3. They did not score at all after the first quarter and seldom threatened the Toronto goal seriously. University of Toronto were the better team in all departments, with the possible exception of tackling. Perhaps McGill were as good as the winners in this respect, but certainly not any better. One must have seen the game to appreciate the superiority of the Blue and White. The score is not an accurate indication.

Stratton played a good game at quarterback and fed his backfield well. His long passes to the outside halves were nicely placed, but Carr, although he performed brilliantly, was given too much to do. He made gain after gain around his end, until McGill "got onto" him. Laing, the great outside wing of the Red and White, thereupon broke through and nailed him for losses and almost succeeded in intercepting some of the passes. Carr was exhausted when the middle of the final period was reached. Between excessive work and the handling to which he was subjected by the McGill wings he had quite enough.

Sheehy appeared to resent the treatment meted out to Carr and did some mauling on his own account. He laid one of the Montreal wings out flat and before the game was over somebody "got" him coming through the line in a buck. Down he went for the count.

T.R. and A.A. 16. H.R.C., 12.

Hamilton, Nov. 9.—Eddie Livingstone's T.R. and A.A. aggregation tied up the O.R.F.U. senior series by winning handily from Hamilton Rowing Club by 16 to 12 here Saturday. Victory rested with the better team, the visiting line outplaying the locals both offensively and defensively, while DeGruchy was victor of the punting duels. Heffernan ran well. The locals failed to take advantage of opportunities to score, and lost the ball several times right on the T.R. and A.A. line.

On the line, Whale, Brown and Burkhart played excellent football, and made gains on numerous occasions. DeGruchy's superior punting was a factor in the victory. Vivian shaped up very well, while Hobbs at quarter was easily as effective as Harper, who used rather bad judgment and was uncertain in attempts at outside kicks. Ross Craig jumped into the fray for the first time this year, playing in the second half. The big fellow lacked condition, and was not of much value to the team. McNeilly and McKelvey, the latter especially, played good football. Smith was rather slow in returning punts.

The visitors won the toss and kicked with the wind. DeGruchy kicked continually and when the Rowing Club lost the ball near the line for interference Heffernan raced over for a touchdown. The Rowing Club rushed after the kick-off, and McNeilly made a goal from the field. Before the quarter was over DeGruchy kicked to McKelvey, who rouged.

In the second quarter T.R. and A.A. played a nice defensive game, and held the Rowing Club to two points, which were gained by kicks to the deadline. In the third quarter DeGruchy kicked for one point in one minute, and then used the line for big gains, the ball being carried to the locals' five-yard line, from where DeGruchy went over for a touchdown, which Smith converted. Shortly afterwards McKelvey was forced into touch-in-goal and later Stowe, who replaced Smith, was forced to Rouge. Heffernan almost got over for a touchdown after a long run, but the ends changed with the score 16 to 5 in the visitors' favor.

The Rowing Club strove desperately in the last quarter, but the spurt was too late. McKelvey ran forty yards, but the Rowing Club lost the ball on the line for interference. Vivian was shoved back for a safety touch, as was DeGruchy, and McKelvey kicked a goal from the field.

Argos 47, Ottawa 4.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—The Toronto Argonauts made an Interprovincial record for the season and assured themselves of a tie with Hamilton Saturday afternoon in the last local game in the Big Four. They defeated Ottawa by the overwhelming score of 47 to 4, scoring their points on eight touchdowns, four of which were converted; two kicks to the deadline and a rouge.

They outplayed Ottawa at every turn, their backfield putting up the cleverest exhibition seen here this season, while their line smothered that of the Senators, who fumbled everything. Play grew rough towards the finish and Roberts and Duckett, who handled the game exceptionally well, had a busy time.

Captain McCann was the only man to distinguish himself on the Ottawa team and he did nobly. All the Argos played great football, and local critics say they will win out in the race. Murray, at outside wing, was the most conspicuous man on the field. He scored two touchdowns. It was noticeable that the Argonauts' "second string" men were also stars. Duke, who succeeded Knight, scoring two touchdowns, and Everett Smith capping the climax with a magnificent run. Ottawa only got dangerously close to the Argonaut line once, and on that occasion Snelling was downed before he could execute a long pass.

Tigers 16, M.A.A.A. 12.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Running up a lead of seven points on the home team in the opening quarter of Saturday's Big Four fixture, the Hamilton Tigers held Montreal safe for the balance of the contest, and won 12 to 5.

The game was a hard grind from beginning to end, and while at times there was some good football played, there was much costly fumbling and weak tackling in evidence. The ground was soft from the effects of the wet weather, and a rain and snowstorm combined, in the latter half of the struggle, turned the gridiron into a sea of mud.

Players of both sides showed an inclination to rough it at every opportunity, especially when it was discovered that the officials paid little attention to scragging, and it was a common sight to see the opposing wings rolling over one another with the ball in another part of the field.

FAREWELL TO TWO MINISTERS

Luncheon for Rev. H.J. Keith and Rev. F. A. Conners

Sincere and hearty were the expressions of good-will and appreciation showered upon Rev. H. J. Keith, and Rev. F. A. Conners, at a noonday farewell banquet in Coleman's Savoy today. Both clergymen are leaving the city for work in other fields; Rev. Mr. Keith leaving tomorrow, and Rev. Mr. Conners the end of the month. Thirteen ministers were at the luncheon, for which tables were tastefully decorated and a choice repast laid.

Short but eulogistic speeches were delivered by most of those present, who assured the two departing ministres of their deep appreciation and realization of their faithful services in Peterborough. Both clergymen replied briefly, regretting the circumstances that forced them to leave but wishing every success to their fellow-workers here.

Rev. James [illegible], president of the Ministerial Association, acted as chairman.

TECHNICAL FALLACIES OF THE WAR ARE EXPOSED

The Size and Calibre of Guns are Grossly Exaggerated by Sensation-Loving Correspondents, Says the Scientific American

The Scientific American calls for an extension of the war censorship to sidetrack what it calls the "sensational and misleading technical absurdities" which from time to time are passed by the censor and permitted to go broadcast over the world for the confusion and bewilderment of the public, which is weary of rumors and asks only for facts. If it is the duty of the censor to eliminate any statement which might be of value to the enemy, surely it is his duty, also, to cut out of the dispatches exaggerated statement, as to the nature and destructive effect of the weapons which are employed by the combatants. If these exaggerations could have any beneficial effect, in misleading the enemy by causing him to modify his strategy or tactics, says our scientific contemporary, the censor would be following a precedent which has been employed from time immemorial in the conduct of war; but no such result is secured, and it is only the unsuspecting public that suffers.

The Scientific American says that all the statements which have been going the round of the press regarding mobile 16-inch guns used by the Germans, shrapnel which can annihilate a whole regiment with a single burst of one shell, high-explosive shells whose death-dealing gases kill a company of infantrymen without leaving a mark upon their bodies; he knows full well, we say, that most, if not all, of this talk is the veriest kind of rubbish.

In the first place, the Scientific American says that the 16-inch German mobile gun does not exist, and probably never will exist. It is possible that some siege guns of this calibre have been built for fixed fortifications, but certainly never as mobile siege guns to be carried with an army in the field. The largest field siege gun is the huge 11-inch howitzer or mortar. It was a great feat on the part of the Krupp firm to produce a gun of this size, weight and power that could be transported with an army over the highways of a hostile country, and go into action on its own mount, without preliminary foundation work, for the reduction of fortifications from five to seven miles distant. Broadly speaking, the weights both of a gun and its ammunition increase as the cube of the caliber." This means that a mobile 16-inch siege gun complete would weigh approximately over 100 tons, and its shell would be approximately one ton in weight. The finest macadam, brick, or concrete roadway would be crushed down under such a load, even supposing that traction engines of sufficient power could be linked up to transport it.

Another fallacy is that of the wholesale annihilation of troops caused by bursting shrapnel, the kind which, in bursting, discharges a shower of bullets "which will kill every man within a rectangle seventy yards square." The answer is that no such shell has been invented, and never will be, says the Scientific American. The shrapnel contains 262 balls which, when the shell bursts in the proper position above the enemys' troops, will cover an area of ground elliptical in form. The area is roughly, about 45,000 square feet. Now, anyone can calculate for himself that, if the dispersion is fairly even, there will an average of one ball to each 120 square feet of space covered, or, say, one ball to each square measuring about eleven feet on a side. If the troops under fire are in a trench, with only head and shoulders exposed, and with, say, three feet interval between the men, it will be seen that the chances of a bullet finding its man are one in one hundred for each bursting shell.

FAREWELL MESSAGES OF REV. H. J. KEITH HEARD BY LARGE CONGREGATIONS

Services long to be remembered by the congregation of Knox Presbyterian Church and the Rev. H. J. Keith, who has ministered faithfully and with success for over seven years, were held on Sunday, when Mr. Keith gave his farewell messages. The attendance at both church services and the session of Sunday School were very large and at the evening service, the extra accommodation was taxed to its utmost.

At the morning service Rev. Mr. Keith reviewed the progress of Knox Church, in an address that warranted fervent thanksgiving on the part of the congregation for blessings that had been poured down by the Great Minister. Reference was made to the numerical growth of the congregation and the splendid work carried on in all the departments of the church's life.

Rev. Mr. Keith also noted with pride that a number of members of Knox Church, had volunteered to fight the Empire's battles and announced that Mr Fred Reed, another member was leaving that night.

At the evening service, the preacher's message was one that was given for the purpose of inspiring the congregation to go forward and continue the work before them. Many of the congregation who have enjoyed the intimate friendship of Rev. Mr. Keith, found it difficult to restrain tears.

As the pastor of Knox Church, Rev. Mr. Keith has been an energetic worker. He came to the church, when the building now used as a Sunday School, filled all the needs of the congregation so far as accommodation was concerned, and it was not long before the growth in membership demanded more space. With the congregation giving hearty co-operation, plans were prepared for a new church and the present edifice was erected. With the church completed and progressing, Rev. Mr. Keith felt that there should be a new pipe organ. He started out unknown to his congregation to provide means for the purchase of the instrument and only a comparatively short time ago, the congregation had the satisfaction of seeing the organ installed.

In many other ways, Mr. Keith has shown his worth as a leader of men and now that he is about to leave the city, the loss which is occasioned by his departure, is realized more so than when it was first announced that he had accepted the call to the Westminster Church, Edmonton.

EMDEN BURNED---KONIGSBERG BOTTLED

London, Nov. 10.---German stronghold of Tsing Tau was unconditionally handed over to Japan at ten o'clock this morning

AUSTRALIAN CRUISER PUTS AN END TO EMDEN'S EXPLOITS

German Trouble-maker is Driven Ashore and Burned After Running Fight

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 10. — It is officially announced that the German cruiser Emden has been driven ashore and burned.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Emden was destroyed in the Bay of Bengal by the Australian cruiser Sydney. She was driven ashore on an Island, of the Coco group.

The losses among the officers and crew of the Emden are reported very heavy.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Sydney sighted the Emden yesterday morning. With superior speed she at once closed in and gave battle. The German boat could not escape. There was a running fight, at the end of which the Emden, burning from the shells of the Australian boat, was beached.

The casualties on the Sydney are said to have been slight.

LONDON. — The Emden was driven ashore on Keeling Island, one of the Cocos group, not in the Bay of Bengal, but in the Indian ocean, one thousand miles from Perth, Australia. She had landed a party there to destroy the cable station, but was caught by the cruiser Sydney and compelled to fight.

The Sydney lost three killed and fifteen wounded.

THE GERMAN CRUISER EMDEN.

The picture is that of the German light cruiser Emden, which, it is officially announced, has been driven ashore and burned. The Emden had been operating in the Bay of Bengal and other eastern waters, and has succeeded in eluding British warships and capturing a number of merchantmen. The Emden carried ten 4.1 inch guns, eight 5-pounders, four machine guns and two torpedo tubes.

BRITISH TROOPS REPULSE ALL GERMAN ATTACKS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 10. — The official bulletin this afternoon says:

"The action continued all day yesterday, with the same intensity that has characterized previous fighting between the sea and the region of Armentieres. Encounters were of particular violence, for the reason that the opposing forces are alternately taking the offensive.

"Summing up, it may be said that the day was marked by the checking of the German attack in force to the south of Ypres and by perceptible progress on the part of the French forces in the vicinity of Bixchoote and between Ypres and Armentieres.

"Equally on the front of the British troops, all the German attacks were repulsed with energy.

"Along the major part of the front, from the canal of La Bassee as far as the Woevre, our troops made secure the results attained in the course of the past few days. We also made progress between Rheims and Berry-au-Bac.

"In the Vosges, fresh attacks on the part of the enemy have been repulsed."

JAP WARSHIP AT HONOLULU.

Honolulu, Nov. 10.—After receiving word that the German gunboat Geier had been interned here for the duration of the war, the Japanese battleship Hizen, which has been keeping a watch for the Geier outside the harbor, entered this port for fuel and provisions. Under the neutrality regulations the Hizen is privileged to remain 24 hours.

PURSE OF GOLD GIVEN BY CONGREGATION AND FRIENDS

An Address and Farewell Gift for Rev. H. J. Keith and Mrs. Keith

To build a church from almost nothing, and develop a membership of 83, to 600 in the short span of eight years is an accomplishment rarely surpassed by a minister of the gospel. Yet Rev. H. J. Keith of Knox Presbyterian who left today for Edmonton, accomplished the task, winning for himself the admiration and genuine respect and love of his faithful congregation and hosts of other friends. Last evening he was tendered an inspiring farewell and handed a little bag of gold as a slight recognition by his congregation of their appreciation of his work. Accompanying the gift was a sincerely worded address in which glowing tribute was made to his worth and his worthy efforts to build up his church and parish. His devoted and estimable wife who has done her share in helping him in his endeavors was also recognized by the congregation and church officials at the same time.

The farewell reception was attended by ministers representing St. Paul's Church, Murray Street Baptist, St. James' Methodist and Charlotte Street Methodist. Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Sheriff Hall were also on the platform. Rev. Mr. Pogue was chairman for the occasion. His introductory remarks were a tribute to the departing pastor and his family. They were friends who had been admitted to the very inner circle of his own and his congregation's friendship. Though Mr. Keith was leaving his first charge—his first love as it were—he was satisfied he was carrying away the friendship of the whole city.

Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of Murray Street indulged in some amusing remarks bearing on his very intimate association with Mr. Keith.

"I have been with Mr. Keith in joy and in sorrow, at home and away from home," he said, "I have even slept with Mr. Keith, a remark that made his congregation chuckle, as he described what a painful experience it had been. Mr. Webb referred also to Mr. Burnham. He was glad he had the Dominion member on the platform to hear him "preach." If he made a success there was a remote chance — very remote—of him getting Mr. Keith's job.

Mr. Webb spoke highly of his fellow worker in the field and urged the congregation to support his successor, whoever he might be, and above all, to be loyal to their church. Rev. J. N. Clarry for St. James' Church, and Rev. J. P. Wilson of Charlotte Street Methodist, both spoke in similar vein.

Mr. Burnham's Address.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., delivered a thoughtful eulogy of the departing minister. He for one felt that Mr. Keith should not be permitted to leave the city with the mere froth of a handshake and a good-bye.

NEW EFFORT FOR PATRIOTIC FUND

Campaign to Raise $20-000 Will Soon Be Underway

NEW SUGGESTIONS

Enthusiastic is putting it mild when one thinks of the spirit displayed last evening at the meeting of the Patriotic Committee. The object of this meeting was to consider the report of the committee, appointed to consider the advisability of affiliating with the Canadian Patriotic Fund. Following is the report:

The sub-committee to whom was referred the question of the deservability or otherwise of the Peterboro Patriotic Associating affiliating with the Canadian Patriotic Fund submit the following report:

1. Your committee recommends that the local Patriotic Association be affiliated with the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

2. Your Committee recommends further that the local Patriotic Association take immediate steps to increase the amount already raised to a sum of not less than $20,000 (inclusive of the amount already collected.)

3. Your Committee recommends further that one-half of the said sum of $20,000.00, or one-half of the amount collected, whether the amount attained is greater than $20,000.00 or not, be set aside for local purposes, and be retained in the hands of the local Committee, and that the other half thereof be set aside as the contribution of the City of Peterborough to the Canadian Patriotic Fund of the Dominion of Canada and remitted to the Treasurer of that Fund.

Your Committee is induced to reach the conclusions above set forth by the following among other considerations.

(a) The Canadian Patriotic Fund was established at the recent session of the Parliament of Canada when an act known as "The Canadian Patriotic Fund Act 1914" was enacted, being one of eight Acts of special importance enacted at the August session of Parliament known as the War Session.

(b) The Act of Parliament in question is "to provide a fund for the assistance in case of need of the wives and children, and dependent relatives, officers, and men, residents of Canada, who during the present war may be on active services with the naval and military forces of the British Empire and Great Britain's Allies."

(c) That the sum of $5,000 raised by the City of Peterborough viewed from any standpoint must be considered as absolutely failing to represent the combined generosity and patriotism of our citizens, and that consequently every effort should be made to raise the fund to substantial proportions.

(d) Peterborough as one of the large centres of population in the Dominion of Canada, the eighth city in population in the Province of Ontario, the centre and leading city of a large and flourishing district, settled by a loyal body of citizens,

KONIGSBERG IS FOUND HIDING

Allied Fleets Now at Liberty to Hunt German Squadron off Coast of Chile

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Nov. 10.—The German cruiser Keoningsberg, which disabled the British cruiser Pegasus some weeks ago, has been bottled up at Mafia Island on the coast of German East Africa, by the blocking of the channel to the harbor.

The cruiser Koenigsberg was discovered by the British cruiser Chatham, hiding six miles up the Rufiji river in German East Africa, in water too shallow for the Chatham to reach her, and she is probably aground. Part of her crew is entrenched on the river bank, and the Chatham has shelled the Koenigsberg and her intrenchments, but the dense tropical foliage prevents the results being known. The river channel has been blocked by sinking hulks, and with the Koenigsberg thus blockaded, and the Emden destroyed, the fleet of the British, French, Japanese, Russian and Australian cruisers which have been hunting them for weeks, are now at liberty to join in the chase of the German squadron off the coast of Chile, which is the only remaining menace to commerce in Pacific and eastern waters.

COL. CLEGG COMMANDS NEWFOUNDLAND FORCE

Is Stationed at Pond Farm, Six Miles From Quarters of Peterboro Soldiers

His friends here will be pleased to learn that Col. E. B. Clegg, formerly commanding officer of the 57th regiment, has been appointed to command the Newfoundland contingent at Salisbury Plain. In a letter sent to Major Duncan Walker he states that his regiment is 500 strong and that they hope to quickly bring it to 1,000 men, and maintain their identity throughout the war if called out.

He is stationed at Pond Farm camp, six miles from the Peterborough boys' quarters. On the day previous to that on which he wrote they had marched seventeen miles. Peterborough soldiers all looked fit and well and were standing the hard work and camp life splendidly. They had received no definite word when they might be sent to the front, but all were ready to leave on short notice.

OFF FOR THE FRONT

First Canadian Unit to Leave is No. 2 Hospital

SALISBURY, Nov. 10.—The honor of being the first Canadian unit to leave for the front has fallen to No. 2 Stationary Hospital and fifty Canadian nursing sisters. They left yesterday for France, Lt.-Col. A. T. Shillington, Ottawa, in command. The staff includes nine officers and one hundred and fifty men.

Seven thousand of the Canadian expeditionary force on Salisbury Plains, including the Fourth Infantry Brigade, moved into huts yesterday.

In an address before the Harvard Law School, ex-President Taft advocated a single seven-year term for the President of the United States.

THREE CHEERS AT SALISBURY PLAIN FOR PETERBORO LADIES SOLDIERS APPRECIATE GIFTS

Peterborough soldieds encamped at Salisbury Plain have nothing but kind words for those ladies who sent them caps, wristlets, socks and other articles from this city. In fact they were given three cheers and a tiger, according to a letter just received from Major Bennett.

"You ought to have seen the glow of gladness which shone on the faces of the boys of "A" Company," wrote the Major, "when Col. Sergt. Howarth made the announcement that the Major had received several parcels of comforts from the ladies of Peterborough."

He went on to say that the parcels arrived the evening previous, along with mail and other matter from the war office, and the moment was opportune as it had been raining incessantly for 24 hours. Every night since their arrival had been quite cold.

"You can understand" wrote Major Bennett, "how every man could appreciate the sight of such splendid sleeping caps and socks. I do not think more suitable articles for our comforts could have been made, and I think that most of our Peterborough boys have at least two extra pairs of socks and a sleeping cap."

Major Bennett then says: "I wish to convey my sincerest thanks to you, and the ladies associated with you for your great kindness in contributing to the comforts and happiness of Peterborough men.

Every man in "A" Company, Peterborough, and those of the 56th Regiment with us, join in giving three cheers and a tiger for the good ladies of Peterborough.

BAND GOES TO FRONT.

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 10.—The pipers' band of the 42nd Regiment, Renfrew, has volunteered for overseas service, but orders say that no bands will be taken. Lieut.-Colonel W. S. Hughes has taken the matter up with the militia department, and the men will be taken if they are willing to act as stretcher bearers. The "kilties" will consent.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1914

NOW THEN, ALL TOGETHER.

WELL, they have started off in the second heat enthusiastically. It was not a revival service, but it was a patriotic meeting. Twenty thousand dollars at least is the new objective for the local Patriotic Fund — an objective that is more in keeping with the dignity of a city the size of Peterborough than the small sum which has been raised. Peterborough did not raise a sum equal to half of that which Lindsay raised, yet, according to population, it should have more than doubled the amount of our neighbour. Towns in Ontario of five thousand population have raised sums of five thousand dollars. Surely this city can raise a larger amount than twenty thousand dollars to provide for those made needy by the bread-winners marching to war. It would be an eternal disgrace if this city failed to relieve the wants of those left behind. Those who do not or cannot fight the enemy of our safety and liberty, can fight him by relieving the situation at home. That is a very important way of helping the British battalions on the fighting line. We have got to keep up our business operations, provide labour, prevent want, relieve distress or necessities, so that the effects of war on the resources of this country will be as light as possible.

It has been suggested that the City Council make a sufficient grant and collect it out of the taxes. This should be done as a last resort, when voluntary grants of sufficient magnitude are not forthcoming. It was also suggested that the assessment returns be taken as a basis for getting grants, and that individuals be billed or assessed for a specified amount. While this method has many advantages, we think it is rather too vigorous. The assessment figures might be used as an intimation of what is expected, but these figures should not be made a hard and fast basis for securing aid. Common sense must be exercised by the committee in charge of securing subscriptions. If an adequate sum can be raised by voluntary subscription, as we think it can, this city will save its face and dignity as a helper in the cause of humanity.

CANADA AND THE WAR.

CANADA is in much the same position commercially as the United States. Already trade has been profoundly affected. The large export trade of Canada has suffered much as that of the United States, and for the same reason, but the Canadian people are facing the situation with a resoluteness and a cheerfulness that ought to meet the difficulties well. They are whole-heartedly with Great Britain in the contest. They have voted a war credit of fifty millions and raised an army division of thirty-three thousand men. This army division has been completely equipped — machine and field guns, cavalry brigades, signaling, engineering and medical corps, ammunition, food supplies, camp equipment, automobiles — nothing was lacking. Thirty-one transports, convoyed by eleven warships, have carried this body of men and their accoutrements safely across the Atlantic. A second division is now forming, and will be sent across in bodies of ten or fifteen thousand. In addition, supplies have been voted by individual provinces amounting to several million dollars; large grants have been made to the Belgian Relief Fund, and a large Patriotic Fund for relief of those left behind by the volunteers has been raised, while the Federal Government has voted one million bags of flour.

Internal business has suffered much. Many factories have been either closed down entirely or running with a small percentage of their usual complement of men. What this has meant to the cities can better be imagined than described, and further, these conditions have been intensified by jumps in the retail price of nearly every article of common consumption. Flour, sugar, canned goods, prepared foods, meats, are some of the things advanced in prices. Native raw fruits have in most cases remained at their normal level. To meet these conditions, means have been found to proceed rapidly with every public work contemplated. New forms of bond issues have been created, so that nearly all cities are building their sewers or laying pavements as they had planned, and reassuring reports are coming from the West in this regard. Then, the British authorities have sent agents to Canada, who are placing large orders for army supplies, and nearly every machine and moulding shop of consequence is turning out thousands of shells. Rush-orders of war supplies from the Canadian Government have also helped to improve manufacturing conditions, so that, while they are not prosperous, they are much better than during the first month of the war.

The truth is, Canada is beginning to settle down to a state of war and to pursue business as usual, so far as that is possible, and in the meantime, to use every effort to bring about victory to the Allies' cause. There is no equivocation in Canada's position. She stands solidly for the Empire to the last man and the last dollar, and to a degree that will give the British Empire a larger and more powerful rating than it has yet received as a force in world politics.

FORMER LOCAL MAN SPEAKS ON TRADE.

HAMILTON MANUFACTURERS had the pleasure of hearing an address on Canada's trade opportunities by a former resident of this locality. The speaker was Mr. F. C. Armstrong, who is a son of Wm. Armstrong, of the fourth line of Cavan, and who now resides in Hamilton.

Mr. F. C. Armstrong has represented, in various parts of the world, several leading electrical firms of London, England, and has had experience in countries to which Canada should now be giving considerable attention. South America, he said, imported from different countries to the extent of over a billion dollars. Canadian banks, in his opinion, should establish branches in South America, as the United States had done, in order to aid the Canadian manufacturer.

He emphasized the fact that Germany could not regain the commercial prestige she has lost through the war for generations to come, and that it was a great opportunity for Canadians to get a share of that trade.

> "The ranks of the mechanics in Germany have been not decimated but exterminated, and it will take years for the men who were considered lords of mechanism to be replaced. I know of one place where 2,200 men from a big German electrical concern formed a regiment with the heads of the concern as officers, and of the 2,200 men but 300 were alive today."

Mr. Armstrong speaks with authority because of his experience in Europe and in other parts of the world. No Canadian manufacturer producing an article capable of exportation can afford to neglect the call to utilize this new field. It is an opportunity that comes only once in a hundred years."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

W. T. R. PRESTON, a former Grit organizer, who has deemed it advisable to remain out of this country during recent years, has gone into print to say bad things about Lord Strathcona. His saying them will neither improve his reputation nor lessen the esteem of Canadians for Lord Strathcona. If any other man than Preston had written the book it would carry more weight.

WE WOULD LIKE to draw the attention of local business men to the fact that Toronto and Montreal stores are still publishing big "ads." every day in spite of the war. Why do they do it?

SPEAKING of the Monroe Doctrine, the American papers have let it be known that they would rather have Mexicans or Hotentots for neighbours than Germany.

AN INQUIRER asks us if the Canadians will eat their Christmas dinner in Berlin. People that are always thinking of their stomachs should be shoved to the front.

A FRIEND states the Japs are in high spirits these days. Possibly because they can Tsing Tau.

BY THE WAY, what will Henri Bourassa do when that victorious all-French regiment returns from the war covered with glory?

THERE IS ONE advantage in cold weather—the mud at the intersection of streets is always frozen so that you can cut across without spoiling a shoe-shine.

NOW that cold weather is approaching, we advise everybody to get their snowshoes half-soled.

OF COURSE, some people may have their snowshoes sold already.

Preston Reviles Honoured Man.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

Mr. W. T. R. Preston has written and a London publishing house has issued a "Life of Lord Strathcona," which appears to be a jaundiced attack upon a man no longer able to speak for himself or defend his good name. Mr. Preston contends that what we have to consider is not what Canada owes to Lord Strathcona, but what Lord Strathcona owed to Canada. Without him, he thinks Canada would have been better off to the extent of many millions of dollars and vast tracts of western land.

Has Mr. Preston paused to consider how difficult it was to get anybody, at that early date, to build a transcontinental railway across a country which had only recently been discovered to be something more than a fur-bearing wilderness? His own political leaders at that period deemed the enterprise impracticable. Mr. Mackenzie was for "utilizing the water stretches"; Mr. Blake termed British Columbia "a sea of mountains," and predicted that any railway built around the north of Lake Superior would never earn enough money to pay for its axle-grease. Lord Strathcona, or Mr. Donald Smith, as he was then, embarked his personal fortune in the undertaking, and by his optimism and determination gathered around him and held the friends whose efforts with his own made the road a reality and a success. Evermore will he be entitled to rank high as one of the makers of Canada.

As to Mr. Preston himself, who is he that he should try to depreciate a man whom royalty has delighted to honour? He was the head of the gang of crooks whose misdeeds brought down the Liberal administration in Ontario to ruin and disgrace. While singing "There is Sunshine in my Soul," he could telegraph, "Hug the machine for me." Preston traducing Strathcona! What good does it ever do an ill-conditioned cur to bay at the majestic moon?

A New Feature in War.

(Farmer's Advocate.)

It is now known that the German submarine which destroyed the three British cruisers was helped by a dirigible airship, which had previously discovered them and told the submarine where to find them. This is the first instance of direct co-operation between an airship and an underwater ship allied together against surface ships. Thus another epoch-making feature is added to the extraordinary episode which marks the beginning of the new naval warfare on the ocean.

A Profitable Porker.

(Vancouver Sun.)

A Manitoba farmer has no designs on the mythical pot of gold in the rainbow. He has found it in his own barnyard. A freak pig born on his farm a few months ago is equipped with six legs. This means two extra hams to each porker. By cross breeding he hopes to perpetuate this type and eventually become the pork king of the prairies.

RUSSIANS HAVE REACHED THE GERMAN BORDER

Grand Duke's Vanguard Has Captured Coal in Railway Sidings in East Prussia Where Germans Have Left Hurriedly—Russians Hold Line of German Trenches From Cracow North to Kalisz.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 10.—The following communication from the Russian General Staff was issued last night:

"On the East Prussian frontier fighting continues. The Russian troops have occupied Solap (Goldap?) In the direction of Mlawa (Poland) we have advanced and stopped the movement of railway trains of the enemy near the stations of Soldau (East Prussia).

"Beyond the Vistula, the Germans have withdrawn from Wloclawek to Nieszuma and from Konin to Shepey (Slupoe?).

"On the roads to Cracow we are continuing to push back the rear guards of the Austrians.

"South of Przemysl Nov. 7 we captured 1,000 prisoners and a number of cannon.

All the zones of contact are now inside German territory. The Russians took 1,500 wagons laden with coal standing in the railway sidings in East Prussia in positions which the Germans had evacuated. The Russian cavalry which invaded the position had pierced the left flank of the enemy at the crossing of the Warta at Konin. These cavalry operations, with strong supports, have nullified the entire defensive preparations of the Germans inside the Polish frontier.

The Russians now hold without resistance the great line of entrenchments running from Czenstochow southward on Cracow and northward on Kalisz.

Advices received from Vienna say that the Russians are rapidly advancing on Cracow, and that in consequence the Austro-Hungarian military authorities are betraying great anxiety, and calling up every available man to the colors.

GERMANY IS INVADED

Fatherland is Now Scene of Fighting in Three Places

LONDON, Nov. 10—At three points in the area of hostilities, in Silesia, in East Prussia, and in Alsace, forces of the allies were on German soil yesterday, and for the first time since the outbreak of hostilities, conditions seemed to presage in the opinion of British military observers, a reversal of the roles of the contending armies.

Up to the present time Germany has been fighting, generally speaking, in the territory of her enemies, but now she would appear to be more or less seriously menaced from the east by the victorious armies of Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief in the field, the advance guards of which are less than 200 miles from Berlin.

It is true that there was a brief Russian invasion of East Prussia during the early stages of the war, while the French have for a long time held their position in Alsace, but the latest development in the Russian advance, if the interpretation placed on it in London is not all wrong, is the most important of the campaign up to the present time.

Grand Trank Teaches Apprentices By New System

A correspondence course is to be one of the novel advantages enjoyed by Grand Trunk apprentices for the first time, this winter.

Mr. W. D. Robb, the General Superintendent of Motive Power, has some six hundred apprentices in his department of the railway's work, the young fellows being trained in the various locomotive shops of the company at Montreal, Startford, Battle Creek, and other points. The benefits of this training are such that boys are sent from all parts of the American continent, and even from Europe, to take their apprenticeship here. If they pass their entrance examination they are given a trial of from two to three months in the shops, and if satisfactory are asked to sign indenture papers binding them for the period their trade calls for — machinists for five years, patternmakers and boilermakers for four years.

During this apprenticeship the boy has to attend classes arranged by the company, and is taught Mechanical Drawing and Practical Mechanics.

Examinations are held periodically to test the knowledge of the boys and at the end of the term a final examination is arranged for the whole system, the marks being compiled, and the station having the highest percentage receiving a cash prize donated by the company. Individual prizes are also given to the boys.

This year it has been decided to improve the opportunities of the apprentices at small stations where it has not been possible to keep instructors. Correspondence courses, mapped out along the most improved lines, have been adopted for this purpose, and the boys will be in touch in their theoretical studies with headquarters in Montreal. Textbooks have been compiled by the company, both in drawing and mechanics suitable to the requirements and these have been made as practical as possible, so that the practical work may line up with the theory taught.

The quality of the work done by the apprentices was shown this fall when apprentices from the Stratford shops obtained one first and three seconds in Mechanical Drawing competitions at Canadian National Exhibition, at Toronto, while the Montreal boys took two first prizes.

Warren E. Erwin was elected a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

President Wilson accepted the resignation of George E. Roberts, director of the Mint.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

PARIS, Nov. 10:—The following official communication was issued by the French War Office last night:

"There has been no notable modification in the situation by reason of the difficulties which an intense fog has created in connection with operations of any extent.

"In the north the day has been good. We have maintained our positions between the River Lys and Langemarck, and made appreciable progress between Langemarck and Dixmude."

The French War Office issued a statement yesterday afternoon which throws some light on the general position of the contending hosts. This statement says:

"On our left wing the Germans have undertaken again an offensive movement on Dixmude in the region of Ypres. Particularly to the south-east of Ypres their attacks have been everywhere repulsed.

"At the end of the day, referring to the entire front between Dixmude and the Lys, we have made some progress along the major part of the line. Nevertheless, our advance is slow on account of the offensive movements undertaken by the enemy and because of the strong organization the enemy already has had the time to effect around his points of support. Since the beginning of the fighting, the fog, furthermore, has made operations difficult, particularly between the Lys and the Oise.

"On the centre, along the Aisne, the progress set forth in the official communications of yesterday has been maintained. In the Argonne and in the vicinity of Verdun there have been only actions of minor importance.

"On our right wing, in Lorraine, there is nothing to report. In Alsace fresh attacks on the part of the Germans directed against the heights of Mount Sainte Marie have again resulted for them in a decided check."

Verbal Entrapment

The Happy Outcome of What Appeared to be a Hopeless Mix up.

By HENRY MUNDON

"If the firm doesn't raise my salary on October 19," said Allan Fielding, as he tried the new wedding ring on his fiancee's finger, "I shall do something desperate."

"But why October 19, Allan?" inquired pretty Lavinia Holden, patting his hand affectionately. "Why not wait till the New Year?"

"Because," replied Allan firmly, "everybody asks for a raise at the beginning of the year, whereas I am the only member of the staff who entered the firm's employment on October 19. Just think, next week I shall have been there five years. And to get a beggarly twenty-two-fifty a week! Why, we can't begin to live on less than twenty-five."

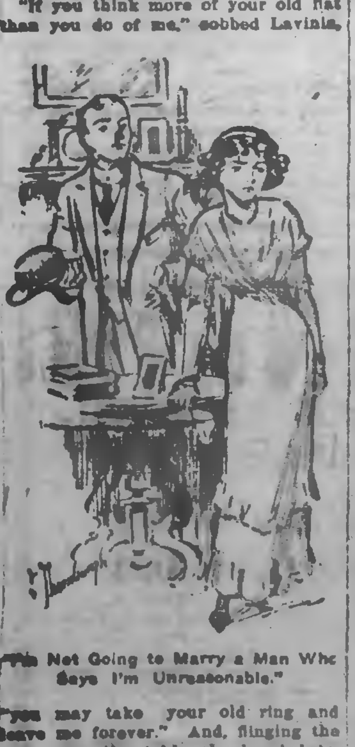
"But Allan, dear, you aren't going to do anything rash for the sake of two dollars and a half," said his fiancee. "Sooner or later they will do you justice, I am sure."

"You don't know old Briggs," replied Allan moodily. "No, it amounts to this, dearest. Unless he raises me to twenty-five our marriage must be postponed."

"Postponed!" exclaimed Lavinia in consternation.

"That's what I said. I'm not going to start life in a cheap flat with installment system furniture and—why, what's the matter, dearest?"

"If you think more of your old flat than you do of me," sobbed Lavinia,



"I'm Not Going to Marry a Man Who Says I'm Unreasonable."

"you may take your old ring and leave me forever." And, flinging the ring upon the table she hurried toward the door.

"But Lavinia!" implored the young man. "Be reasonable!"

"It's you who ar'n't re-reasonable," she sobbed. "I'm not going to marry a man who says I'm unreasonable. If I'm unreasonable pray get some more re-reasonable girl." And she was gone, leaving Allan a prey to the deepest gloom.

For he knew that Lavinia, though sweet and loving, was of a disposition which could only be described as stubborn.

Allan came to the conclusion that it would be best to settle his difficulty with his employer before attempting reconciliation with his fiancee. Accordingly, the next morning he requested an interview with Jeremy Briggs, the head of the corporation in which he occupied the post of assistant cashier.

"Mr. Briggs," he began, "I wish to apply for an increase in salary, to take effect immediately. I am to be married shortly, and I find twenty-two dollars and fifty cents a week insufficient to support a wife."

Mr. Briggs spun round in his chair, his eyebrows lifted.

"How much did you say you receive?" he asked.

"Twenty-two fifty," faltered Allan.

"Weekly or monthly, Mr. Fielding?"

"Weekly, sir," replied the other, allowing a diplomatic smile to hover over his features.

"I did not know that, Mr. Fielding," replied Mr. Briggs. "I thought your salary was eighteen dollars. I should, perhaps, have been willing to increase it to twenty, but—no, Mr. Fielding, what you ask is impossible. Good morning, sir." And he returned to his papers, while Allan, too discomposed to utter the words which he had prepared for just such a contingency, retired to his work.

All was over, then. He must relinquish Lavinia and devote himself humbly to his firm's interests. He knew that the ultimate prospects were good; he was in line for promotion; he was too wise to carry out the threat he had made. But till these prospects materialized he dared not ask Lavinia to be his wife. That evening, seated at the table in his little room, he wrote two letters. One was to Mr. Briggs, apologizing for his action. "I very much regret that we failed to reach a satisfactory understanding this afternoon," he wrote. "I hope you will forgive the unreasonable nature of my request and disregard the incident." The other was to Lavinia. In this he passionately announced at once his love and his determination, with the secret, unwritten reservation that he would some day return to claim her.

Then he went moodily to bed.

He knew Lavinia's stubbornness and pride. He knew that she would never be the first to make advances to him again. The dawn broke, and he rose after a sleepless night, ready for the new life to which he had pledged himself—a life of renunciation and labor. The sun was warm, the air fresh and ozone-laden from a sea breeze. All nature was smiling that fair October morning, and Allan's spirits went bounding up again. Only yesterday all had been well. What an ass he had made of himself—what an incomparable ass! If only he had thought things over! Now he had injured his prospects of advancement and lost the girl whom he adored.

"Mr. Briggs wishes to see you in his office at once, Mr. Fielding," announced the office boy, as soon as he had taken his seat.

Fielding arose and went in to the interview. He cared little what the message portended. To his astonishment, however, Mr. Briggs was mild, almost apologetic.

"Er—Mr. Fielding," he began, "we have been looking up your record and I wish to say that—er—with regard to your letter, we have decided that we can afford to increase your salary rather than let you go."

"My letter, sir?" exclaimed Allan, dazedly.

"This is your letter, sir, I believe," said Briggs testily, laying a missive before him. "And let me say, Mr. Fielding, that you have pleaded better with your pen than you did yesterday in person. A vacancy is to occur in the auditing department on the first of the month. It is worth thirty-five dollars a week, and—"

But Allan only heard dimly, for, stretched out before him, he read the words of his own letter:

"Mr. Jeremy Briggs,
Eastern Reserve Realty Corporation.
"My Dear Mr. Briggs:

"I must leave you at once. You will not see me again. Think kindly of me, for I gave you all my devotion and my entire life and hopes were centered in you. Yours, brokenheartedly,

"ALLAN FIELDING."

Half a minute later Allan was at the telephone. Just forty-five seconds afterward he heard Lavinia at the other end.

"I shall be home tonight, Allan," she said sweetly. "Forgive you? Yes of course I forgive you, dear. But you will have to explain just why you wrote me such a dreadfully formal apology."

POISON MAKES THE GENIUS

Professor Claims the Human Brain Is Made Stronger as the Body Decays.

Poison and disease foster genius. They inspire poets, authors, statesmen and inventors to the height of achievement.

Such is the discovery of Dr. Charles B. Reed, professor in the medical school of Northwestern university.

Scores of examples are cited by Doctor Reed to prove his assertion. His list of men whose intellectuality, he claims, was thus stimulated to brilliancy includes names prominent in literature and art.

Such masterpieces as Milton's "Paradise Lost" and De Maupassant's "Pierre et Jean" would not have been created had their authors relied upon their normal forces, he contends. Such poisons as ether and strychnine, arsenic, alcohol, cocaine, chloral and hashish inspired the musings of Poe's "Raven" and created the musical rhythm of Burns' "Tam O'Shanter's Ride," he declares.

Doctor Reed bases his theory on the fact that the mind, under stress of great emotion, is easily concentrated upon one thing. Reactions have the same effect. He cites history to show that during periods of unusual stress or tension, as from war, grief or love, many minds are emotionally excited and the literary product is increased and improved, as compared with the product in times of mental peace and commercial prosperity. He calls such emotions "mental systematizers."

MARRIED AND DIDN'T KNOW IT

New Indian Agent Got Into Predicament Through Ignorance of a Native Custom.

On the old Rosebud Indian reservation, in South Dakota, they still laugh over the peculiar predicament into which a new Indian agent once got himself.

The agent, an unqualified "tenderfoot," was inspecting an Indian school. Noticing that as soon as he entered the room every girl present brought her hair forward over her face, he asked the teacher to tell them to throw it back so that he might see their faces. But this they refused to do, until, after much urging, one girl did finally uncover her face.

After school was over, the agent wondered at the strange actions of the girl who had uncovered her face. She followed him to his house, entered after him, and set about getting his dinner. As he spoke no Sioux, and she no English, he could get no explanation from her.

Finally, to his relief, the teacher rode up. Shaking with laughter, he asked the agent how he liked his new wife! Then the latter understood what he had done. In certain tribes of the Sioux Indians all a man needs do in order to get a wife is to induce a girl to uncover her face. The agent had proposed in the usual way—and been accepted.

In vain did the agent plead that he already had a wife in the east; there was only one way to get out of it. It cost him the equivalent of fourteen ponies to persuade the Indian girl's father to take her back again.

What is Adam's Apple

An Adam's apple is merely a prominence of a bony shield for the windpipe. To develop the muscles of the neck by proper exercises will make it less prominent if it is so large as to mar the symmetry. To get fat will usually cover it up altogether.

Occasionally what is believed to be an abnormally large Adam's apple is an enlargement of the thyroid gland—a goiter.

KIDNEY TROUBLE AFFECTED HIS SPINE

Suffered For Forty Years Until He Used "Fruit-a-tives"

BRONTE, ONT., OCT. 31st. 1913.

"For about forty years, I was troubled with Lame Back brought on by Kidney and Bladder Trouble. I was never confined to my bed with the trouble, but it affected my spine and I had to rest for a time. I took advertised remedies which never did me any good. Then I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised and decided to try them. They did me more good than any other remedy.

My son suffered from the same trouble and frequently had to leave off working, but "Fruit-a-tives" remedied it for him. I would strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney and Bladder Trouble to use "Fruit-a-tives".

Si, the Siwash,

In a Wreck on Puget Sound

By JOHN H. WALSH

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Si is lying on my bunk, wrapped in my Grand Army coat. His name really ain't Si; it's Tom. But I call him Si, which is short for Siwash—a Siwash being a Puget sound Indian.

Si is a Siwash all right, and, though he's only four years old and he's a half breed, he looks like old Chief Seattle. And he treats me as an equal—and he gets away with it, too—though I'm sixty-nine. That shows character.

And Si's had experience!

Take just this collision experience. That won't come to anybody else for ten thousand years, and here Si has had it before he's four.

Why, I have had enough adventures myself, for I've been ship keeper on the U. S. S. Stalwart here at the Sierra navy yard for fifteen and three-quarter years. But Si has me sewed up for plenty on adventure, though I could tell yarns of my own.

But first I'm setting it down about Si, his ma and the collision of the Humahuma and the Stalwart. I'll tell about myself when I've got leisure.

However, I do want to say in passing, while I think of it, that ship keeping is the most exacting work there is. You have to know the name of your ship, and to remember what day is pay day, and when to come off watch, and when to go on, and I tell you it takes brains to keep all those things straight in your mind.

Then once in a year they complicate things by putting your ship in a dry-dock or by changing her anchorage a little, and you have to change your habits, which is hard. And it's because it is such exacting work as I've described that they always keep responsible men like us old soldiers on such jobs.

Of course it's a strain, and I suppose I could not have held the job so long if I didn't have iron nerves.

You see, I know myself that I have iron nerves, because General Thomas told me so when he saw me eating hardtack in a trench during the Chickamauga skirmish. And I've needed my iron nerves in ship keeping, but a lot of people don't understand why.

For example, there is a gentleman in Sierraton who digs clams with a shovel and peddles them with a wheelbarrow, and he said once he thought he'd try ship keeping for a rest.

I laughed at him, and then I warned him he couldn't stand it, which was true too. However, I'm writing about Si, and I'll write about digging clams when I have time for it, for I'm as good a clam digger as there is on Puget sound, which is saying a lot, for all the smartest men out here were digging clams twenty years ago.

Si's ma used to have an awfully hard time making a living, and from time to time I've helped her a little at it, for I've had $2.20 per day right along, and I'm a bachelor and don't need all that money for myself.

So yesterday, which was pay day, I gave her $5, and I said, "Take Si to Seattle and see the sights." And she did it.

At least she put on her pink waist and her green shawl, and she hauled Si down to the boat by one arm, his feet dragging all the way.

After that I loafed around until evening, when I went to the Stalwart and relieved old man Keller.

After he'd left the ship I walked around and inspected things, as I always do, and I decided, as I've decided every day for ten years, that the Stalwart is still a mighty fine ship.

Pretty soon I moved around a little, and when I got aft and was looking over the rail under the stern light I could see young smelts in the still, oily water, and they looked like shreds cut out with a knife from a silver bar. And, oh, how solemn and still it was!

You could hear a gasoline boat two miles away thumping, missing strokes, stopping and then thumping again, and you could hear oarlocks squeaking their course across the bay.

At first it was clear overhead, and I could see the stars and the lights at the navy yard, and I could hear the sentries hail people in loud, important voices. And then the lights faded and blinked out, one by one, and I knew fog was shutting in on us. And the sounds seemed sort of muffled by the fog.

I went forward then to the ship's bell under the bridge, and once a minute by watch I'd ring rapidly, and presently Bill Paterson on the Boston would ring, and afterward we'd hear Bixby on the Concord.

Well, I kept on ringing the bell. At first there weren't any steamer whistles sounding, but after a time I commenced to hear a dull, thrilling ooo-h, oo-h, from far away down the Narrows.

I knew at once that this was the late boat from the city, the Humahuma, and that she was navigating by echoes, as they always do in fogs on this sound.

And then I got a feeling that Si and his ma would be on the boat, so I rang the bell faster and faster, for I didn't want the Humahuma to go colliding with the Stalwart and smashing Si and me up.

But the Humahuma's whistle got louder and louder until it sounded almost on top of us.

I was frantically disturbed, for I wasn't used to having ships come so close, and I rang the bell as though I were being paid a dollar a stroke—but no effect!

It got so I could hear the engines thump, thump, and hear the water turn off from the cutwater with a continuous, moist, rustling sound.

Then suddenly the whole Humahuma leaped out of the fog, coming straight at me, every light burning, coming full speed, right on top of me!

I stopped ringing and jumped to the rail, and during two seconds I swore and roared and pulled my beard, and then she bit us right amidships, and the shock sprawled me on the deck on my back and knocked the wind out of me.

The Humahuma had hit the Stalwart square, and she had cut us half in two. But she backed out so quickly that before I could get to my feet she was driving both engines astern, and she was already clear of us.

Just a moment later she disappeared in the fog, but I saw, nevertheless, that her bow was stove in and ruptured and that on deck there was a barndoor of a woman's figure which had in its arms a child.

I felt sure from their shapes that the woman and child would be Mrs. Siddons and Si.

Would the Humahuma sink?

I was sure she would, from what I had seen. And then I noticed that my own ship, the old Stalwart, was sinking too. What to do?

I ran to the splintered hole, and I heard the water whistling as it rushed in, like wind in the treetops, only in sharper notes.

What to do?

I jumped and rang the alarm call on the bell, and the ships ahead passed it along. I rang it again and again, and then a frail skiff with a half grown boy in it appeared alongside out of the fog.

"I'll take you off, uncle!" said the boy.

I told him not to be familiar, that I wasn't his uncle at all and that as for going off with him in his skiff I couldn't.

"I'm sort of captain," said I, "and I can't leave. You know yourself a ship keeper can't go without being relieved; his job is to stay with his ship. But I'm much obliged to you, and I'd appreciate it more yet if you'd run down to the Humahuma and pick up some friends of mine."

The boy hollered, "Aw, come on, you nutty old devil; she's sinkin'!"

But I said, "No; I'm staying, though I'd like well to see how Si and his ma are getting along, and I wish you'd go down for me and see."

But just then another skiff came out of the silvery fog, and it carried the long old admiral himself, going in a wherry, with two bluejackets h'isting him along.

"Oars!" he cried, abreast the gangway, and then he called to me: "Why don't you get off the ship? She's sinking."

I saluted him just as I'd saluted Thomas at Chickamauga and says:

"Can't till I'm relieved."

And do you know he seemed to get real mad. He says:

"You're relieved now. Haven't you got any sense in your head? Get out of that into the skiff! Give way, lads!"

"All right, sir," says I. "If she's orders she goes, and I'm much obliged to you."

And I jumped into the skiff with the boy, and we followed the admiral's boat through the fog toward where we could hear muffled shouts and cries.

The Humahuma sank before we arrived, and we were soon in the midst of floating buckets, boards and articles of clothing. But there were a good many shore boats already there, and the survivors were all picked up so far as could be seen.

So we started looking in the various boats for Si and his ma, but we couldn't find them, though we rowed around and around and around.

Finally the other boats commenced to go in shore, one by one, but we kept on rowing until no one was there except the pale faced boy and me.

We'd row a few strokes, then stop to listen and see if the heavy, leaden, foggy silence wouldn't be broken.

Finally the silence was broken. A faint moaning noise came from out in the white fog some place.

We pulled for it; then we paused and listened, hoping to hear it again.

When we did hear it again I climbed to the bow, and we pulled and paused and pulled and paused.

Sometimes it seemed far off, sometimes close. But presently I saw a shadow on the water.

"'Way 'nuff!" I cried. "Give me an oar. I'll paddle."

And so I came to the shadow, gently and carefully, and it was Si and his ma that had made the shadow. Si was all right.

He was wrapped in a life preserver, and he was unharmed, except that his back was wet and that he was hungry and sleepy. But his ma lay face downward, dead—drowned in some mysterious fashion by the very buoyancy of the life preserver she wore.

I called loudly, and some boats came out and helped me with Mrs. Siddons' body. But I took Si myself.

I wrapped him up in my new Grand Army coat, and I took him straight home, and, though some women came in, I fixed for his comfort myself.

I gave him some milk and a teaspoonful of brandy, and then I wrapped him in my army coat again, and he went to sleep chewing his knuckle, which shows that he was perfectly satisfied.

And I hereby state that Si's title to that Grand Army coat is good. I'm taking care of Si, and I guess iron nerve will help in that just as it does in everything else.

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

CONFIDENT OF THE RESULT

Britain Will Carry the War to The Bitter End, Say Statesmen

Premier Asquith, Earl Kitchener and Winston Churchill Are Centre of Interest at Guildhall Banquet Inaugurating Lord Mayor of London---Germany Has to Reckon With the Forces of the Great Dominions.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—That Britain is prepared to carry on the war to the bitter end, with every confidence in the result, was the tenor of speeches at the annual banquet inaugurating the new Lord Mayor of London at Guildhall last evening, delivered by the men who are responsible for the conduct of the war.

Notable speeches were made by the Prime Minister, H. H. Asquith, Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, Secretary for War, and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty. Lord Kitchener, whose massive figure, clad in service khaki, towered over the audience of a thousand men and women in the historic building, while expressing satisfaction at the response to his call for men and the progress of their military training impressed upon the nation that the war would be a long one, and he would require more men and still more until the enemy is crushed."

He also made a quiet reference to the British army, which, he said, "has proved itself to be not so contemptible an engine of war as some were disposed to consider it," and reminded his hearers that the enemy would, besides the army in the field, have to reckon with the forces of the great dominions, the vanguard of which had arrived in England, in addition to the million and a quarter men now training in this country.

Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, told of the work of the navy and continued:

"It is difficult to measure the full influence of the naval pressure in the early stages of the war, but it will spell the doom of German as surely as winter strikes the leaves from the trees."

As to the losses suffered he said: "The punishment we receive is clear and definite; the punishment we inflict is very often not seen, and when seen, very often cannot be measured. But time will tell."

The First Lord also pointed out that despite the losses, the navy was stronger in every way than at the beginning of the war.

Premier Asquith, who devoted much of his speech to the war with Turkey, said it meant "the death knell to Ottoman domination, not only in Europe, but in Asia."

He, too, predicted that the war would be a long one, but said that nothing would daunt their hopes or impair their resolve, and that England would not sheath the sword until Belgium had recovered all that she had sacrificed, until France had been secured from the menace of oppression and until the military domination of Prussia had been destroyed.

Scenes of extraordinary enthusiasm were witnessed. Added interest attached to the gathering by reason of the special circumstances of the times and the presence of the principal Ministers of the Crown responsible for the conduct of the war and the diplomatic representatives of the allied nations.

Confidence in the ultimate success of the allied arms was expressed by Earl Kitchener, who pointed out the great issue at stake, the advantages possessed by the allies in men and material, and in "that wonderful spirit which has never understood the meaning of defeat." Continuing, Lord Kitchener said:

"The British Empire is now fighting for its existence. I want every citizen to understand this cardinal fact, for only from a clear conception of the vast importance of the issue at stake can come the great national moral impulse without which the Government's War Ministers, or even their navies, can do but little. We have enormous advantages in our resources of men and material and in that wonderful spirit of ours which has never understood the meaning of defeat. All these are great assets, but they must be used judiciously and effectively.

Paul Cambon, the French Ambassador to Great Britain, received an ovation. In the course of his speech he said: "The allies have not sought domination, but simply desired to save European civilization. Europe has suffered previous invasions of barbarians, but has never seen barbarism raised to a dogma, taught by doctors and praised by the intellectual elite. These professors of brutality believed that they had provided for everything, but had not provided that they would hurl themselves against the conscience of the civilized world."

HERE'S A POSER

If you found a roll of bills in a shabby purse, showing that it probably represented the hard-earned wages of a working man, what would you do with it? Keep it, and so enrich yourself at the expense of some poor family's food and shelter? No, certainly not! Try to find the owner, and return it to him? Yes, every time!

There aren't many workmen losing money on the street nowadays, but there are more than you would suppose who are losing jobs, and jobs mean money, so it amounts to the same thing.

If it would give you real pleasure to hand a laborer back his lost money, it ought to be equally pleasing to be able to hand him back his job.

Simplest thing in the world to do! All that's necessary is to remember when you go into a shop to buy anything, that the article you pick out means somebody's job. If it's an imported article, well, that's a job for a fellow in some other country, but if it's "Made in Canada", it's a job for one of your fellow Canadian citizens, who for the time being, is a little down on his luck.

NEW LIGHTING SYSTEM IS DISCUSSED

At the meeting of the Utilities Commisison held yesterday afternoon the question of installing a new system of street lighting was discussed. Manager Howse explained that the cost of operating the present system is far too high and should the change be made now instead of next spring, the saving on the new system would nearly pay for the change. He further stated that he is working on the proposition of using materials in changing the street lighting system which will be used when the new system is complete. He was asked to make out a full report and present at to a future meeting of the Commission. Whether any action will be taken this fall or not will be decided on after the manager's report is received.

Manager to Report.

Manager Howse was instructed to report on the cost of two instruments which will be utilized in keeping a record of the voltage supplied the Commission by the power company.

Manager Howse was authorized to purchase the necessary transformers from the Canadian General Electric Co.

CHARGES OF INMATE ARE INVESTIGATED

With reference to the complaints of Mr. Cochlan now in the House of Providence as to him receiving no correspondence and his letters not reaching their destination while he was in the County House of Refuge, it is stated in a report of the County Council that the superintendent and matron affirm that any letters either sent from the inmates or directed to them were handled in the usual way, there being no letters detained either way.

The superintendent acknowledged intercepting a note, not enclosed, directed to the Parish Priest at Lakefield, and upon interviewing the Priest the next day Mr. Beavis says the Priest approved of such interception.

Mr. Beavis also stated that upon visiting the Mother Superior of the House of Providence, she stated that Mr. Cochlan made trouble there and she expected he would do the same at the House of Refuge.

With regard to a letter that Mr. Cochlan said looked like having been tampered with, Mr. Beavis said that the letter was not properly directed and fell into the hands of some Mr. Cochlan in Douro, and was then forwarded to the House of Refuge.

With reference to being harsh with Mr. Cochlan while he was in the House of Refuge, Mr. Beavis said that he received the same treatment as the other inmates, but strict discipline with regard to cleanliness had to be exercised as Mr. Cochlan was the dirtiest inmate in the House of Refuge at that time.

A NEW EFFORT FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND

should in the opinion of your Committee uphold and support the general scheme established by Parliament for the general benefit of Canada.

(e) Your Committee is convinced that an earnest appeal to the generosity and patriotism of the citizens accompanied by an energetic, earnest and active canvass will meet with such a response from the citizens of Peterborough as will justify Peterborough's position as a leader of this district.

(f) In the opinion of your Committee it would be unpatriotic and unwise to refrain from affiliation with the General Patriotic Fund, unpatriotic as calculated to prevent that unity of effort and co-operation that should characterize the Canadian people at the present time, and unwise as it would deprive the City of Peterborough from making any moral claim for assistance from the General Patriotic Fund in case of necessity, and thereby calculated to deprive the wives, children and dependent relatives of the officers and men on active service from the City of Peterborough from the benefit of and share in the general fund established for Canada.

Mr. F. D. Kerr in moving the adoption of the report said: "We have acted in this matter, as we would in a church bazaar, in which we had no regards. I took it upon myself to phone some of the different towns surrounding Peterboro. Orillia he said raised $3,000 in two days, and besides put into the pocket of every volunteer $15 before he left for the front. Lindsay with one-third of the population of this city raised $7,000 in four days. It is also in the County of Victoria that they have decided to raise $18,000. Kingston too raised $52,000.

"I have marched down to the station on several occasions and watched those men who could not give their dollars, offering their lives for their country. It will be an easy matter for us to raise this $20,000 if we go about it in as systematic a way.

Insure the Men.

Rev. Jas. Rollins had a suggestion to insure the men who have gone to the front and submitted figures, in which he showed that it would cost $25 more now than it would have cost two weeks ago. If the city council intends to do this, they are out that much money. I see where we could handle this insurance but where we could never replace the loss if the men were wiped out.

He said we should be able to raise $20,000 without the help of the council and suggested that a deputation wait upon the council urging them to place insurance of $1,000 on every man who was a resident of this city. He stated that the Patriotic Fund had failed to do its duty. Some of the volunteers were allowed to leave here without so much as a handshake, from anyone appointed to represent the Patriotic Fund on their departure. He stated how nice it would have been, if the local boys had carried away some kind momento, knowing that the Patriotic Fund had remembered them on their departure. He concluded with saying that this city should be in a position that no other town could point the finger of scorn in this direction.

Subscriptions Boosted.

Walter Stocker said he would double his subscription.

R. E. Layfield said he would triple his former donation and that it was up to the Mayor to get busy. As he had raised $100,000, it ought to be easy for him to raise $20,000.

Ex-Mayor Rush said he would add $100 to his former donation.

R. M. Glover was of the opinion that they should be told how much they were expected to give.

Mayor Buller stated that there was not much to be gained by a house canvass.

The Kingston Way.

Mr. Rollins said that he had an alderman from Kingston staying with him. In Kingston, he was informed, Mr. Warburton, the Y.M.C.A. campaigner, had been engaged to raise the money and that he could not be beaten in that line. He suggested that his services could be obtained by any city in Ontario that wished him, and he was of the opinion that Peterboro would do well to engage him. He related an incident where goods were collected and auctioned off and where a skein of yarn was sold for $10.

Dr. Cameron said his feelings had been hurt by the remarks that had been made about Peterborough. "I feel satisfied that if the matter had been handled in a systematic way that the amount could easily be raised," said the doctor.

D. O'Connell was of the opinion that the people of this city didn't seem to have much regard for what was being done outside of Peterboro. "There's a mistake somewhere," he said, "and no doubt if this case is taken up, Peterboro will do its shore. In my opinion, in the first place, the proper means were not taken to place before the people what this war means to them. They do not realize that their freedom is at stake. Our forefathers fought, bled and died, for this freedom that we enjoy. Because the war is 3,000 miles away, the people do not seem to grasp its immensity. You must appeal to their sentiments, put a spirit of patriotism into their hearts, and create that patriotic sentiment."

He closed with advocating a public meeting.

Blame the Men.

Mr. Gillespie was of the opinion that a mistake had been made in the first place by the men allowing the ladies to do all the work.

Mr. Mowat said that a lot of trouble lay in the fact that say a man worth $10,000 gave $10 and an ordinary man would give $1.

Mr. Peck regretted the small number present to hear such fine remarks. They were worthy of a far larger crowd. He said it must be impressed upon the people.

Mr. Stocker was of the opinion that Mr. Warburton should be brought here.

Mr. Rollins said that the whole committee had failed. He suggested that Bishop O'Brien's name be added to the committee. He said "We ministers have you fellows beat a mile when it comes to raising money."

Mr. Peck thought that the Finance Committee should be given another chance.

A Public Meeting.

It was moved by Dr. Cameron, seconded by Mr. John, that Canon Cody, H. B. Ames, M.P., or Father Minehan, be secured to address a public meeting here.

Mayor Buller said he would attend to the matter of securing the Opera House for the meeting. He said the newspapers were very liberal in giving publication to the patriotic work, and that they were doing their share. He was of the opinion that too many were trying to run it. He suggested that the announcements be given out from the churches next Sunday.

Mr. O'Connell said that the press could create a public sentiment in their own way which would be a great help.

It was moved by Rev. Rollins and F. D. Kerr, that the names of Bishop O'Brien, Rev. Pogue and Rev. J. R. Webb be placed on the executive.

It was moved by D. O'Connell, seconded by Mr. Navey, that the following be placed on the Finance Committee: Rev. Jas. Rollins, W. Stocker, R. E. Layfield, and F. D. Kerr.

Mr. Layfield opined that there should be a censorship placed on the knockers for the next two weeks.

Distribution of Fund.

A letter was received from J. H. Burnham, expressing the idea that it would be in the best interest of every one to have the disposing of the Patriotic Fund distributed through some other source than the Relief Officer. After a lot of discussion the following motion by Rev. Rollins and D. O'Connell was unanimously carried: "That the Patriotic Fund Committee wishes to place on record its sincere thanks to Mr. Miller in rendering to the fund his services and its entire confidence up to this date, but on account of the sensibilities of those who will need to be assisted, it is thought better to have it distributed through some one else appointed by the committee."

The meeting then closed with the singing of God Save the King.

The sublime Porte holds a strategic position in the present war, as is shown by the above map. Not only does it command the Dardanelles, which is strongly fortified, and so bottles up whatever war vessels Russia may have in the Black Sea, but it is within striking power of Egypt and the Suez Canal. The British possessions, Cyprus, in the Levant, is now in the new zone of war. The attitude of Turkey has been closely watched by both France and Great Britain since the commencement of the war, and a large force of warships of these countries is already stationed between the Aegean Sea and the Suez Canal. Large bodies of Egyptian and Arab troops friendly to Britain have been massed in the neighborhood of the canal in order to protect it from any possible rising of Moslem sympathizers with Turkey.

PURSE OF GOLD GIVEN BY THE CONGREGATION AND FRIENDS

Mr. Burnham said that he had been asked to be present to represent the public and he had much pleasure in doing so.

Mr. Keith has won the respect of the people because he adopted no patent methods in appealing to them. He appealed to their manliness and womanliness. These are the elements of character. Character is the only possible foundation for a man and for a nation. God could have made the world without sin if He had so desired. He could rescue man from his wickedness and misery now in the twinkling of an eye if He desired to do so but He has left it wholly to man to rescue himself and has thrown the entire responsibility upon him and not upon the churches, the temperance societies or any other association whatsoever but upon the individual man himself. If man were without temptation God could not appeal to him. The basis therefore of all our efforts must be to develop a sense of responsibility in the individual and to remember that to remove all temptation is to remove all character. We must withstand it and conquer it face to face. If Mr. Keith were amongst gamblers and drinkers and the vicious generally does anybody suppose that the glare and glamour of vice, would betray him and that he would yield to the temptation and fall? Does anybody suppose that numbers of noble women whose whole life is spent amongst the lowest of the low are in danger on that account? Certainly not. Why? Because they have reached the highest stage of development, have proven their strength and are the models accordingly by which we should shape our own lives. They are the "happy warriors" tried in the fire of battle. It is very strange that we ignore the whole basis of the teaching of the Bible in this respect. It is very strange that it takes a life-time of preaching, Sunday School work and coaching to impress people with the value of religion. In the matter of ordinary education we find that the average man and woman get about fifteen years of it and then they go out and face life for themselves. But it is not so in religion. They apparently cease to regard the fact that they are called upon to act their part in the religious as in the ordinary way. Let us take the history of the young. We teach the child to walk by removing means of help. The child cannot learn to walk in any other way. It falls and hurts itself. The mother picks it up and if there is a man around the mother will blame him for the misfortune of the child but parents who bring up their young sons in any other way have sons who never having learned to walk alone and withstand temptation are as a rule exceedingly weak and selfish. We seek to improve on God. It is not God's way. Measures of prevention are never taken by God because the moral growth of man is not from without but from within and all that we may do on the outside is nothing if the inward moral responsibility of the individual is not cultivated and his sense of duty to himself and to God developed. This is so true that to remove all temptation is to remove all character. A man who has arrived at the age of understanding and has had the usual advantage and yet does not make a serious effort to be straight is no good. We should not cease trying to help him though he be a moral weakling but it must be remembered that God has provided not alone for the wicked. He has provided also for the weak. People cannot plead that because they are weak they must be excused. What a world this would be if we could remove war, greed, corruption, tyrrany, narrowness, bad temper, gluttony, lust, selfishness, etc. It could be done, for as we have said God could do so, but He has left all these things as a crucible to purify mankind. Some people regard this world as a dismal failure. It is not a failure. It is the method God has adopted for the progress of mankind. People who say we must get out of it as soon as possible and shake it off as a detestable thing are really reproaching God for having created a detestable thing. If the Almighty looked at it in the same way it would be a sad thing for us. The highest type of man we have referred to. The lowest type is he who falls if not far yet as far as he can. Those who should not fall at all fall farthest. Those who are least able to resist fall the shortest distance but both fall down and lie prone upon "the unmitigated dust" which is the lowest stage of humanity. There is also the half way man who sometimes leans towards the highest and sometimes leans towards the lowest but we must be very careful to fasten our attention upon the highest type to be swayed neither by pity nor stupidity but the plain requisites needed to produce the highest type. The minute we cease to do this that minute we betray ourselves and the whole cause. We are precisely like those who sometimes tell the truth and sometimes lie because they find what they consider good excuses for so doing. It frequently happens that the bare bald inexorable truth works much suffering. It does so in the world. But God himself has ordained it so. We cannot adopt other means nor can we set the whole moral principle at naught and substitute little schemes of our own without destroying the whole fabric as God has made it, and producing in abundance the very failures which we see broadcast in the world and pretend to regret. We reject God's own plan. It is realization of this great fact that has made Mr. Keith such a power in this city almost without an effort on his part. The truth of it is apparent and truth, which is fact, can alone prevail. When we scheme to evade we are sure to fail. Of what use is it to invent methods for reforming and protecting mankind if they all depend on the will in the first place. We must cultivate the desire to do well as founded upon our knowledge of our own absolute individual responsibility. The more help we ask and consume the weaker and the more selfish we are, not the stronger and better. Showing us this great fact has been what Mr. Keith has done for us. It is for us to try to live up to it.

After Sheriff Hall had been called upon for a few remarks, Rev. Mr. Keith and Mrs. Keith were asked to step into the choir loft where Dr. M. McCulloch read an address and Mr. M. Morrison presented them with a purse of gold.

The pastor in a nice speech of thanks modestly declared that he would be glad if only one half of the tributes paid him during the evening were true. Peterborough he believed to be one of the finest cities in the Dominion and held first place in his admiration and his affection.

He praised the press for their readiness to co-operate with him in promoting the welfare of his church. After briefly reviewing the development of the church Mr. Keith concluded with the earnest wish that it would flourish and prosper and become the leading church of the city.

Rev. Mr. Keith and family will carry with them to Edmonton the warmest wishes for success in their new field.

A REBELLION
Food Demanded.

The human body will stand a lot of abuse, but sometime it will surely rebel and demand proper food in place of the pastry, starchy, greasy stuffs no which it has been made sick.

Then is the time to try Grape-Nuts, the most scientific and perfect food in the world.

A lady writes: "Three years ago I was very ill with catarrh of the stomach and was given up to die by one doctor. I laid in bed four months and my stomach was so weak that I could not keep down medicines or hardly any kind of food and was so weak and emaciated after four months of this starvation that my daughter could easily lift me from bed and put me in my chair.

"But weak as my stomach was, it accepted, relished and digested Grape-Nuts without any difficulty the first time that wonderful food was tried.

"I am now strong and in better health than for a great many years and am gradually growing still stronger. I rely on Grape-Nuts for much of the nourishment that I get. The results have certainly been wonderful in my case and prove that no stomach is so weak it will not digest Grape-Nuts.

"My baby got fat from feeding on Grape-Nuts. I was afraid I would have to stop giving the food to him, but I guess it is a healthy fat for his health is just perfect." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor.

NEW ACTION NECESSARY

If Plaintiff Continues to Dispute Amount of Doctor's Fee

After being out an hour and ten minutes, the jury in the case tried before Judge Huycke yesterday of Dr. McNulty v John O'Leary to recover $58, alleged to be balance due on an account of $158.00, returned and announced that they had disagreed. They were discharged. If the plaintiff wishes to secure judgment he will find it necessary to start a new action; if he does not do so, the action will be dismissed.

D. O'Connell, counsel for plaintiff, informed the Review today that the case would come up again at the December sittings of the Division Court.

Mr. McElderry, counsel for the plaintiff, when addressing the jury in the McNulty-O'Leary action yesterday emphasized the fact that all doctors or any other class of men are entitled to is a fair fee for services. Legislation has been kind to doctors and they are not compelled to render an itemized account for their services, they can submit their bill in one sum, but it is not intended the doctors should abuse that privilege and satisfy an extravagant whim. Mr. McElderry made it very plain that it was not for Dr. Halliday or Dr. Cameron to decide whether Dr. McNulty's fee was fair or not. That matter rested with the jury.

There is a tendency for doctors to exaggerate the gravity of appendicitis. It is a common disease in this community and it is not right for doctors to charge too high and unfair a fee for treating it. These high fees have been the result of a far too generous generation. It would be impossible for fellow practitioners of Dr. McNulty to say that the fee charged was unfair.

In assisting the jurors to get at what he called a reasonable fee, Mr. McElderry put the value of the doctor's services at $75 or $80. He claimed he did not care to assert that he wouldn't take the word of the doctors as to the fair fee, but taking everything into consideration he had to.

Sickness is a misfortune and when it's known that doctors can charge any fee it's hard on the community. It is not only local doctors that will await their verdict but the doctors and people of Ontario. If it is the practice of doctors to charge too much, it is up to that jury to stop it. In conclusion he warned the jurors not to be carried away by the eloquence of Mr. O'Connell, counsel for the plaintiff, but rather to listen to that little voice of common sense.

Mr. O'Connell in his remarks made plain the fact that the jury was to decide the question as to whether or not this fee was fair in consideration of the circumstances. The first principle to be considered is the skill of the man employed. The success of the operation and the satisfaction which followed must be the direct result of the operator possessing skill. The same thing holds good in all departments of life. A man's services are always measured by the amount of skill he possesses.

The importance of the work performed must also be considered. If it was but a simple case the physician wouldn't be entitled to the same fee as if it were critical. In this case it was a matter of saving the patient's life. Where a practice exists in a community whereby certain services are required and are remunerated at a specific amount, that is the strongest evidence that it is a proper fee.

There is a great deal of unnecessary abuse heaped on the shoulders of the doctors. It is generally a case of other persons being envious of a man who has become emminent in such a noble profession. There is no class of men in the world who can begin to compare their work with the blessings the physicians have brought. They are the men to whom we entrust our loved ones when they are at the portals of death and they are the only men who can assist in keeping them in this life instead of having them pass to the Valley of Shadows. When we trust the lives of our loved ones to them, the life of a child for which they would gladly give up their own, then can we consider that any remuneration they would charge would be too high?

Mr. O'Connell brought out the fact that appendicitis above all other diseases calls for prompt attention. In this case the little girl was ill for five days before medical aid was summoned and it was almost too late. It was one of the worst cases and Dr. McNulty brought the child from the very doors of death. Instead of having paternal feeling this man objected to paying a paltry sum and made the remark that he'd rather see his child dead than pay it. This was the manner in which he spoke of the child whom God had placed in his care.

After a few remarks by Judge Huycke the jury retired.

REV. L. PHELPS READ PAPER

Pastoral Visitation His Subject Before Ministerial Association

The regular monthly meeting of the Ministerial Association was held in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday morning when a very interesting and helpful paper on Pastoral Visitation was read by Rev. Leonard Phelps, pastor of Mark Street Church. An interesting discussion followed.

A large number of ministers were present, this being especially due to the fact that the meeting would likely be the last to be attended by two of the ministers, Rev. F. A. Conners of Park Street Church and Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox Church.

The ministers expressed appreciation of Rev. Mr. Conners and Rev. Mr. Keith and wished them Godspeed. Adjournment was made to Coleman's Savoy, where Rev. Jas. Rollins presided at a farewell banquet.

OBITUARY

HERBERT CONROY.

Herbert Conroy, the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Conroy, of Otonabee, passed away Monday evening after an illness of somewhat lengthy duration. Besides his parents there are two brothers, James and John, and four sisters, Mrs. Garvey, Otonabee; Mrs. Allen, East City; and Pearl and Carrie at home, to mourn his loss. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at eight o'clock from the family residence, lot 31, concession 9, Otonabee, to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery.

MRS. JOHN DUNLAY.

There died last night Elizabeth McCarthy, wife of John Dunlay, 127 George Street. She had been married but two years and formerly lived in Hastings, after marriage coming to Peterborough to reside.

She is survived by her sorrowing husband and one child.

The funeral will take place to the G.T.R. station tomorrow morning, and the body taken on the 8.15 train to Hastings' Roman Catholic Church, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery in Hastings.

Prairie fires are sweeping over 50 square miles of territory in the vicinity of Manddan, N. D. Many settlers are missing.

GAMBLING CASES WERE DISMISSED

Magistrate Dumble Finds Restaurant is not a Public Place

The case of the young men who were charged with gambling in a public place, was dismissed by Magistrate Dumble this morning, as the Magistrate found that a restaurant is not a public place.

Following the complaint of the proprietor of the restaurant, the police visited the place and made the arrests.

The Police Chief says he will get after the City Dads to amend the bylaw.

The following is the judgment handed out in the gambling case:

Rex vs. David Edwards.

This is a charge laid under Bylaw No. 385 of the City of Peterborough, to prohibit gambling with dice in a public place, to wit, the Dominion Cafe. It is admitted that defendant did, against the will of the proprietor, gamble with dice in the cafe. But it is objected that the cafe was not a public place, within the meaning of the bylaw.

The bylaw in question, Sec. 26, prohibits such gambling at or upon any table or device or otherwise in any of the streets, lanes, or public places of the town.

The next clause of the Act authorizes the police to enter certain places where prohibited games are being played.

But the clause making the offence can alone be looked at to find what makes the offence. And it is clearly defined as gambling in a public place street or lane, and the evidence shows that it took place in a restaurant, which, though licensed as such, does not thereby become a public place within the meaning of the Act.

A street, square, park, or place where the people have a right to go without let or hindrance is such a public place, but there are no judgments holding that a restaurant, hotel, or even a railway station is a public place. Because people go to them freely is not sufficient to make them the people's, and take them out of the private control of the owners or proprietors.

This question was recently dealt with in the case of Rex vs. Cook, in the weekly notes of November 25th, 1912, where Mr. Justice Kelly delivered the judgment founded upon English cases, clearly deciding the meaning of the words "public place."

In Regina vs. Bell, 26 Ont., Rep., page 272, it was held that a custom house was not a public place within the meaning of a Toronto bylaw, relative to public morals, on which the defendant was charged with having made use of profane swearing in a public place.

The charges against the defendants will be dismissed.

IS NOT A SECRET NOW

Daisy Kilrain, Stenographer, Talks to Her Machine

By Hilda Clifford.

I really wonder if every girl feels as I do under similar circumstances. Certainly, I hope so, for I am too happy to draw a long breath. What is it that has made me so wildly joyous, oh little typewriter of mine? I will tap out the story on your keys, for you are indirectly responsible for it all.

First, do you need an introduction to me? If so, I am Daisy Kilrain, stenographer, and happiest girl in the world, just nineteen. Yesterday I could have said nineteen and never kissed, but today, well, typewriter, I'll tell you all about it. I've had several other places, but came here six months ago, and am the only girl in the business, the other employes being all men and boys, from the Head down to Kit the office boy. Of course my work was taking the letters of the Head, and occasionally ones from the rest, although they talk so slow that I can write them right off on you. The Head can rattle them off so fast that it keeps my pencil flying to keep up. It's hard to tell you just what the Head looks like, for you aren't a girl with eyes in your head; but he's great and big and such a man! His eyes look right into yours, and woe is me if you ever tell even a tiny fib; but I never have. There is something about such a man that inspires confidence, and, yes, love; I might as well write it and get it over. Some of the fellows in the outer office said that he was a woman hater, but I never believed that, for there are kind lines about his mouth, and when he smiles his whole face lights up, and you feel better and stronger for having known him. There is a lot of work here, but I like to work and keep busy, so I didn't mind, until the bookkeeper began putting off some of his work on me. He found out that I can add better than he, and then he kept on giving me more and more of his figuring to do, so that I had to stay overtime every night. At first I said nothing; then I thought I was entitled to dinner money, and spoke about it. He smiled, a rather unpleasant smile, and said:

"Is It Possible You Can Care for an Old Crusty Fellow Like Me?"

"Righto, Miss Daisy, you shall have your dinner, but I'll pay for it," and of course that ended dinner money for me, because I wouldn't have let him pay for anything for me, not if I starved.

Some one once told me that no girl ever married her employer unless she was fearfully in love or wanted a home very much indeed. Perhaps she is right, but I wonder why. Of course a man's stenographer does know him better than his home folks, in a way, but when he has only nice traits of character to show, why shouldn't she love him all the more? When a girl sees a man bear up under misfortune, keep his temper, show consideration under circumstances that would make a saint long to break all ten of the commandments, why, that tends to show how awfully nice he is, doesn't it? I think so. At last, yesterday morning, things came to a climax. The bookkeeper had piled things up on me the day before so that it was nine o'clock before I left the office, and I had not stopped for dinner. I left the work on the desk ready for him, but when I came down in the morning I found Kit the office boy nearly frantic because he had spilled ink all over all that carefully tabulated stuff, and I knew I would have to do it all over. This upset me so (though I didn't say a word to Kit; poor little chap, he couldn't help it) that my hands were shaking when I went in for dictation, and everything looked blurred before my eyes.

The Head began, speaking in his usual rapid way, but it really seemed to me that he, too, was nervous. Suddenly I found that he was beyond me, and I said, my voice trembling:

"Excuse me, but you are talking too fast."

He stared at me, and no wonder, for it was the first time I had ever asked him to speak slower.

"What's the matter?" he asked kindly, and I broke down. Just think of it, I cried like a baby, and all the time he was patting my shoulder with the ruler which he had snatched up in excitement, not knowing what to do with a sobbing girl. I kept on crying harder and harder, and he kept on patting my shoulder with renewed force, until at last I couldn't stand it any longer, and so I gasped out:

"Please don't hit me any more, you're fairly pounding me," and then he looked at the ruler and realized what he was doing. He gave a gasp himself, and said kind of breathlessly:

"Why, bless my soul, what have I been doing?" and gazed at me, as I could see through my fingers, for my hands were over my face.

"I didn't mean to do this way," I began to apologise.

"And I never meant to pound you," he explained, still holding the ruler and looking from it to me and back again. The funny side of it struck me and I began to laugh through my tears, and then to cry again, and then it all happened so suddenly.

He bent nearer, asking in that kind, nice way of his: "My poor little girl, what is it? Who has been imposing on you? Bless me, I can't bear to see a woman cry.

"My dear Miss Kilrain, I am going to ask you a very strange thing."

"Yes," I said encouragingly.

"I am wondering if you would feel hurt if I asked for your resignation," he blurted out.

"Why?" I asked simply.

He turned towards me, and caught my eyes. I did not try to hide my secret any more. There was no need. The dear reached forward, caught my hands in his own, asking eagerly:

"Tell me, little girl, if it is possible that you can care for an old crusty fellow like me?" Dear typewriter, he is only thirty-five, and to call himself old!

"It not only is possible, it IS," I said, rather mixed up as to words, but certainly not as to meaning; and then I ceased to belong to the unkissed, and this is my last day here. The poor dear thought it his duty to send me away because he feared his love for me might disturb me. Do you wonder, typewriter of mine, that I am the happiest girl in all the world?

PLOT SCENTED AT MONTREAL

Suspect's House Was Rendezvous for Germans

MONTREAL, Nov. 10. — Through the arrest of John Hoe, alias John Hughes, Inspector Brousseau, of the Inland Revenue Department, believes that a plot has been uncovered whereby a foreign foe, by means of a battery of guns, might control from a strategical point in Longueuil all five railroad lines entering Montreal. He is charged with selling liquor without a license.

Hoe's place of business, it is alleged was the rendezvous of many Germans of Montreal. The foundation of this club house is alleged to be of solid concrete construction in the style used for the mounting of heavy guns used by the German army.

Inspector Brousseau seized, when he raided Hoe's premises, a large quantity of ammunition, which turned out to be regular "war ammunition."

WIRELESS STATIONS IN U. S.

Secret German and Japanese Outfits Will Be Suppressed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Persistent reports that hidden wireless stations along the coast of the United States are serving as information bureaus for belligerent cruisers at sea has caused the navy to enjoin the Navy Department to locate and destroy such stations if they actually exist.

According to the reports, both German and Japanese have the concealed wireless outfits. One is said to be located in the woods of the Maine coast, another in the northwest; and still another on the Florida peninsula.

Messages have been picked up by merchant ships that apparently came from these stations, though the fact that they are generally in code has made it impossible to trace them to their origin.

Japanese Army For Europe?

TOKIO, Japan, Nov. 10.—Since the fall of the German position at Tsing-tau, the question of Japan sending an army to Europe has begun to attract increasing attention. The idea finds considerable support in military circles, where it is believed that such a move would be welcomed by France.

British Dreadnoughts Said to be Making for Pacific

PANAMA, Nov. 10.—Panama Canal officials and members of the Legation here say they have no information concerning the report that seven British Dreadnoughts were in the Atlantic bound west, possibly with the intention of proceeding through the Panama Canal to Pacific waters.

Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama Canal zone, says he has heard nothing from Washington relative to the use of the canal by warships.

The whereabouts of the German warships in the Pacific is unknown here.

Glasgow In the Straits.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 10.—The British cruiser Glasgow, which was engaged with the German squadron in a battle off the Chilean Coast on Sunday, Nov. 1, and the British transport Otranto have passed Delgada Point Light in the Straits of Magellan, bound for the Falkland Islands, a British possession to the east of the extreme southern point of South America.

This information is contained in advices received here by the Admiralty from the naval authorities in the Straits of Magellan, who said they had seen the Glasgow and Otranto passing through the straits toward the Atlantic.

Jap Warship at Honolulu.

HONOLULU, Nov. 10. — After receiving word that the German gunboat Geier had been interned here for the duration of the war, the Japanese battleship Hizen, which has been keeping a watch for the Geier outside the harbor entered this port yesterday for fuel and provisions. Under the neutrality regulations the Hizen is privileged to remain 24 hours.

KAISER PRAISES HIS CAVALRY

Hopes They Will Have Chance to Surround Enemy

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—(Via London.) —Emperor William, in an address to the officers of a cavalry division which he reviewed in a Belgian town, said: "I learn with pleasure that the cavalry fought brilliantly. The horsemen in this war have been entrusted with tasks such as I never believed possible. It is perhaps my fault that the training in times of peace never included the duties which the cavalry are here performing. The cavalry fought with bayonets and entrenching tools and Gen. von Marwitz tells me that the infantry are proud to charge with their brothers of the cavalry.

"I hope, however, that the cavalry may yet have an opportunity to use their lances if we succeed, with the help of the dear God who already has permitted us so many successes, in surrounding the enemy."

ROLLING ON GERMANY.

Russia's Huge Army Is Moving Perfectly, Says Times' Correspondent.

LONDON, Nov. 10. — The correspondent of The Times in Warsaw, telegraphing under date of Nov. 6, says that after spending a fortnight in the Polish field of operation, he has arrived at the conclusion that the Russian organizations is at last under way in every direction, and that within thirty days Germany either will have to submit to an invasion by vast Russian hosts or withdraw substantial bodies of her best troops from the western frontier.

"Russia's huge army is now moving with a precision which is remarkable," he says, "and it is advancing with incredible rapidity and smothering every rear guard action with its numbers. The transports is keeping pace everywhere, moving forward night and day. In may cases the main bodies accomplish twenty verts (about 14 miles) daily."

Carranza Withholds Guarantee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Administration officials admitted last night that the Mexican situation had again assumed a delicate aspect.

Gen. Carranza has partially fulfilled the Washington Government's request for guarantees before withdrawing the American troops from Vera Cruz, but his decree does not satisfy the main point asked for by the United States, that Mexicans who served the American Government during the occupation of the port, be not punished subsequently for such service.

May Ship Goods Under Guarantee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, yesterday notified the State Department that an agreement has been made with Denmark, Sweden, and Norway, that goods destined for neutral consumption only will pass freely into these countries if consigned to special persons with certificates of guarantee against re-exportation.

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Speculative selling, due to the absence of any radical bullish news, operated as a drag today on the wheat market. Prices at the close were unsettled, ⅜c to ⅝c lower than Saturday night. Other cereals, too, suffered a net decline—corn ⅜c to ⅞c, and oats ½c to ⅝c. In provisions, the outcome was unchanged to 10c down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 9.—The wheat market was steady this morning. There were no Liverpool prices quoted, but it was understood values there were unchanged. Trading was light generally, altho, owing to heavier receipts, quite a lot of hedging was being brought out, tho causing for the time being an easier tone, and prices fractionally lower. Later there was some good buying of May futures by export houses, causing a strengthening of values. The cash demand for wheat was good, oats and barley were also wanted, and all offerings were easily sold.

Good sales for export have been marked and export firms were heavy buyers of both futures and cash grains. Winnipeg wheat futures closed ⅜c to ½c higher, oats closed ¼c to ⅜c lower, while flax closed unchanged.

Winnipeg cash: Wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.21¼; No. 2 do., $1.17¾; No. 3 do., $1.13; No. 4 do., $1.07¾; No. 5 do., 98¼c; No. 6 do., 94¼c.

Barley—No. 3, 70½c; No. 4, 65½c; rejected, 61½c; feed, 61c.

Flax—No. 1 N.W.C., $1.26¾; No. 2 C. W., $1.23¾.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—There continues to be a good demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, and sales of several loads were made at an advance in price of 6d per quarter, but the counter offers were 9d to 1s per quarter below what exporters were asking. The local trade in coarse grains continues quiet, but the tone of the market is very firm. Demand for flour is quiet, but the undertone to the market is strong and higher prices are being talked of. Millfeed is fairly active with a better demand from both local and country buyers.

The butter market is quiet and steady, finest creamery at the auction sale today selling at 27⅝c. Cheese is firm, but business over the cable was quiet today. Exports for the week were 34,649 boxes, as compared with 54,397 for the corresponding week last year.

Demand for eggs is good, and the market is active and strong.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 9.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.19½; No. 1 northern, $1.18½; No. 2 do., $1.15½; Dec., $1.16½.

Hogs.

Selects fed and watered sold at $7.80; $7.75 weighed off cars, and $7.15 f.o.b. cars at country points.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market an easy feeling continues to prevail for cattle, owing to the liberal supplies coming forward, but prices were practically unchanged from last week. Trade in fairly good steers was fairly active, of which the supply was fair, and sales were made at $7 to $7.25, while fair stock brought from $6 to $6.75 per 100 pounds. The tone of the market for canning stock was weak, owing to the liberal offerings, and prices scored a further decline of 25c per cwt., with sales of bulls at $4.25 to $4.50, and cows at $3.50 to $4 per cwt.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for sheep or lambs, but the feeling was strong, and the prospects are that prices will go higher in the near future, owing to the fact that supplies are falling off. Ontario lambs brought $7.50 to $7.75, and Quebec $7 to $7.25, while ewes brought $7 to $7.25 per cwt.

The demand for grass-fed calves was good, at prices ranging from $6 to $10 each. Milk-fed calves were scarce and wanted. The market for hogs was firm, with a good demand from packers, and sales of selected lots were made at $8,

UNITED STATES CATTLE BARRED

Canadian Government Takes Precautions Against Epidemic

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—The foot-and-mouth disease epidemic among cattle in the United States has assumed such serious proportions that the Government here has been compelled to pass stringent importation regulations applying to the whole of the Republic. Word was also received here that the United States has prohibited the importation of cattle from Canada for reasons given below. Several orders-in-council had been previously passed by the Canadian Government prohibiting the importation from a number of states of commodities which might carry the disease. The epidemic has now spread in a virulent form to no less than eleven states, including New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware, while two other states are under suspicion. It has therefore been considered necessary to prohibit the importation from any part of the U. S. of the following: Cattle, sheep, swine or goats, or the flesh, hides, hoofs, horns or other parts of such animals (with the exception of cured meats, lard and tallow), or of hay, straw, fodder or manure. The prohibition is to be in effect for a period of six months, after which it may be raised or extended, according to conditions.

So far there has been no trace of the disease reported from any part of Canada.

Col. De Wet Loses Son.

LONDON, Nov. 10. — Gen. Christian De Wet, the rebel leader, says Reuter's Pretoria correspondent, "has been in contact with and dispersed a small Government commando under Gen. Cronje, a member of the Legislature, near Doornberg. In the course of the fighting Gen. De Wet's son, Daniel, was killed.

"The Government is sending strong reinforcements to Cronje."

Trade of Austria Suffers.

VENICE, Nov. 10.—How severely the trade of Austria has been affected by the war is revealed in an official report of the Austrian Ministry of Commerce, a copy of which has just reached here from Vienna.

According to this document Austria's imports of September amounted to 111,000,000 crowns ($22,200,000), as compared to 260,000,000 crowns ($52,000,000) in September of 1913. The decrease in exports was much greater. They amounted in September of this year to only 61,000,000 crowns ($12,000,000), barely one-quarter of the total reached in September, 1913.

Greek Minister Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. — The Greek Minister, Mr. Schliemann, announced yesterday that because of a disagreement with his Government's policy, which made it impossible for him to carry out certain instructions he had received from Athens, he had been recalled, and that Mr. Vouros, former charge d'affaires, had been instructed to take over Greek interests here.

'KNOW WHAT YOUR IDEAL IS

First Step to Real Success, Though Few Seem to Realize Its Importance.

Several years ago when I filled a position which brought me many visitors each day, and many more letters in the same time, I was overburdened with requests for advice from persons who wished "to succeed;" "to accomplish;" "to attain." But, as strange as the statement may seem to you, I can truthfully say that not one per cent.—not one in a hundred of these earnest seekers was able to state exactly what he or she really wanted.

They were dissatisfied and discontented, and felt the vague urge of unrest pushing them forward to further endeavor and attainment—but it stopped right there. Ninety-nine out of every hundred did not know what they wanted. They asked not only for advice regarding the means of accomplishment and attainment, but also for information as to what they should really desire.

"Silly," you exclaim. Not a bit of it. I venture to say to you—yes, you who are now reading these lines, are not much better off regarding clear-cut ideas and ideals. You want, and want and want, of course—but just what do you want? Have you a clearly defined idea, and a clear-cut ideal of the object of your desire? Honor bright now, have you?—William Walker Atkinson, in the Nautilus.

CONNIE MACK WILL BREAK UP HIS $100,000 INFIELD

Admits he Contemplates Other Changes in Athletics' Line-up — Can't See Higher Salaries

Philadelphia, Nov. 10. — Following the startling announcement that Plank, Chief Bender and Coombs had their names stricken from the Athletics' roster, Manager Mack admitted today that further changes are to take place. The lean builder of winning baseball machines has hinted that the Plank-Bender-Coombs release is only an introductory move to a general shake-up.

One thing has been established: Manager Mack has further decided a number of his proteges have reached the limit of their salary claims. That is, he will release these men or trade them, whatever the case may be, sooner than pay salaries out of proportion to his appraised value of the player.

Mack continues to mask his plans, but it is generally believed by those acquainted with the facts that he will break up his famous $100,000 infield.

According to information coming from an authoritative source, one player is booked to be sold or sent in exchange for players and money to another American League club. There probably will be other changes.

PICKS VARSITY TO WIN INTERCOLLEGIATE HONORS

Varsity ought to win out in the play-off with McGill if they can keep under control that bugbear of rugby teams — over-confidence. Doubtless there was a certain amount of that in the McGill team.

At all events Varsity met the trick plays by a well-concerted defence and forced McGill to kick, a game at which they made practically no gains. On the other hand, Varsity had all the advantage when they had the ball, and in this they should be even better in the next game. McGill has neglected the defence play, and it is doubtful if they can get it working before the final game.

On both teams there was apparent a marked neglect to play to the score, if that term may be applied. When Varsity finally got ahead they had the ball in McGill's half, and should have resorted to a strong kicking game to keep the ball down on McGill's goal line. Kicking on the first down every time would have been the best play, because it would be practically impossible for McGill to have got anywhere near scoring. That is what was done in Hamilton a few years ago, and with a small lead Varsity kept the Tigers back in their own quarter. Instead of doing that on Saturday they tried bucks and long passes. Once or twice these latter were particularly hazardous, for if the pass had ben intercepted—and there were a couple of chances for that — it might have put a different complexion on the result.

McGill, too, missed their opportunity, for when they were behind the only hope they could possibly have was to loosen up the game, and kicks were practically the only way of doing that.—Toronto Star.

COMMENT As You Like it

STRINGENT METHODS will very likely be brought into force with the sole aim of making rugby a clean sport. Several games in the various Canadian organizations this season have been featured by the work of "Ruf Neks" and the climax was reached on Saturday when the Hamilton Rowing Club went out in the last quarter to take scalps of the T.R. and A.A. President Eddie McGillivray of the O.R.F.U. was present and has since stated: "I saw stuff pulled off which if it occurred on the street would result in an arrest. We must have clean football. If the executive will not back me up in any action I take, then, the O.R.F.U. is no place for me." Eddie generally means what he says.

A STEP has been taken by the officials of the Winnipeg Victoria Hockey Club to donate fifty per cent. of their share in every game they play this winter to the Athletic Patriotic Fund. This gift on the part of the Vics means a big hole in their income but this fact the pioneer club did not hesitate on, and voted unanimously to give over to the cause half of their receipts. The action of the officers of the Winnipeg Vics will go down in the annals of sport as deserving of the highest commendation.

NOVEMBER THE 21st will go down in the history of sport as the big day of 1914. Argos and Tigers will play off and it is expected that ten thousand fans will see the conflict. A similar number will very likely witness the McGill and Varsity teams play off while Harvard and Yale will play to seventy thousand the same day at New Haven. Who said the war affected sport?

THE MEETING of American League magnates decided that nine games should be played by the contestants in the world series and that a big reduction should be made in the price of admission. The proposition will be taken up at the meeting of National League magnates next month before anything definite is decided on.

THE "ATHLETIC HEART" which all participants in football, racing or any other strenuous sport, are subject to, is to be investigated at Harvard. If many Crimson athletes are found to be susceptible to heart trouble, they will be permitted to participate in only one major sport during a college year.

FREDDIE WELSH, the lightweight champion, was held to a draw last night by Charlie White of Chicago in a ten round bout. Under the law no decision could be given but in the opinion of the newspaper men the Chicagoan easily split even with the Britisher.

JUDGING BY current reports the officials of hockey clubs in these sections won't be found assisting the Patriotic Fund. Many of them will be applying to the committee in charge for assistance before the season is over.

JOHNNY KLING WILL RETURN TO BASEBALL

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 10.—Johnny Kling will return to baseball next season. The former Cub backstop and Boston National manager admitted as much today.

"Last season," said Kling, "I had a lot of important business in Kansas City. It could not be neglected, and I thought it better to attend to it, but I have not retired from baseball. There is the old call of the diamond spangles, just as in anything else, and I have heard it."

DOOIN MAY PLAY FOR CINCINNATI

Friend of Herzog and Would Like to Play in Home Town

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 10. — Charlie Dooin, the red-topped hero of numerous busy Philadelphia seasons, may wear a Cincinnati uniform next summer, thus coming back to his old home town after long years of absence, but he will only be a private in the ranks — first lieutenant to Manager Herzog.

Dooin and Herzog have always been the best of friends and would pull together in great style for the interests of the team.

The deposed Phillie leader says he was handed a hot horseshoe at Philadelphia—that he was limited at expenditures and retarded in his progressive ideas, while he now feels especially sore because his club has refused to give him an unconditional release.

LOUIE COOK SEEKS JOB AS MANAGER

London, Nov. 10. — President Stevely, of the London Canadian League club, received a letter from Louis Cook, the former Ottawa and Guelph manager, this morning, containing Cook's application to the local management job. Cook is anxious to come here. He thinks this is the best city in the league, and promises to put in a winning team.

Cook was managing the Asheville club of the South Carolina League the past season, but he could not get his team out of the cellar, and quit about the middle of the season. He won a pennant for Ottawa the first year he was in the Canadian League, but Frank Shaughnessy rendered him great assistance. The following season Louie handled the Guelph team, and finished in the first division.

What is Indigestion ?

Three ladies had planned a drive together, but when the hour appointed came one of them asked to be excused on the score of an attack of indigestion. Her companions expressed their disappointment and sympathy, but the older of them insisted that the excuse was insufficient.

"You shouldn't let yourself be governed by such ideas," she said. "It is really all as you think. What is indigestion, anyway?"

The third lady, wishing to avoid the apparently impending discussion on mental control of illness, broke in quickly.

"Indigestion," she said, "is the failure to adjust a square meal to a round stomach."

$70 FOR BELGIAN RELIEF WORK

Patriotic Concert and Box Social at Preneveau

On Friday evening, November 6th a concert and box social were held in the Belmont town hall under the auspices of the Ladies' Patriotic League of Preneveau.

The program consisted of speeches, solos, recitations, quartettes, duets and choruses of a patriotic nature, including "It's a long way to Tipperary." These were contributed by talent from the vicinity and from Blairton, and were very much enjoyed by the large audience.

After the program the dainty boxes of lunch provided by the ladies were sold at auction by Messrs. W. J. Andrew and S. Johnson, and many surprised faces were in evidence when the time came to enjoy the good things with their partners.

The very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the King."

The proceeds, about $70, will be used by the league for Belgian relief work and to aid the Red Cross Society.

WAR IS VERY APPARENT IN ENGLAND

What this war actually means to the people in the old country is graphically portrayed in a letter received by friends from Captain G. F. Horsley, a former local boy, now serving in the Edmonton regiment, encamped at Salisbuly Plain. He writes as follows:—

"To come down to the conditions here. War is very apparent. Everywhere are large camps, and all the coast is fortified and garrisoned with soldiers. If Canadians could see the appeals for men made here I believe they would send ten contingents like the first, in short order. I believe it should be done, because I think that it is a mistake to cripple business here and let men stand idle in Canada who might be fighting. You get the war news, and I have been down to Felixstowe where the booming of cannons can be heard. I have seen the bills and appeals in all shapes and forms for men to enlist, and though the business goes on as usual the country smells of war. Soldiers are everywhere. Germans are arrested and some of their shops broken up. Searchlights all around the coast, and up in the air for Zeppelins. Airships patrolling the air, cities darkened so as not to be targets for bombs. It is unexcited but a sober state of war and terrible in what it fortells. A possibility of invasion, and all that it means."

WELCOME TO THE NEW BANDMASTER

It was a loyal reception that was accorded the new band master, Mr. F. W. Beer, at the Army Temple last evening. A large number were out, and greatly enjoyed the program given by the songsters' brigade. The program which was of a high order, was enthusiastically applauded.

Adjutant McElhiney in a few words welcomed Mr. Beer, and hoped that he would find everything congenial. Mr. Beer in a few remarks thanked the Adjutant for his kind words.

Auto vs. Bicycle

A small boy and his bicycle came off second best early today when he and an auto driven by Dr. N. H. Sutton, 319 Stewart street, collided at the corner of Hunter and George streets. The boy was thrown off and the hind rim and spokes of his wheel will have to be replaced.

He was unhurt.

Women's War Fund.

There will be the usual monthly meeting of the Women's War Fund Committee in the armouries in whatever room the authorities give us for the purpose, on Wednesday, November 11th, at 4.30 p.m. It is earnestly desired that every member of the committee be there. Don't let a few people fight the battle of right and decency for you. Be a good soldier of the Lord and the King and be there. The woman who has the vote and neglects to be there is as bad as the Lancastas (of whom there are not a few in Peterborough) who go there and vote for selfish and unpatriotic ends.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. Walter Paterson took place this afternoon from the residence of W. Menzies, 291 Rubidge street.

At three o'clock a short but impressive funeral service was conducted by the Rev. R. Pogue, in which he spoke of the sterling qualities which had marked the life of the deceased.

The pallbearers were Messrs. H. Rush, A. Gibson, B. Shortly, R. Hicks, A. Hall and W. G. Ferguson.

The funeral was attended by many of the friends she had made during her long residence here.

GERMANS MAKING SUPREME EFFORT TO CAPTURE YPRES

British Are Still Holding Position and Have Actually Made Several Advances at Storm Centre—Belgians Resist all Efforts to Dislodge Them—Success of Russia Draws More Troops From West.

LONDON, June 10.—Following the comparative lull of the past few days in Belgium and along the line in Northwestern France, the Germans have thrown six hundred thousand men into the fight for Ypres, held by British and French forces. When it seemed that the final word had been reached in the previous conflicts on his front, the fighting of yesterday is declared to be fiercer than ever before. The opposing armies simply fly at one another's throats and the attacking regiments come back in shreds. But despite everything the allies are still holding and have actually advanced at several points around Ypres and further west. The main German assaults are understood to have been delivered southeast of Ypres, all of which were frustrated. The present conflict will be the last on the present front. Either force must win or lose, and the allies await the outcome with perfect confidence.

From the bare and meagre details given out in Paris, it can be drawn that a major operation is under way. The opposing trenches are so close together that it is impossible to bring heavy guns into play for fear of inflicting as much damage on friend as on foe. Bayonet fighting is the order of the day and sanguinary contests mark every hour of the twenty-four. A heavy fog which rolled in from the North Sea served to complicate matters still further yesterday. Aviators were helpless in the face of this damp blanket and cavalry patrols were in constant danger of stumbling into a host of their enemies.

Along the sand dunes of the Flanders' coast, the Belgians are holding stubbornly to their own and all of the German efforts to advance have been beaten off. Another assault was attempted on Nieuport, but without success.

Dixmude has been under a heavy bombardment and infantry movements were reported from that zone, the allies holding their own steadily.

The storm centre is at Ypres and here the British have concentrated their effectiveness. Nothing which the Germans have been able to do has ruffled the calm of their defence. The German guns shell the British positions, their troops come forward at the double, are driven off—a long line of dead and wounded marks their retreat. This manoeuvre is repeated over and over again, varied by counter assaults in which Tommy Atkins has so far more than held his own. But the cost in men is very serious, some regiments have lost nearly all their officers, and a number of splintered companies having been absorbed by others only less distressed. A train of wounded is constantly moving rearward.

As indicated in the War Office statement the French have met with excellent success on their centre and extreme right. The situation improves steadily around Verdun.

Private advices from Berlin, by way of Copenhagen, confirm the report that the Germans are transferring a considerable number of troops from the west to the east.

The German newspapers have not published the news of the great Russian advance to the Silesian frontier.

The news has been confirmed that the Crown Prince, in person, is commanding the central army on the eastern front of battle.

Another Berlin report declares that the Germans most decidedly have not abandoned their project of reaching Calais. The report adds that the main object of the western operations is still to open a road to the French coast.

A despatch from Berlin received last night by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., says:

"Main headquarters reports that several of the enemy's ships again attacked our right wing yesterday afternoon, but were rapidly driven off by our artillery."

The correspondent of The Amsterdam Tijd at Antwerp says:

"The movement of German troops from the western theatre of the war, on a big scale is now progressing. A large number appear to have been withdrawn from the Yser.

"Long military trains filled with men and ammunitions are moving into Germany by way of Brussels and Louvain."

A despatch from Berlin says that a panic exists over the advance of the Russians into Eastern Prussia, and troops are being rushed to Poland from Belgium.

SEVEN PERSONS HURT WHEN CHURCH FLOOR COLLAPSES

Re-Opening of Edifice Marked by Serious Accident at Shiloh.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Nov. 10.—Seven persons were injured in the collapse of the rear half of the floor of the Methodist Church at Shiloh while special services were being held to mark the re-opening of the edifice, which had been closed a month for repairs. A large congregation had assembled for the occasion. Those hurt were: Master White, internal injuries; Albert Campbell, back hurt; Miss Elva White, leg broken; Miss Stalker, leg broken; Mrs. N. R. Smith, Mrs. Amos McMullen, and Mrs. Bullied.

The accident happened just after the congregation had assembled. With the people went down chairs, seats, and two stoves with fires burning in each.

Albert Campbell, one of the injured, had been unable to gain admission to the church owing to the size of the congregation, and he seated himself in the basement. He was crushed to the floor under the debris, and when found had a heavy beam across his back.

GOOD PROGRAM AT FIRST MEETING

All Saints' Church Association Starts off Well

The first meeting of the newly-organized All Saints' Church Association was held last night in the parish hall with an attendance of two hundred members of the congregation. Miss B. Dawson presided.

The program was as follows:

Instrumental duet—Mr. Hill and Miss Flowers.

Vocal selection—Mr. Flowers.

Recitation—Miss Alice Dawson.

Instrumental—Misses Thompson.

Vocal duet—Messrs. Chandler and Weller.

One of the most popular numbers was the elocutionary work of little Miss Alice Dawson, daughter of Mr. J. D. Dawson of Easton, Pa. Although but seven years of age, the little miss displayed considerable talent.

The large attendance at the meeting was gratifying to the officers, and there appears to be every evidence that the association will fulfill its purpose, that of promoting the social side of the church's work and bring the congregation together so that they may become better acquainted.

Address From Congregation to Rev. H.J. Keith

The following is the address presented to Rev. H. J. Keith and Mrs. Keith at Knox Church, last night:—

To Rev. H. J. Keith, M.A., B.D.,
and Mrs. Keith:

Your decision to respond to the call for service in a field other than Knox Church, Peterborough, caused in us feelings of dismay and appreciation. Your identification with Knox Church since its inception as a separate charge, your constant tender care in it, your interest in it and advocacy for its advancement in season and out of season, led us to hope that you regarded it as the offspring of your effort and that you would still watch over it and cherish it until it became of age.

We believe thoroughly that the regret at parting is not entirely on our part; that you have found Knox Church—your first love as a congregation—one which has reciprocated your advances and that the kindly sympathy that has existed between us has been to our mutual benefit and uplifting.

On various occasions your identification with the material and numerical growth of Knox Church has been referred to—each part being the history of your effort. Tonight we would turn as a congregation to consider your influence upon us, your sympathy could be relied upon by all who mourned; your tact in overcoming resistance was admired by all who observed; your persistence in arriving at an object, once being sure it was the proper course, has been a subject of comment; your ability to get men and women of your congregation to work has resulted in the growth of Knox Church; your cheerful presence with all who rejoiced was ever welcome; but above all your faithfulness in speaking the message of Christ and standing for all that it implied has been of untold influence upon us to whom you have ministered.

In your capacity as a citizen of Peterborough you have stood for a high standard of morality and every effort for the uplifting of the city has found in you an earnest and sane advocate. Your removal from among us will be regretted by those with whom you have been associated but we know that it will be but a transplantation of your influence.

Mrs. Keith, you have been a copartner who has not spared yourself in your efforts to render assistance to the congregation of Knox Church. Your cheerful hopefulness and amiability, your uniform kindness, your abnegation of self have endeared you to the congregation. The Presbytery of Peterborough will lose an earnest missionary worker in your removal.

To your new field of work in Western Canada you will carry the prayers and good wishes of your friends of Knox and the mother church and on their behalf we would tender this purse of gold as an earnest of their appreciation of your work and influence amongst us.

Signed on behalf of the congregation of Knox Church, Peterborough.

SCRAPS AIRED IN POLICE COURT

By-law Must be Sustained Says Magistrate

In Police Court this morning, Frederick Eastland was fined $2 for disorderly conduct.

Everett Castle and Joseph Fallon were charged with conducting themselves in a disorderly manner on George street, south of Townsend street, on Saturday night. It appears that they were engaged in a scuffle on the street which impeded the traffic. The defendants told of how they had travelled to the police station in company with Detective Meagher. It appears that Fallon was with him for company only, and he objected to Castle being separated from him to such an extent, that upon the protest of Fallon several times, he was also put in a cell. He said that upon his first entry he met with a warm reception, and told of receiving a kick from Detective Meagher. This Detective Meagher denied. In summing up the evidence, the magistrate said that the bylaw must be sustained. He imposed a fine of $2 on each.

P. Guerin was charged with assaulting one Harry Ranger. It appears that he was passing the defendant's door, and he came out and hit him. The plaintiff is 14 years of age. Some boys have been in the habit of annoying the defendant's mother and stealing crab apples.

The case was dismissed.

James Robertson was assessed $2 for being drunk.

NEW VERSES FOR TIPPERARY SONG

Mr. T. A. B. Browne, of the Immigration branch of the Department of Interior, Ottawa, has composed two additional verses for Tommy's marching song, which have been well received generally. They are:

Back to Tipperary started Paddy on the run,
But when half way he heard them say, the fighting had begun.
He wrote to Mollie saying, "Dear, although I love you so,
"Mo country's callin', darlin', as I'm Irish, I must go."

Now Paddy's in the trenches, fightin' like a lion bold,
And Irish Mollie's waitin' with a heart as true as gold,
But when the Kaiser's down and out, and Belgian's free again,
He'll start for Tipperary town singing this refrain.

HONORS OF WAR FOR EMDEN SURVIVORS

DIXMUDE IS TAKEN BY FOE

Allies Recover Possession of Lombertzyde and Hold Approaches to Dixmude Along the Canal

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 11. — The official statement this afternoon says:

"Fighting was resumed Tuesday morning between Nieuport and the River Lys with great severity, the Germans taking Dixmude and the Allies recovering Lombertzyde. The Allies still hold approaches to Dixmude along the canal from Nieuport to Ypres, which have been firmly occupied.

"British troops attacked at several points and succeeded everywhere in stopping the enemy on the river front. With the exception of slight advances for the Allies at two points, the situation shows no change."

ESCAPED PRISONERS FROM CENTRAL AGAIN IN TOILS

Earl Schweir and Companions are Under Arrest Near Gravenhurst

Toronto, Nov. 11. — The provincial police at Gull Lake, near Gravenhurst, arrested four men last week for robbery, and although the robbers gave fictitious names their descriptions reached the Toronto police and they were identified as James Mulhall, J. Spence, D. McLoughlin and E. Schweir, the four men who assaulted Guard Sangster at the Central Prison on October 14 and made their escape from the prison.

When the suspicions of the Toronto police were aroused the photographs of the men were sent to Bracebridge, where the convicts are in jail, and they were identified. Those who were trailing the escaped convicts first learned of their whereabouts when a horse and wagon were stolen the next night from a stable on Spadina road. This is an old trick of "Red" Mulhall. The following day a gentleman was approached in West Toronto and was asked to drive them to Robert street, but he refused. From what he told the police it was evident that these were the men for whom the police were searching. The next clue was found in Newmarket, where they were seen driving through lanes. After reaching Yonge street again they came as far as Richmond Hill. Just north of that town the horse that had been stolen was found dead in a ditch. When found, the horse was still in the harness attached to the wagon. It had evidently died from exhaustion.

The men were not heard from again until arrested for the robbery at Gull Lake. They are still in Bracebridge, where they will face the charge of robbery, and will then be brought to Toronto, where the Central Prison authorities will probably lay a charge of jail-breaking against the men, which may result in the four men being sent to Kingston after their Toronto terms expire.

DECISIONS OF THE REVISION COURT

Some Appeals From Assessment in Business Section Are Dismissed --- Expert Valuators Will be Called for Other Cases

The special sitting of the Court of Revision to deal with appeals of property owners in the business section of the city was held yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, E. L. Goodwill and J. Corkery appeared for property owners. G. N. Gordon was present in the interests of the city. Mr. Hall requested the Board to take the cases collectively instead of individually, but Mr. Gordon claimed that the city was the respondent and therefore had the right to state how the cases should be tried. He favored taking the cases separately, and the Board sustained him.

Mr. Hall asked that the appeals of the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. for that property immediately south of Brock street on the west side of George street, be dealt with first, but Mr. Gordon pointed out that only one section of the property, and that the store occupied by F. Mason, had been properly appealed. It was found that a notice of appeal had to include the cause of appeal, and as the appeal of F. Mason was the only one correctly entered, the others were dismissed on the technicality. Mr. Hall, taking but the one case, endeavored to ascertain the methods brought into play by Assessor Henry in securing the value of this land. Mr. Henry stated that he was guided by the selling price of land across the street and the increase in the city's population.

"How much has the city's population increased during the past year?" Mr. Hall inquired, and the assessor replied that he would estimate the increase at about 600. In answer to a question as to why the property should advance forty per cent. in value with the population advancing 600, he remarked that the advance should have been put in force for the past four or five years.

Assessor Henry stated that he assessed property at the actual value, and that value greatly depends on the selling price of property in the neighborhood. Mr. Hall claimed he could show that the value placed by the assessor on land in residential sections did not correspond with the value he placed on land in the business section. Mr. Gordon objected that the court wasn't concerned in the value of any property except that over which the appeal was made, but Mr. Hall pointed out how the consideration of the value at which the assessor placed land in the residential sections of the city was necessitated in showing that the assessment on George street was too high. He claimed that it was not right that some property throughout the city should increase fifty per cent. in value and other property increase one hundred per cent. His point was that he could show that the residential sections of the city were not consistently

Karl Lody Executed

German is Shot in the Tower of London for Espionage

FIRST SINCE 1700

LONDON, Nov. 11. — Karl Hans Lody, German spy and pseudo-American, who recently was court-martialed in Middlesex Guild Hall and condemned to death, was shot in the Tower of London last Friday morning, it has been learned.

The statement concerning the execution is brief, saying, "Sentence was duly confirmed."

It is understood that Lody died bravely, refusing to the last to reveal the name of the superior officer from whom he received his instructions to spy on the British navy.

This was the first execution in the Tower of London since 1700. The scene of the execution was the tower barracks, not far from the spot where Anne Boleyn and other persons famous in English history were put to death.

Lody was about 28 years old.

For a while Lody stayed around Scotland and kept tabs on ship centres, accumulating a mass of details about armament and the location of British fighting vessels.

His former wife testified against him through the mails.

Local Dentist Shares Estate

By the terms of a brief will drawn up on June 22, 1908, the two sons and three daughters of the late John Wightman, of 6 Wightman avenue, each receive $9124.49. The deceased, who died on Oct. 21, left an estate valued at $45,622.45, and consisting of $15,772.45 in mortgages, $1,200 cash on hand, real estate, Nos. 345 and 347 King street west, $23,000, and lot 3, plan 711, or the west side of Spadina road, $1,250, and $4,000 insurance. There were also four shares in the Welland Tract Depository noted as "of no value."

hTe heirs are Robert, teacher at Harbord Collegiate; Henry, dentist, Peterboro; Miss Martha Wightman and Mesdames Chas. H. Smith and G. A. Robertson.—Toronto Telegram.

Many Absentees From the House

Thirty-Two Government Supporters Are at the Front.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Parliament opened today without the usual brilliant display of scarlet and gold uniforms, and sober khaki was in evidence everywhere, when the King made his military progress through the streets. One hundred and five Unionist members were prevented by war business from taking their seats, and thirty-two government supporters are actually at the front and many more are absent on government business.

To Consider War Measures

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The King's speech at the opening of Parliament today said that Parliament had been summoned to take such steps as were necessary to forward that cause on which the whole Empire is united, to prosecute the war to a victorious issue; that since the previous session the area of the war had been enlarged by the entrance of the Ottoman Empire, contrary to the councils and entreaties of the allied powers; that the British army and navy are maintaining their glorious tradition, and that the whole Empire is determined on the triumph of British arms at whatever sacrifice.

Parliament would be asked to make financial provision for the conduct of the war, and only war measures were to be submitted for their consideration.

FIGHTING AGAINST BIG ODDS

Indian Troops Have to Contend With Many Disadvantages

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The Indian forces in France have made good, but have achieved none of the daring and extraordinary exploits attributed to them, according to a statement issued by the official press bureau last night, under date of Nov. 10, written by "An Observer with the Indian corps."

Above all the account emphasizes the difficulties under which the Indians are fighting by reason of their ignorance of the French, German and English languages. Repeatedly they have been subjected to tricks on the part of the Germans. 'The Germans are full of resource," says the account, "and it is one of their favorite plans to lure the allied troops to attack them by various devices, especially by an indication of surrender. If this description is successful a skillfully concealed machine gun turns a murderous fire upon those who have advanced either to attack or accept surrender.

"Under all these circumstances it is a subject of great satisfaction that the Indian troops have so finely fulfilled the high expectations which were formed of them. A word of caution should be uttered with regard to the amazing adventures and exploits attributed to them — recommendations desired neither by the officers nor the men.

"It need hardly be said that the conduct and example of British officers, who have undergone precisely the same hardships as the men, have been worthy of the highest traditions of the service. In loss of officers and men Great Britain has paid, is paying and will continue to pay a cruel and constant price for the liberties of Europe and her own existence as a world-wide power."

Of the situation in France the statement says:

"Little change has taken place in the general position. There are, however, not wanting signs that the violence of the German offensive, which has been as resolutely pushed as it has been stubbornly met, is gradually spending its strength."

GOES TO CHATHAM.

Mr. F. C. Mills who acted as business manager of the Courier for some time, and who was previously connected with the Peterboro Review, left today for Chatham, where he has assumed a responsible position in connection with the business office of the Chatham News. Many local friends will wish Mr. Mills hearty success.—Brantford Courier.

WAR NOTES

LONDON, Nov. 11. — Petrograd reports that the Austrian commandant at Cracow has expelled all non-combatants from the city, in the expectation of the Russian advance.

Russians made prisoners of the German generals, Von Makenge and Von Liebert.

Brussels reports hardly any German soldiers left there, all except a minimum garrison having been sent to the front.

Refugees from the coast in Brussels describe the terribly accurate fire of the British warships. A wounded German officer asserts that anly 84 of his regiment of 1,000 men are left alive.

Dr. E. Johnstone, of San Francisco, just returned from Belgium, says the Germans are short of chloroform and ether, having failed to make sufficient provision of these necessaries before the war broke out, confident that they would replenish their stock by captures in France. Supplies of lead are also running short, owing to the stoppage of mines in Galicia and Silesia, and musical makers have been called on to surrender their stock of lead.

Dutch fishermen who got the U-9 tangled up in a trawl net made the catch of the season.

Japanese cruisers will patrol the Pacific coast and see that British Columbia is kept a white man's country.

HONORS FOR SURVIVORS

Captain Mueller of the Emden and Prince Franz Joseph Retain Their Swords

200 OF CREW WERE KILLED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The Admiralty announced that Captain Mueller of the German cruiser and Prince Franz Joseph of Hohenzollern, one of his officers, are prisoners of war, both unwounded.

An unofficial report on the casualties aboard the German ship are 200 killed and 30 wounded.

The Admiralty directs that officers on the Emden be permitted to retain their swords and the survivors to receive all honors of war.

MONEY FOR WAR; CLAIMS MUST WAIT

In a letter to the local member, the Minister of Railways and Canals observes that the war has had a tremendous effect not only in decreasing the revenue but of commandeering suddenly for war purposes the revenue actually received. Consequently the Government is not able to pay claims, and those who are expecting money will simply have to wait.

BIG CAPTURES BY RUSSIANS

Estimates Place German Loss in Officers at 70 Per Cent — 21,750 Soldiers Prisoners

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 11. — A Havas Agency despatch from Petrograd says: "It is estimated here that during recent fighting in East Prussia the Germans lost 70 per cent. of their officers.

"From October 23 to November 5 the total Russian captures amounted to 383 officers, 21,750 soldiers, 52 cannon, 52 quick-firing guns and a large amount of munitions of war, including provisions."

PRODUCE FROM OTONABEE FOR RELIEF OF BELGIANS

Farmers of Township Make Donations Which Fill Three Cars

Three cars of agricultural produce grown in the Township of Otonabee are by this time routed to Montreal, destined for the relief of homeless and starving Belgian refugees. The Township of Otonabee boasts of many big-hearted farmers, who recognized a plan wherein they could contribute of their goods, if not their money, to a purpose so worthy and popular.

One car was loaded at the local Grand Trunk siding at Simcoe street. Potatoes formed the largest portion of the load. The care was moved out yesterday.

Two cars have been lying on the siding at Keene station, to which farmers from that vicinity hauled all manner of produce. The car out of here and the two at Keene were picked up, and by this time should be well on their way.

CROWN PRINCE IN COMMAND

Leads German and Austrian Armies Against the Russians

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Nov. 11. — A Petrograd despatch says that a war council presided over by the Kaiser has appointed the Crown Prince commander-in-chief of the German and Austrian armies operating against Russia, with Von Hindenberg commanding the left wing, and the Austrian general, Dankl, the right.

TORPEDO BOAT SUNK.

Melbourne advices say that the Imperial Government has agreed to lend the Commonwealth of Australia $160,000,000 for five years.

CONGRATULATIONS FOR GEN. FRENCH

His Majesty Filled With Admiration of Troops' Valor

LONDON, Nov. 11.—King George has sent the following communication to Sir John French, commander of the British expeditionary force on the continent:

"The splendid pluck, spirit and endurance shown by my troops in the desperate fighting which has continued so many days against vastly superior forces fills me with admiration. I am confident of the final result of their noble efforts under your able command."

Gen. French replied, thanking His Majesty for the message, which he said had been received with gratitude and pride by the army. He assured the King "of unalterable determination to uphold the highest traditions of Your Majesty's army, and carry the campaign through to a victorious conclusion."

TURKISH PEACE STRENGTH 375,000

TURKEY AS A MILITARY POWER

Having now taken sides with Germany and Austria, Turkey probably will strike at Russia with all her force and in this way occupy the attention of a portion of the Czar's army. It is unlikely that she will have any fighting to do outside her own territory. The Turkish navy is hardly worth considering as a fighting machine.

THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD INVESTIGATE.

SHORTLY AFTER the war broke out, the Canadian Government announced that if prices were increased unduly steps would be taken to lower them. Nothing has ben done, yet there seems to be plenty of material for an investigation.

Take sugar for an example, which is a staple article of household use. Perhaps there is no other article the price of which is more carefully noted by the housewife. The shop-keeper recognizes this, and often sells his sugar at a bare profit, or even at cost, as a good advertisement for his business. In England, where sugar is so largely used, not only for household purposes but also for the immense trade in jams, jellies and confectionery, the Government attached so much importance to securing a supply at fair prices that soon after the outbreak of the war they bought up all the raw sugar that could be found, and then sold it to the refiners upon the condition that they in turn would sell at moderate prices, which were stipulated. Here in Canada there has been no such Government intervention in buying and selling. The refiners and dealers have been left with a free hand, and there are many people who are ready to complain that the price is excessive. Comparisons are made with the prevailing prices in the United States, from which it appears that Canadians are paying much more for their sugar than the Americans are paying. This naturally provokes unfavourable comment, and sometimes leads to conclusions that our people are paying more than they should for this necessary article.

There is, however, a material difference between the duties on raw sugar in the United States and in Canada, the Canadian tax being considerably higher than the American. For this the Government and Parliament and not the refiners are responsible. Allowance must be made for the difference. If, after making such allowance, there is still a higher price here than in New York, then there is something that needs explanation.

The cost of raw sugar in New York, at a late quotation is $2.50 per 100 pounds. The duty is $1.01 per 100 pounds. This makes the cost of raw sugar to the refiner $3.51 per 100 pounds. The refiner sells his product at $5.00, less 2 p.c., making the selling price $4.90. There is thus a margin of $1.39 to the American refiner to cover the loss of weight in refining, the cost of the refining and the profit.

Turn now to the Canadian refiner. He buys his raw sugar of the same grade at $2.50, but he has to pay $1.37½ duty, making his cost $1.87½. He sells at $6.70, less 5 p.c., making his selling price $6.36½. A few days ago he sold at $7.00. There is thus a margin of $2.49 per 100 pounds for the Canadian refiner against the $1.39 for the New York refiner. The question is, why should the Canadian refiner require $2.49 for charges and profit when the American refiner gets only $1.39?

Thus the Canadian refiner has to pay in duty 36½ cents more per hundred pounds than the American. He is, therefore, entitled in selling price to 36½ cents more than the American refiner gets. But the selling price in New York is $4.90, and in Canada $6.36½—a difference, not of 36½ cents, but of $1.46 per 100 pounds.

In these calculations, it is assumed that freight on the raw sugar is as low to the Canadian refiner as to the American. If this is not a fair assumption, then add 12 cents per 100 pounds (the rate from New York to Montreal) to the Canadian refiner's cost and deduct 12 cents from the margin above stated.

This is the way the case looks on first view. The figures seem to show that the price of sugar in Canada is higher than it should be. If there is another side to the question, and more careful calculation will show that the Canadian refiner is only getting a fair and reasonable profit, the people should be informed of it.

THE QUALITY OF GOODS MADE IN CANADA.

IF CANADIAN GOODS are to hold their proper place in the markets of Canada and of foreign countries, they must retain their quality. People will not buy inferior articles, not even for patriotic reasons, and, what is more, they should not be expected to buy them. There is no excuse for producing poor goods. In this respect, much depends on the workman, in regard to which a recent number of Industrial Canada says:

> "The success of the 'Made-inCanada' campaign depends to a considerable extent upon the industrial workers. Quality, in the last analysis, is the only thing that will retain popularity for goods which may be bought now for patriotic reasons. Quality is the result of faithful work and intelligent study by employees as well as by employers. The most pardonable pride is the pride of a man in the product of his labour. Unfortunately, many of the labour unions aim not only to restrict output, but also to encourage indifference towards the quality of manufactured articles. The closed shop advocates say, 'Do not work too hard or too well. The skilful workman should not set the pace for the unskilful.' The result, too often, is an enervating quality of endeavour, which reflects itself in the products. Individuality suffers.
>
> "The Germans attained their industrial superiority largely through their remarkable organization of employees. Though the labour unions were powerful, strikes were almost unknown because they were avoided by the expedient of calling the strikers, who were also army reservists, to the colors. While the method was questionable, the benefit was obvious. Because the workers enjoy more liberty in Canada is no reason why they should make their liberty a license to do poor work. The German workmen were loyal to their country when they produced articles which competed successfully in world markets. If Canadian goods are to equal German goods, Canadian workmen must decide, of their own free-will, to put their best thought and efforts into their daily tasks."

Those workmen who have in view the best interests of labour and of labour unions will insure that such a charge as Industrial Canada suggests will be unfounded. It is a patriotic duty at this time, when employment is scarce, and when employers are trying to maintain their payrolls by reaching out for new business and to foreign markets, that the individual workman should do his work as well as he can. Any workman that turns out work poorer than it should be is cutting not only at his own interests, but at those of the whole country as well.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ALL GAME PROTECTIONISTS now agree that the game laws of the past have failed to prevent the rapid decrease of game birds, and that their protection and increase can best be secured in the propagation of the birds by means of the game sanctuary.

AS A RESULT of the agricultural survey of the Commission of Conservation, it has been found that in a number of cases too many horses are kept to be profitable, while the number of cattle kept per hundred acres is seldom up to the capacity of the farms.

French-Canadians Recruiting.

(La Patrie.)

In response to the general appeal to French-Canadians to form a distinct regiment, nearly three thousand men responded. The Government having limited the strength of the Royal French-Canadian Regiment to 1,026 men, it was useless to continue the recruiting campaign any longer, and the recruiting was suspended, not because there were not many willing to serve, but simply because the ranks were filled. The recruiting will doubtless be resumed at some future date, when a third contingent is being raised, and we have no doubt that our fellow-citizens will continue to volunteer in large numbers. Thousands have already had their offers refused. As a matter of fact, the recruiting of the French-Canadian regiment, the strength of which could have been easily tripled, has proven that the anti-patriotic campaign of Mr. Bourassa and the few weekly journals which share the opinions of the editor of Le Devoir, have had absolutely no influence upon public opinion. Sight should not be lost of the fact that all the important newspapers of the province, those of Montreal, like those of Quebec, have held an irreproachable position on this question of national defence.

Where is the Ready-made Army?

(Brockville Times.)

According to the Liberal organs who were busily engaged a few months ago in ridiculing the German peril and in denouncing the "Tory jingoes" there was no need for the formation of a big, efficient militia in Canada; that was "militarism" and the result of a deep, dark plot by the "armor-platers." There was no need for all this money being spent on equipping and improving the militia, or of inciting the youth of Canada to bloodthirstiness by drill and uniforms. Not at all: if the country were ever in danger—which was not likely with the Monroe Doctrine of the United States and the British Navy to protect us—but if ever Canada or the Empire were menaced seriously all that was necessary was someone (beautifully vague, that "someone": possibly JAM) to rise up and cry, "Horaw, boys,—Rally 'round the flag!" and hey, presto, up would spring out of the ground a ready-made army of fully-drilled, fully-equipped Canadian soldiers led by scientifically trained Canadian officers ready to mow down the enemy at the word of command.

More About Monroe Doctrine.

(Westminster Gazette.)

If the Bernstorff voice be the true authentic voice of Germany, we think that this country ought to afford all possible facilities for this adumbrated invasion of Canada. Let us offer a free, unmolested passage to any German flotilla of transports and warships which desires to go to Canada. Even so, we are confident it would never get there. For the United States has a navy which would be delighted to prove that it does not consider the Monroe Doctrine a "scrap of paper."

Effect of the Moratorium.

(London Opinion.)

"Please, Muvver's sent word to say if you don't mean to send the frying-pan back as you borrered a month ago, she'll 'ave to send fayver round."

"And yer can tell yer mother that she can send 20 fathers round — she ain't forced to get it back while the moritoriyum's on."

VICTORIA CROSS IS AWARDED

Sergt. Major White is First to Win Honor

LONDON, Nov. 11. — Sergt.-Major White, of the Army Service Corps, is the first man to get the coveted Victoria Cross in the present war.

The gallant act for which this soldier was awarded the cross occurred at Lecateau where White, after his corps had been driven back by German cavalrymen returned in the face of a hail of bullets searching for his wounded captain. He was successful and carried the officer to safety.

The sergeant-major was shot in both legs.

White won the distinguished conduct medal in South Africa for carrying Lord Robert's son, who was mortally wounded, from the danger zone before Colenso, and who was awarded the Victoria Cross for his gallantry in that action.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

PARIS, Nov. 11. — The following bulletin was issued by the French War Office last night.

"At the north the battle continues very violent.

"There is nothing to report on the other part of the front."

The afternoon bulletin said:

"The action continued all day yesterday with the same intensity that has characterized the previous fighting between the sea and the region of Armentieres. The encounters were of particular violence, for the reason that the opposing forces are alternately taking the offensive. Summing up, it may be said that the day was marked by the checking of a German attack in considerable force to the south of Ypres, and by perceptible progress on the part of the French forces in the vicinity of Bixschoote and between Ypres and Armentieres.

"Equally on the front of the British troops all the German attacks were repulsed with energy. Along the major part of front from the Canal of La Bassee, as far as the Woevre, our troops made secure the results attained in the course of the past few days. There should be reported also our progress in the region of Loivre, between Rheims and Berry-au-Bac. In Lorraine there is nothing to report. In the Vosges fresh attacks on the part of the enemy directed against the heights to the south of Mount Sainte Marie and to the southeast of Thann all have been repulsed."

THEY EXPECT CAPTURE.

Officers of Karlsruhe Say They Are Under Orders to Make Trouble First.

EDINBURGH, Nov. 11.—An officer of the freight steamer Pruth, which was sunk by the German cruiser Karlsruhe off the coast of Brazil, has arrived here. He says the Karlsruhe is using an island called Rocas Reef as a coaling and supply base and that there the Germans have a large quantity of coal and stores.

"Officers of the Karlsruhe told me," said this officer, "that they expected to be captured by the British fleet before long, but that meanwhile it was their painful duty to do as much damage as possible to the enemy's commerce.

"They were very polite and gave us twelve hours to leave our ships. Then they took off the provisions and the ship's papers and blew up the Pruth with dynamite. We were transferred to the Crefeld, which was one of five cargo boats accompanying the Karlsruhe, which she was using as scouts."

TURKEY TO BLAME.

British White Paper Reviews Events Prior To War.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The British Government issued last night another "white paper," reviewing the incidents which preceded the declaration of war against Turkey. It deals in the main with the Goeben and Breslau affair, and sets forth that the Grand Vizier all along was at least ostensibly against dragging Turkey into the conflict, but was either powerless to resist Enver Bey and his associates, or, while outwardly opposing them, was winking at the fast approaching crisis, while the Turkish and German preparations went forward.

The Grand Vizier, according to a despatch from the British Embassy at Constantinople, dated Aug. 15, admitted that Germany was doing her utmost to compromise the Turkish Government, but gave solemn assurance that Turkey's neutrality would be maintained. This assurance was frequently repeated, and so impressed the British Ambassador, Sir Louis Mallet, that he wrote to Sir Edward Grey that he was convinced of the Grand Vizier's sincerity.

Bandits Get Life Sentences.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—Jos. Beauchamp and Israel Bourret, two of the bandits who shot and wounded Constables Bourdon and Guyon, were yesterday sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Lavergne. Arthur Foucault, an accomplice, was given one year.

Trainman Killed in Chatham.

Frederick Llewellyn Goss, inventor of the printing press which bears his name, died at his home in Chicago yesterday. He was born in Wales in 1847.

Word is to hand that Policeman John Cobden of the Brantford force, who went to the front as a British reservist, has been promoted for bravery in the field.

The London Daily Mail's correspondent at Copenhagen says he hears from Berlin that preparations are being made at Potsdam for Emperor William's return.

James B. Ashman, of London, Ont., a native of South Africa, is getting in touch with South Africans, Australians and New Zealanders throughout Ontario, with a view to organizing a battery of artillery for service in France.

President Poincare yesterday telegraphed the Emperor of Japan his congratulations on the capture of Tsingtau, to which the Emperor replied thanking M. Poincare in the name of the Japanese army for his felicitations.

Andre Maginot, the French ex-assistant Secretary of War, who recently received the military medal for heroic conduct, has been dangerously wounded during an engagement near Verdun. He is a sergeant in the French territorial army.

A proclamation issued by the Germans at Brussels specifically threatens, according to a despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Amsterdam, to stop the distribution of food by the American relief committee among the unemployed until the Belgians go to work.

Gunner Walter Pendleton, belonging to Montreal, but a member of the heavy battery artillery, has died at Salisbury Plains under tragic circumstances. His body was found in a secluded portion of the camp. How he came by his death will form the subject of an inquest.

AIRSHIP OVER ENGLAND.

Probably Hostile Craft Sighted at Sheerness and Harwich.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A despatch to The Evening News from Dover says:

"As a result of a report that an airship had been sighted over Sheerness the searchlight corps was busy all night.

"Later the airship was reported over Harwich.

"Firing was heard on the eastern cliffs between two and 2.30 o'clock yesterday morning."

Harwich is the extreme northern coast point in Essex, on the North Sea, and Sheerness is in Kent, at the mouth of the Thames, about thirty-five miles south of Harwich and about the same distance east of London.

"TURKEY IS FINISHED."

Turkish Official Says Declaration of War Spells Ruin For Porte.

ROME, Nov. 11.—Ifram Bey, head of the staff of Essad Pasha, the Albanian Minister of War, who is here to negotiate for the lending of assistance by Italy to Albania, said yesterday concerning the situation created by Turkey entering into the war:

"Turkey is finished. As a Mussulman I am sorry, but in reality I know the Caucasus and am convinced that Turkey cannot oppose serious resistance to the Russians. At Erzerum, Turkey claims she has 300,000 men to resist the Russians, but her forces there are far below that number, while Trebizond is in even a worse condition.

"Essad Pasha also thinks that a fight under these conditions is folly, and that Turkey should have remained neutral, asking in exchange some compensation from the Triple Entente. Now she rushes toward ruin. When the Mussulmans know that the power of the Caliph has been sacrificed to German interests and a few politicians summary justice will follow, but it will be too late."

Danish Newspapers Stopped.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11. — Hejmdal, the Danish paper in Sleswig, has been stopped for five days by the German military censor, because it did not mention in its columns the birthday of the German Empress.

Another Danish paper published in a little town near the frontier, has been prohibited by the German military censor, for some unknown reason from passing the frontier.

Casualties Heavy.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — A heavy casualty list of officers of the Indian army issued by the press bureau yesterday emphasizes the fierceness of the recent fighting in which the Indian troops have been engaged in west Flanders.

The list includes twenty-six British and eight native officers killed; thirteen British and twelve native officers wounded, and three British and three native officers missing.

France Gets Japanese Guns.

PARIS, Nov. 11. — The French army now has the use of the 105-millimetre guns built in France to rearm the artillery forces of Japan. When the war began part of the guns had been delivered and another large consignment was on the ocean.

Japan was asked by France if she might take the guns. The Japanese Government cabled promptly, placing them at the disposition of France, and announced that she was sending back those already delivered, so that the French army might use them. The vessel conveying the last consignment had already reached Colombo when it was intercepted.

The "Entre Nus"

How Invitation by Cross-eyed Man Mixed Things up.

By ADELE MENDED

"Don't say another word about the dance, I beg of you," said Beatrice. "I simply can't bear to hear any more about it."

"Since when are such subjects too frivolous for your ears?" queried Drusilla, raising her eyebrows and looking up from her fancy work. "Especially when in all your finery and glory you most likely will lead the grand march with Charles."

"Nothing of the kind," answered Beatrice in a I-don't-care-what-happens tone.

"Didn't you have a new gown for the occasion?"

"Yes, and I'll wear it if only to show some people that I can't be stunned by their audacity."

"But if you're not going with Charles, who is?"

"Hallie Weston."

"Incredible! Why, only last week Charles remarked in his nonchalant way, 'What do you girls see in Hallie? She reminds me of the brook that went on forever, with her incessant talking.'"

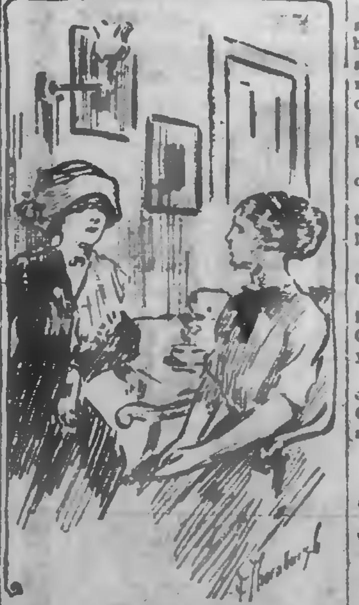
"Drusilla, when a young man talks to you about a dance and asks your opinion on all details, and then at the eleventh hour asks another girl, do you think he can ever justify his conduct?" asked Beatrice.

"No, and I simply can't understand it," admitted Drusilla.

"Are you sure?"

"Positive. Hallie and I met Charles on the street. He came towards us in his usual cordial way, and stopped to say to Hallie, 'I'm going to take you to the "Entre Nus" affair, Hallie must have had some inkling as she didn't appear surprised, and only said, 'I thank you; what time will you call for me?'

"For a moment I felt the keen insult that he should invite her in my presence, and then I said, 'I'm going with Jesse Tompkins.' You know Jesse is always pestering me to go with him, so I knew I could rely upon his taking me. We left Charles at the corner, and though I was the one to be offended, he doesn't even bow to me when we pass each other by."



"I Simply Can't Understand It," Said Drusilla.

"Jesse is much shorter than you; don't you feel like a giantess when you're with him?"

"Well," said Beatrice, "it came to me like a flash that I wouldn't give either one of them the satisfaction that I couldn't go, and anyway a little man with loads of money is better than no man at all."

"That's philosophical enough, my dear, but don't get a bad case of glooms over it. If Charles is so fickle and changeable in his affections, it's better to know it now than later."

After Drusilla left, the words, "It's better to know it now," kept ringing in Beatrice's ears. She hated to face the truth that any man could so lightly throw her friendship aside after all his professions of sincerity.

"I'll not have any one's sympathy," she determined. "At the dance I'll be the gayest of all."

"Why, Beatrice," exclaimed her friend a few days later, "how much better you look than the last time I saw you; you are fairly radiant. It must be your hat. It's so becoming."

A faint color rose to Beatrice's cheek. "Don't blame it all on my hat," she said; "give me credit for a portion of my good looks."

"I just saw Hallie and she failed completely to appreciate Charley's charms," continued Drusilla; "and she never was so bored in all her existence, that she was the only girl whose partner did not send her a corsage bouquet, and he never even was concerned whether her program was filled or not. In fact she said there was no pleasure to go with a young man who was constantly noticing another girl. Why do you think he asked her and then was so rude?"

Hallie smiled.

"Promise you'll never tell."

"I'll never tell a soul."

"He was an unwilling victim. Toward the end of the evening Charlie came up to me saying, 'Hope you enjoyed yourself.'"

"Oh, immensely," I replied.

"Doesn't your back ache from dancing with that midget?" he asked in a maddeningly sympathetic way.

"Not a bit," I answered. "Jesse is a splendid dancer."

"Then you prefer that dwarf's attentions to mine?" he exclaimed in a jealous rage.

"Just as much as you prefer Hallie to me," I replied.

"But I don't and never will," he protested, looking at me tenderly. "I asked you for tonight, not her."

"You asked me? How can you deliberately say that when I heard you invite her?"

"Didn't I look at you, when I said 'I'm going to take you to the dance?'"

"Then I laughed and laughed until I could not laugh any more."

"What was so ludicrous about that?" interrupted Drusilla.

"Until that moment I never thought about it. He's cross-eyed, and when he looked at Hallie, in his own heart and soul he was in reality staring at me. That's where all the trouble came up."

"Oh, how disconcerted Hallie would be if she knew."

"She never will. The best part of our quarrel was the reconciliation."

"It's always been my pet aspiration to see you two married," said Drusilla.

"Well, your wish will soon come true."

"Beatrice," asked Drusilla, "won't it be dreadful after you are married if Charles should say loving things to you and look at another woman?"

"I won't mind that ever again," declared Beatrice vehemently. "Because Charles says all other women look alike to him except me. So there!"

ALL FOR THE SAKE OF BETSY

When Col. J. J. Astor Jeopardized His Yacht and Passengers for a Dog.

Some years ago Col. J. J. Astor and his yacht Nourmahal and his son, Vincent, were reported lost at sea, the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star recalls. Every one got excited about it—especially in New York newspaper offices. It was a New York newspaper, you may remember, which ran this headline over the story of the wreck of the Titanic: "Col. John Jacob Astor Lost at Sea; Two Thousand Others Also Drowned."

The Astor part of the headline was in very large pink letters and the rest was comparatively modest type. When the Nourmahal was reported lost the papers began to talk about sending out searching expeditions. The government dispatched a cruiser to search for Astor. Now Richard Barry tells the story of that episode for the first time. "Astor was very fond of his pet dog," says Barry. "The pet dog hated the sea. The second day out on the cruise the dog began to mope. Astor told the captain of the yacht to point her nose for shore. 'I'll take Betsy off and give her a run,' said the master of millions.

"They landed that day on the Carolina shore and Betsy got her run. But one run wasn't enough for her. Each day, as they voyaged south, Betsy was taken on land to stretch her legs. Finally they were off the Honduras coast and Betsy began to howl for a frolic. The captain protested that the coast line was insufficiently charted, and that the Nourmahal was in danger of being wrecked if he was obliged to run in too near.

"'No matter,' said Astor. 'Betsy isn't happy.'

"So they put in, and shelved the Nourmahal on a rock, and every one north of Panama became violently excited because it wasn't possible to hear from the Astors, and it cost the yacht owner a good many dollars to get her off. But he didn't care. He was fond of Betsy—and Betsy had her run."

EGGS COOKED TO SUIT HIM

How John Randolph Had Them Boiled With Assistance of String of Servants.

Most persons who eat eggs at all are particular about them. The boiling of an egg seems a simple matter, but many a breakfast has been spoiled and many a temper rasped by the cook's failing to observe the precise number of minutes and seconds that the process should occupy.

That very original man, John Randolph, is said to have invented a method of getting his eggs cooked exactly to his taste that worked perfectly. As in the case in many country homes in the south, the kitchen was in a separate building at some distance from the house, and servants were plenty.

When the "sage of Roanoke" took his seat at the breakfast table there was a line of servants from the dining room to the kitchen. Mrs. Randolph, the mother of the statesman, held an open watch in her hand.

"In!" exclaimed Mr. Randolph, and the word "in" was passed from mouth to mouth until it reached the waiting cook, who dropped the eggs into the water. After the requisite number of seconds the holder of the timepiece signified that the cooking was done. "Out!" went forth the command in like manner, and the eggs were quickly removed.

The system required six or seven servants to cook one egg, but Randolph was accustomed to declare that this was the only way that he could get it cooked to suit him.

Abalone Meat in Demand.

Dried and smoked abalone meat, most of which is cured in southern California fishing ports, is purchased by Oriental importers at fancy prices. Occasionally it sells for $300 a ton. In some instances divers are employed to procure the mollusks, and it is not uncommon for an experienced man to bring to the surface two tons of meat and shells in a day.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

A three minute glass (the kind used in the kitchen when cooking) will be found an excellent timepiece when doing long distance telephoning, as it allows three minutes only.

Vinegar placed in a bottle of dried up glue will moisten and make it liquid again.

Blankets which are not in use should have small pieces of thoroughly dried yellow soap scattered in the folds when they are put away. This keeps moths out.

Stale breadcrumbs mixed with a trifle of washing blue can be used for cleaning embossed velvet. A piece of white flannel should be used for applying the breadcrumbs, which will finally require brushing off with a clean, soft whisk.

To store silver place in a cardboard box a layer of ordinary flour, then lay the forks and spoons upon it and cover thickly with flour. They will remain quite bright for any length of time.

Always rub leather chairs over from time to time with a very little fresh milk applied with a soft, clean linen rag, rubbing the milk off lightly at once. This prevents the surface from drying and cracking. Should the surface be rubbed off apply a good leather restorer.

The Germans have equipped the Turks with guns, ammunition, submarines and officers. All that's needed now is for Berlin to send a competent liar to write the Constantinople War Office reports and the job will be complete.

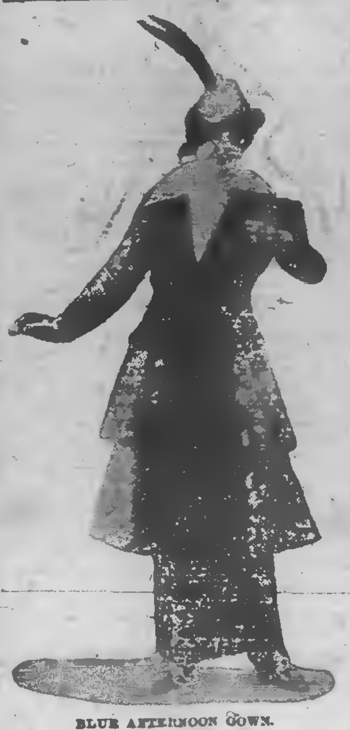
THE NEW SILHOUETTE.

Flares Featured For Fall and Winter Costumes.



BLUE AFTERNOON GOWN.

The new silhouette is striking. Glance at the fall gown pictured here if you wish to know how it differs from those it is superseding. You will observe that there is a decided flare to the tunic, which is open in the front. The skirt was of dark blue velvet. Dark blue taffeta was used for the two tiered tunic and combined with velvet for the bodice. The collar and vest were of white organdie.

Dyeing Rugs or Carpets.

Cheap faded rugs and carpets that are not too badly worn should be dyed all over.

To do this successfully it is first necessary to scrub the rug, then rinse it. Mix the dye and keep it well stirred in the vessel, so that the color will be even.

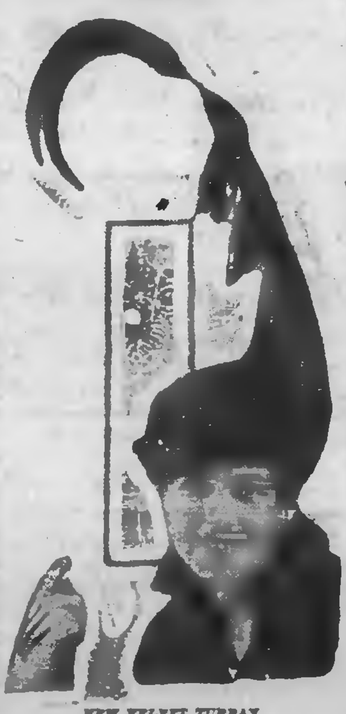
While the rug is still wet apply the dye with a clean whitewash brush. It colors evenly this way. If the rug is dyed on the floor place a great many newspapers under it to absorb the moisture.

It should be thrown double over a line to dry or else allowed to dry on the floor. It will shrink slightly.

For a cotton rug which turns a dirty white use such colors as dark green, mahogany, red and delft blue. Jute rugs may be dyed in a similar manner, but the dye in this case should be applied to the dry rug.

The Skyscraper Hat.

There is nothing startling in the height of trimmings applied to fall and winter millinery. The hat shown here is of black velvet with a novel decoration of coque.



NEW VELVET TURBAN.

Cuffs Grow In Size.

Cuffs are reaching a startling size, some of them almost touching the elbow. Young women are wearing with their fall street frocks of dark serge or worsted and mohair mixture hemstitched organdie collars with deep cuffs to match, and the effect is exceedingly smart if the accessories are irreproachably fresh and crisp.

Only a tall, slender woman, however, should wear the very deep cuffs of white fabric on a dark costume. On a short, plump woman these conspicuous cuffs give an effect which is not smart, but heavy and inartistic.

Gloves and Boots.

The woman who desires to look smart and correct at the season's commencement is fastidious about her gloves and boots.

Gloves with rather wide stitching on the back are liked just now, and white gloves should not be worn before 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Buttoned boots with curved heels and tops of contrasting kid are fashion's choice for town wear.

Men do not realize how great a revenue thrift is.

Which Was Which?

By EUNICE BLAKE

"Lucy," said Lucinda, "I don't believe your Bob or my Dick can tell us apart."

"Not in the dark," was the reply.

"Nor in the light. Suppose we change our engagement rings and see if it doesn't fool them. I'll exchange my diamond solitaire for your sapphire. We dress alike, and Dick has said that we look more alike than any twins he has ever known. The only difference in any of the things about us is our engagement rings."

"We can try it anyway."

So the girls exchanged rings. It was Saturday, and their lovers usually called on that evening. Lucy's fiance came in first, and Lucinda went down to receive him with her sister's diamond ring on her finger.

Bob Brackett arrived half an hour after Weatherbee. He was shown, as usual, into the library, where he found Lucy with her sister's sapphire on her finger. He, too, was deceived. The pair had not been long together when Brackett and Lucinda came into the room where they were.

"We've been discussing the wedding," Brackett said, "and there are points we must talk over with you two. How about the ushers? Shall we limit the reception to relatives or make it general?"

A number of such questions were taken up and discussed. The girls soon dropped their fiances out of the argument, deliberating with each other. Dick winked at Bob and said:

"Let's go and have a smoke, Bob. We don't count in these wedding plans."

The young men went to the smoking room, and Dick said to Bob, "Seen anything unusual in your girl?"

"No. Why do you ask?"

"They're putting up a job on us. It wasn't Lucinda who received you; it was Lucy."

"You don't mean it!"

"Yes, I do. I found out that Lucinda was with me by talking with her. When I mentioned something that only Lucy knew she was dead ignorant of it. But I didn't let on. I pretended still to be fooled. Now I tell you what we do. When they laugh at us for being fooled we'll declare we're not fooled at all. You cling to Lucy, and I'll do the same by Lucinda."

"Good boy! We'll do it!"

They returned to the library after their smoke without manifesting the slightest evidence that they had discovered the ruse that was being practiced upon them. When they arose to go Dick, bidding good night to Lucinda, offered the usual kiss. She drew back, laughing. He stood looking at her with well feigned surprise.

"I'm not your girl; I'm Lucinda," she said.

"Oh, come! You can't impose on me in that way," said Dick. "You don't suppose I can't tell the girl I love from some other girl, do you?"

At this juncture Lucy, who in like manner had refused Bob a kiss, found it necessary to struggle with him. He pretended to take the matter in high dudgeon. Then the girls, both talking at once and both laughing, tried to explain that they had been playing a joke on their lovers. Dick, who led the way for both, winked at Bob, then walked up to Lucy and took her in his arms, whereupon Bob angrily pulled him away. Dick, in a fine stage passion, struck the man who had interfered with him, and a fracas ensued, the girls trying to part the antagonists. Bob declared that Lucy was the girl he loved and he would have no other. Dick veered around to his opinion, saying that he believed Bob was right and, having engaged himself to the girl who wore the ring he had given her, he didn't propose to marry her sister. Finally the two young men left the house, neither of their fiancees having received the usual parting kiss.

The girls stood looking at each other. They had some time before ceased to laugh.

"This is serious," said Lucy.

"Who proposed it?"

"I, but I didn't think they would be so stupid as to mistake us permanently."

"How are we going to prove which is which?"

"Mother'll have to set them right."

"I'm not sure they'll believe even her."

The next day Lucy called up her Dick on the phone.

"Dick," she said, "I'm Lucy."

"Which Lucy—the real one or the one whom it was attempted to foist on me last night?"

"Why, I'm the real Lucy. I wore Lucinda's ring."

There was a click, then a silence which Lucy could not break. She suggested that Lucinda call up Bob and try to appease him. Lucinda did so and, by promising that he and Dick might choose for themselves, secured his promise to call the same evening and bring Dick with him.

When the two men called each girl wore her own engagement ring.

"Now, which is which?" said Lucy.

Each man walked up to the girl he was really engaged to and gave her a kiss, which she received willingly. The girls were much relieved. The men refused to admit that they had changed rings and that each man had not passed the evening with his fiancee. But after awhile they told the story of their collusion and, having been roundly scolded for joking on so serious a subject, were forgiven.

WHALE BEEF NEXT

Whale beef is the latest suggested means of meeting our threatened meat famine. For years this beef has been found palatable by the Japanese and by sailors on whaling vessels, but the great bulk of it has been allowed to go to waste after the blubber was removed. It is believed that, like the meat of the great tuna, it would find a ready market as the prices of steers go up. A company has been formed on the Pacific coast which proposes to utilize the slack time of the salmon canneries to can whale beef and send it to market. It is also expected that several Vancouver Island whaling companies will go into the business seriously and deliver the beef to the canneries either by towing or loading it abroad. An average whale with 20 tons of beef will make close to 40,000 one-pound cans and furnish 120,000 single meals. There is a steady and growing demand for the flesh of the tuna although the canneries for putting it up were started less than a year ago and there is no reason to suppose that whale beef, which is said to be equally nourishing and palatable, will not meet with the same success. The whaling people are likely to take up the idea with zest as the price of whale oil has dropped from $2.50 a gallon to 55 cents. It remains to be seen whether the Canadian consumer will accept this new addition to the daily menu or whether he will still consent to be hidebound by culinary tradition.

To Plow Town Lots.

A scheme to reduce the cost of living by "The vacant lot garden plan," is being projected by prominent members of the Fort William Board of Trade.

The scheme is to secure permission from owners of vacant lots all over the city to devote the land free for garden purposes for the season and to have the land plowed and harrowed this fall; the lots to be allotted as application is made for them; seed to be supplied by the city and if necessary paid for when the crops are harvested. The scheme will cost but very little to be carried out and besides will be the means of supplying the laboring man with vegetables without cost and probably permit him to send a portion to the market.

On Wrong Scent.

A slick swindler is operating in Ontario. Upon entering a town he lays in a supply of small glasses, costing 10 cents each. These he fills with earth, into which he places a couple of short stalks of milk weed or any other plant, and then anoints the earth with attar of roses. He is now prepared to furnish confiding purchasers with shoots from the celebrated "Ceylon Rose" at $1.50 each, and does it as fast as he can handle them.—Acton Free Press.

Cannons of Wood.

There was a time when cannons were actually made of leather, though they were never very efficacious. In the Canadian rebellion of 1837, the Papineau cannons were made of wood hooped with iron by blacksmiths.

DAIRY MEETING AT WESTWOOD

Government Officials Will Deal With Interesting Subject

The annual district dairy meeting of the County of Peterborough will be held in the town of Westwood on Thursday, November 19th, at 2 p.m., under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture and the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario.

Geo. H. Barr, Chief of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, or Mr. H. W. Coleman, Superintendent of Cow Testing in Ontario and either G. G. Publow, Chief Dairy Instructor or L. A. Zufelt, superintendent of the dairy school, Kingston, will address the meeting. The district representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture will also deliver an address. The local Dairy Instructor, R. W. Ward, will be present and report upon his work during the season. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., director for the district will occupy the chair. At the close of the meeting a director will be nominated for the ensuing year.

The great value of this meeting to the dairy farmer cannot be over-estimated and every farmer and farmer's son who has the interest of his calling at heart, as well as its monetary success, should not fail to be present.

At this morning's cheese board meeting Messrs. Gillespie, Ward and Cameron were present and urged the members of he Board to attend.

ECONOMIC EPIGRAMS

There may be some difference of opinion as to the advisability of putting Canadian women on the Voters' List. But just about now there are mighty few manufacturers who wouldn't like to be put on the Women's Patronage List and perhaps the best test of women's ability to vote will be her ability to grasp the "Made in Canada" idea.

While the Kaiser is doing his best to bung up the British Empire, what's the matter with you and the rest of us doing what we can to make him lose? All we have to do is to keep things steady. He can't rock the boat so long as we buy goods made in Canada.

Of course it may require some thought to ask your merchant for something made in Canada. But nowadays most of us are thinking pretty hard and to good effect too. Why not chip in your little effort along this line? Every little helps.

Many great movements are based on what some people call sacrifice. The buy "Made in Canada" movement is highest patriotism and enlightened selfishness, prosperity to self and country and satisfaction in the purchase.

Come to thing of it, there's so little of what we need that can't be made in Canada, that it would almost pay to do without the things that aren't.

A Belgian manufacturer, whose factory near Ghent was destroyed by the Germans, asks for a grant of land near Montreal on which to rebuild. He would employ 1,500 hands.

RELIGIOUS SIDE OF Y.M.C.A. WORK

Theatre Meeting the First Sunday of Each Month

It is the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. to emphasize religious work this season. Three meetings of the religious work committee, with Dr. Moir as chairman, have been held during the past few days to arrange the religious work program for the season.

It is proposed to hold theatre meetings the first Sunday of each month, using the very best possible speakers and musical talent, believing that the Gordon meetings at the theatre have demonstrated that men appreciated such services.

A call is being issued for the Life Problem Club for the first meeting, to be held next Sunday afternoon, November 15th, at 4.15 o'clock. Dr. A. Moir will address the young men, after which officers will be elected for the ensuing season. These meetings are open to all men, and are not restricted to membership of the club or of the Y. M. C. A.

Monday evening at 6.30 o'clock every interested man is invited to attend a complimentary supper for the purpose of considering the organizing of a Bible Study Club. It is proposed that the club consist of three classes, taking the graded work of the Y. M. C. A. National Council. Three-quarters of an hour will be devoted to the class each evening, fifteen minutes of this time being given to a popular address before the whole club, followed by class study.

Every man interested and who will attend the supper should notify the Y. M. C. A. office before 12 o'clock Monday, that provision may be made for all those who are to be present.

Meetings and Bible study classes of the association are not limited to the Y. M. C. A. members. A cordial invitation is given to all men to attend.

POLICE COURT

MANY HEARD THE STORY OF JEAN VAL JEAN

Before a splendid audience Rev. Dr. Cleaver delivered his popular lecture on "Jean Val Jean" last night in George Street Methodist Church. Interestingly he pictured the trials, joys, sorrows, courage and patient endurance of Hugo's famous character in all of his checkered career.

Rev. Dr. Cleaver is always a welcome visitor to Peterborough, and his lecture always sends his audience away with opinions divided between admiration for the speaker and the subject of his talk. Dr. Cleaver has traced the life of Valjean more times than he can recall, but he does it so powerfully, so thrillingly and withal so picturesquely that it never grows tiresome or dull.

Commencing with Valjean's daring escape from a galley boat slave gang and his desperate attempts to live a straight honorable life; then his fall from grace through the theft of the good bishop's silver spoons; his devoted love for his child Cosette, and his hounding by the police, Rev. Dr. Cleaver drew a picture of the man that worked on the hearts of all.

The chair was taken by Rev. Leonard Phelps, pastor of Mark St. Church under whose auspices the lecture was held.
